Mr. Kingdon recently completed a tour of the business development branches of banks, railways and industries in Toronto, Montreal, Chicago and Detroit making available information on the business assets of the region pertaining to industrial sites, building, labor and other pertinent details.

This information has been incorporated in 10,000 recently printed regional industrial brochures which are now being distributed through the Canadian Government Travel Bureau, Ontario Department of Tourism and Publicity, Chamber of Commerce and other agencies for business leaders considering sites for new plants.

WELCOMED BY MAYOR

Mayor Jane Forrester welcomed the delegates and stressed the importance of municipal councils in the association. She stated that the establishment of a lunch room in this area would serve a constructive role in plans for expansion. She said that a grant from the government could be anticipated for this purpose but that such participation would be forthcoming only for a college which would be non-denominational. She also suggested that if the municipalities were interested in the faster development of toll highways, the framing of a motion to this effect might bring faster action.

The development of modern tourist parks with full facilities was advocated. Reeve A. C. Platt of Wellington, described two outstanding parks of his area.

Percy McGuire, director of the regional board, presented a motion that the secretary be given information on existing parks and potential sites for tourist camps.

The motion to publicize existing parks and others on completion was unanimously approved.

STRESSES PLANNING

O. W. Larry, chairman of the meeting, stressed the importance of planning and pleaded for stronger representation from the municipalities in the reconstruction development of parks and publicizing of the beautiful drives throughout the district. An area between Glen Miller and Frankford was advocated as an excellent place for a tourist park.

Alderman Claude Tice recommended strong representation at the sports shows at Cleveland and New York. "You must know your district and tell people what you have," he advised.

The board authorized a grant of $100 to each municipality.

The next Zone meeting will be held at Clinton Lodge, Wellington.

Attending the meeting were: Alderman Claude D. Tice, city of Belleville; Jack McIlwraith, chamber of Commerce; H. W. Rose, reeve of Frankford; Jack Colley, councillor Wellington; A. C. Platt, reeve of Wellington; O. W. Larry, chairman, Trenton; Mayor Jane Forrester; Pere McGuire, directorregional board; Don Kingdon of Peterborough; general manager of LODA; Harry Puke, Belleville; Reeve Thurston; Reeve Corah Howard; Harry Pound and R. J. Hopkwood-Jones, councillors of Thurlow township; J. N. Yanover, city of Belleville; Alex. Hebert, Chamber of Commerce, Trenton.

Eden and Lloyd Make Sudden Flight to Paris

PARIS (AP) — Prime Minister Eden and Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd made a sudden flight from London to Paris today to discuss with French government leaders the next steps to be taken in the Suez Canal dispute.

A French foreign ministry spokesman said the British, French and Canadian Prime Ministers will take up the Suez question when it was left following the United Nations Security Council meeting in New York last week. The Security Council established a series of six principles for solution of the two month long crisis.

Both Britain and France have been insisting on a strict international control of the waterway seized by Egypt July 26. The Security Council decision fell considerably short of this mark.

$50,000 in Cash Found in Home

WEST BABYLON, N.Y (AP)—Police say a complete count shows John Van Huda and his recluse sister had a $50,000 cash hoard stuffed through the nine rooms of their junk-packed house.

A bushel of silver coins and a mass of crumpled bills made up the hoard.

Van Huda, 58, and his sister, Jeannette, 63, said they were robbed of $12,000 more last Saturday when two robbers posing as deliverymen gained admittance to the ramshackle house.

Police discovered the hoard in the house when they answered Van Huda's call for help.

Money was found lying on the floor and stashed away in boxes, cans, flowerpots and other nooks and crannies.

Battle Lines Drawn, Nominations Close for Nova Scotia Election

By DAL WARRINGTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP) — Today was nomination day for the Nova Scotia election Tuesday, Oct. 30 and returning officers in receiving nomination papers from candidates seeking 43 seats in the legislature.

At least 97 were expected to be named by the 3 main parties—Liberals and Progressive Conservatives have announced contests for all seats. The CCF named 10, mostly in industrial areas. One Independent Liberal is running.

Premier Henry Hicks, at 41 leader, announced the Liberal party's platform Monday night. The Progressive Conservatives and the CCF issued manifestoes last week.

Mr. Hicks reiterated a "four-point program": $100,000,000 for highway improvement, $30,000,000 for power development; increased aid for municipalities and hospital construction.

INCREASE LOANS

The Liberals also promised an increase in loans for new tourist accommodation to 75 per cent from 50 per cent of the cost, reexamination of the care and treatment of mental patients and continued negotiations for a new paper mill in the province.

All this can be done, the premier said, without raising taxes.

He promised to ask Ottawa for subsidies on coal used in power plants so it can compete with fuel oil, for a review of maritime freight rates and for co-operation of pensions to aged, blind and disabled persons.

The election is the first for Premier Hicks since he became Liberal leader after the death of Premier Angus L. Macdonald two years ago.

Standing in a 37-seat House after the 1953 election was 23 Liberals, 12 Progressive Conservatives and two CCF. At dissolution last month it was 19 Liberals, 17 Progressive Conservatives and two CCF and three vacant. The Liberals lost one seat in a 1954 by-election. Redistribution adds six seats to the new House.

A SPLENDID ACHIEVEMENT

The opening of the new wing of the Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday will be greeted with cheers. For the Board of Governors and the hospital executive it means the successful conclusion of almost three years of planning and supervision of a huge project. For the medical staff and public it means that there will not be the long waiting period, often needed, to get a bed for a patient which is probably the greatest satisfaction of all. And for the hospital staff it means greater facilities, better working conditions and consequently improved service to the patients.

The stature of the hospital has increased immeasurably in the last two decades. This has been achieved by the construction of two 100-bed additions and improved administration plus the introduction of new departments, one of which is the Department of Pathology, Cardiology, Radiology and Physio-Therapy. All this has brought accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals which is a five-member organization composed of leading Canadian and American medical and hospital associations. In brief this means the Belleville Hospital comes to high standards of patient care.

Another major benefit brought about by the expansion of the hospital has been the influx of talented members of the medical profession, most of the young in years, but well qualified to augment the established members of the group. Added specialists have been brought to the city with the result that there is less necessity to go to metropolitan hospitals and specialists for the diagnosis and treatment of disease.

The Belleville General Hospital would not be in the fine position it is today without the call for the public-spirited men and women who gave their time freely and with no thought of public recognition. Also the Women's Christian Association which established the hospital in 1886 is a unique an organization which will always be honored in Belleville. Until the Association turned the hospital over to the city in 1948 it was the only independent women's group in Canada which owned and operated a hospital. And this was done so successfully that the city acquired an asset worth at least three-quarters of a million dollars practically for nothing.

One of the chief assets of the hospital at the time it was turned over to the city was the 100-bed wing completed in 1940 at a cost of approximately $500,000. It should be mentioned that this sum was paid without having to call on the city for assistance. For her part during the years of expansion we feel that tribute should be paid to Mrs. W. C. Mikel of the W.C.A. for initiating the program and to Mackenzie Robertson, chairman of the Board of Governors and the late H. E. Fairfield, chairman of the building committee, and Gordon Fripp, the hospital administrator at that time, for their parts in carrying through to completion the huge project.

Despite the fact that extra accommodation was provided by the extra 100 beds, it was not long before the hospital was over-crowded again and this has continued almost without interruption ever since.

It is generally conceded that were it not for the initiative and energy of two well-known Belleville citizens we would not now be anticipating the benefits of a second new wing to the hospital. It was Arthur Vanderburgh, chairman of the Board, and A. Melbourne Haig, member of the Board, who carried through successfully the $1,250,000 fund-raising campaign which made the new wing possible. Along with them should be included J. R. Suckling, chairman of the building committee, who gave so much time in supervision during the period of construction, and Ken Fox, administrator of the hospital, who has had to give attention to a multitude of activities during the past two years.

Belleville has every reason to be proud of the excellent hospital which is now ready for public better than ever before. As the city grows and the need for more accommodation becomes necessary, it can be expected that the men and women responsible for the future of the hospital will keep pace with future requirements as competently and unselfishly as has been done in the past.

A DIFFERENCE IN TECHNIQUES

Baseball fans who watched part of the world series on TV and listened to part of it on the radio may have noted an interesting difference in techniques.

Radio announcers have had more than did those on the TV. The picture told much of the story for television watchers. The radio announcer had to paint the picture with words.

One criticism it has been said ad nauseum is worth a thousand words. Yet there were occasions during the world series when the superiority of words was strikingly demonstrated. Some pitchers were frequently taken out in a little tid-bits of information which only the most alert and expert TV-viewer would have noted.

Not just a foul with the count two-and-two, as it may have appeared to the TV audience but—"Robinson thought that ball might just catch the corner and managed to get his bat around just in time to foul it off and prolong his life at the plate."

RUSSIAN ROULETTE IN CARS

The game of Russian roulette can be played with an automobile as well as a revolver. Just watch the motorist (while he's still alive) who makes a practice of never stopping at railway level-crossings. (Brockville Recorder and Times.)

OCTOBER

October, and the wind's a little cider
And the skies a little grayer,
And all living creatures just a little older
And the trees a little gayer.

October, and the drowsy roses napping
And the zinnia blossoms daily petalled duller,
And the awnings at shop windows wildly flapping,

Torn and ragged, having lost the pride of color.

October, and the year can't live much longer.
Soon with all the years that were it will be sleeping,
When will come to all a younger and a stronger
As history takes the old month in its keeping.

Perfection Is Relative

New York Times

"Perfect" was the enthusiastic word the sports writers used to describe the game Don Larsen pitched against the Dodgers. The first time in the world series history a pitcher has denied first base to his opponents in three innings. But how "perfect" was his pitching? If hardly dims his exploits to point out that perfection in pitching, at least for the present, is relative. Theoretically to achieve real perfection a pitcher would have to toss no more than 27 pitches. Every pitch would have to be a strike, every pitch untouchable by the batter. In that way he would record 27 strike-outs, with no balls in between. Actually Larsen lost the ball to Yogi Berra a total of ninety-seven times and struck out seven. For the rest, seven of the outs were the result of ground balls grabbed by the infield, nine were flies to the outfield, there were two flies to the infield, and one was a line drive to the infield. It is a tribute to the teamwork involved in baseball that any misstep by a single player is quickly charged to his bid for fame. Only in seven of all the thousands of games has the ball been played through the years has every batter been retired first base. Larsen's feat is a mighty exploit. But perfection!

• • •

Perfection is relative, of course, in many phases of human endeavor. We say that the lad who scores all A's in theory on his report card has achieved perfect marks. But how perfect is his mastery of the subject in all his examinations, but this cannot mean that what is in mind, whether in chemistry or philosophy is beyond him. Even his teacher would be all-knowing. What would have happened, for example, if a preacher by chance had asked for the one formula or the one equation about which he was hazy? Then, we bet the motorist who stays free of brushes with the law is a "perfect driver." Is he? Was there ever a moment when his speed exceeded the limit, or he failed to signal when he, like the rest of us, it.

Woman Haters' Tart Phrases

By Robert Maury, in the Cleveland Plain Dealer

A young beau's initial response to cooing feminine ardor often is so sharp epigram that he has been tagged to his name that they can't all be original with him.

My own favorite is the one where someone argued that a certain writer was not realistic.

"To hell with the cost," replied Goodwin.

I heard an earnest lady ask him the other day if he would consider making a cultural film, of, say, the Sadler's Wells Ballet.

"If that's culture," Goodwin said he didn't think it would make money the good lady retorted that Mary Martin or Ethel Merman always a 100 per cent sellout. Goodwyn nodded patiently.

"I was in Chicago wunst," he said, "and heard Jascha Heifetz play violin. The stadium was packed, thirty-five tousand people.

"If that's culture," he said he didn't think it would make money the good lady retorted that Mary Martin or Ethel Merman always a 100 per cent sellout. Goodwyn nodded patiently.

"I was in Chicago wunst," he said, "and heard Jascha Heifetz play violin. The stadium was packed, thirty-five tousand people.

"If that's culture, I'm a violin. And I didn't."

Goldwyn paused, and a smile of wisdom, learned the hard way, lit his face.

"All dose 35,000 came to see my picture," he went on, "but no one else!"

Heifetz Film Did Not Pay

By Pharos
In the London Spectator

Mr. Sam Goodwyn often maintains that he is misquoted, but one story epigram has been tagged to his name that they can't all be original with him.

My own favorite is the one where someone argued that a certain writer was not realistic.

"To hell with the cost," replied Goodwyn.

I heard an earnest lady ask him the other day if he would consider making a cultural film, of, say, the Sadler's Wells Ballet.

Perfumed Cheques

Hamilton Spectator

Some years ago an enterprising London florist had his stationery impregnated with the aroma of violets. It was, to say the least, fragrant publicity, though it was not appreciated by the local chamber of commerce, likely because the fishmonger, hardware dealer and grocer considered it an unfair practice.

The other day, however, commercial interests were revived in nose appeal, for a Rochester, N.Y., printing company received an order for a supply of scented cheques from a Connecticut perfume manufacturer printed with perfumed ink: "Pay to the odour of . . . scents." The latter has asked his cheques to exude the aroma of newly-baked bread and a spaghetti maker made inquiries for some cheques with "just a touch of garlic."

It is but a small step from cheques to letterheads and the old hitherto unconvincing and uncultured statement: "Excuse the stinking letter," may be in the offing.

But those sterling citizens, the mail carriers, would rightly call a halt to any preponderance of scented mail. Otherwise, they could hardly expect the co-operation of animal lovers in supplying their assorted pets from interfering with the postmen's line of duties.

Swordfish Rammed Boat

BBC London Letter

Dr. William Holcombe and his wife have had many adventures since they set off from Oakland, California, some three years ago for a leisurely tour of the world in their 54-foot yacht, Landfall II. While making a short stay in Britain recently, Dr. Holcombe spoke on a BBC program about his most dramatic experience, a lucky escape they had had when attacked by a swordfish in the Pacific.

They were on their way from Colombo to Aden when late one night there was a thump as if the boat had struck some solid object like a log or a submerged mass of the incident until the next morning when I was thinking that the bilge and the floorboards were full of water. As soon as I went down to the bilge I found that there was a very heavy leak below the engine and six feet below the waterline, directly under the bulkhead. They put into Aden and dried out and discovered that a swordfish had pierced the hull and penetrated the bulkhead — a distance of almost five inches. The swordfish was driven off fortunately acted as a plug; but even so, 50 gallons of water were making in every hour through the split made in the plank by the fish. It was a tribute to this powerful thrust.

"We have kept that sword as a memento," said Dr. Holcombe, "and every time we look at it we shudder."

YOU AND THE WORLD

Probably the thing most remembered about the teachings of the great philosopher, Immanuel Kant is his contention that we should always act in such a way that we would be willing to have our act made universal law.

Kant, of course, knows enough to put such a principle perfectly and infallibly into operation. What appears to us to be universally good might not, with the passing of time, prove so; and what we denounce as universally evil might, in the passing of time, turn out to be a blessing. As fallible beings we can only put Kant's dictum into practice in our fallible awkward fashion. But certainly it is a good principle to follow. At least we can ask ourselves in every case the moral direction of our lives appears to be benefitting mankind or harming it.

Perhaps you will say that your life is so insignificant that it has no world significance. But this is not true. The humblest housewife, the most unskilled laborer, the handy man, and the people whose job is that of waiting on others—all these have a destiny registered in heaven, observed and helped by God, indispensable to the fulfilling of the world's life.

Realizing the universality of your individual acts and the effect of your life upon the life of the world.

Personal Health Talks

Afraid To Stretch, Eh?

"For the past ten months my wife has complained of severe cramps at night, to the extent that she fears to try to stretch. She also states that the pain lately seems to be in her shin bones . . ." (R.C.G.)

I have been trying to tell you all along that most people in Canada, and, women, especially growing children, the well-to-do perhaps more than the poor, which is risky for a teacher to explain, suffer from nutritional deficiency" or, as Daniel T. Quigley, M.D., F.A.C.S., called it in his enlightening little book of the same name, The National Malnutrition.

To a good many sophomorous "malnutrition" means the poor "underprivileged" child or adult doesn't get enough to eat. So Lady Bountiful sends a loaf of refined white bread or a cake or cookies made of white flour and white sugar, to the local school club offers a free Thanksgiving dinner with all the trimmings. Or Mum provides milk in the school cafeteria, although it doesn't appeal to the affluent half of the average pampered child as much as pop or Coca Cola does. This type of treatment makes all us do-gooders feel gooder.

On p. 21 of the hundred-page book (published by Lee Foundation for Nutritional Research, Milwaukee, 1), Dr. Quigley says:

"Without a sufficient amount of calcium pains may occur which completely disappear after a sufficient amount of calcium is taken. Some of the pains of advanced cancer may be completely relieved by giving calcium.

By "giving calcium" Dr. Quigley does not mean dishing out calcium pills, tablets, or other medical preparations. He means high calcium diet and/or supplementing the diet with calcium and (of course) vitamin D to insure good metabolism or utilization of calcium as food.

The correspondent's wife, who is afraid to have a good stretch lest she get a painful cramp in leg, foot, arm, hand or other muscle, probably has tetany, which, in infant, child, "growing pains", or adult is just one way in which calcium deficiency is manifested.

The lesson every reader should learn from this particular piece is that calcium (every healthy adult of average weight has 2¼ pounds of calcium distributed through bones, teeth, nerves, organs, blood, etc.) tends to steady the nerves and make them less irritable, and also tends to relieve or prevent a good many everyday aches and pains. We are talking about what I call optimal daily ration of calcium, that is, two or three times more than the minimum requirements, which is the amount nutrition authorities consider indispensable to maintain health in a healthy adult.

The best source of calcium for most adults is milk, and milk products, such as skim milk or buttermilk (that is, what's left after the milk fat has been removed), which relieves aches and pains that harass victims of malnutrition, Yankee style.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TRY TO NEVER MIND

Few of us are strangers to criticism, trouble, and silent times of unhappiness and loneliness. Sometimes it has become our unwelcome lot to bear up under it all and say to ourself: Never Mind! It isn't so easy. Easy to say or to do, but Oh, what a rush of peace of mind and calm in the aftermath!

When I meet those who have real worries—ill health and disappointments—I try to meet them all with patience and courage, and uncomplaining. I forget my own petty troubles, and so find it easy to say—Never mind. Often we are maligned, and people tell such false things about us, but if we have learned the value of those two words, and carried out their command, we are sure to experience a new lift and relief in our interests and new adventures.

In business we all have reverses. The remedy is to think it is not the end, but settle right down and lay a new line of battle if recall sending me around with so very near to the burning Thomas Edison building and experimental laboratories in New Jersey. But that very night, before the building was out, I took my little mate in a nearby building drawing up plans for a new and greater building.

We can't get very far carrying burdens of sorrow around with us. Sooner or later they are sure to fall away, and how much better to take Stevenson's advice to "Travel hopefully". Even reading about a person in adversity, who is brave and cheerful regardless, helps us to be more kind and knows about such a one. Their Never Mind is a silent one.

The PACKSACK

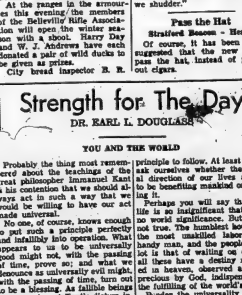
By GREGORY CLARK

New Canadians have a lot to learn besides our mere way of life. Across the street from my house is a large horse chestnut tree, and the new neighborhood knew it well, and came in season to fling sticks up into the branches to get the gorgeous glossy brown nuts in their prickly green husks. What they do with them, I don't know, as I never see them playing conkers. But they are terrific at it, and tied to a string, as we did in my boyhood. I once had a conker which was a champion and which cracked a hundred boiled nuts before it succumbed.

Sunday, a pair of new Canadians came strolling along the street, a big blood orange sun in the sky, and a dark young woman. One thing about new Canadians, they stroll in a cheap, entertaining and healthful manner. They stopped and looked. Indeed, I don't see many strollers any more save new Canadians.

When they came abreast of the big chestnut tree, their attention was caught by some husks on the pavement. They stopped and studied the tree. Numbers of the nuts still hung in the higher branches. Then on the lawn they espied a few. I added a couple of chestnuts that had escaped from the husks. Dancing about, as they do, the boys of the house should trespass on the lawn, they took courage from the fact that I and the husky young man stepped over and picked up a chestnut, which is the size of a hen's egg or three. His girl joined the nutting expedition and gathered many with the most succulent-looking nuts.

The man selected one with his thumbnail and popped the meat into his mouth. He chewed it. Then he offered it to his girl, who took a goyger of horse chestnut like a whale's.



Never having eaten a horse chestnut, even in boyhood, I only know that the books describe them as "inedible", and they are reported by more daring small boys to be bitter.

The two new Canadians put the nuts they had gathered in their pockets and strolled on.

They added to my limited knowledge of their new country. Not everything that looks good is good.

Di Diamantides Sketches History Of 'Y' at Rotary

Guest speaker at the weekly meeting of Belleville Rotary yesterday was Mr. Di Diamantides, secretary manager of the Belleville Y.M.C.A.

Mr. Diamantides sketched the history of the "Y" and outlined some of the work it is doing to benefit men, women and children all over the world.

"The first YMCA was established in England 105 years ago," he said, "and a short while later a "Y" was set up in Canada. Today there are "Y's" in 78 countries of the world, boasting a total membership of about 4½ millions."

YMCA's are operated in the same fashion that Rotary clubs function. One common factor to both institutions is that they are international.

The symbol of the "Y" is a triangle, which stands for spirit, mind and body.

"In YMCA work, said the speaker," you will find that about one-third of the directors in each community are Rotarians." This, he indicated, was perhaps because members of Rotary are highly respected citizens and good leaders in a community.

Every city in Canada but two have a YMCA, he said. One of the cities without a "Y" is Oshawa.

Many advantages are offered people who are members of the YMCA. They may enrol in athletic programs or may engage in studying in increase the forces of education. He cited a YMCA sponsored college in Montreal which offers students a degree at the successful completion of an arts or science course.

The "Y" is one of the largest restaurants in existence and caters to members and guests alike. It is also one of the biggest hotels.

The institution also sponsors summer camps and night classes for New Canadians.

USED BY MANY

The location of a YMCA or YWCA in a large city reduces the feeling of loneliness for persons bent on becoming Canadian citizens. Servicemen from all over the world have bunked at a "Y" overnight and have accepted its hospitality.

"Everyone," said Mr. Diamantides, "is eligible to join the "Y", regardless of his creed, race or monetary standing. The YMCA is a non-profit sharing organization."

Referring in particular to the Belleville YMCA, the guest speaker said it acts as a community centre and is the meeting place of many local and other clubs. There is everything at a "Y" to satisfy the desires of almost everyone, he said.

He said he got the opinion that everyone wants to come to Canada to take advantage of its good food and its system of private enterprise, which in many cases, is lacking in their own countries.

The Belleville YMCA building was constructed in 1911; has 37 rooms equipped to lodge overnight guests; is housing 23 activities at the present time; and is operating at its peak.

"The "Y" is one of seven agencies to benefit from the coming Community Chest campaign," he said.

Introduced by Past – president Fred Adsett, the speaker was thanked by another past – president, Mr. Percy McGuire.

Belleville Rotary extended their best wishes to Mr. Harry Ackerman who is in Belleville General Hospital undergoing treatment.

She was attended by Mrs. Arthur Reeder, Brighton, wearing a queen's blue gown with matching hat and shoes. She carried pink carnations.

LYNCH—CASSON

Pastel tinted gladioli formed the setting on Saturday, October 13th, 1956, at 11 o'clock, in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, when Lois Anne, younger daughter of Mrs. Edmund Thomas Casson, Amitasburg, and the late Mr. Casson, became the bride of Thomas Frederick Lynch, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Joseph Lynch of Belleville, in a double-ring ceremony performed by the Rev F. J. Murphy.

The Rev. Mster M. Wilhelmina presided at the organ and the soloist was Mr. Robert Burke, who sang "Ave Maria" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. James G. Porter of Oshawa, the bride was charming in her bridal gown of white nylon tulle and Chantilly lace over taffeta, fashioned with fitted decollete bodice which had short lace sleeves. The neckline was outlined with floral lace appliqued encrusted with seed pearls and rhinestones. The bouffant, floor-length net skirt was accented by similar jewelled appliques and her shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion fell softly from a shell-shaped lace and rhinestone headdress. She wore long nylon mitts and carried a cascade bouquet of pink Bountiful roses and stephanotis.

The matron of honor, Mrs. William Lynch, was attired in turquoise sculptured lace, featuring a molded bodice with scalloped neckline, three-quarter length sleeves and a bouffant skirt. She wore a matching pillbox hat and carried a semi-cascade bouquet of peppermint pink carnations.

The bridesmaids, Miss Jacqueline Bull of Belleville, sister of the bride, and Miss Dawn Hubel, were gowned alike in Chantilly lace, the former in white-length pink and the latter in yellow, fashioned with fitted bodices having scalloped necklines and three-quarter sleeves, with matching headdresses. Both carried bouquets matching their gowns.

Mr. Ray Hubel of Stirling, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. James Bull of Belleville, brother of the bride, and Mr. Carl Hubel of Stirling, cousin of carnations.

The two bridesmaids, Mrs. Stanley A. Creegan, sister of the bride, and Miss Shirley Thompson, wore gowns identical to that of the matron of honor, in pastel pink shade. Their picture hats matched their dresses and they carried semi-cascade bouquets of turquoise and white carnations.

Mr. Richard Lynch was his brother's groomsman and the ushers were, Mr. Stanley A. Creegan and Mr. Lawrence Lynch, brother of the groom.

The reception following the ceremony was held in Tobe's County Gardens where Mrs. Casson, attired in peacock blue crepe-satine with corsage of Briarcliffe roses received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother wearing peau de sole in now pink shade and corsage of Johanna Hill roses.

For the wedding trip to western points the bride chose a sheath dress in copper tones. Her feather half hat and accessories blended with her costume and she wore a camel hair coat and a corsage of yellow Gloria roses. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Lynch will reside at 39 Division Street in Kingston.

Prior to her marriage the bride was the recipient of presentations by the staff of the Industrial Acceptance Corps., of which she was a member.

ADAMSON—BULL

A lovely autumn wedding was solemnized in Christ church, Belleville, on Saturday, September 22nd, at 3.00 p.m., when Archdeacon J. B. Creegan, rector of the church, united in marriage Joan Elizabeth Bull, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Bull to Howard Adamson also of Belleville, son of the late Mrs. Laura Adamson. Tall standards of colored gladioli, and ferns bordered the chancel rail, and white satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mr. J. B. Herdman, church organist, rendered the wedding music and accompanied the choir of six boys, who sang "O Perfect Love," and during the signing of the register, "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her bridal gown of imported white Swedish lace and nylon tulle fashioned with fitted bodice and matching lace jacket buttoned down the front, having a chapel collar and long sheath-like sleeves V-pointed over the wrists. The bell-length bouffant skirt was accented by a matching crinoline. She wore a tiara studded with sequins and seed pearls, with fingertip veil of nylon tulle and carried a shower bouquet of red roses.

Miss Joy Westbrook of Kingston, as maid of honor, was attired in a waltz-length gown of blue nylon tulle, featuring a molded bodice and ruffled skirt. She wore a matching jacket and dress, and carried a bouquet of blue and white mums.

The bridesmaids, Miss Jacqueline Bull of Belleville, sister of the bride, and Miss Dawn Hubel, were gowned alike in Chantilly lace, the former in white-length pink and the latter in yellow, fashioned with fitted bodices having scalloped necklines and three-quarter sleeves, with matching headdresses. Both carried bouquets matching their gowns.

Mr. Ray Hubel of Stirling, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. James Bull of Belleville, brother of the bride, and Mr. Carl Hubel of Stirling, cousin of the bridegroom, were ushers.

The reception was held in the parish hall of Christ church, which was beautifully adorned with gladioli and asters.

The bride's table was appointed with white damask, centred with a three-tier pillared wedding cake topped with a tiny bride and bridegroom, beneath a white floral arch, and misted about the base with white tulle over tiny red roses. The bridal bouquets added a lovely nuptial note.

The guests were received by the bride's mother, who wore sheer pink organza over taffeta with Chantilly lace accents, navy accessories and corsage of Johanna Hill roses.

Mrs. Keith Hubel, cousin of the bridegroom, assisted, wearing charcoal grey with black accessories, and corsage of red roses.

For the wedding trip to the eastern United States, Niagara Falls, and Toronto, the bride chose a blue-grey cashmere wool, box-style suit with navy accessories, and corsage of pink Bountiful roses. Mr. and Mrs. Adamson will reside in Belleville.

Guests attended from Oshawa, Stirling, Kingston and Wooler.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was the honored guest at a shower given by the staff and friends of St. Michael's high school, also at a party given by The James Tests where the bridegroom is employed, when the young couple was presented with a carving set.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A LOT DEPENDS ON YOURSELF!

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm 28 years old and am having trouble finding a job for my future mother, although my father is living.

I've been going with a boy of another faith than mine who doesn't know my father is handicapped or other failing, and if my father knew I was going with him, he'd make me go back to him although he doesn't want me. And there's another thing: My future mother won't let me go up to this boy's house as his parents aren't home, because she thinks that is the way a girl gets into trouble. Sometimes I just feel like running away, because every time I go up there, she either phones or comes up.

She told my girl friend that I could do anything I wanted to when I was 16, but I am 28 now, me. I don't want to do everything, but if I have faith in this boy, and am sure he would never touch me, I don't know why she won't let me go up to his house.

Is my mother right? I'm afraid that if this keeps on, this boy will look for another girl.—P.J.

Dear P.J.:

No matter how much faith you may have in this boy, and no matter how fine a boy he may actually be, I agree with your foster mother that it's not quite the thing for you to go over to his home when his parents aren't there. As you grow older, you'll understand that wise people try to do nothing that would give a wrong impression, and for a boy and a girl to be alone in a house is something that well-brought-up young people are wise enough not to do, realizing that it does give that wrong impression.

The more you show your foster mother that you realize things like this, the more she'll trust you and trust your judgment. So when she tells you not to do some special thing you want to do, try to look at her side of it and see why she feels that way. After all, she's a lot older than you are, and knows a lot more about life than you do, so she might really be right, you know.

Try to be just as good friends with her as you can. Tell her about your friends, and about the things you all do together in school and after school. Ask her about your problems. Be thoughtful about helping her, and watch out for ways you can do things for her. If you'll do all this to the very best of your ability, you and she will grow closer together all the time and you may be very surprised to find that she really understands and that you really are fond of her.

You say that your father "doesn't exist" so I assume that is why you're living with a foster mother. Since that's the case, I don't think you need worry about your father's intolerance, so long as you choose only friends you yourself know are the right kind.

A great deal depends on you yourself, and whether or not you are always careful to behave in a way that shows you know what is right and wise, and what is not.

Women's Activities

CANNIFTON W.M.S.

The autumn thank-offering meeting of the Cannifton Women's Missionary Society was held in the Sunday school rooms. The president, Mrs. R. Pound, presided. The meeting opened with "We Plow the Fields and Scatter" followed by prayer. Psalm 51 was read in unison followed by a lovely Thanksgiving reading by Mrs. Pound.

Mrs. T. Howard read two interesting letters from a missionary telling of her work and how much the supply work is appreciated and needed.

It was decided to buy the Bookshelf at the rally which was held on October 11, at Bethel-Zion.

Mrs. F. Holgate will be the hostess for the November meeting.

Mrs. J. Williams gave some "highlights" from the School for Leaders, which was held at Whitby and which she attended.

Mrs. McCrae gave an interesting chapter from the study book dealing with "Korea."

There are twenty million people in South Korea. Farming and fishing are the main types of occupation, as there are no large factories or industries. These are in the north and now owned by the Communists.

South Korea is in sad shape with war-damage — buildings in rubble, many cripples and small children with no means of support, often with large families living in one room.

There is a low standard of living and great slums. Communications are bad and people are hard to reach, yet the churches are overcrowded. There is much sacrificial giving and Christian schools are in short supply and held in any building that can be found.

There is a desire to learn by the Koreans and schools are being built.

About eight per cent of the population are Christians. Christian radio stations have been purchased and Christianity has made a great comeback in these people.

After the meeting closed a social half hour was spent.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

HOW TO CARE FOR YOUR FALL WARDROBE

By now most of us have assembled the wardrobe which will carry us into winter but, even if not, what additions we make will undoubtedly come under the heading of wool, jersey and other fabrics designed to protect from chill breezes. Fortunately, most fall and winter fabrics are now as easily washable as cottons, so much so that it's easy to keep them in the pink of condition with a minimum of effort. A little know-how makes the job still easier, however, so, with this fact in mind, we pass along a few washing tips that should come in handy during the months to come.

1. Launder washable wool jersey and flannel by hand, unless identified as machine washable. This applies also to washable rayons, acetates or their combinations.

2. Wash sweaters frequently. They're easy to do. Note—button cardigans before sudsing.

3. Use a sugar solution: Wash in lukewarm soapsuds and rinse—in lukewarm temperature. Blot in a towel to remove excess moisture, spread flat and ease to shape by tug on a towel, or use a sweater frame. (It's easy to make a sweater frame which can be stored in new by marking and cutting cardboard sections to fit body sleeves and body.) Pre-shrunk wools should not be stretched.

4. Cotton, Dacron, nylon, or polynovicara sweaters require less careful handling, take better water, no blocking, and can be dried flat on a towel or over shower rod.

5. Cotton sweaters can be washed by machine, unless jewel decorated. If they're to be dried in an automatic dryer, we recommend buying in one size larger.

6. Dry-clean according to the fiber content. After arranging on a towel to frame, "pump" down with a folded dry cloth or sponge to bring out the textured pattern.

7. Wash wool scarfs, mufflers, and stoles the same way as sweaters. For an extra finishing touch, "comb" fringe with coarse comb.

8. Cotton, washable wool, or synthetic-and-wool skirts with attached petticoats of woven interlacing are best done by hand and hung to drip dry. If touch-ups are needed, steam on the right side under a press cloth.

9. Keep leather jackets, belts, collars, and purses spotless by removing spots as soon as they appear. Wash off with a cloth dipped in thick "dirty" suds (skimmed from the top of a batch of suds), wipe with a clean damp cloth, then a dry one. Be careful not to let the leather get really wet.

10. Wash fabric gloves an easy way: soap them, roll up and let them soak for a few minutes before squeezing through soapsuds and rinses.

7. When washing corduroy or velveteen, avoid hard wringing and twisting; then hang to drip dry.

8. Wash dark slips, petticoats and foundation garments before wearing to flush away excess dye. Otherwise, no matter how good the dye, some loose surface color is bound to crock off onto the skin or other garments.

Cookies to Refrigerate Or Freeze or Use Now

By Mary Moore

You are putting the pressure on me to give you some more cookies—in particular refrigerator cookies and cookies that may be frozen.

Now that Thanksgiving is over, next are three birthdays in our family, then comes Christmas, so it means we are in for more than the usual share of baking for the next two months. But we like it, don't we?

The cookies I give you today will be good to keep in mind when Christmas— cookie-baking —time arrives, for you and I will quite likely be referring to them. So, since you ask me so often how to file recipes, clip this column now, paste it into your looseleaf cookbook, or in the cookie section on small cards in your recipe file box.

BROWNIES

(May be frozen for 1 months.)

Three squares unsweetened chocolate, 1-3 cup shortening, 2 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1-3 cup sifted flour, 1-2 teaspoon each baking powder and salt, 1 cup chopped walnuts or pecans, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Melt the chocolate and shortening together. Remove from heat. Add the sugar to the well-beaten eggs; combine mixtures. Sift the sifted flour with the baking powder and salt and add to the egg mixture, then add the nuts and vanilla. Spread dough smoothly in greased 15x10x1-inch pan. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes: Mark into oblongs, squares or diamonds and let cool. Notes: (1) If brownies are to be eaten when made the above directions are complete. (2) If brownies are to be topped with a cocoanut-butter icing the dough should be chilled before baking, topping applied then baked. (3) If Brownies are to be frozen proceed as above, but when brownies are baked, cut and cool, arrange on hard board or flat plate, cover with freezer paper or foil, being sure it is sealed, and freeze. They have 1-month freezer life.

6-IN-1 ICEBOX COOKIES

(May be frozen.)

This recipe is repeated by request. One cup butter or margarine, 1-2 cup each brown sugar and white sugar, 1 beaten egg, 1-2 teaspoon each vanilla and soda, 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1-4 teaspoon each salt and nutmeg, 1-2 square unsweetened chocolate, melted, 1-4 cup each shredded cocoanut, raisins, chopped pecans, 1-3 teaspoon cinnamon. Cream butter or margarine and gradually cream in the sugar until all is very light. Beat in egg and vanilla. Sift together the flour, soda and salt and gradually add to mixture. Divide dough into six equal portions. To one portion add chocolate, cocoanut to another; raisins to another, pecans to another; cinnamon and nutmeg to another, and leave last portion plain. Shape each portion into a roll 1-4 inches in diameter. Wrap in waxed paper. Chill. Cut into 1-8 inch slices. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 10 to 12 minutes. If unbaked cookie dough is frozen wrap in freezer paper, and freeze. Store up to six months. To bake slice while frozen and bake a few minutes longer than unfrozen dough. Amount makes five dozen.

FAMILY FRIEND VOLUNTEERS TO SING AT WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My fiance's family have a very dear and close friend, a very charming woman who is a well-known singer, and she has most graciously volunteered to sing a solo, "The Lord's Prayer," at our wedding. I have met her quite a few times at my fiance's home, and when she spoke to my fiance and his mother about singing at our wedding, they told me about her offer and asked me if I would like this. Like it . . . I'm thrilled and enchanted beyond words! Yesterday I telephoned to her to tell her of my appreciation and happiness, but now what should I do next? Also should I give her her professional fee? Or a gift? Or what is correct? — L.K.C.

I would very much like to have you invite this kind and generous lady to have lunch or tea with you and your mother and your future mother-in-law, preferably at your home. Then you and your mother could express your appreciation and gratitude to her for her wonderful thought and her offer of such service, I doubt if you should even discuss a "fee," since she volunteered to sing but, to be right and safe about this, I suggest you ask the advice of your fiance's mother. I'm quite positive she would not accept her professional fee. However, you should give her a most thoughtfully-chosen present (again you might ask the advice of your fiance's mother about this), to send to her after the wedding, enclosing a warm-hearted and graceful note "mothers," should send the answer of deepest appreciation for the a corsage to wear at the wedding.

'Changing World Patterns Challenge Today's Church' Topic At W.M.S. Autumn Rally

"Changing Patterns Challenge the Church" was the theme for the autumn rally of Belleville-West section of the Women's Missionary Society of Belleville Presbyterial of the United Church of Canada, held at St. Paul's church, Stirling, last Wednesday.

Mrs. George Carlisle, vice-president of the section, presided for all sessions. Morning devotions were conducted by ladies of Springbrook W.A.; Mrs. K. Thompson read the lesson from 1 Cor. 13. Mrs. R. Bateman gave the devotional talk and Mrs. H. Beare was soloist, accompanied by Mrs. G. Sine. The service was centred on thoughts that the love of Christ includes men of every race and color, and "Do Others See Jesus in Us?"

The Christian Stewardship secretary, Mrs. Ross Coulter of Belleville, spoke on the value of tithing, both in the work of missions and to the member. Sixty per cent of the Bible teaching deals with stewardship. Is the percentage of the missionary givings in proportion to the stewardship? Other patterns may change, but God's word and command do not change. Matthew 28:19 says "Go ye and teach all nations." Further explanation was made of gifts for building advance, life memberships, and the value of the annual reports.

LITERATURE DISPLAY

Mrs. Pierce Jones of Picton, the literature secretary of Belleville Presbyterial, displayed a fine array of literature with short reviews of the new study books on Southeast Asia, as well as many other fine devotional and missionary books, including those of the Book Shelf. "Let's Read More" was her slogan.

Mrs. Clarence Holmes, Belleville, 1st vice-president of Belleville Presbyterial brought greetings from the president, Mrs. L. Elliott, of Tweed, and held a panel discussion on three phases of the work: supply work, Explorers and candidate work. Taking part in this were, Mrs. W. Brown of Trenton; supply secretary; Mrs. W. D. Grant of Halloway, Explorers' secretary and Mrs. Fred Wilson of Belleville, candidate secretary.

Supplies for overseas relief are lower this year, but the need is still great. One should consider his brother, as anyone in need, be he next door, in the next block, or the next country.

Splendid suggestions were made for Explorer work, and stress was given the urgent need today for commitment of life in the service of the church. Mrs. Holmes told of the C.G.I.T. rally to be held in Napanee on October 27.

EDUCATION IN AFRICA

Johnstown W.A., affiliated society, led in the mid-day devotions, with Mrs. Ernest Bush and Mrs. Maurice Mallory taking part. Miss Edith Clark, on furlough from Means School for Girls, Angola, West Africa, was introduced by Mrs. George Carlisle.

Miss Clark likened Africa to a huge pot of yeast in its upheavals and changes, socially, culturally and religiously. Throughout the entire world patterns are changing; there seems deep tension between nations, and yet, never before have people of the world seemed so greatly dependent on each other.

In Africa, economic conditions are still poor, and poverty is still rampant, though there is a little higher standard of living. Drunkenness, as an ever-present reality, is on the increase, and food deficiency, and disease are prevalent. Folk betterment programs are being stressed and more concentrated efforts exerted in public health and technical assistance.

Miss Clark also told of the splendid work being done in Angola field, and especially at the Means School for Girls, where her chief interest has been centred. From this school such girls as Maria Chela have gone out to pass on to their people the vision which they have come to possess through Christian education. The Africans are not capable of carrying on the work of their church. But in the Church of Christ in Angola, the majority are African leaders and more responsibility is being given to them. Young Africa wants assistance, but not domination.

Missionaries are no longer parents, but brothers. African women are devoted to their church. Many will sacrifice necessities such as salt or soap in order to have a bit of money for church collections.

"Are not the people of your land Christians?" they say, and yet you have two World Wars against each other.

"We must pray for Christian integrity and a stronger, more vital faith to cope with the changing patterns in the world today. Have Christians something worthwhile to offer the world? "Who hath this world's goods and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?"

The music in the afternoon included suitable hymns and a duet by Mrs. Walter Warren and Mrs. George Heasman, of Stirling. Mrs. Arthur Prear, of Carmel, was accompanist and organist for the day's sessions.

Mrs. T. F. Townsend, of Carrying Place, gave highlights from the School for Leaders held at Whitby Ladies' College in August. She also mentioned the grand district conclave to be held in Belleville soon, taking the form of an educational project of the Ontario Temperance Federation.

Mrs. W. G. Fletcher presented the courtesies, thanking all who had helped to make the day's program so full of inspiration and help, and expressing appreciation for the refreshments, served by the women of St. Paul's, and the use of their church.

The Reverend Dr. Packman spoke briefly on the urgent need for full time service in various areas of churchwork, and pronounced the closing prayer and benediction.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

MAYBE YOU'RE WASTING HER TIME!

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm 28 years old and have been dating one girl for over a year. She's thin, an awful lot of her, and have introduced her to all my friends and relatives, but I'm getfully shy and just can't seem to pop the question.

My problem is that people are beginning to tell me I'm wasting my time with her. She has never yet introduced me to any of her family except her mother and a sister who live with her. I've begun to get the feeling that she is ashamed of me. When we've out riding, she acts like a friend, not as though she were with a beau.

What should I do? — D.K.F

Dear D.K.F.:

Well, if you're so shy that you haven't been able to get up the nerve to let this girl know how much you think of her, can you blame her for not showing special interest in you? What do you expect anyway? That she should be the first to know she cares? That's usually the man's part, you know—or don't you like Leap Year, by any chance?

And how do you want her to act, for heaven's sake, when she's out riding with a young man who has never told her she's special with him? Snuggle up to him, grab his hand off the steering wheel and cuddle it, and murmur sweet nothings into his ear, or behave like a young woman of poise and self-respect?

Pull yourself together, son, and be your age. If you can't conquer your shyness to the point of admitting to the young lady like any other young man of 28, then come right out and lead into it in some such way as: "I'm so shy I don't know how to say it—but will you marry me?"

After all, the old adage "Nothing ventured, nothing gained" is just as true in romance as in anything else. The worst that could happen would be that the gal might say No—and you wouldn't be the first young man by a long shot to hear that. Moreover, the others live through it and marry the next girl they ask, or the next.

The fact that the young woman has been willing to date you for over a year would certainly indicate that she enjoys spending time with you. Isn't that encouragement enough for you to go ahead with that proposal? If you keep putting it off, she may just assume that you don't ever intend to ask her and decide you really are wasting time—Here!

STAY AWAY FROM HIM AND SEE WHAT HAPPENS

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

There is man I've known for several years, and for the last two years, I've been going steady with him.

The problem is that he is married. But he and his wife have never gotten along and he says that he wants to marry me when he gets a divorce. He doesn't know just how soon that will be, because he is certain his wife will oppose it, but he says that if I really love him, I'll wait. His wife doesn't really want him, and she just wants to give him a hard time to get free so he can marry someone else.

Do you think I should wait for him or what? — Miss L.T.

Dear Miss L.T.:

I've little or no faith in the sincerity of any married man who will "go steady" for two years, talk about love all that time and do nothing about it. And what kind of man would get engaged while married anyway?

My advice to you is to stay away from this man at least until she comes to you and tells you that he is divorced. He's not my idea of good husband material anyhow, but if you're bent on marrying him, that's your own affair. If you do have the good sense, and the will power, to refuse to see him while he still has a wife, you'll quickly find out whether or not he really intends to get a divorce.

PROPER PROCEDURE FOR HOME SHAMPOO

His bottle cap makes a perfect measuring device for shampoo lotion.

Many women don't really know how to wash their hair even though, at 18 or 80, they've been doing it all their lives.

Hair experts recommend two shampoos, accompanied by vigorous massage of the scalp and followed by painstaking rinsing to remove every last trace of soap. Of great importance, too, is the use of just the right amount of shampoo. Too little doesn't clean the hair satisfactorily, and too much interferes with proper rinsing. Far away, unmanageable hair, incidentally, is often the result of improper rinsing.

By experimenting a little the average woman can learn to measure out just exactly the right amount of shampoo needed for maximum cleaning efficiency and minimum rinsing difficulty. Use of a measuring device such as a bottle cap or tablespoon is preferred over the hit-or-miss method of pouring or scooping from bottle or jar to hair. Short hair requires less product than does long hair, of course, and the woman who shortens or lengthens her hair should adjust the amount of shampoo to conform with the new length.

Basic to any good job of hair washing is the choice of the right shampoo. There are many excellent ones on the market today, some of which offer "plus" factors such as special conditioning ingredients for sensitive hair, unscented performance in both hard and soft water, good lathering and rinsing qualities. Consumers are urged to shop around for the shampoo best suited to their individual needs.

Women who complain they "can't do a thing with their hair" will do well to review their shampooing routine. Discovery of the right technique and the right shampoo will yield rich dividends in glossier, healthier hair.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

A QUESTION OF NAME-COURTESY

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I know that it is incorrect for a widow to use the name "Mrs. Margaret Smith." I am a widow, have always used "Mrs. Margaret—." But in my group of friends is a woman whose husband has died this year and who immediately began to call herself "Mrs. Margaret—." To emphasize this, she always writes this form of name with her address on the back flap of her envelopes, and has had letter-paper, for her general use, printed with this "Mrs. Margaret—" form of name.

The other day, when we were together at a meeting of a large social organization, she gave her name to the reporter as "Mrs. Margaret—."

Our group of friends are deeply devoted to this woman, and we find it distasteful to address letters to her "Mrs. Margaret—." Would it be incorrect for us to address letters to her "Mrs. John—"?

Yes . . . even though you and your friends know that correctly she should be addressed as "Mrs. John—," you should address her as "Mrs. Margaret . . . because you know this is the form she prefers. To correct her publicly may be able to do some subtle hinting about the correct form, but quite often this is an answer to this problem, when a woman doesn't realize she isn't correct!)

PASTEL-SHADE TABLECLOTH ON BRIDAL TABLE

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My wedding reception will be a small reception in my home, and my Mother and I are planning to have a bride's table for my wedding cake, and have been looking for advice for the other guests. The bride's table will be in the dining room, and I would like to know if it will be proper to use a pastel-shade tablecloth as we have for the dining table. Mother and I both have set patterns for white tablecloths, consider them too stark. Would we be criticized for not using the conventional white cloth for this table? —E.M.B.

Quite often at today's wedding receptions we see a pastel-shade tablecloth (usually a delicate pink, such as you and your mother have in mind to use) on the bridal table. It is not at all necessary to carry out the all-white motif if you don't wish to, and many brides-to-be feel as you do about a stark expanse of white tablecloth. If you decide to use your pastel-pink tablecloth, you might carry out a few touches of pink in the flowers decorating the wedding cake, and so forth.

EASY DOES IT is a good phrase to keep in mind when you're buying a snowsuit for your toddler. A suit that's hard to get in and out of is no bargain in any sale. Look for the one-piece kind that rises from neck to ankle, can be dunked in the washer and dried in jig time.

Readers' Friday Column

As told to Mary Moore

QUESTION:

. . . I used to have a recipe for a layer cake with half a jelly powder in it. The other half was used for the frosting. . . . Was attractive as you could have it any color you wished depending on what flavor of jelly powder was used. . . especially good for birthdays. . . lost it. . . wondered if you have it. . . would appreciate it very much.—B. M.

ANSWER:

What I am going to give you is almost as you ask for it—except it calls for one package of jelly powder in the cake and one-half package in the frosting.

RAINBOW CAKE

Two and 1-4 cups sifted cake flour, 3 teaspoons double acting baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon soda, 1-2 cup shortening (see notes), 1 cup sugar, 1 package jelly powder (any flavor), 3 eggs unbeaten, 1 or 1 1-8 cups milk (see notes). Notes—With butter, margarine or lard use 1 cup milk. With vegetable or any other shortening use 7-8 cup milk. Sift flour, measure it and sift it with the baking powder, salt and soda three times. Cream the shortening well and cream the sugar and jelly flavoring gradually until all are light and fluffy. Beat in eggs one at a time. Add well. Add flour mixture alternately with the milk, a small amount of each at a time. Line bottom of greased 9-inch layer tins with paper, pour in batter. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. 25 minutes or until done. Cool. Frost with Seven Minute Jelly Frosting: Dissolve 1-2 package (2 tablespoons) any flavor jelly powder in 1-2 cup very hot water in top of double boiler. Add 1 1-4 cups sugar, dash of salt, and 2 unbeaten egg whites; beat about 1 minute, or until thoroughly mixed. Beat constantly over boiling water with rotary beater 7 minutes, or until frosting will stand in peaks. Pour frosting into bowl, beat about 1 minute or until of spreading consistency and spread between layers and on top of cooled cakes.

QUESTION:

. . . my daughter is having her 9th birthday . . . planned something different. . . . Instead of one large birthday cake thought I'd make cup cakes, insert a tiny doll in top and apply icing to resemble crinoline. . . . what type of frosting will I use?—Maisie O.

ANSWER:

This Royal Icing is used for frilly flowers, scrolls, so will be suitable for a full crinoline skirt. Gradually add about 3 1-2 cups sifted icing sugar and 1-4 teaspoon cream of tartar to 1-4 cup egg whites while you are constantly beating, until it is of spreading consistency. Color if you wish. Through a tube this must be rather stiff to make a frill or border to skirt. If you take long to do the work the icing bowl must be covered or it will crust.

Winchell Claims Scoffed at By Sullivan

NEW YORK (AP)—Columnist Walter Winchell claims that Ed Sullivan, also a columnist, tried to keep him from getting a television job.

Winchell now has a Friday night network television show on the NBC-TV network. Sullivan's own variety show is long one of the most successful of its kind, is on CBS-TV Sunday nights.

Winchell writes a column for the New York Daily Mirror; Sullivan has a column in the New York Daily News.

Winchell, writing in Look magazine, said Sullivan "threw a tantrum" when he heard Winchell was clickering with Frank Stanton, CBS president, for a spot on that network.

"I guess Frank decided to leave well enough alone," Winchell added.

In reply, Sullivan said Winchell's column is "incorrect."

"MOST IMPORTANT"

"For many nauseous years," Sullivan said, "this character (Winchell) has characterized himself as the most important guy in the country outside of the White House. Now I've become an important guy and he tries to slam me off TV.

"He's anointing me — now he tells the public that I'm the powerful boss."

Sullivan added that "if Winchell had gone on CBS it wouldn't have lasted me at all. Winchell's rationalize his rejection by CBS, has to blame somebody."

"Actually I never heard of any suggestion that CBS was trying to get Winchell. Winchell—that was the other way around."

Winchell said television for 2½ years and a half, after his news program on the ABC radio and television networks ended in a tiff over legal matters.

Survey to Determine Value Of Veteran University Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—It cost Canadian taxpayers $12,000,000 to send Second World War veterans to university. But officials of the veterans affairs department believe the resulting higher incomes of veterans have increased returns in taxes than the program cost.

Whether this is true will be determined by a survey of the economic status of 24,000 veterans who used the plan. The results won't be known for several months.

The plan has, in effect, been wound up though 200 veterans still are in colleges and others still are eligible because illness has prevented them from attending university.

The federal government paid tuition fees for the veteran and a supplementary annual grant of $120 for each veteran was paid to universities. The veteran also received an extra grant of 960 a month if single and $80 if married. He got $10 for the first child, $16 for the second, $12 for the third and $12 for each succeeding child.

Officials said the program has resulted in bundles of appreciative letters.

"One version of six years' army service wrote: "Canadians owed me nothing but gratitude. But you enabled me to remake my life."

Another who took his university training in the United States and then got a job there is repaying the $2,982 cost of his course at $100 cheques to the government every three months. Seven others will be done out of the government one cent.

Of the 4,800 veterans who studied in the United States, 90 per cent returned to work in Canada although they were not obliged to.

Average age of veterans who attended university was 27. Forty-nine per cent were married.

Officials say it was a "pretty rough go" for most veterans, especially the married ones. But on the average, they gained higher marks and had fewer failures than non-veteran students.

Officials estimate that most of the veterans would not normally have been financially able to attend university. Their training helped fill serious gaps in professional and specialized fields.

$400,000 Fire Levels Mill of Mining Company

COBALT (CP)—A spectacular fire early Monday levelled the mill and adjoining buildings at the Cobalt Consolidated Mining Corporation plant half a mile north of Cobalt.

Damage, estimated at $400,000, was covered by insurance.

Cause of the fire was not determined but it was thought that an electrical storm which hit this town 35 miles south of Kirkland Lake five hours earlier might have been responsible. No one was injured.

The blaze broke out in the crusher room and spread rapidly through the conveyor belt to the mill itself. Firemen were unable to stop it. Destroyed were the mill, crusher room, conveyor belt, scale room, mechanic, carpenters' and blacksmiths' shops, boiler house, offal building and oil house. Actual mining operations was low since they were stored in the yards.

The mill processed ore for its gold and silver concentrates. It served the company's five operating mines—Kerr Lake, Foster, Christie, Beaver and Agaunico.

Archie Fleming, the first person to arrive at the scene, was in the mill to warn Frank Lea and Archie Fershelm, the only employees on the property at the time.

In Toronto the management of the company met and made plans for replacement of the mill facilities and to continue operations. The company's engineering staff will decide this week whether to use the Penn Cobalt or Cobalt Lake mill building as a replacement.

MINOR HOCKEY

One of the greatest organizations engaged in the promotion of sport for youngsters goes into annual conclave at the Royal York Hotel, November 16 and 17. Some 250 of its finest sportsmen in the country—men who work for boys —will ready the scene for another winter of recreational activity.

The Ontario government of minor hockey, the OMHA, will gather in the big hostelry for the first time in its long and honorable career of service to hockey-minded youngsters. For the past two decades plus it was held in another large Toronto hotel.

This should remind OMHA teams that proposed amendments to the constitutions or regulations for office should be in the hands of the genial secretary, Jack Christie at 6 Glen Eden Crescent, Toronto 16, or the assistant secretary, Gary McLeod, 61 Clanmore Drive, Toronto 12, not later than Friday, October 26.

One of the first provincial sports bodies to provide insurance coverage for all players, the OMHA has announced that it has added improvements to its already comprehensive insurance plan. The OMHA insurance covers all players against cost of injury, up to $350, for a premium of only one dollar. Today it became the first organization to offer similar protection to its managers, coaches and other adult officials in charge of OMHA teams. In addition dental benefits are increased from $15 to $25.

Continuing its efforts to eliminate paper work for team managers and affiliated league secretaries, the OMHA will this year use an entirely new system of registration for insurance. In past years each player desiring insurance coverage completed an individual certificate which had to be certified by the manager or affiliated league secretary.

Under the new system, this need of individual certificates will be eliminated in favor of a single alphabetical list for each team. Full details may be secured from Gordon Whitton, insurance manager, Jimmy Whitton, 63 Kenecliffe Crescent, Burnhaven P.O., Scarborough P.O.

As the result of a financial survey taken by the OMHA, some interesting financial facts are available. It is estimated that teams in the OMHA or its affiliated leagues spent over $242,000 on minor hockey last winter. Based on returns submitted to Secretary Jack Christie, it is estimated that teams connected with the OMHA spent over $57,429 for bus-hire alone; $40,296 for sweaters; $20,760 for miscellaneous equipment (pads, goal pads, etc.), $5,906 for tape; $23,210 for transportation; $61,700 for ice rental; $17,251 miscellaneous, and so on.

It is emphasized that the above figures do not include sticks purchased individually by players; or sweaters or equipment donated by organizations whose financial statement was not included in the survey nor do they include the cost of gate, transportation, meals, etc., provided free of charge by club officials or parents who did not charge for carrying the lads to and from out of town games.

Brockville Hornets junior "A" hockey club has suspended operations for the season. Last year they had a working agreement with the Chicago Black Hawks which have taken a Sarnia "B" club under their "protective" wings. Biggest roar to emanate from the Kitchener fans Saturday night did not come when the local Greenshirts scored. It shook the rafters of the beautiful two million dollar ice palace when it was announced that Detroit has defeated the Toronto Maple Leafs 4-1. Seems the Conny Smythe-Hap Day-Onnie Meeker Rock 'n Rolls are not popular up thataway . . . Ted O'Connor, Windsor Bulldogs star, who has been galvanizing with the Whitby Dunlops, has the Windsor management wondering when he is going to report. Seems there is something like a release that has to be completed before he can officially don a Dunlops uniform . . . Point Anne has just finished a very successful softball year with two championship scalps dangling at its belt. The Pointers deserve a lot of credit collectively and individually. They are worthy champions, and should be recognized as such . . . Frank Crawford, brother of Lloyd of the McFarlands, played with the club in Kitchener and is trying out with the club here. The clever 18-year-old played junior "B" with Guelph and knew Gerry Goyer quite well . . . . Run Blue Bombers Into Turf To Open Four-Point Margin; Lions Squeeze Past Stamps

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Edmonton Eskimos, showing determination in every tackle and block, are moving slowly but surely to another first-place finish in the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Displaying the same tremendous power and ball-control ability that has won them two consecutive Grey Cup championships, the mighty Eskimos Monday night ran Winnipeg Blue Bombers into the margin at the top.

The victory didn't guarantee them the first place they had clinched by this time a year ago, but it put a long new forward that end.

Meanwhile at Calgary the Stampeders lost a 22-21 squeaker to British Columbia Lions, but their defeat gives thus lost their last chance to emerge from the cellar. Only three games remain and with just two games left—against Edmonton and Winnipeg —they'll be conceded a chance of catching a playoff berth.

Saskatchewan Roughriders and Edmonton Eskimos each have two games left. The Roughriders play host to Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Eskimos each have two games left. The Roughriders play here twice with Saskatchewan, and could have a lot to say about the Riders' fate.

The Eskimos left little doubt in the minds of the nearly 20,000 fans at Edmonton's Clarke Stadium that they are superior to the Bombers.

Behind the power plunging of Normie Kwong, Jackie Parker and who during the game passed by nearly 300 yards his 1953 rushing record of 1,259, and the now-healthy Johnny Bright and Earl Lindley, the dipsydoodle running of Rollie Miles, the Eskimos rolled up 406 yards on the ground.

Kwong shrugged off tackle for six yards for a touchdown in the second quarter to cap a 108-yard drive by the Eskimos, who marched from their own end zone nine in 13 plays.

Bright scored two touchdowns, one on a four-yard plunge that came two plays after a Winnipeg fumble on their eight-yard line, and the other on a 25-yard pass play with Canadian quarterback Don Getty. End Joe Mombrea kicked two converts and Jackie Parker punted 45 yards for a single.

Buddy Leake scored the Winnipeg touchdown and converted it. End Tom Miner kicked a field goal from 43 yards out and picked up a single on a placement attempt.

At Calgary, Ronnie Knox, the UCLA quarterback who left Hamilton Tiger-Cats in mid-season and joined Stampeders, turned in a sparkling display before 6,000 fans.

Knox scored two touchdowns on one-yard plunges and kicked a single when a placement went wide. He completed 13 of 26 forward-pass attempts for 156 yards.

Quarterback Jerry Coleman and Fulton Villaneuva of the Lions made long forward passes count for two touchdowns and Vic Chapman raced in to recover his own punt to set up another.

By Bailey plunged over from eight yards out after Chapman's recovery and Villaneuva at the five-yard line set up Coleman for the score. Paul Cameron took a long Gustafson pass on the Calgary 45 and went the distance for a touchdown on a play that went 82 yards.

Ron Baker kicked two converts and Chapman scored a single on a punt. Al Dekdebrun was the other B.C. point on a kick to the dead-line.

The rest of the Calgary scoring was handled by Harvie Wylie, who kicked a field goal and pitchout 15 yards over the line and then fell on it, and Lynn Bottoms, with two converts.

Football Broadcast Backfires, Opposing Team Got Signals

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP)—Paul Brown, electronics pioneer, faced his darkest hour today.

As if the Cleveland coach wasn't humiliated enough by the 21-0 setback the Browns suffered at the hands of New York Giants Sunday, he now has to face the fact that his pet secret weapon, the radio-controlled quarterback, contributed to the National Football League champions' downfall.

For three series of plays Brown transmitted his instructions by short wave to quarterback George Ratterman, who carries a small receiving set in his helmet. Then he went back to his old system of sending in a substitute lineman after every play to relay his ideas to Ratterman.

VALUABLE INTERCEPTION

"Too much static," was Brown's dour explanation of his shift to horse-and-buggy methods.

But Monday George Walsh, business manager of the Giants, offered a different version.

Walsh said Bob Topp, a substitute lineman, was sitting at one end of the bench, wearing earphones and twiddling the dial of a radio receiver. As the Browns hurled before their first offensive play, Topp turned to defensive coach Tom Landry and said, "Hallowell, left."

GOOD RECEPTION

Landry conveyed this information to Jim Giant, defensive captain by lung-power. The pitchout play lost two yards.

Walsh said Brown's instructions were coming through loud and clear.

Just in case the Cleveland coach tried using numbered signals to designate his plays, the Giants had another sub, ex-Cleveland Dave Hillard, sitting next to Topp to act as interpreter.

As matters developed, Ratterman spent most of the afternoon digging himself out from under a charging crew of Giant linemen and few of his coach's blueprints were carried out according to plan.

Walsh predicted legislation in the near future to abolish the electronic offence. Otherwise, he said, the Giants' big draft choice next season will be the valedictorian at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Lions Name Dozen Imports

VANCOUVER (CP) — Coach Clem Crowe of British Columbia Lions had his mind made up for him on imports when centre Sieve Palmer suffered concussion Saturday night for the third time this season.

Doctors said Palmer, injured as the Lions bowed 22-21 to Winnipeg Blue Bombers, was taken to hospital after being knocked out in the second quarter.

When the Lions headed for Calgary for Monday night's Western game with the Stampeders, backfielder Tony Teresa was the 12th import.

Other Lions imports are: Quarterbacks Jerry Gustafson and Primo Villanueva; halves Al Pollard, Paul Cameron, Jim Vereb and By Bailey and Don Edwards; tackles Fred Robinson and Norm Masters, and guards Bob Hantla and John Jankans.

Pat Abbruzzi Leads Scorers By 30 Points

TORONTO (CP)—Pat Abbruzzi of Montreal Alouettes has just completed wrapped up the 1956 Big Four Football Union scoring title.

Abbruzzi scored his 14th touchdown of the season last Saturday to raise his point-total to 84, a whopping 30-point advantage over teammate Hal Patterson. Al Pfeifer of Toronto Argonauts, the 1955 scoring leader with 96 points, has scored only 24 in the 11 games so far this year and is well down the list.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press show Don St. John of Ottawa Rough Riders in third place with 53 points and the Als' Bill Bewley in fourth with 44.

Bill Graham of the league-leading Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen in the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union, added seven points last week to raise his total to 118. Tied for second place with 30 points are Roy King of Rochester Rockets and Dick Dixon of Matt Rouillard, both of Sarnia Golden Bears.

TOP RUSHER TOO

Abbruzzi also is the leading ground gainer in the Big Four. He has carried the ball 264 yards in 167 carries for an average distance of 5.2 yards.

O. K. Ferguson of Toronto Argonauts has gained 686 yards in 126 carries for an average of 5.4 yards. The next-best showing is that of Cookie Gilchrist of Hamilton. In 93 carries he has gained 668 yards, an average of 7.2 yards.

Sam Etcheverry is tops in the league passing department. He has completed 234 of 352 pass attempts for an average gain of 10.5 yards. Arnie Galiffa of the Argonauts has completed 179 of 309 attempts for an average of 8.5 yards. Hal Ledyard of Ottawa Rough Riders follows with 124 passes completed in 286 attempts, for an average gain of eight yards.

Patterson dominates the pass receivers. He has received 77 passes and gained 1,664 yards. Pfeifer has received 60 passes for a total gain of 791 yards while Red O'Quinn of the Als has taken 45 passes for a gain of 725 yards.

Newsmen, Public, Coaches Select All-Star Teams

EDMONTON (CP)—Ken Montgomery, president of the Canadian Rugby Union and a member of the Shriners all-star football games committee, announced Monday coaches, sports reporters, broadcasters, and fans this year will be asked to select the players in the East-West all-star contest at Vancouver Dec. 8.

In the first annual Shrine game, played last year in Toronto, the Toronto Star underwrote the game and the all-star teams were chosen through a fan ballot system arranged by the newspaper.

This year, Mr. Montgomery said the Shrine is handling the game itself. The Eastern team will be chosen by Easterners and the Western team by Westerners.

Each coach will be asked to choose an all-star team from the opponents in his league. Fans, sportswriters, and broadcasters will be asked to choose a team from their league. The Shrine selection committee will choose the players from the results.

Each team will consist of 26 players, 12 of whom must be Canadians. Two qualified quarterbacks and two punters and complete defensive and offensive units must be named.

The coaches will be the men who coach the two clubs in the Grey Cup final Nov. 24 and they will be allowed to choose their own assistants.

OUT THREE WEEKS

MONTREAL (CP) — Henri (Pocket Rocket) Richard, injured when checked heavily by Leo Labine of Boston in National Hockey League game here Saturday, will be lost to Canadiens for at least three weeks, a club spokesman said Monday. The young centre suffered torn ligaments in his knee.

Whitby Dunlops Strong Entry In Eastern Senior A League

By WREN BLAIR

The Whitby Dunlops, Ontario Senior "A" champion of the 1955-56 season, are set and ready to go in the newly-formed six team division of the O.H.A. Senior "A". They will compete with entries from Belleville, Kingston and Cornwall, plus newcomers to the old Eastern league, namely the Ottawa Canadiens and the Pembroke Lumber Kings.

Several rather keen faces have been added to the "firemen" from Whitby and they along with 13 returning members from last season's hustling club, pose a formidable entry to the group. Newcomers will be ace centreman Charlie Burns, of Trenton and Marlboro's top performers in their march to the Memorial Cup last spring. Burns is a rugged, hard skating youngster, who can really move, and who knows his way back down from anyone. Playing left wing with Burns will be Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 2-1 in their own back yard. Next year's captain will be defenceman Jack Devey. The Dunlops had an efficient intendper in candy, by the name of Jack Spencer, but the club was dissatisfied with his attitude, and gave him his release.

Already the Dunlops have played a top club from the three best amateur leagues in hockey, and have defeated the Ex-Whitby club. First they travelled to Kitchener and defeated the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 2-1 in their own back yard. Next they defeated the Ex-Whitby Red Sruins of the United States International League, by the added second in their group last year. Final score: Whitby 8, Troy 4. Troy then went to Kingston to "beat" St. Catharines TPs, at Whitby Memorial Gardens.

All this was in pre-season play however, and the big test is yet to come. Whitby will be pitted in the long 55-game schedule Eastern league, which opens Friday coming, October 19th. The Dunlops open against their perennial rivals from Kingston in the game that should draw a full house in the Limestone city. They get their home opener the following night when playing-coach Gerry Dineen will see Cornwall "chervies" into Whitby.

Yankees and Dodgers to Have Hard Time Adjusting Salaries

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK (AP)—Last year Johnny Podres was the man-in-motion as the World Series.

As winner of two games and the man who pitched the clincher giving Brooklyn Dodgers the world championship he was wined and dined, televised, radioed about, presented with such tidy little tokens of esteem as automobiles and named the outstanding this and outstanding that.

Came another time for 1956 and Johnny approached the negotiations with high optimism not to say supreme confidence. Where would the bums have been without him? That was his forceful address.

A GOOD ANSWER

The Dodger front office had a very disconcerting answer to that one. Where would the Bums have been at the finish of the season with the pitching staff made up of Johnny Podresses (his season's record was 9-10? Somewhere around fifth or sixth place.

Johnny probably got a raise in wages but it probably wasn't quite as much as he might have hoped.

The only reason for bringing it up is that the front office fears the situation is reverse this year.

Don Newcombe won 27 games while losing seven for the Dodgers this past season. Without him, the Bums most certainly would have not been watching the series over TV.

Come contract time the Dodger front office undoubtedly will say: Newk politely: "Where were you during the world series?"

The question will be a little unfair. After all, even if he again failed, twice, to turn in a victory he at least was responsible for the Dodgers getting the losers' share of the series melon.

What the series debacles and the booing of the fans might have done to Newcombe's morale is a question. The Dodger bosses might use a little psychology and voluntarily give the lantern-jawed giant a raise. It would prop his sagging confidence to know that his employers had confidence in him.

The Dodger contract troubles will be bargain compared to the problems facing the Yankees. Some of the Dodger veterans, nearing the end of the trail, already are receiving as much as they can hope to receive, and Gil Hodges was kidding on the square when he remarked: "If I get my contract with the 25 per cent cut." 6,500,000-Car Market in U.S. Will Make Money for 'Big 3'

DETROIT (AP) — The auto industry's "big three" of General Motors, Ford and Chrysler will make money out of a 6,500,000-car market in the U.S. in 1957; how the two smaller companies, American Motors and Studebaker-Packard will fare is yet to be determined.

Neither American Motors (Hudson-Nash-Rambler) nor Studebaker-Packard has made a profit since the mergers that made two companies out of four. Meanwhile GM and Ford have been hitting high earnings peaks and Chrysler, which got a "comeback" rolling only to slip again this year, appears likely to get rolling again in 1957.

Both American Motors and Studebaker-Packard have reported they can reach the point of profitable operations with a sales volume that would be unrealistic to their larger competitors. Both also are taking a new approach to the manner of their competition with the larger companies.

The new approach involves concentration on specialized models rather than what has been called "head-on" competition in every price field. Each of the smaller companies has indicated a retail sales volume of 150,000 cars will bring it to the profit-making level.

Studebaker-Packard and American Motors had a relatively small share in the more than $7,000,000,000 the auto industry invested in its 1957 model cars. Yet both have brought out new models smartly improved, both in styling and engineering.

Studebaker-Packard expects its restyled and supercharged Golden Hawk sports model to figure prominently in its sales volume for 1957. It is also presenting conventional models with styling and engineering advances comparable with those made in many other new model changeovers.

American Motors, limiting its Nash and Hudson lines to single series of Ambassador and Hornet models respectively, expects most of its volume to come in the Rambler series. The Rambler, being marketed independently of the Nash and Hudson lines, probably will account for 70 per cent of American Motors' output. It is being marketed in most of the popular body styles, on a 108-inch wheelbase.

A significant option is either a six-cylinder or a V-8 engine for 1957.

Hospital Edition

The Ontario Intelligencer

Pages 13 to 24

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, OCTOBER, 16, 1956

NEW HOSPITAL WING OPENS WEDNESDAY

Tomorrow at 2 p.m. the ceremony officially opening the 100-bed wing of Belleville General Hospital will take place on the hospital's front lawn. The Honorable Mackinnon Phillips, M.D., Minister of Health for the Province of Ontario, will be on hand to address the gathering. He will cut the ribbon, thus opening the new wing.

Public inspection of the wing will follow the opening ceremony. At this time Belleville citizens can tour the new section and see for themselves the contribution they made toward the improvement of the community.

This is the 70th anniversary of Belleville General Hospital, founded in 1886. In all probability the people of that time were proud of their "new, modern" hospital with its 12-bed unit and meagre services. Many changes have been wrought since then through the advancement in medical science.

And with this progress came the advancement in hospital services that are part and parcel of a modern hospital of today, such as the one Belleville can now claim. Now that the new wing is completed the capacity is 250 beds with the attendant increase in other departments such as operating rooms and kitchen facilities. These improvements, which are so necessary in today's rapidly increasing population, mean greater safeguards to good health and faster recovery from illness.

Besides Dr. Phillips, other dignitaries who will be present to welcome guests include Mayor Jane H. Forrester, mayor of Belleville; Dr. W. Douglas Piercey, executive director of the Canadian Hospital Association; Mrs. Charles McLean, president of the Ontario Hospital Association; Mrs. J. E. Buchan, president of the Women's Hospital Auxiliaries Association of Ontario; F. G. Robertson, M.D., parliamentary assistant to the Minister of National Health and Welfare; the Board of Governors; and the administrator and his entire staff.

Tea will be served by the Ladies' Auxiliary in the hospital dining room.

Belleville Hospital Had Twelve Beds Ready When It Opened July 20, 1886

Tomorrow Belleville citizens will gather on the hospital lawn to witness the official opening of the new wing. Seventy-two years ago Tuesday, July 20, 1886, to be exact — another group of local residents met at the same site. For it was on that date Belleville General Hospital first opened its doors to the sick. The following is an account of that memorable day as it appeared in the Daily Intelligencer in 1886.

"The dream which a few ladies who 'put their heads together' in 1879 as the Women's Christian Association, dreamed of a general hospital for the city and county, was realized on Tuesday afternoon, when the handsome edifice on Dundas Street, which has been erected through the efforts of and under the auspice of the Women's Christian Association was formally dedicated in the presence of the public, to the purpose for which it was erected.

"As is generally known, the hospital is not as yet fully equipped with furniture, beds and other requirements. It would, of course, have been more satisfactory to the ladies had they been able to present to the public, as the result of their untiring efforts, the whole institution completely furnished and stored and fully as a ship for a long voyage, and without a cent of debt resting upon the handsome building; but though they have accomplished wonders, they were unable to achieve a miracle.

TWELVE BEDS

"Besides, there is as yet, fortunately, no necessity for completing the equipment of the hospital, which opens with 12 beds ready for the reception of patients. It has room for, in all, 30 beds, namely 12 in the male hospital and eight in the private wards on the grounds floor, and on the upper flat six beds in the female hospital and three in a ward for special cases. The rooms are light, airy and cheerful, and the whole interior pleasant, commodious and handsome.

"As to the internal economy and management, an experienced matron has been secured in the person of Miss Lincks, who occupied a similar position in the St. Catharines Hospital, and who was recommended by the Ontario Government. The management will be in the hands of the Women's Christian Association, and medical attendance will be given by the local physicians, who will each serve a month in turn. . . .

"Whilst these particulars were being hastily noted, the company who were to witness and take part in the ceremonies were gathering within the spacious structure, to which a gala appearance was presented by a liberal display of flags over the main entrance, enclosing the motto 'Welcome', and on the arrival of the Odd Fellows' band, the company assembled in the large room in which the male hospital is to be located. . . .

Mrs. Jones, president of the W.C.A., gave a hearty welcome to all present. Their plans had not, happily, been castles in the air, owing to the kindness of the public. Their aims had materialized and they felt very happy, and grateful to their kind friends. . . . They had trusted in God and their faith had been realized. She felt grateful today to be able to open a door to suffering humanity. Might it never be closed. The Association hoped and trusted that though they have accomplished wonders, they were unable to achieve a miracle.

BUILDING COST $18,815

"Mrs. J. J. B. Flint, treasurer, read the financial statement, the effect of which is that the hospital is mortgaged to the extent of $4,000. The expenditure on account of building amounted to $18,035.26, and for furnishing $583.63. . . .

"Mayor McIntosh said it was no doubt a very proud day for the hard-working members of the W.C.A. He trusted their highest hopes would be fully realized. The Home and the Hospital would be a home and a haven for the sick and afflicted. It was an ornament to our beautiful city, and he trusted that they would all be spared to visit it from time to time. . . .

"We may add, in extending our hearty congratulations to all concerned, that money and many articles necessary for the furnishing of the building are still required. Boxes for the reception of contributions of money will be found on several of the doors, also lists of the articles required. The list is as follows:

"Surgery — Operating table, wash-stand, basin, pitcher, soap-dish, looking-glass, hall table with drawer but no back.

"Miscellaneous—Small unpainted table in accident ward, gas fixtures in every room, furnace, four mantles, seven grates, front door scraper and mat, medicine closet with glass doors, two private rooms to be furnished, six Boston rocking chairs, three small hall tables with drawers for wards, two granite pails, two frigators for washing wounds, six basin of granite ware, six baizes of white delf, two dozen expectoration cups, white delf, with covers to lift off, bed-rests, bed-cradles, 12 white quilts, 24 white blankets, three bedroom sets. . . .

The list, which went on to include various amounts of silverware, was practically endless. But with the support and generosity of the public, which was proud of its new hospital, Belleville General Hospital grew to become what it is today—a place of healing, employing modern methods and equipment.

HONORABLE MACKINNON PHILLIPS

Minister of Health for Ontario

Dr. Mackinnon Phillips, Ontario Minister of Health, will officially open the new hospital wing at the ceremony Wednesday afternoon. Born in Eldorado, Ontario, Dr. Phillips attended Dundalk High School and is a University of Toronto graduate in medicine. He did post-graduate work in Detroit's Harper Hospital and is presently a practising physician in Owen Sound. Dr. Phillips served with the 45th Field R.C.A. from 1916 to 1918; is a past president of the Owen Sound K-iwanis Club and a member of the Masonic Order, Crescent Athletic Club, and Canadian Legion. A progressive Conservative, he was first elected to the Ontario Legislature in June, 1945, representing the constituency of Grey North. In 1948 he was re-elected and, in August, 1950, was appointed Minister of Health. He was re-elected to this position in November, 1951, and again in June, 1953.

Well Water Cyanosis

Persistent blueness in a baby under ten months of age may be due to well water cyanosis, if the child's formula has been prepared from water from natural sources in which there is an excess of nitrates. A doctor should be consulted immediately such a condition appears. City water which passes through a filtration process is quite safe.

This view of the utility room in the operating suite shows the high speed steriliser and blanket and solution warmer. Nurse Louise Ray is in charge.

City Took Over Hospital At Request of WCA in 1948

In July of 1947, due to increased costs it was found the hospital was becoming increasingly difficult to operate; there were no funds available for capital expenditures and the ever apparent need for expansion.

The Women's Christian Association were quite willing to turn the hospital over to the City of Belleville on the assurance the hospital would continue to be operated for the benefit of the residents of the city and surrounding district.

In August of 1947, a motion was passed that city council be approached for a possible solution including the possibility that the city take over the hospital and its equipment.

On April 16, 1948, legislation transferring the hospital to the Corporation of the City of Belleville received assent.

Since that time the operation of the hospital has been under the direction of a board of governors, comprised as follows.

1 member appointed by the Lieutenant - Governor - in - Council.

2 members appointed by the Women's Christian Association.

1 member appointed by the County of Hastings.

100-Bed Wing Contains Wealth Of Technical Equipment

Everything Planned To Give Patients Best Service Possible

By JAN HARSH

If the courageous women who first brought a hospital to Belleville 70 years ago could view the new wing they would surely marvel at the modern equipment and pleasant surroundings found in it.

This section, which will officially open Wednesday afternoon, contains five floors — a basement, ground floor, and three floors for patient accommodations.

The central supply department is located in the basement. Here hypodermic needles, surgeons' gloves, bandages and other equipment are sterilized in three vault-like autoclaves, one rectangular and the others circular in shape. The articles to be sterilized are placed on a transfer carriage which is then pushed into the container. After the door is sealed they are sterilized by means of superheated steam under pressure.

The equipment room, containing an air-conditioning unit, is also found on this floor. This room has a large auxiliary lighting unit which can be put into use in the event of a power failure.

CHAPEL INCLUDED

A nurses' locker room and a pleasant sitting room are in the basement, as well as a chapel where religious services can be held for nurses and ambulatory patients.

The out-patient entrance and the out-patient waiting room are located on the ground floor. There is also an emergency entrance where ambulances will deliver patients.

A physio-therapy department, found on this floor, deals mostly with orthopedic treatment. It employs the use of exercises, whirlpool baths, massage and short wave treatments to treat its cases.

A new admitting office, waiting room, and an emergency operating room suite have been constructed on the ground floor of new wing. The flooring is all made of conductive material to eliminate danger of explosions. All of the equipment has conductive rubber casters to make the static electricity pass into the floor.

The new dining room on this floor has a seating capacity of 100 people. The kitchen is modern in every respect. Among its features is a belt conveyor speeding the filling of food trays. The trays are placed at one end of the conveyor and as the trays move along the food is placed on them. A dietitian stands at the opposite end of the conveyor, inspecting each tray as it passes. She controls the switchboard which operates this process. After passing inspection, these trays, laden with food, pass through an opening in the wall and onto a "tray-veyor" which operates similar to a "dumb waiter", carrying the trays to the various floors. Here they are taken over by the nurses who deliver them to the patients. This saves time and energy for the nurses.

The system is reversed when the dishes are returned for washing. After moving to the kitchen by way of the trayveyor and the movable belt the dishes are pushed through a large automatic dish washer. After the washing process they are dried automatically.

THREE REFRIGERATORS

One section of the kitchen is used for preparing special diets for patients. Three refrigerators have been installed in the new wing—an improvement over the one used in the past. One of these new refrigerators will be used to hold salads, keeping them cool and fresh at a temperature of 40 degrees fahrenheit. This refrigerator is 18 feet by 10 feet and has a six-inch thick wooden door. The other refrigerators are similar in size. The meat refrigerator consists of two compartments, one being a deep freeze. A refrigerator for fruits, vegetables and dairy products completes the list.

The vegetable preparation area contains a large potato peeler. The bake shop has a "small" food mixer capable of holding 30 quarts. A 60-quart mixer is used in the kitchen. A tilting kettle, many kettles, which resemble kettle drums, have an 80-quart capacity. Large coffee urns, not to be outdone by the other oversized equipment in the kitchen, do their job in this plan for institutional cooking.

One big problem encountered by all cooks is that of keeping cold food at a low temperature and hot food comfortably warm until ready to serve. The new kitchen will use a container to keep rolls, breads, and other baked goods warm until needed. The cafeteria counter has a heated food section as well as a refrigerated section for cold foods. A pass-through refrigerator, which opens from both sides, will be another time and labor saving device employed in the new kitchen. As many 240,000 meals are served yearly from the kitchen, With the additional accommodation this number will increase by 13,000.

TASTEFULLY DECORATED

The three top floors, which will house patients, have been decorated to eliminate the regimented appearance so often found in buildings of this type.

Terrazzo flooring and ceramic tile walls are the style in the new wing. The corridor wall tiles are a different color on each side of the hall, with the color scheme changing every 100 feet. This helps patients to find their way about more easily.

Another money-saving device found in the corridors is the metal and acoustic ceiling with insulation inside. The covering on the ceiling is made in sections which can be unhooked easily for making repairs. This baked enamel finish can be washed without much effort.

Bright colors throughout the patients' floors are planned to make the hospital stay as cheerful as possible, for these people. The idea behind this was to get away from the traditional "hospital appearance" of green and white. In this way the patient will lose some of his or her apprehensiveness when entering the hospital. The rooms are finished in pastel shades of either blue, rose, yellow, or a variety of others. When the shades were being planned the question of natural lighting was taken into consideration. For this reason the south end of the wing contains cool colors, while the warm colors are present in the north end.

NEW CALL SYSTEM

A new patient-nurse call system will be utilized in the new wing. Each patient's room is equipped with a microphone and an amplifier. When a patient wishes anything, a button next to the bed is pushed. This signals to the nurse who pulls a switch turning on the call system. She asks the patient what is needed, who can answer her in a normal speaking voice without raising the head. The device is so powerful the nurse can actually hear a patient breathe. If a patient wishes complete privacy, there is a special switch beside the bed which will turn off this call system until there is need to use it again. This patient-nurse call system is another of the many efficient methods being put to work in the new wing. It saves time and energy for the nurse as it enables her to find out what her patient's needs are without going to the room.

None of the familiar-looking cylinders of oxygen will be found in this new section of the hospital. Instead, piped oxygen has taken its place. When there is need for oxygen it is simply connected to the small outlet in the patient's room.

The beds on each floor follow a different color scheme—combinations of buff, and green being the three shades chosen. Venetian blinds have been eliminated from the new rooms. Sun drapes, which have a silver appearance on the main clean longer, take the place of the blinds. Colorful side drapes complete the scene. The emphasis in all the rooms is for more natural lighting. For this reason large windows can be found in all parts of this wing.

The beds each have a safety foot stool which is attached to the bed at all times and folds easily under when not in use. This reduces the danger of a patient falling while getting into or out of bed.

MANY CONVENIENCES

Each patient will have a clothes closet in the room. All rooms are equipped with lavatories. A mirror hangs on one wall, above a combination writing desk and lower table. These tables prove more useful than the dressing tables used in past years. A compact over bed table can be wheeled over the bed easily. A front section of the table opens, revealing a mirror and a place for storing cosmetics and toilet articles.

All patient rooms are semi-private with the exception of two four-bed rooms. With the opening of the new wing, the semi-private rooms in the west wing will be converted into private rooms.

The operating rooms in the older section of the hospital are being remodelled and will not be completed in time for the opening ceremonies. However, the hospital has been using the operating rooms in the new wing. These rooms are equipped with flush ceiling lights for general illumination and employ the latest surgical lighting systems.

The maternity ward is located on the top floor. The nursery contains individual bassinets for the babies. There is also an isolation nursery for infants with contagious diseases, as well as a nursery for premature babies.

The new parking lot for the medical staff will accommodate 90 cars.

With the completion of the new wing, Belleville General Hospital has realized a goal—to employ the latest technical equipment, surrounded by pleasant conditions. Planned in the interests of patients, this should make their confinement in hospital as pleasant as possible and their recovery as swift as possible.

Modern Cafeteria and Kitchen Feature New Hospital Wing

Many of the departments in the hospital will see changes when they move into the new wing. The greatest change will be in the kitchen.

According to Miss Audrey Bearcroft, head dietitian, the new kitchen will employ 36 persons and remain in operation around the clock.

Trays and food supplies will come from the main kitchen and not from the ward kitchen which has been the case. This will prove to be a time-saver.

In the old kitchen ordinary household coffee pots were in use. These will be replaced by the large institutional-size coffee urns.

Instead of boiling food it will be steamed in three large steamers. Besides being faster this method is better nutritionally. Small amounts of food can also be prepared in these containers.

The new dishwasher contains a heated drying compartment which will eliminate the hand-drying operation. This will aid in sanitation since the articles are automatically sterilized.

The large cafeteria is the new wing will save time and energy. Members of the hospital staff will take their meals in the same area instead of in different rooms which has been done in the past.

In the old cafeteria artificial lights were used extensively. The new, ventilated cafeteria will be made brighter by the use of daylight. In general, the cafeteria which the public will view however has more space, and with the additional equipment, more can be accomplished.

Future plans for this department include using selective menus in order to give the patients wider choice of foods. Miss Bearcroft believes this will go into operation in another year.

According to Kenneth Box, hospital administrator, the outmoded kitchen will be converted into storage space.

MILK POWDER CHEAPER

Skim milk powder is much cheaper than liquid whole milk and it can be used for almost all cooking purposes or drinking. Since only the required amount is used each time, it can be kept for long periods in its container without waste.

The nursery in the new wing, with its capacity for 44 infants, is equipped with portable bassinettes, shown in this picture.

24 Children Can Be Treated In New Pediatrics Ward

The new pediatrics ward in the hospital will have accommodations for 24 children, in contrast to the limit of 11 in the past. It will be a complete self-contained unit.

Each bed in the new unit will have glass and metal partitions. In this way young patients will have privacy and at the same time will be able to see their neighbors.

Measures have been taken to avoid the usual hospital atmosphere which so often results in bringing unnecessary fear to the youngsters. The furniture chosen for this ward is constructed so as not to resemble the usual hospital furnishings. Beds following this scheme are called "youth beds."

The colors found in each room will be associated with animals, circuses, and other subjects which brighten a child's imagination. Many of these rooms have been donated by Belleville organizations.

Colorful murals or transfers will be placed on the walls. Cowboys and other motifs will decorate the draperies.

The ceilings have been kept in purposely, making them similar to those found in houses. A child would immediately notice high ceilings and become frightened, realizing he was in a strange place. The children will be made to feel as much at home as possible during their hospital stay.

Who knows — young patients in future years may not wish to leave the hospital!

The old pediatrics unit will be completely remodelled and used for adult patient accommodation.

First Year Check

During his first year, a baby should be checked for his growth and development by his doctor or the well-baby clinic. Regular weighing is important, since he should gain about a pound and a half in his first three months. He should double his birth weight in five months, tripling it at the end of the first year.

CHECK TEETH, TONSILS

Abscessed teeth or infected tonsils or nose may cause trouble in the eyes. A checkup by a medical eye doctor will usually reveal these conditions and permit diagnosis and treatment. When having a medical checkup, it should include throat, ears and eyes.

Physio-Therapy Department Aids Rehabilitation Work

Adequate space is a necessity to a hospital's physio-therapy department. And additional space is one of the things this department of Belleville General Hospital will acquire when it moves into the new wing.

According to L. Wright, head of this department, ample room is a must for his rehabilitation work. Physio-therapy is chiefly concerned with teaching people to use legs and arms which have been injured in some way, or through the crippling effects of disease. When a patient is learning to walk again, he needs space in which to exercise.

With this additional space more cases can be handled at one time. Two beds were used formerly. The new department will be equipped with three beds. It will be able to accommodate four patients, if necessary.

Included in the list of new equipment will be a new hydro-therapy unit. This is a tank which holds water in agitation. Its chief purpose is treatment prior to exercise. It relaxes the muscles and increases circulation in the patient before he begins exercising.

WAX BATH

The paraffin wax bath will be used in the new wing. It is employed when heat application is necessary, such as in cases of arthritis. A special type of wax having a low melting point is used. It is melted to a reasonably comfortable temperature. The patient places his hand in this wax bath and, after removing it, discovers his hand covered by an all-tight "glove". This "glove" is then wrapped in towels which absorb the heat, thus relaxing the muscles. This bath is thermostatically controlled.

A bicycle exercises will be among the new pieces of equipment. This stationary bicycle aids in strengthening legs. It is used a great deal in building up thigh muscles.

Wall bars of the type found in gymnasiums will be used for exercises which must be performed in a hanging position.

Patients can perform walking exercises on the building ramp, constructed on a gentle slope eight feet long. This exercise is used primarily for stretching heel cords.

The balkin beam can be used for suspension exercises. It is fitted over the patient's bed. After learning the exercises the patient can carry them out alone.

An adjustable plinth is another piece of equipment which can be attached to the bed. It is similar to a sun deck chair as it can be adjusted easily to various sitting or lying positions.

Among the recently purchased materials is a set of progressive resistance exercise equipment. This consists of a series of aluminum boots which are placed on the patient's feet. A bar and weights are attached to the boot, heavier weights being added as the patient progresses.

Neck traction exercises follow this same plan. The neck is placed in a sling and weights are applied by use of a pulley. The attendant can increase or decrease the weight gradually.

The equipment used in the old physio-therapy department will be moved into the new wing. This includes the ultra-violet light, used in the treatment of skin diseases, and the infra-red light, employed when the application of local heat is necessary to relax the patient before massage.

The short wave diathermy unit will also be kept in use. This unit, unlike other forms of radiated heat, can apply deep heating to the tissues.

Mobile X-Ray Units Help Prevent TB

The mobile X-ray unit that periodically appears in towns and cities, gives every Canadian a chance to avoid tuberculosis. These chest X-rays are free and by their aid, the earliest symptoms can be discovered and treatment given usually successfully at this stage.

FOOD AND ANAEMIA

To help in preventing anaemia, foods rich in iron should be eaten. These include liver, kidney, beef, eggs, whole grain cereals, raisins and dried apricots, which will help to keep the blood in good condition.

Bitter Opposition Faced Small Group Of Women Who Founded Hospital

By JAN HARSH

It is an accepted thing now, but the novels once had it (particularly those written by male novelists) that there is no more immovable object on this earth than a woman who has made up her mind.

Luckily for the Quinte district, the women of Belleville in the 1870's were no different from their sisters elsewhere who came in contact with male novelists.

For right on the city's doorstep there is today evidence of this good fortune, as solid itself as a woman's persistence.

It is Belleville General Hospital, which this week enters a new phase in its history with the official opening of a $1,250,000 wing.

The history of Belleville General Hospital is tied to the apron strings of women's persistence. It was the first Canadian institution of its kind to be built, owned and operated entirely by women.

Its history goes back to the youthful days of Belleville as a city — the year 1879 to be precise.

Like most Canadian cities in the pattern of its times, it appeared to have everything necessary for a modern way of life. The railroad now was an accepted part of the domestic scenes, as were telegraphs and many another modern convenience. Yet in that same year it still had no hospital, home for the aged or any organized means of caring for the poor.

DETERMINED WOMAN

Things, however, were soon going to be changed — that is if a certain very determined woman could have her way.

The woman was Mrs. Jacques, wife of Dr. D. R. Jacques, principal of Albert College. Under her guidance before Christmas of that year, Mrs. Jacques founded the Women's Christian Association. Unfortunately, after only five months, the association's founder died. However, her place was taken by an equally adept woman — Mrs. Nathan Jones.

Among the first projects of this little band of women was a plan for the building of a hospital to care for the sick of the city and surrounding country.

This idea, it is said, immediately met with bitter opposition. Where, the women were asked, did they propose to build such an institution? And where did they think they would get the money necessary for the project? They were criticized in the newspapers, in city council, in the legislature — even on the streets — but they refused to acknowledge the attacks of prejudiced males.

Besides their natural persistence, the women of the association had encouragement at least from one quarter.

There is no doubt that the natural persistence of the women of the association was encouraged from at least one source. The spirit of women in the nursing and healing fields was abroad at that time. It had not been too many years previous that Florence Nightingale had inspired the world with her epic feats of courage and endurance in nursing the sick and wounded in the Crimean campaign. Her subsequent work in England at the war's end had imbued women everywhere with the idea of caring for the unfortunate and encouraged the growth of nursing.

If the women's persistence was an immovable object they also had an irresistible force on their side — the humanitarian appeal of caring for the ill and unfortunate.

AIDED BY JOHN BELL

Through the efforts of a barrister, John Bell, the women finally won the first round in their battle to found a hospital in Belleville. In 1880 they obtained a charter granting power to their association to build such an institution.

Then began the laborious task of obtaining the necessary funds. For nearly five years they pushed the fund-raising campaign and finally, in July, 1884, with $15,000 in the kitty, the first sod was turned by Mrs. Jones.

To this $15,000 the city and county corporations each subscribed $2,000. A further $4,800 was realized by the sale of property first set aside by the city for the hospital, and on which St. Michael's Academy later was built.

Finally on July 20, 1886, the formal opening of the combined institution of the Hospital and the Home for the Aged took place.

Three years later, the Hospital and Home were entirely free from debt, having cost $20,000. At that time Belleville General Hospital was the only one between Kingston and Toronto.

However, it must not be assumed that everyone was against the idea of establishing the hospital. Far from it — if contemporary newspaper records prove anything. The new institution obviously found many who were eager to assist in any way in its operation and subscribe to its installations.

PRESS REPORT

A reporter from the Intelligencer of the day visited the hospital and observed:

"Stretchers and appliances were on hand for use in severe cases. Across the hall is the sitting room, which has lately been handsomely furnished by Mr. T. C. Wallbridge . . . To the south is the sitting room and dining room tastefully furnished by friends . . . The large halls are covered with matting, a present from Mr. Ritchie, and a neat hall chair was a present from Mr. Mesick . . ."

And so on. The list of donors to the hospital's furnishings was extensive.

After finding its feet, organization at the hospital then moved forward at a steady pace.

In the early 1890's a training school for nurses was organized, its first class of five students graduating in February, 1895.

Because its role is the very essence of humanity, the hospital scene is actually a mixture of grief and happiness. There are many stories on record in the files of every hospital attesting to this.

One that is not on the official indexes — and a happy one — is an amusing incident that occurred during the early days of the operation of Belleville General.

In the "90's" the hospital was visited by the governor-general, then Lord Aberdeen. There was no patient in the public ward at the time and the ladies felt that there should at least be one to impress the Queen's representative. The cook was commandeered out of her kitchen and into a ward bed. A few minutes later Ella Lordaby paused by her bed and murmured some sympathies. Once outside, he paused and whispered to his companion: "I take it by the size of her, she's suffering from dropsy, poor woman."

MUCH REMODELLING

The first ambitious expansion program of the hospital occurred in 1900 when the aged inmates were placed in another home on Moira Street and their former quarters remodelled to form the east wing of the hospital. By 1909 more room was needed and this resulted in the construction of the south wing and the east wing was made over into a nurses' residence. More additions and the remodelling followed which eventually ran up a cost of $35,000, which was met by the citizens of Belleville and an $18,000 mortgage.

Other notable phases in the history of the hospital leading up to tomorrow's opening of the new wing included the construction of the Ritchie Memorial Home for Nurses, built by a $40,000 fund left for that purpose by Thomas Ritchie, who died in 1921.

In the 1930's came the first break with the traditional operation of the hospital on a "Women-Only" basis. To help meet increasing demands made by modern medicine, both in work and expense, it was decided to include men on the hospital board in 1922.

Two years later, in 1924, the Women's Christian Association placed management of the hospital entirely in the hands of a Board of Governors, composed of four members chosen by the WCA, four by city council, three by county council, and one by the Medical Association. This set-up later was changed by by-law.

Owing to almost intolerable crowded conditions in the hospital, the Women's Christian Association in 1937 asked the Board of Governors to make plans to provide extra accommodation and hospital facilities. The result of this was a new hospital wing containing 100 beds, new operating rooms as well as many other needed services. The new wing was opened in 1940 at a total cost of $375,000. This sum was provided out of earnings over the next several years, except a little over $100,000 which the W.C.A. had set aside for just such a purpose from savings over many years.

Mr. Mackenzie Robertson was chairman of the Board during the construction of the new wing and H. E. Fairfield was in charge of the building committee. These two citizens were greatly responsible for the success of the project. Members of the 1937 Board when the plans were begun were: Mackenzie Robertson, chairman; J. B. Boyce; Dr. G. H. Stobie; A. M. Haig; E. P. Bernstein; Dr. G. A. Morton; Dr. J. Marshall; Dr. H. S. Gibson; Jamieson Bone, mayor of City of Belleville; H. E. Fairfield; E. S. Denyes and G. Thompson.

It would be impossible to list all the changes in Belleville General Hospital through the years for it has been a cumulative process that will carry on and keep pace with the times.

This brief glance at its history should give the community of Belleville some things to be proud of — not the least of them the persistence of its women, no matter what the novelists say.

Here is Belleville General Hospital as it appeared in the early 1900's. To the right is the main hospital. The This wing was the nurses' residence at one time.

Modern Hospital Complex, With Many Departments

By KENNETH BOX

Human endeavor in the Twentieth Century has become so complex that administration of any activity offers many problems unknown in earlier civilizations. Probably the most complex agency of our modern enterprises is today's hospital.

How different our hospitals are today to what they were in the Tenth and Eleventh Centuries! The so-called hospitals of that era, by and large, were houses where patients were placed because they'd was little hope for their recovery. Picture, if you can, a here room with a number of beds in which could be found at times several patients, some of whom were suffering from contagious diseases. It is difficult when we see the modern hospital building of today, to visualize that such hospitals existed in the middle ages.

The hospital of today has a main objective, which is to receive the human body and restore for it in such a manner as to restore it to normal, or to as nearly normal as possible. To do this effectively it must avail itself of highly trained personnel and a most important group, the medical profession.

The hospital's task is a difficult one in that economy in the operation of a hospital is no necessary. Yet this economy cannot be carried to the point where it will affect efficiency, or the good care of the patient. The rapid advancement of medical science makes it necessary for the hospital to keep abreast with this progress in providing the facilities needed to take full advantage of medical advancement.

MANY FACTORS INVOLVED

In the construction of our hospitals today many factors have to be taken into consideration. Our buildings must provide the best for the patient and the tools necessary for the doctor to use, in the interests of the patient, in the knowledge that he has gained. At the same time the construction must be such that it will provide efficiency and economy of operation.

At the head of the hospital organization, and responsible for its operation, is the Board of Governors, a public spirited group of people who give of their time and their energies in the interests of the community and the patients.

This body is responsible for establishing policies and for seeing that proper professional standards are maintained in the care of the sick. The organization of the Board is usually broken down into standing committees. The advantage of the standing committees system is that it spreads the work of the Board so that it is not placed on the shoulders of a few. It also has the added advantage of channelling a particular function to persons who have some knowledge of a particular field; for example, your finance committee, which deals with the financial problems of the institution, is composed chiefly of those people who have had financial training and experience.

The Board of Governors is made up of members of the community who serve on a voluntary basis, and are not able to spend continuous time at the hospital. It is necessary, therefore, for them to appoint a person with hospital and business training to carry out their policies and to be responsible for the operation of the institution under their direction. This person is known as the administrator.

The Board of Governors depends on him to efficiently administer all departments; he is the liaison between the Medical Staff and the Board, and the hospital staff and the Board.

COMPLEX ORGANIZATION

Let us take a look at the organization for which your Board of Governors is responsible. The average patient who comes into hospital sees only the nurse or nurses' aide and possibly the cleaner who comes to clean and polish the room. Patients realize, also, that there must be a kitchen because they receive three meals a day, but beyond that they have little conception of the numerous departments that form the organization, and that play a part in their complete recovery.

There is the Department of Nursing that is responsible for the bedside nursing care that the patient receives. There are various classifications of employees within this department, but at the head of this group is the registered professional nurse, with three years of intensive training. In your hospital there are employed, on an average, 90 graduate nurses, 65 student nurses, five nursing assistants, 15 nurses' aides, seven orderlies and 17 ward aides. Responsible for the functioning of this department is Miss M. L. Peart, Director of Nursing.

Possibly no department in the hospital draws more comment than the Dietary Department. The average patient feels that he is an expert where food is concerned, having received three meals a day continuously since the day he was born. Meals are the one thing that a patient in hospital has to look forward to, and the hospital's task is made more difficult in that it has to compete with the home cooking to which the patient has been accustomed. To this we must add the fact that a sick person is a finicky eater, and in some cases the patient is on a special diet which may not be too appetizing. The Dietary Department in your hospital is under the supervision of Miss Audrey Blagrove, a fully qualified dietitian who is an university graduate with specialized training in dietetics. One quarter of a million meals are served annually. There are 34 full time employees in the department.

LABORATORY IMPORTANT

The Department of Pathology is under the direction of Dr. A. N. Rots, a qualified medical doctor, with specialized training in Pathology. Possibly in no other field has medical science made more advancement than in the development of the modern laboratory. The facilities provided assist in the diagnosis of disease and the effectiveness of treatment. The clinical department is equipped to carry out procedures in surgical pathology, bacteriology, biochemistry, hematology and other miscellaneous procedures. The department is staffed by highly qualified technicians who carry out an average of 80,000 tests annually.

The Department of Radiology provides a highly specialized branch of medicine in the hospital which is directed by a medical doctor with specialized training in Radiology. The Radiologist has to see in shadow form what the surgeon can look at directly. The department has four diagnostic X-ray machines, of which one is a mobile unit for use where the patient is unable to leave his bed.

This equipment is costly and it will be acknowledged that X-ray service, like the laboratory, adds to the cost of patient care, but at the same time provides a service which the patient cannot be without, and which contributes greatly to a speedy recovery.

Most patients while in hospital receive drugs of one kind or another. While some are supplied free of charge, others are charged to the patient; and the miracle or wonder drugs in a number of instances are quite costly.

However, it must not be forgotten that these drugs assist materially in the complete recovery of the patient, and in most instances reduce the length of stay in hospital. The pharmacy must be staffed by qualified personnel, and your hospital pharmacy, which is the largest in the City of Belleville, is directed by Mrs. Rosemary Chown, a graduate pharmacist, and one assistant. In your hospital nearly $80,000 is spent yearly on drugs and medications.

The department of physical medicine is another important hospital service which deals with the prevention and treatment of conditions by physical means, and whose function is to restore the patient to the fullest physical usefulness possible in the shortest period of time. Mr. T. Wright, a qualified physiotherapist, is in charge of this department, and he has one assistant. On an average 4,000 treatments are carried out in the department each year.

LAUNDRY KEPT BUSY

I wonder how many patients give any thought to the clean white linen that is placed on the bed every day, and which is sometimes replaced two or three times a day. Approximately 12 pounds of linen are laundered every day for every patient in hospital, or approximately one half million pounds yearly. The laundry is under the supervision of Mr. M. Tulk, a qualified laundry manager. Mr. Tulk has ten full time employees in the department.

Considerable care must be taken in the washing of hospital linens. Nursery linen must be washed separately, and also contaminated linen. We must be careful to see that no shall residue is left in the clean linen, which would cause sores to elbows and knees of patients who have to remain in bed for long periods of time.

The housekeeping department is responsible for keeping the physical plant and furnishings clean and for maintaining a high degree of cleanliness throughout the hospital. Mrs. E. Porter, the housekeeper, has 23 workers engaged in this work.

There are also the business offices, the admitting department, the switchboard, maintenance and engineering, purchasing and stores, all of which are essential to the operation of your hospital.

All these departments, with over 300 employees, must be integrated and work as a team to ensure efficiency, economy and the best patient care possible, so that you and I will be secure in the knowledge that should the need arise we will be adequately cared for.

DIRECTOR OF NURSING

MISS MARGARET L. PEART

Miss Margaret L. Peart, present Director of Nursing at Belleville General Hospital, makes her home in Burlington and graduated from St. Joseph's Hospital, Hamilton, in 1944. Immediately following her graduation she entered University of Toronto to obtain a certificate in nursing education in 1945. Miss Peart has had a great deal of experience in many aspects of nursing, having done general duty at St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto; instructed in nursing arts at St. Joseph's Hospital, Hamilton, for two years, and held the position of Charge Nurse in Outpost Hospitals, Ontario Red Cross for three and one-half years. In August, 1952, she took up her present position in Belleville. Besides this vast experience in nursing education, Miss Peart has played a large part in other activities. During the past years she has been president of District No 6, RNAO; honorary president of Belleville General Hospital, School of Nursing Alumnae; and honorary president and convener of credentials committee for the Community Nursing Registry.

VALUABLE FOOD

The common cabbage is a valuable food, containing vitamins and minerals necessary to good health. Serve it raw or cooked, as a separate vegetable or an ingredient in stews or soups.

Cheerful furnishings are shown in this typical patient room on the south side of the new wing.

Nursing School Gateway to Proud Profession

No career for women is more respected than nursing.

Genuine concern for the welfare of the sick and injured, and a determination to apply professional training to the compassionate giving of a high quality of service have earned for nurses the respect and affection of the general public to a degree unmatched by almost every other form of womanly activity.

The proud traditions, thorough training and high standards of the nursing profession are carried forward in the three-year course of the School of Nursing of the Belleville General Hospital.

SCHOOL EXPANDS

The School of Nursing, with 61 student nurses in residence last year, will be expanding its enrolment this coming September to meet the increased capacity of the hospital and its need for more nurses. Academic and practical courses feature the three years of hard work preceding reception of the valued title, "Registered Nurse."

First - year students have a preclinical term of six months before being "capped" and "promoted to the rank of Junior nurses. They study anatomy, physiology, bacteriology, chemistry, elementary psychology, sociology, nursing arts and ethics. Junior nurses study medical and surgical nursing, first aid, emergency nursing, normal nutrition and diet therapy.

Second-year students spend three months studying pediatrics at the Children's Memorial Hospital, Montreal, and three months studying psychiatry at the Ontario Hospital, Kingston. Other courses are operating room, obstetrical and nursery techniques.

Third-year students take lectures for three months on such advanced specialties as eye, ear, nose and throat, urology, gynecology, professional trends, social aspects of nursing, communicable diseases and preventive medicine.

The nursing course is not all work. At the School of Nursing of the Belleville General Hospital, there is an active social and athletic program that includes several dances and parties during the year, fun with the nurses' choir, play with a softball team during the summer and year-round use of local Y facilities.

Board of Governors Spent Years Of Planning Before Building Began

Years of planning were necessary before the actual construction could begin on the new hospital wing.

Early in 1953 the hospital board, being aware of the need for greater accommodation, felt that something should be done. The board members decided to have a 100-bed addition erected.

Plans were drawn up and the board carefully studied them until the middle of 1954 before arriving at a final decision. Many things had to be taken into consideration, chiefly future expansion. It was necessary to acquire the greatest value with the money available. The wing would have to take care of the needs of the hospital for many years. It would also have to be one which could be expanded in the future with the least amount of confusion and expense.

At least 15 plans for this addition were received and studied. One such plan included having the new wing extend in the front from the north wing, running due east. But this plan proved too costly and difficult to build. It would take the patient wing too close to the highway. This would result in discomfort to the patients who would hear traffic noise and feel the vibrations from passing vehicles.

The service departments were also taken into consideration. The kitchen had to be constructed large enough to serve 450 patients, which may be the number accommodated in the future. This department would also have to be located centrally for efficiency and economy.

The property committee, under the chairmanship of J. E. Buchan, spent nearly twenty months studying these various plans before finding a suitable one. In September, 1954, the committee decided on the final plan, which was the one followed.

The building then went out to tender and was awarded to the St. Lawrence Contracting Company. The actual construction was begun on October 10, 1954.

But no extensive construction work such as this could be undertaken without sufficient funds. It was in the spring of 1953 that two men promoted the idea of starting a fund-raising campaign for the new wing.

These public-spirited men, J. N. Yanover and A. M. Haig, eventually succeeded in having the hospital board consider bringing in the services of professional consultants to aid in the fund-raising.

After a few months of study the consultants recommended that Belleville could support a campaign of this magnitude for hospital purposes.

The formal organization for the campaign was soon started. Mr. Haig who was at that time Mayor of Belleville, was named chairman of this campaign. The money-raising plans were expanded, bringing the county and city together as a unit. Other members of the committee were then chosen.

From November until the end of that year the public campaign was in full swing. The medical staff was covered as a unit, as were industry and hospital employees. The general campaign was broken down into wards.

The only pitfall in the campaign was the fact that canvassers were not sufficiently briefed as to the best method of encouraging enthusiasm in the giver. However, the campaign was a success. The target was set at $1,250,000, including federal and provincial grants, as well as county and city grants. Up to the present time approximately $1,275,000 has been collected. And the money is still coming in from pledges which cover a five-year period.

ADMINISTRATOR

K. E. BOX

In August, 1952, Kenneth E. Box was named administrator of Belleville General Hospital. Born in Toronto, he received his education in England. Mr. Box entered hospital administration in Vancouver in 1946, becoming assistant administrator at North Vancouver General Hospital. During the years 1949 to 1952 he was assistant administrator and comptroller at the Greater Niagara General Hospital in Niagara Falls. Presently he is a director of the Ontario Hospital Association; president of Regional Hospital Council No. 9; nominee of the American College of Hospital Administrators; and Ontario alternate to the House of Delegates of the American Hospital Association. Mr. Box is married and the father of five children, two of whom attend Belleville Collegiate Institute.

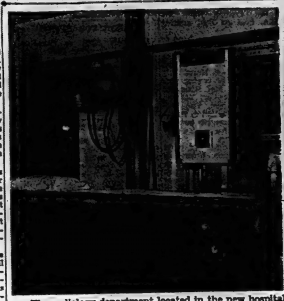
Competent Technical Staff and Modern Equipment Feature Radiology Department

Belleville General Hospital's radiology department will receive many improvements in the new wing.

The old department contained two diagnostic X-ray machines. Three will be used in the new hospital wing. One of the old machines has been replaced and a third powerful and modern one has been added.

There are three rooms for diagnostic radiology in the new wing. The new machine has greater electrical capacity, thus enabling it to take an X-ray in less time than was necessary with the older models.

This X-ray machine also has improvements leading to easier operation. It is equipped to make photo-timing exposures. This method works similar to a light meter for a camera. It determines when the correct amount of X-rays has penetrated the subject. It then terminates the exposure automatically.



The waiting room will be large and well furnished. There will also be increased space for clerical and filing operations. Therefore the number of patients which can be cared for adequately will be increased many fold.

The new wing has a film-viewing room where doctors can study their X-rays. There is also a filing room which will hold a two-year supply of X-ray films.

The technical staff numbers five at the present time. This includes the chief technician, two other registered technicians, one student technician, and a staff member who acts as porter, bringing patients in to be treated. He also does part of the dark room work.

With the additional equipment more work can be accomplished. This increased volume of work will bring about the need for another registered technician before too long. The department offers training for persons interested in the work of technicians. The hospital is now in a position to add one more student to its staff.

There is a definite shortage of X-ray technicians, especially in cities the size of Belleville. Girls interested in this type of job usually prefer moving to larger cities. The equipment used in the local hospital is now as modern as that found in any of the hospitals in larger cities.

The radiology department located in the new hospital wing will use this modern X-ray machine.

PLAN FOR A HOBBY

Persons who are approaching retirement can make that period of leisure more healthy physically and mentally if they plan substitute occupations for the old job. For ten years preceding retirement it is a good idea to experiment with hobbies.

Check Fire Alarm Box

Knowing exactly where the fire alarm box is situated in the new neighborhood may be helpful in case of emergency if the telephone in the home is out of order or unavailable in case of fire. The phone number of fire, police and the doctor should always be kept handy over the phone.

SAFETY IN IMMUNIZATION

Many small children have lost their lives through whooping cough. Those who recover are often left with some impairment of heart, lungs, ears or the brain. Immunization provides protection against this disease.

Bill Gault Again Heads Minor Hockey Will Probe Junior Club Possibility

Election of officers for the 1956-57 season of minor hockey took place last evening when the B.M.H.A. held its first meeting of the season.

A good crowd was on hand to re-elect Bill Gault as president. Vice-president is Mel Richards, secretary is R. W. Smith, and treasurer is William Hurst.

Conveners for the coming year will be: squirt, Mel Richards; peewee, Harry Rollins; bantam, Neal Hallen; midget, Tim Williams and juvenile, Bill J. Hurst.

The present executive has the power to add three more members of its choosing.

It was also decided last night that the Recreation Committee will be given more power in both minor hockey and baseball. They will act as a guiding body along with the executive, giving aid in any way possible.

A committee, headed by Mel Richards, will investigate the possibility of a junior "B" hockey team in the city. If a junior club is formed they will either compete in a league with Brockville, Queen's University and Royal Military College or attempt to enter a local league. Members of the committee are Richards, Don Foster, Ted Soule and George Dyer.

The association agreed to again hire a man to be in attendance in the dressing rooms during all minor hockey play. This plan worked satisfactorily last winter.

Minor hockey will again be played on Saturday mornings from 7.00 t o 11.00 a.m. but the usual Thursday night games have been changed. The squirt, midget and juveniles will have the ice on Wednesday nights this year instead of Thursday. Ice time on Wednesdays will be from 6.00 to 11.00 p.m.

Another meeting will be held in the near future to iron out problems, arrange sponsors and schedules and to name coaches.

French Doctor Criticizes Swims For Youngsters

MONTREAL (CP) — Marilyn Bell's swim across Lake Ontario was referred to Monday as "a shockingly dangerous task to im-pose on a little girl of sixteen."

R. Claridge Bert, director of the Institute of Physical Cul-ture of the University of Paris, said all over the world coaches and athletic directors call on young people for tasks beyond their strength.

Feats of endurance should not be asked of athletes "under about 22 or 23." Instead, he said, parents should concentrate more on games stressing agility and quickness of reaction.

Bert's report had discovered that fatigue in young persons produced toxins, which could af-fect the heart if they remained in the body, Dr. Bert said.

Yankees Buy Three Players

NEW YORK (AP)—The world champion New York Yankees on day purchased three minor league players, picking up pitcher Al Cicotte from Richmond and in-fielder Woody Held and catcher Darrell Johnson from Denver. Both are Yankee farm clubs.

Cicotte, 26-year-old right-hander, had a 15-13 record with the International League club this season, including 10 four-hitters. He had a 3.03 earned run aver-age, issued 151 hits in 262 innings and striking out 125.

Held, 24, was with the Yankees in the spring. He played short-stop, third base and centerfield for Denver, making the American Association all - star team. His bat-ting average was .276 and he hit 25 home runs and drove in 125.

Johnson, 28, formerly was with St. Louis Browns and Baltimore Orioles. He batted .319 at Denver and also was an all-star.

YANKS SELL CERV

NEW YORK (AP)—The world champion New York Yankees on Monday sold outfielder Bob Cerv to Kansas City Athletics and re-lief pitcher John (Sonny) Dixon and outfielder George Wilson to their Denver farm in the Amer-ican Association.

FETCHIK TAKES WESTERN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Husky Mike Fetchik captured the biggest prize of his six-year pro golfing career Monday when he fired a two-under-par 68 to win a four-way playoff in the Western Open golf tournament.

Archie Moore Meets Patterson On November 30

CHICAGO (AP) — Floyd Patterson and Archie Moore have agreed to meet in a 15-round heavyweight title fight in Chic-ago Stadium November 30, the In-ternational Boxing Club announced Monday.

The contract signing will be in Chicago next week and terms will be announced then, the IBC said.

Moore was knocked out in the 11th round of his heavyweight title attempt against champion Rocky Marciano, now retired, last September.

Patterson hasn't fought since June 8 when he defeated Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson in 12 rounds. He fractured a hand in that fight but has been working back into shape.

In New York, Jim Norris, IBC president, said negotiations with home television and theatre tele-vision are going on now. The fact that November 30 is a Fri-day, one of the two days a week in which the IBC restricts and re-telecasts network fights, indicates the 15-rounder will be telecast.

Norris said the fighters will split 50 per cent of the net re-ceipts and televised but no more than the percentages each will receive have not yet been decided.

The IBC said both already have started training. Patterson at Greenwood Lake, N.Y., and Moore at Lakeside, Calif.

Honolulu Bats Play 'Aloha' To Newcombe

HONOLULU (AP) — Brooklyn's Don Newcombe had no better luck Monday night against Hawaii Red Sox than he did against New York Yankees.

The semipro Red Sox collected three runs against him on a double, a single and a homer in the second inning of a game they lost to the Dodgers' ace, 11-5 in nine innings.

Newcombe left the game trail-ing after four innings. Roger Craig and Ed Roebuck finished, allow-ing no hits. The Yankees drove Newcombe from the mound twice in the world series.

A'S BUY FLOWERS

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City Athletics announced Monday purchase of relief pitcher Ben Flowers from Philadelphia Phil-lies for "slightly in excess" of the $10,000 waiver price.

AT THE BELLE — Tenderfoot Sheriff Jerry Lewis and his two-gun deputy Dean Martin, bungle hilariously in and out of gun fights, bank robberies, saloon brawls and dynamite plots in the tough wild wooley West Technicolor comedy, "Pardners", co-starring Lori Nelson, Jeff Morrow. The Paramount VistaVision comedy is showing tonight for the last time at Belle.

Phil Silvers Making Good In Sophomore Year of TV

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Phil Silvers, well launched on his sophomore year of television on CBS-TV (Tuesdays 7 p.m. EST) is fulfill-ing the promise he showed as a freshman.

Under the aegis of writer Nat Hiken, Silvers refused to become stereotyped in what easily could be the most monotonous comedy routine conceivable: An army Sgt. and his men.

Some viewers insist that the Phil Silvers show is at its best when Bilko and his platoon are on the post in Fort Baxter, But the racks life can pall on a TV audi-ence as much as on a soldier. So Silvers wisely shifts his scenes and situations.

Last Tuesday, for example, brought a delightful situation based on the efforts of Bilko and a couple of buddies to obtain tick-ets to that most publicized and soldout of Broadway shows, My Fair Lady. In effective counter-point to the development of the My Fair Lady plot, which was telephoned to Bilko from time to time by a pal in the theatre box office, our favorite sergeant de-veloped his own Pygmalion in the person of a young Italian girl.

Coincidentally, five TV comedi-ans have tried their hands in the last three weeks at the how-hard-to-get - Broadway-tickets routine. Only Silvers succeeded in achiev-ing good comedy from the situa-tion.

We've tried to give Noah's Ark (NBC-TV Tuesdays 7:30 p.m. EST) time to float for a while. But this Jack Webb production is still taking badly and should be beached for repairs. What's wrong?

Well, the situation of a good veterinarian who does good things for a fatuous group of friends in the an-imal kingdom is original and should hold interest. But it runs across one viewer's screen as a kind of Dr. Kildare. Medical and cat transplant operation performed on a money last week was about as funny as a hernia. We wished to see after eating a hearty din-ner.

The clipped dialogue delivery of the actors, so effective on Drag-net, is jarring.

Chicubs Deal With 'Angels'

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Chicago Cubs, have bought pitcher Gene Fodge and two outfielders from the Los Angeles Angels of the Pacific Coast League.

Fodge won 13 and lost 7 this year. Leaving with him will be Jim Bolger, who batted .328, hit 28 homers and batted in 147 runs and Bob Speake, who also hit 28 homers and batted in 81 runs with a .300 average.

Going to the Angels in the deal are Cubs shortstop Richie Myers and outfielder - first baseman Frank Kellert.

Dana Wynter Will Give Up Career to Enjoy Home Life

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — As if, things aren't tough enough for the movies—now it appears that Dana Wynter is serious about ending her film career.

It would be pity. Dana's de-fection would mark the second time in a year that Hollywood has lost out to matrimony with a bright and beautiful new star. The other: Grace Kelly.

Dana (pronounced Dahna) is the bride of Hollywood lawyer Greg Bautzer. Because of him, she is willing to give up a career that brought her stardom with her first movie.

"I have to face the fact that being married and having a ca-reer just doesn't work out," she reasoned between takes of "Some-thing of Value."

"Take last night, for example. We had guests for dinner, and I arrived home 10 minutes before they did. I was up late, then had an early call at the studio.

NOT FAIR

"I told Greg when we were married that I was willing to give up my career. He was very nice about it and told me to do what I thought was best. I do feel that it's not fair to him to try to com-bine career with marriage.

"I suppose part of the trouble is that I am fundamentally old-fash-ioned. My career doesn't mean that much to me; I'd be just as happy not to work.

"What I would like to do is an occasional picture — one that really excites me. The only sub-ject like that I know of now is The Nun's Story. It is a fabulous story and I would love to do it."

Dana is now doing a film that is close to her — Something of Value. It concerns the efforts to combat the Mau Mau in Kenya, Africa, and Dana was reared in Rhodesia, in Southern Africa. Her parents still live there, her father being a noted surgeon.

"I think this picture can do a lot of good in furthering under-standing of Africa and African problems," she remarked. "It does a much more thorough job in that regard than did the book."

AT THE PARK — Carol Channing, Broadway's favorite comedienne, stars in her screen debut in "Five Traveling Salesmen", current feature at the Park Theatre. Also starring are Rhonda Fleming and Wendell Corey in a crackling suspense mystery "Gun Glory". Starting Thursday are Tom Conway and Delphi Lawrence. Both hits are first showings.

At The McCarthy
It's Suspense all the way in "Assassin"
"The Assassin," now at the Ode-on McCarthy Theatre through United Artists release, is a sus-pense film in the true sense of the word. First, it was shot on loca-tion in Venice, that colorful city where twisting canals and old, castle-like homes make it a per-fect background for mystery. Sec-ondly, amateur director of suspense films, Ralph Thomas, who last year directed "The Clouded Yel-low" which was hailed by public and critic alike as one of the best of its type, directed "The Assassin." And to top it all, noted mystery novelist Victor Canning, who wrote "The Golden Salamander" and other famous mysteries, adapt-ed the screenplay from his novel "The Venetian Bird."
Richard Todd and lovely Eva Bartok are starred in the film which tells the story of a danger-ous mission in the romantic Italian city.
Second action hit is the action-packed thriller "Lost" in color and featuring David Farrar and Julia Arnall.

Minister Opens Cold Storage Plant, Office

TORONTO (CP) — Agriculture Minister Goodfellow of Ontario Monday asked farmers for suggestions on the strengthening of the farm marketing branch.

Speaking at the official opening of the United Co-Operatives' new $800,000 office and cold storage plant in suburban Weston, Mr. Goodfellow said he feels farmers should do their own marketing, with support, rather than aid, from the government.

"This building," he said, "is an example of what people can do for themselves through joint effort, and it is the type of thing we like to see.

"It is my ambition to assist you, through legislation as much as I can, to do the job for yourselves."

Mr. Goodfellow said co-operatives "have rendered dividends which can never be entered in a balance sheet."

Hugh M. Bailey, general manager of United Co-operatives of Ontario, said the co-op has done more than $40,000,000 in business this year.

'Alfalfa' Murray Ends Stormy Life

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, former governor of Oklahoma, died quietly Monday, ending 86 years of a stormy and colorful life.

Murray, ninth governor of the state, died in a room. Two of his sons, a grandson and granddaughter were at his bedside in a hospital here.

Gruff and frank, the mustachioed Alfalfa Bill was a prominent figure in both state and national politics during his four-year term as governor.

What he could not win by words he often attained by sheer force of will. On an average of every 45 days during his Democratic administration, which began in 1931, he ordered out the national guard.

In later years he retired and wrote several books, before becoming deaf and blind.

Little Benny's Notebook

Ma was reeding her new mistery novel from the library, and I said, Hay ma, is every kind of work respectable as long as it's honest?

Certainly, and I hope you'll never think otherwise in this grate free country where everybody is born equal, no matter what happens later, ma said, and I said, Well how about prizefighting?

Well, I wouldn't call it an elegant profession, with its collyflower ears and tomato noses, but a person shouldn't look at the finger of scorn pointed at him if he doesn't know any other way to make his living, ma said, and I said, what about working down a sewer, ma?

Goodness, I dont imagine anybody has to do that as a steady profession, although naturally if a sewer needs attention, there must be some very respectable men who specialize in that work, ma said, and before ere, ma, I've been known to come out. Which would you rather see me be, ma, a prizefighter or a sewer expert? I said.

I'd rather not see you be either one for land sakes, I said. You're enjoying the advantage of a good education, and I hope you'll have the ambition to make elevating use of it, she said, and I said, Do you mean elevating like working in an elevator and boosting yourself up talktoe poles with everybody watching you?

Oh go out and play and stay out till I call you for a long, long longer, ma said.

Probably morning she was tired of the subject and preferred her mistery book.

Lloyd Urges Egypt Make Suez Proposals

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd has called on Egypt again to bring out proposals of her own that might boost chances of a peaceful Suez Canal settlement.

In a statement Monday night to reporters before flying back to London from a Big Three Middle East security Council session on the Suez crisis, Lloyd voiced hope Egypt would agree to a settlement guaranteeing free use of the canal to all nations.

"Should they so respond," Lloyd said, "it may be possible to make further progress toward a peaceful settlement."

The British-French demand for Security Council endorsement of proposals for international control of the waterway—first asked by 18 nations including Canada at a meeting in London last August—was killed by a Soviet veto in the council.

The British-French resolution also urged that Egypt submit proposals of her own for the negotiation of the dispute.

Egypt, repeatedly accused Britain's Prime Minister Eden of throwing roadblocks in the path of Suez negotiations.

Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi cited Eden's statement to the annual Conservative party conference that Britain would not rule out the use of force in the canal dispute.

In a letter to the Security Council, Fawzi said it was unfortunate Eden had made the statement "just as the council was approving a set of six principles as a basis for reaching a settlement of the Suez issue.

Trapped Miners Found Alive in Flooded Mine

JHARIA, India (Reuters) — Seven trapped miners lived for nearly three weeks in an air pocket in a flooded mine, catching fish and eating them raw, it was revealed Monday.

The miners, contractors and pals, were found up to their necks in water by rescue search teams looking for 39 missing men. All had been given up for drowned. The government-owned coal mine of mines said the men were saved by a high-pressure air pocket formed inside the flooded mine.

After their rescue, the men were admitted to hospital where the condition of all but one was reported to be satisfactory.

Survey Points To GOP Victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — Political soundings from five of six "bellwether" counties indicate a republican victory for Senator Eisenhower.

These votes are among eight counties scattered across the U.S., which have voted for the winner in every presidential election for more than 50 years, most of them since W. J. Bryan and McKinley waged president in 1896.

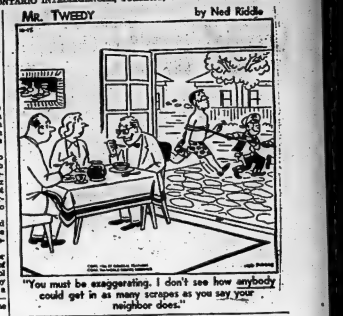
In one county a close vote was predicted, and three out of five newspaper editors — and political leaders interviewed there agreed that Democrat Adlai Stevenson would carry it. No pulse-taking was done in the other two counties.

Veteran Newsman Dies in Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP) — Frank Jerome Walker, 68, veteran newspaperman of 50 years on Ontario and United States newspapers, died Monday night after a long illness. He was 64.

After the last year a member of the Hamilton Spectator editorial staff, he began his career with the Toronto Daily Record and worked at various times with the Toronto Star, Montreal Gazette and the New York World-Telegram and Sun.

In 1950 he became editor of the weekly Hamilton News, and remained with that paper for a short time after it merged with the Spectator as financial editor before it became a daily in 1954.



Mr. Teahan was interested in horse-racing and his brother Fred was a ranking jockey in the United States over many years.

Surviving are his widow and a daughter.

Secret Police Foil Attempt To Seize Plane

BUDAPEST (AP) — Hungary's Communist government says two of its secret policemen foiled an attempt by four heavily armed men to seize a Hungarian airliner in flight and head it to West Germany.

In a bloody fight above the clouds, the police officers shot one of the plotters dead and wounded another. The other two surrendered, the Hungarian interior ministry said.

The ministry gave this account of the incident:

Police arrested a confederate of the four and learned of the plot shortly before the plane left Budapest airport Monday. The airliner, bound for the Hungarian town of Zalaegerszeg, stopped at Szombathely en route and four armed plainclothes men got aboard.

The policemen opened fire when the four, brandishing submachine guns, pistols and other weapons, tried to force the pilot to change course.

The plane returned to Szombathely. The dead man was identified as Istvan Kutasi.

Seven Hungarians succeeded in a similar attempt last July 14. After subduing the Communist police and a secret policeman aboard a Hungarian state airliner with makeshift clubs, they flew the plane to Ingolstadt, Germany.

Two Constables Are Acquitted Of Assault

TORONTO (CP) — Two police constables, William Wilson, 23, and Luke Scott, 32, were acquitted Monday of charges of assault occasioning bodily harm and common assault, before Mr. Henderson Jr. of nearby Thornhill.

Henderson testified the officers had dragged him across a street and beaten his hands with their nightsticks after arresting him at a midtown tavern, July 19. He said both his thumbs had been fractured.

Magistrate W. W. McKeown said the officers had reasonable grounds to arrest Henderson on a drunk charge, and that the court had no idea how his thumbs had been dislocated.

Dr. Leo Mahoney, who treated Henderson, said the man had told him he injured his thumbs while in baseball bat. The doctor said both thumbs were dislocated," one requiring surgery.

AUSSIE STRIKE OFF

PERTH, Australia (Reuters)—Plans for 24-hour strike by more than 1,000,000 workers in Australia Nov. 12 collapsed Monday when the Western Australian Labor party withdrew its support. The work stoppage was to have taken place a week before the Duke of Edinburgh is due to open the Olympic Games in Melbourne.

Provincial Aid 10 Times Greater Than in 1944

TORONTO (CP)—"More than 40 cents of every dollar of provincial revenue goes to assist the municipalities and local taxpayers in one way or another," Premier Frost said Monday night.

"Our assistance to the municipalities and local taxpayers is 10 times greater than it was . . . 13 years ago. Last year about $182,200,000 was paid in one form or another to the municipalities."

Premier Frost spoke in a provincial affairs broadcast over the CBC. Text of the address was released to the press in advance of delivery.

He criticized the federal government's formula for financial assistance to the provinces, saying it is "not realistic in the face of what it costs Ontario to provide necessary needs."

"Under it, more than $155,000,000 will be distributed to the other provinces. Of this amount Ontario receives nothing, but she has to service the industry which helps to produce this money. . . .

"We contract at 5½ per cent earning about half of the federal government's direct tax revenues. We have gladly assumed great burdens, year by year that it is fair that our problem should be taken into account as well. It is simply not good enough that this province and its municipalities should be restricted and placed in a position of imposing types of taxation which are not economic."

Arrest Two More In Theatre Holdup

BRANTFORD (CP)—City police Monday night arrested two more men in connection with a Saturday night movie theatre holdup in which two masked gunmen terrorized patrons with $1,300 after forcing manager Jack Steele to open the safe.

No charges have been laid yet against the suspects. It was expected they will appear in court Wednesday.

Edward Sarka, 26, of Woodstock who was arrested Sunday, was arraigned Monday on a charge of armed robbery. He was remanded without plea, with bail set at $2,000.

No Intention Of Quitting

PORT STANLEY, Ont. (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wemple rescued from lake Erie Sunday night after engine failure stranded their 30-foot boat several hours, said Monday they have no intention of quitting a year-round adventure-by-trip which they expect to take five years.

After engine repairs youthful Mr. and Mrs. Jack Weston expect to cross the lake to Buffalo and to reach Florida via the Erie Canal and coastal waterways.

Their 30-foot sloop is built of plywood and fibreglass and carries everything in a ½ ton equipment. There also is a dog and cat aboard.

Steel Company Places Order For Newfie Ore

HAMILTON (CP) — A 25-year agreement for the annual purchase of up to 2,000,000 tons of Newfoundland iron ore was announced Monday by H. G. Hilton, president of the Steel Company of Canada Ltd.

The lease was obtained from Canadian Javelin Ltd., by Picklands Mather and Company of Cleveland on behalf of itself and the Steel Company of Canada.

The deal must still be approved by the Newfoundland government which has granted concessions in Javelin over 4,700 square miles in west-central Labrador.

Mr. Hilton said the agreement should add a large tonnage of desirable iron ore to reserves already held by his firm.

No price was mentioned in the announcement.

Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland Monday night said he was gratified by the announcement.

Mr. Smallwood said in a statement that preliminary figuring "places a minimum revenue value of some $100,000,000 on this latest ore purchase agreement and a minimum of $200,000,000 in royalties to Javelin as mining and development proceeds in the newly leased areas.

"Canadian Javelin has succeeded in the initial plant capacity of 6,000,000 tons a year," the statement said. "Previous ore sales have been made in the United Kingdom and Germany for the balance of capacity. I am informed by Canadian Javelin officials that the total value of the contracts over the next 15 years is over $800,000,000. . . .

"As to the future, I am told that new and major steel interests are soon to enter the Labrador picture."

West Solidly For Diefenbaker Says George Hees

WINNIPEG (CP)—George Hees, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Toronto Broadview, said Monday Western Canada is solidly behind John Diefenbaker as the next leader of the party.

In an interview Mr. Hees said he found wide support for Mr. Diefenbaker and the Conservative party while touring the West.

Mr. Hees, once mentioned as a possible successor to retiring leader George Drew, withdrew in favo- of Mr. Diefenbaker.

Asked to comment on reports of a "deal" between himself and Mr. Diefenbaker, he said: "There has been no deal of any kind made between Mr. Diefenbaker and myself.

"I decided to support him for the leadership because I believe he is the man who can unify the party and inspire the kind of team effort needed to achieve success at the next election and in the years ahead."

The Conservatives will meet in Ottawa Dec. 10 to choose a new leader.

Canadians Never Had It So Good Says Chamber of Commerce Head

QUEBEC (CP) — Canadians have never had it so good, J. G. Crean of Toronto, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said today in an address to the chamber's annual meeting.

Canadians, he stated, will earn more, spend more and save more money than ever before and, with expanding population and industry, a bright future over the next few decades is certainly indicated.

All, this, however, would not happen automatically—and if the Canada was to be improved and prosperity enhanced, time and effort must be given to sound thinking and dynamic action.

There is said Mr. Crean, a challenge in prosperity, and he added:

"If we forget that prosperity can bring complacency and apathy; that a great measure of our prosperity is selling in world markets and that we can price ourselves out of them; or if we forget during the present battle of ideologies that our prosperity is based on our fundamental spiritual faith and morals, then, as business leaders, we will not be discharging our responsibility to the business community and Canadians at large."

Mr. Crean listed some problems he said face Canadians:

The challenge of socialism and its encroachments on individual liberties; the danger of inflation, or higher prices; the problems of education and economic understanding; and the maintenance and strengthening of Canada's world trading position.

Mr. Crean said one problem is the growth of government and the dangers of the "slippery slide" to socialism.

"As a chamber we believe that the basic aim of public policy should be the maintenance of personal freedom; that the individual should be able to spend his dollar where, when and when he likes."

Stevenson Says Chance to End Deadlock Ignored

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adlai Stevenson, pushing his criticism of the Eisenhower government's atomic weapon policy, says the president is brushing aside a chance to end the "deadly deadlock" with Russia in a bomb race that may destroy the world.

Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee for the 1956 U.S. election, was defending Monday night his proposal that the U.S. take the lead in halting H bomb tests.

Speaking at Chicago in a country - wide radio - television broadcast, Stevenson said he found "most disturbing" President Eisenhower's statement that Eisenhower had spoken the "last word" on his position. Eisenhower has said such tests cannot be abandoned because Russia might not honor any agreement to end them.

Meanwhile, the president, accompanied by Mrs. Eisenhower, takes off today on a five-day vote-seeking foray which will include California—one of the major battlegrounds of the campaign.

FIRST ORDER.

Stevenson pledged that if he is elected president he will "count it about the first order of business" to get together with Russia and Britain on banning further explosions of nuclear super-weapons.

Police Probing Legality of Trading Stamps

OTTAWA (CP) — Authorities here say the capital may have been picked as a testing ground for the legality of trading stamps.

The use of trading stamps as a sales promotion plan was started by a large chain store here about a year ago. Similar schemes now are being used by two other large supermarkets here.

It is believed that Ottawa is so far the only city where the trading stamp scheme is being used on a wide scale. Similar schemes, however, have been started in the United States.

Crown attorney Raoul Mercier, QC, today said city police are investigating the legality of issuing trading stamps.

"Action would be taken if and when the evidence indicated warrants it," Mr. Mercier said.

Under the present sales promotion plan here, trading stamps are issued free, or sold to customers with their purchases, and may be redeemed for various articles.

Hees Proposes 7-Point Program To Help Country

PORTAGE la PRAIRIE, Man. (CP)—A seven-point program to speed Canada's industrial development was proposed here Monday night by George Hees, member of Parliament for Toronto Broadview and past president of the National Progressive Conservative Association.

In an address to the Portage-Neepawa Progressive Conservative Association, Mr. Hees said the new jobs created by the expansion would provide employment for "all Canadians who wish to work." Jobs that could not be filled from domestic sources would have to be supplied through immigration.

Mr. Hees recommended establishment of a Canadian Industrial Development Board, composed of top-flight personnel who would work with the provinces and municipalities "to see that the approach to potential manufacturing industry will be so thorough and well directed that many new industries will be persuaded to establish plants in all of our provinces."

In addition to concessions which the provincial and municipal governments can be persuaded to put forward, Mr. Hees said the federal government can also offer inducements in seven forms:

1. A graduated corporation income tax spread over the period a new industry requires to "get on its feet."

2. A material reduction in sales and excise taxes without loss of tax revenue.

3. A "substantial!" reduction in income tax rates, which would allow wage-earners to spend more of their incomes, increasing demand for goods and services and bringing a higher rate of employment.

4. A graduated corporation tax on profits between $80,000 and $20,000 which would encourage small industries to expand.

5. Help industry to improve its competitive position through expanded research by allowing full tax deductions for all expenditures on research.

6. Allow accelerated depreciation of plant and equipment to permit new industries quicker write-off of their investments.

7. Introduction of a policy of public investment to assist provinces to develop power and other natural resources.

Text of his speech was released to the press in advance of delivery.

Palace Scoffs At Suggestion

LONDON (CP) — Buckingham Palace scoffed Monday at the idea that there may be more in Prince Charles' hair style than meets the eye.

Recent photographs showing the heir apparent with his forehead almost completely obliterated by thick brown hair caused some comment. Published reports, without saying so directly, left an implication that the hair style might have a special purpose, as concealing a possible disfigurement.

A Buckingham Palace spokesman ridiculed the idea.

"Nonsense," she said. "You can see for yourself by looking at some of the photographs of the prince, in which his hair has been blown by the wind, revealing a completely normal forehead underneath."

Bread Price Increased

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Two major bread companies now have increased the price of the 1½ pound loaf by one cent to 21 cents.

Wonder Bakeries announced its increase in effect today, following Canada Bread's similar rise in price which was in effect Monday.

Officials gave mounting production costs as the reason.

HIT TRADING STAMPS

TORONTO (CP) — Trading stamps and the problem of uniform closing hours throughout Ontario, come under fire today at the annual meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, Ontario branch. The association, made up of independent merchants, has opposed trading stamp plans being introduced into Canada by some major chain store operators.

The bright idea of a New York Fire Commissioner gives us an idea, too. He liked his dress cap; disliked the reputation fire helmet — but he recognized the ever-present danger of falling debris. So he simply had an inner shield of aluminum made and fitted into the cap.

And that's where our idea comes in: A lightweight aluminum shield that would fit under a wayward hat-band's fedora and save him many a stiff abrasion when he sneaked in late at night to a rolling-pin reception by his little woman.

Ah! aluminum, the useful metal!

Tito Takes Issue With Some Views Of Eisenhower

Yugoslavs Voice Gratitude For Past Aid, Want Change

Lingerie Most Often Stolen Says Detective

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Women's nightgowns, slips, panties and hose are more frequently stolen than any other items in a store, a private detective reports.

And the odds are almost 5 to 1 that the thief will work at the shop, Keith Rogers, head of a Miami detective agency, said Tuesday at a convention of the Council of International Investigators.

"Lingerie accounts for 41.8 per cent of all thefts," Rogers said.

Intercontinental Missiles Can Be Made Accurate

WINNIPEG (CP) — Intercontinental ballistic missiles, the atomic weapon of the future, can be given pinpoint accuracy within a few years, the head of a Canadian electronics company said today.

R. R. Patrick of Montreal, president of Canadian Aviation Electronics Ltd., told a Canadian Club audience that accurate guidance is the major problem in development of the ballistic type of missile.

"An error of only one degree in guidance at 5,000 miles works out to an 80-mile miss," he said. "Improved electronic techniques will reduce this error to pinpoint accuracy over the next few years."

He also said it would cost Canada probably $2,000,000,000 during the next 10 years for an automatic control system in its interior radar warning systems with interceptor aircraft and guided-missiles.

AUTOMATIC WATCH

Mr. Patrick referred to the control system as "SAGE" — semi-automatic ground environment. Instead of sending manpower to watch radar screens and direct the interception of attacking aircraft or missiles, it would depend on automatic radar watchers, feeding information to a computer system which would control interceptor operations.

The SAGE has said it is studying the system. No decision has yet been made, he added with it.

Mr. Patrick said that besides the $2,000,000,000 cost of the Canadian installation, the United States probably will commit from $8,000,000,000 to $10,000,000,000 for the program within a 10-year period.

His statements were contained in the text of a speech issued to the press before delivery.

TO EXECUTE REDS

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Four members of the Tudeh (Communist) party were condemned to death by a military tribunal last week, the military prosecutor disclosed. They are Nader Shahrokhi, leader of the Tudeh youth organization; oil engineer Ghulam Yahya Lahouti; Parjami, veteran Communist, and Helal Mohammadi, an officer in the Red "Democratic Army of Azerbaijan" in 1945-46.

The disturbance will be followed by much cooler weather and this morning it appears that this change will occur in Ontario on Saturday.

BELGRADE (Reuters) — Yugoslavia announced today that certain statements made by President Eisenhower on American aid for President Tito's government are "unacceptable."

At the same time, Yugoslavia revealed it has offered to purchase American agricultural surpluses under long-term credits repayable in dollars or corresponding currency instead of the present two-year aid system.

Tito's views were contained in a statement giving "first impressions" on Eisenhower's letter to Congress Monday. This recommended continued economic aid to Yugoslavia but holding back heavy military supplies including 200 jet planes.

The determining question was whether Tito had maintained his independence from Russia in his talks with Soviet leaders earlier this month.

Today's statement expressed gratitude for the aid given to Yugoslavia since 1949 and for Eisenhower's decision to continue it.

NOT NECESSARY

"However, it is not clear to us why certain formulations were incorporated in the letter to Congress) and some of them were unacceptable," the state department said.

The statement complained at Eisenhower's assertion that aid was being continued to preserve Yugoslavia's independence from Russia.

It said: "We consider that there is no threat to the independence of Yugoslavia on the part of the Soviet Union."

The statement said that if the U.S. suspends its military aid to Yugoslavia, it will not influence the good relations between the countries. Except for some delivery of spare parts, military aid "has practically ended in fact."

On the issue of economic aid, Tito has publicly stated he prefers the Soviet system of 10-year credits at two per-cent interest to receiving year-to-year aid.

SEVEN PROVINCES ACCEPT FORMULA TO PAY FOR ROAD

Highway Now Paved or Graded for 3,383 Miles

OTTAWA (CP)—A new federal formula covering construction of 10,500 miles of trans-Canada highway costs with the provinces but boosting the federal share to 90 per cent for what have been hard-surfaced by seven provincial governments.

Through it federal authorities hope to see the road completed within 10 years. Present federal agreements run out. The highway, begun in 1950 with the 50-50 division, now is either graded or paved for 3,383 miles of its total 4,289-mile length.

Federal Works Minister Winters has disclosed that Nova Scotia is the latest province to agree to the new formula proposed by him at an Ottawa conference last November. Of the participating provinces, Quebec has never entered into agreements—this leaves only Newfoundland and British Columbia to be dealt with.

EXPECTED TO SIGN

These two provinces, which have been busy with provincial elections, are expected to sign up before Dec. 1 and the deadline is exactly Dec. 3 which provided only for a straight 50-50 split of costs.

The 90-per-cent federal contribution would be paid in annual lump-sum gaps up to a maximum of 10 per cent of the total federal-provincial share within a given province. The federal government would pay 90 per cent of the first $150,000,000 the maximum it agrees to spend on the road in this extra cost.

Mr. Winters told the November conference that the prime objective of the federal offer was to make a paved highway from coast to coast to coast by March 1960. If there was still work to be done then the job would have to be "carried out under some other arrangement."

Up to last Aug. 31 a total 1,901 miles of the Trans-Canada had been paved and 1,382 miles paved to the 24-foot-wide standard prescribed by the agreement and up to Oct. 6 the provinces had committed to build $290,783,000 in highway work of which the federal share was $147,672,800.

Bowmanville Woman and 30 Children Leave for Appearance on TV Show

BOWMANVILLE (CP) — Mrs. Beth Mason Whyte has been busy with 30 of her foster children, bound for New York and an appearance on a national network television program.

The group left in a string of autos for Toronto, where it was due to take off by chartered plane at 1 p.m. Mrs. Whyte and her children are scheduled to appear on a TV panel show tonight and return to Canada Thursday evening.

The Toronto party was to be joined by a group of newspaper, radio and television reporters, covering the trip.

Mrs. Whyte runs a private home for children from broken families on a 50-acre farm at Bowmanville, near Oshawa. She has about 60 children under her care.

The home, in operation seven years, has had to refuse children at some time because of lack of space and facilities and because the accidental death and out-of-wedlock baby who choked on food Aug. 5.

In recent weeks, Mrs. Whyte has received numerous offers of help from individuals, some of whom moved into the home to aid in the care of children, and organizations. Volunteer workers have built a dormitory for the children and a second is under construction.

Ditched Plane's Pilot Says Job Had to Be Done or Else

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—"With the help of God, we knew we were going to get through all right," Mrs. Jane Gordon said Tuesday night on a radio broadcast from the coast guard cutter Pontchartrain.

Mrs. Gordon, of Silver Springs, Md., was one of the 31 persons—passengers and crew members—on the Pan American Stratocruiser which ditched in mid-Pacific Tuesday.

"As she said everyone was 'very nervous, inwardly'. At the beginning of the five hours the crippled airliner circled over the ocean waiting for dawn to ditch beside the cutter.

Pan Capt. Richard Ogg, the pilot, it was a case of having "a certain job to do, and it had to be done just right, or else."

Ogg also talked on a ship-to-shore broadcast set up by the coast guard so that press and radio might carry the story of the dramatic rescue.

Cmdr. William E. Earle, captain of the Pontchartrain who waited out the hours hunting that part of the final success of the operation, congratulated with his ship, expressed the "greatest pride" in the task. Every one of the 31 persons on the plane was put aboard the cutter within 15 minutes after Ogg set his plane on the Pacific 1,045 miles from San Francisco.

Commander Earle particularly praised machinists mate Robert Arnold and Ben Angeles. After the plane's personnel had been picked up from the life rafts Christian entered the sinking ship to be sure that no one was left behind.

The ditching operation took place on a moonlit night in a calm Southern Seas laid down by the cutter. The foam helped smooth the sea, gave the pilot a better sighting strip on which to land and reduced fire hazard. As an additional precaution, flight engineer Frank Garcia flooded the gas inboard wing compartments, hoisting the engines still operating, and shutting them off just at the moment of landing.

The plane's two outboard engines failed just after the Stratocruiser passed over the Pontchartrain on duty at Station No. 7—weather as a weather observation ship. The plane had passed "the point of no return" at 2,400 miles flight from Honolulu to San Francisco.

"We had mechanical difficulties," Ogg explained, "and we had to decide when we had low air speed and high fuel consumption. There were three alternatives. We had to ditch."

Both Ogg and Earle praised the spirit of the passengers. Ogg reported there was "no panic." The entire operation of abandoning the plane took only five minutes.

"We have the situation well in hand, the coast guard is ready for us," Ogg radioed. He also assured his passengers before ditching.

Ben-Gurion Claims Nasser Greatest Danger to Israel

JERUSALEM (AP) — Premier Ben-Gurion said today the greatest danger facing Israel is a possible attack by the "Fascist dictator of Egypt."

Winding up a three-day foreign policy debate in the Israeli parliament, the 70-year-old government chief said developments of the last two days in the bitter Israel-Jordan border conflict appeared to overstate the danger against " premature optimism."

Ben-Gurion said of Egypt's President Nasser:

"We must know who is our most dangerous enemy. He is not Jordan's King Hussein but the Egyptian dictator who rules his country by force, who wants to rule all Arab countries by force and who does not hide his intention to destroy Israel by force."

Ben-Gurion repeated his warning that Israel reserves freedom of action if Israel's security is endangered. Such a step, he maintained, would violate the status quo set by the Israel-Jordan armistice of 1949.

"If we are attacked, we will take the fight over to the other side," he said.

Israel has denied Arab charges she is massing troops on Jordan's border and said the accusation is a screen to mask Jordan's own military activities.

A Jordan foreign ministry spokesman first made the charge in Amman, declaring that Israel was concentrating her forces on the Jordan border with "aggressive intentions."

Under Syrian Foreign Minister Salah Bitar called together the Western Big Three ambassadors in Damascus and told them Syria considered the reported Eastern peace.

Bitar told the envoys he hopes the Big Three will make a stand "which saves the Middle East from the new explosion, and makes Israel refrain from carrying out further peace-endangering measures."

Earlier Jordan spokesman said his country will invoke both British and Iraqi aid promised under the treaties if Israel opens up big frontier attack.

He said Jordan has no call in British and Iraqi help would be under the 1948 Anglo-Jordan defence treaty and the 1955 pact and assistance agreement with Iraq.

In London, a foreign office spokesman said last week Britain has told both Israel and Israel that Britain will act under the Tripartite Declaration to give British aid to the Arab kingdom in the event of aggression.

Plastic Surgeon Faces Death From Patient

EAST GRINSTEAD, England (Reuters) — Alfred Smith, 30, threatened to kill a plastic surgeon he pronged to repair the shape of his remodeled nose, a court was told Tuesday.

Dr. Frederick Moore said Smith visited his home late at night, poked a revolver in his ribs and threatened to pull the trigger. The surgeon said he succeeded in wrestling the gun from Smith by being fired.

Smith, who underwent surgery three years ago to improve the shape of his nose, was ordered to stand trial on charges of stealing a revolver and possessing a firearm with intent to endanger life."

Moore said that as far as he was concerned, the operation had been successful. He said his patient also liked the result at first but became dissatisfied with his new nose three months later.

Smirnov, 47, succeeds Valerian Zorin who was recalled in July and reappointed a deputy foreign minister.

Jury Returns Murder Count Against Scott

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A county grand jury returned a murder indictment Tuesday against L. Ewing Scott in connection with the disappearance of his wife, Evelyn Throsby Scott, a wealthy society matron.

Previously he had been charged only with grand theft and forgery in connection with the handling of his missing wife's estate. Before the indictment was returned Tuesday he was held to answer on $25,000 bail last May 31.

The wife has been missing since May 16, 1955.

Police and sheriff's police searched the Scott premises and found Mrs. Scott's glasses, comb, pens and spectacles near an incinerator. No other traces of her have been found.

Scott recently was reported seen in eastern Canada. Police believed at one time that he was trying to buy Matchless to catch a ship for Europe. However, Scott later was reported seen in the Bahamas.

Police said in Toronto Tuesday night they have found no evidence that Scott is in the East.

QUEEN OPENS BRITISH ATOMIC POWER STATION

'Stand at Threshold Of New Age,' She Says

CALDER HALL, Eng. (Reuters) Atomic power today poured into Britain's national electricity system for the first time in history seconds after Queen Elizabeth pulled a master switch at the world's first full-scale atomic power station here.

The power station, situated in the remote lake-and-mountain district of northwest England, cost more than £16,000,000 ($46,200,000) to build. It is the forerunner of a complete atomic power system for the nation.

Richard A. Butler, government leader in the House of Commons, told a distinguished gathering at the inaugural ceremony here that within 20 years every coal-fired station built in Britain would probably be atomic-powered. By 1975, he said, total atomic power output may double today's total conventional output in the country.

TAKES LEAD

With today's ceremony, Britain claimed the lead in the race to harness atomic energy for peaceful use. Nuclear energy, which slightly more than 11 years ago first shocked the world with its destructive force, is now aimed the task of bringing light and power to home and factory.

At present only a small output of electricity—about 10 megawatts —is coming from the new station, enough to light a city the size of Manchester, England's second largest next year. Of this about 75 megawatts will go into the national grid when the station is fully operational.

By 1958, when a second power station is opened at Calder Hall, these Britons will be doubled, with a total installed capacity of 184 megawatts, and about 130 megawatts going to meet the country's power needs.

The difference between Calder Hall and other power stations contribution to the grid is taken up in running the station itself and also the nearby Windscale plant where the spent uranium-fuel is processed to make plutonium for Britain's defence program.

MAKING HISTORY

Addressing the gathering of British and foreign scientists, diplomats and statesmen, the Queen said: "Here at Calder Hall, Calder Hall begins to flow into the national grid, all of us know that we are present at the making of history."

She referred to "a series of brilliant scientific discoveries" which "have brought us to the threshold of a new age," and said: "We have also known that that age will not be easy to reach or reached a point of crisis.

"Today we have a sense seeing a solution of that crisis as this new power which has previously been the chief deterrent to the weapon of destruction, is harnessed for the use of all for the common good of our communality.

"Future generations will judge us, as we judge those of history in which we use these limitless opportunities for the betterment of man given us and to which we have unlocked the door.

"Above all we know something new to offer to the peoples of the world—a source of power which in great areas of the world, who will continue to look to us for assistance and guidance as they have done in the past.

"This to me is the real importance of today's ceremony."

Egyptian Expects Talks With France, Britain Next Week

Exploratory Discussions About Suez Are Planned

CAIRO (AP) — President Nasser's chief political aide said today exploratory discussions with British and French envoys pulled a Suez settlement may begin next week, probably in Geneva.

Wang Cmdr. Ali Sabry, arriving home from last week's United Nations Security Council debate on the Suez issue, told Egyptian reporters the negotiations would be based on the six-point formula approved by the Security Council. Sabry insisted that "Egypt will not accept international control of the canal that President Nasser put over July 26.

Prime Minister Eden and French Premier Mollet, in a joint statement Tuesday night, asked Egypt again to put forth a plan for operation of the canal which would guarantee its free international use as effectively as before international control, demanded by Britain and France.

STICK TO DEMAND

Until Egypt proposes such an alternative, Eden and Mollet said their governments will stick to their demand for internationalization.

There was no immediate official reaction in Cairo to the Eden-Mollet statement.

Eden and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd flew to the French capital unexpectedly Tuesday for an evening of urgent consultations on the Suez dispute. Lloyd had just returned from the U.N. meeting in New York at which Russia vetoed the British-French request for council endorsement of their international plan.

The six principles cited by Sabry on which the council agreed say Suez settlement must conform to the unimpeded navigation through the canal for ships of all nations, and respect for Egypt's sovereignty.

TO TALK POLICY

The British-French meeting was called to discuss Suez policy in the light "of the Security Council debate," Eden said. He planned to fly back to London today.

The French National Assembly, meanwhile, was in the midst of a week's debate on government policy. The climax of the day's debate Tuesday some deputies denounced French failure to use force to back international control of the Suez canal. Others attacked the U.S. failure to back Britain and France in the threat of force.

Owner Sees Helpful Man Steal Car

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Mrs. Marion Speirs took her new car to an auto cleaners and it got stolen.

Only Mrs. Speirs wasn't in it.

When she reported the auto theft, Mrs. Speirs met a helpful gentleman who said:

"You're at the wrong driveway. This is the exit, not the entrance. Let me drive it up to the entrance for you."

Mrs. Speirs got out and the man left behind the wheel.

"My, this is a nice car," he said as he drove off. And that was the last Mrs. Speirs reported to police that her car had been stolen.

Marilyn Monroe and Charlie Chaplin Londoners' Ideal Comedy Team

LONDON (CP)—It had to happen. The Times has lost its heart to Marilyn Monroe.

After weeks of stony silence, the lofty newspaper joins its contemporaries and admits that Marilyn is a talented comedienne.

In fact, it adds, she would have made a great co-star for Charlie Chaplin.

The eulogy occurs in a review of Marilyn's latest movie, The Sleeping Prince, which has its London premiere Thursday.

"There is about her a waif-like quality, an underlying note of pathos, which can be strangely moving. What a partner she would have made for Charlie Chaplin in his heyday!"

The reviewer reflects an abrupt change of heart. When the movie first opened The Times steadfastly ignored the clamor. Later, it referred to her simply as "her married name, "Mrs. Arthur Miller."

30 Hound Pups Are Too Much

WEST POINT, Miss. (AP)—Kale, a three-year-old hound, astonished owner J. A. Phelps by producing a litter of 13 pups last Nov. 17.

Then it astonished Phelps again with a litter of 13 Oct. 13. Normal litters average seven or eight.

"Thank goodness it wasn't the 30th in the month," Phelps' wife said.

Kiwanians Urged To Assist in Safety Measures

Placed at intervals along the province's highways and pinned to the windshields on factory walls are signs which remind people that it is better to be a live, healthy person rather than a statistic, six feet underground. If people were to adopt highway measures safety reminders there would be fewer accidents. This was the summary of an address given yesterday to Belleville Kiwanians by the provincial manager of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association with headquarters at Toronto.

Mr. James White said it is about time people realized that accident prevention is "a means of staying alive." He remarked that everyone has a sense of humility which gives him the inner feeling that "nothing can happen to me." This he assured his audience, "is only false security because in the province of Ontario alone people overlook the necessity of taking precautionary measures to reduce the chances of serious accidents at work, at play, in the home and on highways." Mr. White urged Kiwanians to "influence your minds; then your hearts and embrace the thinking powers of your minds, thereby making them mindful of the benefits of appreciating a safety conscious attitude.

CAUSES OF ACCIDENTS

The speaker said that part of his work with the association was to lecture on why, how and conduct tours through factories looking for safety life and limb and to indicate these danger points to the employer. "Plants which have safety records have good leaders," he said.

October is one of the three months in the year when serious accidents, according to statistics, are most apt to occur. Mr. White urged Kiwanians to do their bit to reduce the number of accidents in this area.

The promotion manager said that last year 533 millions were handed out by the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Board to men and women injured at work. While laid off because of injury, the year a workman received from the board about $37 a week in compensation for his injuries.

Introduced by Mr. Don Templeman, the chair the speaker was thanked by Mr. Sandy Sandercock. President Ali Dryden was absent from Tuesday with a Kiwanis paper weight.

IN MEMORIAM

CARMICHAEL. — In memory of Alma Carmichael, who passed away October 17th, 1950.

Sometimes a note of an old fashioned song
Brings us a thought of you;
Sometimes a flower as we pass along,
Or a sky that is azure blue,
Or a silver lining in the clouds
When the sunshine's peeping through.
Sadly missed by Ethel, Dad and brother Butch.

CARMICHAEL. — A tribute of love to our dear mother, Alma (Tina) Carmichael, who left us October 17th, 1950, to be with Jesus.

At twilight when evenside draws near
And silent falls the night,
And thoughts of you come drifting back
Within our dreams so stay.
Though we may lose you during waking,
When the twilight ends the day,
We shall meet you in the morning.
Dad and brother Butch.

CARMICHAEL. — In loving memory of our dear nephew, Allan (Tiny) Carmichael, who passed away October 17th, 1950.

There's a tear that is haunting us, dear,
There's a voice that we're longing to hear,
There's a smile we'll remember
Though we try to forget every tear,
There's a heart ever young
In remembrance.
Sadly missed by Aunt Ione and Uncle Ernie, Aunt Ethel and Dad.
And heartache still, for you.
Always remembered by Don, Helen and family.

Retired President of CPR, Former 'Intell' City Editor, D. C. Coleman, Montreal, Dies

MONTREAL (CP)—D. C. Coleman, 77, former chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, died at his home early today following an illness of several months.

Mr. Coleman, a native of Carleton Place, succeeded the late Sir Edward Beatty as president of the CPR in 1942. The following year he was named chairman of the board. He served as president and chairman of the board until 1947 when he retired. He remained a director of the company until his death.

Mr. Coleman was appointed president at 63, just 43 years after he joined the company as a clerk in Fort William. He was the company's fifth president.

Under Mr. Coleman's supervision two of the greatest problems in the history of the railway were met and solved.

He was vice-president for seven lines during the depression of the 1930s when wide-spread readjustments were necessary to cope with rapidly-dropping revenues. And as senior vice-president during the first years of the Second World War, much of the work of expansion to meet soaring traffic needs fell to him during the illness of Sir Edward Beatty.

AIR ENTHUSIAST

His interests were extended to the field of air transportation during the Second World War when the CPR embarked on the development of air line subsidiaries.

Mr. Coleman took a deep personal interest in the move and became chairman of Canadian Pacific Airlines. At that time also he was chairman of Canadian Pacific Steamships, and in other fields of industry and finance was director of the Bank of Montreal, and the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

Born July 9, 1879, to James Coleman and Mary Jane Doherty, Mr. Coleman was the first son of six in an Irish-Canadian family. He attended public school at Braeside, and continued his education in the Arnprior high school—a walk of five miles from his home. During the summer months Mr. Braeside he worked at $12 a month, 11 hours a day, in a lumber yard. When he left school his pay was raised to $20 a month.

His love of reading led to his departure from the lumber business. He was in the habit of hurrying through his work as a tallyman and then sitting down to read. When the foreman objected Mr. Coleman heaved his tally board at the man and left his job.

WAS CITY EDITOR

In the next few years his activities were varied. At Belleville, he attended business college, then he went to Toronto and worked for a mortgage company. He returned to Belleville and at 18 became city editor of the Belleville Intelligencer, one of the oldest newspapers in the province. Later he worked on the Port Huron, Mich., Daily Times.

His long period of casting around opportunity ended when he went to work for the CPR at Fort William. With the CPR he worked in posts at Winnipeg, Cranbrook, B.C., North Nelson, B.C., Vancouver, and Calgary.

A sports enthusiast, Mr. Coleman owned a racing stable and became vice-president of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

His collection of Canadiana, his library, particularly a section dealing with Western Canada, is considered one of the best in the country.

In 1908 Mr. Coleman married Anna Grant of Calgary. They had two sons—James of Toronto, well-known sports writer, and Maj. Rowan, M.C. who Colonel Coleman of Ottawa.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

In Washington, State Secretary Dulles said the United States would give aid to any victims of aggression in the Middle East.

A spokesman for the Israeli government brushed aside Jordan's troop concentration charge. He said:

"Jordan authorities appear to publish such allegations to provide a smoke screen for reported arms deliveries from Syria and other Arab countries to Jordan."

SLIGHT CONCERN

The Israeli spokesman expressed slight concern, however, over Syria's announcement that she is sending heavy weapons into Jordan to help defend her Arab colleague's frontier.

Such an exchange of weapons among Arab countries does not increase their combined military strength, the Israeli source said.

Similar arms shipments to Jordan from Iraq and Egypt were announced previously. Jordan Foreign Minister Awni Abdul Hadi also has gone to seek similar aid from Saudi Arabia.

Pinball Machine Operators Form Defence Fund

TORONTO (CP)—About 70 pinball machine operators met in Toronto Tuesday and set up a defence fund to protect them in the event of police raids on machines.

The machines recently were declared illegal by Chief Superintendent of Canada and last week Attorney-General Roberts warned that owners operating their machines would be seized if they continued operating after one warning by police.

Provincial police this week began issuing stores to warn owners and to affix stickers to pinball machines saying they are illegal and are not to be played.

The meeting of operators Tuesday was organized by Mayor Eddie Sargent of Owen Sound.

Prince Edward Population Increases 1,341

PICTON — The population of Prince Edward County as of June, 1956, was 16,175, according to figures just released by Wallace B. Perry, of Napanee, who was census commissioner.

Wellington's increase was 78, from 883 in 1951 to 1060 in June this year.

Bloomfield increased 76, from 885 in 1951 to 761.

South Marysburg increased 23, from 885 to 908.

Sophiasburg had 1709 in 1951 and dropped eight to 1701 in 1956.

Figures are subject to revision, Mr. Perry points out.

DITCHED

The smoothness of the operation and the lack of panic was credited by the passengers to Ogg's assurance and the quick-time stationing of his crew.

"At no time was there any alarm," said Mrs. Louis Walker of Oakland, Calif. "We were all told what to do and all of us were ready to perform."

Richard Gordon, public affairs officer with the United States Information Service in the Philippines, said "I was trembling a little, as I put on my life jacket, but that feeling left. I had a feeling we were going to come out safely. Just knowing the coast guardsmen were down there made it more comforting."

Gordon and his wife each took one of their two-year-old girl twins in their arms as the plane ditched. Mrs. Gordon said the force of the impact threw the small girl from her arms, but another passenger quickly picked the child up.

Gordon said his crew was filled with a "burning determination to rescue all those people." He said he looked upon the rescue job with the "greatest pride" and it was carried out "in the best tradition" of the coast guard.

SAFETY LAST

The assessment of the driving public's taste, perhaps the most important academy of the automobile industry, has provided a bewildering challenge to the sharpest brains in this field.

Although public desires are now accurately expressed in the latest models, past mistakes in reading the public mind almost drove one major company off the market, and resulted in the replacement of more than one high-salaried prophet who guessed wrong.

The fallen forecasters made the fundamental error of basing their judgment on logic.

British makers, those protagonists of the small, economical car, pinned their hopes on the supposition that North American drivers would desire more performance for economy as the first essential.

Just how wrong they were is indicated by the failure of their cars to retain an early advantage just after the war when larger and more powerful models were in short supply.

During this period, most American designers were inspired by the vision of longer, sleeker bodies including oversize trunk space, and extended guards, lights and fins stressing eye appeal.

The single bold dissident was an executive of the Chrysler Corporation who argued that since the parking problem would continue to grow ever more desperate, the public would appreciate a car designed to facilitate this trying chore.

Accordingly, Chrysler produced models with slightly shorter wheelbases, moderate size trunks and fenders. Although these models maintained this maker's reputation for quality, the public turned thumbs down. Sales plummeted by a shocking 50 per cent. The corporation refurbished by a large loan, traded utility for visual appeal with longer, lower models. Immediate public acceptance heralded a comeback which quickly regained its former position.

As if this near fatal misconception that the public is really interested in overcoming difficulties and dangers of the road were not a sufficient word to the wise, Ford boldly launched a campaign to sell the idea of safety features that help to give protection against the growing threat of accidents.

Meanwhile the designing executive of Chevrolet, realizing that the public is even less interested in safety than utility, advertised "The Hot One is Hotter" and boasted of over 100-mile-per-hour track records, which when applied to the highway, form one of the quickest and most direct routes to the morgue.

What was the result of these safety vs. speed campaigns waged by the keenest rivals of motordom?

The public, which likes or thinks it likes its car hot as a mobster's chair, cast the vote for the "hot one" to give Chevrolet a record percentage sales gain of 54 per cent.

This year, Ford is more prudently featuring longer, lower models with a record 245 h.p. engine available "to cool the hot one."

If any mistaken soul still thinks the public is interested in safety, he or she might step by the curb and count the sharp edges of new models which abound in collisions lop off passenger's heads like shearers.

If the inquirer thinks people go for the most effective safety device ever put in an automobile—safety belts —he should interview local car dealers as we did. He would learn that less than one per cent of car drivers avail themselves of this sensible equipment which prevents a high percentage of fatal injuries.

As for speed many police blotters have recorded arrests at 100 miles per hour.

The most remarkable commentary on the Ontario driver who was recently convicted of setting an all-time Canadian highway record of 120-miles-per-hour was that he was "skipping in and out of traffic at the time."

Unless we erring motorists can imagine who bet wrongly on utility and commonsense, we feel perfectly safe in predicting faster cars, speed records galore and a steep drop in accidents for a long time to come.

Motorists just will not act sensibly either in the acquirement of optional safety devices or the sane operation of their cars.

EXCELLENCE — ITS OWN REWARD

It is the fashion, these days, to criticise our educational system.

Much of this criticism may be justified. Sometimes, though, one comes across a sentence or a phrase which makes one wonder whether the critic knows as much about the subject as he would have us believe.

Consider this sentence: "Only the mediocre pupil is rewarded socially, and as he is promoted anyway there is little incentive towards excellence."

"Incentive towards excellence?" Incentive towards proficiency, yes, that is often needed. But is not excellence on a different plane? Is it ever achieved by those who do not prize it, and is it ever prized by any persons who needs an incentive to achieve it? Is not excellence, in any line of endeavor, its own reward?

TOO BUSY

"Too busy to register!" this is a quote,
So election day found him unable To vote.
But, after his friends failed to win their campaign,
He was never too busy to stop to complain.

He hadn't the minute for voting I go to the polls and my ballot I cast;
He couldn't waste time in a line I hope 'twill be long ere I come waiting there;
But now it's all over, with rivals in power,
He'll stand on the corner and growl by the hour.

"Too busy to vote!" with his name on the rolls,
He left it to others to go to the polls;
But all politicians were lazy and fat
And he wasn't too busy to talk about that.

And I hope, when the booth is thrown open for me,
That never to vote there too busy I'll be.

Sons of Noah Made Candy

By Marguerite Ballard Wilson in the Kansas City Star

A good many years ago we used to beg to be allowed to "stay up and watch" when our mother, after the evening household duties, got around to making homemade candies at night.

Entranced, we watched while she poured cherry and chopped pecans into shallow granite pie pans to harden; pushed fat nut-meats from a fatter colored fudge, fondants, and stuffed glistening dates and wrinkled figs.

Then quite a few years of turning out "batches" of nut brittles, pralines and foolproof fudge in our more modern kitchen I began to wonder how long this candy making business had been going on.

Almost immediately I came upon an appropriate verse:

Little Jack Horner
Sat in his corner
Eating his Christmas pie;
He put in his thumb
And pulled out a plum
And cried: "What a good boy am I!"

Candies were better known as sweetmeats and sugar plums in those times.

Eugene Field once wrote, for a little girl he loved, his story of Little Boy Blue Tree. Written a little more than 100 years earlier, they would have been no chocolate cat in the sugar plum tree, for chocolate, as a sweetening, was not known until a Swiss named Peter worked out a process by which cacao nuts, milk and sugar could be made into a solid called milk chocolate.

Before that cakes of pure chocolate had been made by a Frenchman and sold at a high price in a London shop.

Prior to this time, chocolate had been served only as a drink and Cortez is credited with bringing the "treasure of Aztec culture" back to Europe after he had discovered it in Mexico.

I came upon a legend that the "sons of Noah" were the first candymakers, distributing candy, when they explored distant lands and needed a treat that could be carried easily. Though grains and grapes were staple foods of that day, grain was bulky and grapes might sour on a long journey. So they combined the starch of the grain with the juice of the grapes and made a foodlike Turkish paste.

Most ancient peoples ate something that corresponded to our candies of today, but the richest kings of those times could not afford to have sugar served as children have today. Sugar was as yet unknown and honey was used as a sweetening agent.

One old Roman recipe directed that "nutmeats and cooked poppy seeds be boiled with honey, then pressed and sprinkled with the same seeds softened in honey."

In ancient Europe, nobody seems to have thought of making candy or any sweet for its own sake. It was only after sugar made to conceal the taste of medicine. In the 17th century, when sugar was shipped in quantities from the colonies, candymaking became a separate art.

Our great-great grandmothers used molasses and honey and maple sugar in homemade sweets. They were adept in the art of candying fruits and ginger, "varnishing" apples and making rock candy. Modern Gibraltars and "mint and twists" were old-time favorites.

Voting Ages Vary Widely

(Hamilton Spectator)

That peculiar yardstick of measuring the age of accepted responsibility — when a person is deemed capable of voting, of driving a car, of fulfilling the ordinary duties of citizenship — is subject to surprisingly elastic proportions. It may be in need of fresh standardization to meet modern demands.

For the first time, nineteen-year-olds have just voted in a British Columbia provincial election, which puts them on a fraichise par with young people of 21 years, although the privilege of voting in Saskatchewan extends to those aged 18.

In the rest of the country the polling age is 21 as it is in Britain and in the United States, except in Georgia where a few months back it was 18. While 18 is the voting age in many countries nowadays, Professor Arthur Lower, Hamilton, Hilous Belgium decrees that the legal age for the right to vote is 25 on though majority is attained at the common age of 21.

Yet, as Ontario youth can assume the responsibility of marriage at 16 (younger with parental consent) and of driving a motor car at 16 in Ontario, they may make him feel superior to his English counterpart who is a mite when it comes to marriage (without consent) until aged 21. In the United States the marriageable age is generally 13 for men and 16 for women, with New Hamshire permitting marriages at 14 for males and 13 for females.

The Englishman, like the New Yorker, may drink less bar at 18 the Canadian when he is 21. Yet, in fact, Canadian young youths 18 is drink at home.

It may be held that a young industrial producer, or a student, can be accorded a vote—but would this not be a needless gift rather than a precious privilege? Perhaps though, the earlier a person votes the sooner he is politically educated, while the franchise of the elderly could well be tempered by the assumed predominance of mature wisdom.

The yardstick of assessing age and responsibility is a difficult, serious procedure, which needs periodical review. For some young men and women the denial of the vote or other privileges of older people may be unjustified, especially if those rights are available to their kin in other areas.

Letter To The Editor

Recreation Chairman Congratulates Teams

Editor,

Ontario Intelligencer:

Before the close of the season of summer and the baseball season disappear, I, on behalf of the Belleville Recreation Committee, wish to take this opportunity through The Ontario Intelligencer to offer very congratulations to the Belleville Juvenile Baseball Club for its fine showing in winning the Ontario juvenile baseball championship.

Much credit is due to the boys who, after losing their first game, fought through with flying colors to down Sarnia in the Ontario finals with two straight wins. As is often the case with the forgotten ones behind the scenes, congratulations are in order to manager Art Charlton, coach Art Wright, trainer Wm. Bernard and vice-president Wm. Gault. They did a fine job and it is a pleasure to see all their effort put forth.

At this time we would like to congratulate other teams in the Belleville baseball league and Softball Association who have done such tremendous jobs in bringing championships to provincial title, to wit:

"A"—Belleville Ty Men's Bantam Baseball Club which lost in the All Ontario finals to Chatham, after a very energetic victorious for the Ontario Baseball Association.

"C"—Belleville TPT's Baseball Club lost in the Ontario Club final round robin at Hamilton, Ont., to Hamilton Wings who won the Ontario Peewee Baseball Association championship.

Credit should be noted much credit is due to teams in areas surrounding this city gone by bringing championships back to their own towns.

Port Dalhousie in winning the all-Ontario Industrial League championship in the Ontario Amateur Softball Association.

Wellington Peewee Baseball Club in winning the Ontario Baseball Association Peewee Class championship.

Frankford Baseball Club in winning the Ontario Amateur Softball Association Intermediate "B" championship.

Our local press and radio deserve much praise for their untiring efforts to advance outdoor sports and reports on the program carried out this year, as they have done in years gone by.

It has been a wonderful season for baseball and softball in the city of Belleville and surrounding district. This was accomplished only through the efforts of the sponsors, coaches and managers who, I will repeat, did a tremendous job and it is only through the assistance of these public spirited citizens that work of this nature can be accor plished and brought to a successful conclusion.

Gentlemen, one and all, it gives great privilege to congratulate you.

Sincerely,
Wm. A. Van Tassel,
Chairman,
Belleville Recreation Committee.

Last Wolf In Highlands

By D. K. Farr in the Fredericton Gleaner.

They had wolves in Scotland, in the Highlands, until the middle of the eighteenth century, and the story of the last one, killed in 1743, is notable for the hunter's own statement on the subject.

It seems that the "black beast" had killed two children and the Laird of MacIntosh organized a hunt with his fellow clansmen up. A stalker named MacQueen was the first to find the wolf. Laird was beginning to get angry, says the story, when a long day went by and he had not found the beast. My long dog there turned him. I buckled wr him and dirkit him, and syne whuttled his craig (cut his throat), and syne I gaed hame wi' considerable fear he might come alive again, for they are precarious creatures."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

My sister visiting Ireland this past couple of months had a trying experience. She met a succession of endless procession of Irishmen and Irishwomen who were anti-British. That is to say, they were pro-Irish.

Being ultra-British as many Canadians are, my sister had a very troublesome time trying to show these Irish folk the error of their ways. She argued with them. She lectured them. She, with all others, were engaged in spirited debate over the whole question of the Irish public's relation to Britain. Every day of her visit, my sister's astonishment grew. But she had not read about the Irish separation in Canada and so had not been realized, even remotely, the attitude of the average Irishman towards the republic. Her letters home grew more and more excited. At last they trailed off with "Get a white horse instead of a motor car."

Her son followed her a few weeks later, on a tour of the Emerald Isle. He visited most of the places his mother had been in, stayed at the same hotels, and at the same friends' homes.

And not once did he encounter any anti-British sentiment. In the taxi-drivers, not in hotel employees, not in store clerks, let alone amongst the friends with whom he visited.

When they both got home, you might suppose they had been to two different countries. Their experience had been basically dissimilar.

I explained it to them.

"It all depends," I showed them, "on what minute you left the hotel, for instance. If you left it during one of the five minutes later than you did, on any given occasion, you would have had an entirely different set of people during that day. You would have had a different taxi driver. Another store clerk. On the streets, not one of those hundreds of pedestrians would have the same as you would have encountered five minutes before or five minutes after. At the houses you visited. If you had gone the day before or the day after, you would have met an entirely different assortment of people with entirely wholly different mood or frame of mind."

I tried to explain to them that they were assuming life is always a uniting, changeless, immovable thing instead of the inexhaustibly mysterious, fortuitous, changeable thing it truly is.

Five minutes of time, one turn of the head to the right instead of left, makes all the difference between joy or tragedy, life or death, love or hate. Think by what mere chance we met our true loves!

My sister still thinks the Irish are a pretty thankless bunch.

My nephew thinks they are swell.

Lord, I Hope I Did. Right!

Many As some readers know, the fallow who writes the pieces printed in this column, along with his three brothers, at his mother's knee, under her influence, says it ever. increase, of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. We promised not to use alcohol or tobacco in any form before we were twenty-one. Of course we kept the promise.

I got my M. D. degree before I was 21 — you see, I didn't fool around a college between high school and medical school.

As a medical student who didn't smoke or drink, I was in an exclusive or, as I felt sometimes, an excluded minority. There was my roommate in the sophomore year, nicknamed Suzie — Susie didn't drink or smoke either. In the third and fourth years my roommate was nicknamed Deacon. He not only didn't drink or smoke, he conducted a Bible class or something of the sort at church every Sunday. Then, too, there were perhaps three or four other members of the class who seldom if ever took a drink, even a so-called "social" sip of wine or a little punch at a fraternity affair. One of these was top man of the class for all four years. Another was the most popular man — and he was to be married in the medical society as the physician of the year, only the other day.

I firmly believe that I would have started to smoke and drink when I was a medical student, but for the pledge. Nobody taunted me openly about it, but I was not unaware of the feelings some of the smart alecks had about the sissies who didn't smoke or drink. From all I have been able to learn, the situation hasn't changed, except that it is in the first two or three years of high school that the smart alecks and alexandras show off by smoking and drinking and even ridicule and sneer at those and girls who do not need such device to unload an inferiority complex.

Frankly, I must admit, my efforts to persuade parents, doctors, pastors, teachers, coaches, grandparents, aunts, uncles, big brothers and sisters, and others who have any concern with the future well-being and happiness of growing boys and girls to ask the youngsters to take the pledge, have proved not only unavailing but, I am afraid, have been resented by the majority of readers, at least the articulate ones.

Some parents of growing children even argue that if a boy or a girl is going to drink, a mere promise or pledge not to do so will not deter the youngster. This is shocking to me.

A couple of months ago I said in this that I was happy to hear from any reader who knows of a boy or a girl who has taken the pledge to take and keep it pledged against the use of alcohol and/or tobacco before the age of 21.

The reports are still coming in, and I am only too much pleased to hear from readers told me these pastors are to do so.

Rev. Fr. John W. Shea, pastor of St. Mary's, Hampden, Massachusetts.

Monsignor Connor, Holy Name Parish, Springfield, Mass.

Monsignor James Walsh, pastor of St. Felicitas, Chicago, Ill.

There are only twelve such pastors in business today?

Strength for The Day

GET TO KNOW YOURSELF

One of life's most harassing fears is the fear some people have of being left alone. Some people are so thoroughly afraid in this regard that they would not dare to be left by themselves for a whole day. These are the people for whom a party is the most delightful experience of life. These are the people who gossip endlessly over the telephone with their friends. These are the people who are anxious to find out where men and women are congregating in order that they may be there and know the excitement of the crowd.

Now all this, of course, is better than that' morbid withdrawal from life in which some people indulge. At least it can be said that the people who do not want to be alone are extroverts and have the good quality of gregariousness. But it is also a virtue to be able to sit down alone with one's self at certain times, and long periods if circumstances require it, and be content.

It is good to get out and mix with people, but we should have within us a resourcefulness which will enable us to be content when circumstances require us to be alone. If we have enough within our own heads and hearts, and if we have the peace which comes with sound faith and a good conscience, we will have the disposition to think on the pure, the pleasant, and the lovely things of life. Then we can afford to be alone.

Get on good terms with yourself. It is a pleasant experience.

ANTICIPATIONS

It's this habit we have of always looking forward to some good thing to come, or to be revealed to us, that keeps us on our intellectual toes. Anticipation of pleasurable ahead though we may not always get it, is always a good stimulant before they come to us in full form.

As time goes on we become aware that many of the earlier thrills and occupations lose much of their charm. Others to take their place. In a letter from my long-time friend Charles Kyle Smith, literary critic for the Los Angeles Times, he said: "When one gets started, he needs more satisfactions that only await him on books."

Nothing gives me such inward peace and calm as the anticipation of reading a new book that has been presented to me or that I have purchased. It is to just such books that I have turned time and again for mental and moral and spiritual renewal. I would appear that a book or books have been written for every mood of man.

It is the light that guides us at night, and when we are ill and confined alone in a room for a long time how much more difficult it is to endure the long night than it is in the day when the sunshine and outer views. We who have awaited the dawn.

Illness is a reminder of a trip that makes it all so exciting as one's plans are arranged. Then the joy of preparation supersedes the trip. Dreamers have enlivened progress and civilization itself. Why is it that there is so much interest in the discussions about the future? Those who actually believe, or anticipate, that human beings like us live there?

Town Council Holds Meeting

DESERONTO — The regular meeting of the council was held on Monday night in the town hall with all members present. Consideration of repairs to the police car was left in the hands of the committee with power to act. According to discussion this involves a new set of tires and a motor repair job.

The streets committee reported on the cleaning of the ditch north of Maple Avenue and advised that they were waiting for the engineers in charge of the new school to give the proper level. Work would be commenced as soon as this level was determined.

The town was advised by the Department of Finance that the federal grant in lieu of taxes on federal properties in the town had been set at $2,340.00. The streets committee introduced some bids for wiring the town shed and this matter was referred back to the streets committee with power to act.

Reeve McVicker spoke at some length on his attendance at the meeting of the Planning and Development Branch in Toronto. He revealed that Deseronto has the potentials to attract industry but was sadly lacking in civic pride. Mayor T. S. Scott concurred with the reeve's remarks.

The court of revision was set for November 7th at 7.30 p.m.

The Legion was granted permission to hold a tag day on November 10th. The volunteer fire department was also granted permission to hold a street parade on Saturday next.

A motion was passed that the clerk write Mr. E. Moody regarding the breaking of the curb in front of his garage. He is to be advised that the curb is town property and must be replaced. A letter of commendation was to be sent to Mr. and Mrs. Chapman for their public spirit in completely renovating their restaurant.

EXCUSE

Councillor Twiddy of the police department introduced the subject of the speed trap operated by the police department. Councillor Spence said that the amount of work involved with the summonses was taking a great deal of the clerk's time. Reeve McVicker said that other towns were curtailing speed and that any motorist who travelled 44 to 50 miles an hour on Dundas St. had no intention of stopping in the town. He moved that the matter be left in the hands of the police committee and suggested that it could be operated only at the hours school children were going to and from school. He stated that there were ten signs from the west end to where the trap operates and motorists had no excuse for not knowing the speed limit.

On the introduction of the by-law to increase the amount payable for indigent funerals from $75 to $175, Reeve McVicker voiced an objection. He was in Toronto on council business at the last meeting when the motion was passed. He stated that the Last Post Fund allowed $100 for a veteran and the D.V.A. allowed $150 and could see no reason for the town to give $175. On its second reading the bylaw was defeated.

Council then passed a motion that the fee for indigent funerals be increased from $75 to $150 as requested by the Funeral Directors' Association of the Bay area.

Ammonia Fumes Blanket Large Pittsburgh Area

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Hundreds of persons were routed from their beds by police and firemen today as waves of nauseous, irritating ammonia fumes spread over several blocks two miles from the centre of the business section.

The sickening fumes came from a leaking 15,000-gallon tank at the 2nd Avenue plant of Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation.

Some police and firemen donned gas masks and went from house to house to warn residents not to go to sleep and to be ready for evacuation. There was no panic and no one suffered serious effects.

Police superintendent James Slusser asked all Pittsburgh radio stations to urge residents to remain calm emphasizing the fumes were not poisonous.

For prize single specimens, make a note to inspect plants throughout the year and remove all but one or two buds from each stalk. This is done when buds are small, to concentrate strength on one in place of a half dozen or so blooms.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Murphy spent three days in Hamilton, Ontario, attending the wedding of Mr. Murphy's brother, Larry, to Miss Rosalie Morelli.

Weddings

WILSON—MALLORY

Pink, yellow, and white gladioli and bronze 'mums, mingled with autumn foliage, formed a lovely setting in the Protestant church at the RCAF Station, Trenton, on Monday, October 8, at 7.00 p.m., for a pretty wedding when Gloria Doreen Mallory, of Trenton, daughter of Mrs. Lee Mallory and the late Mr. Mallory, became the bride of John Henry Wilson of Trenton, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson. Flight Lieutenant Ross, padre, officiated in the double ring ceremony.

Mr. Wilfred Wright provided the traditional wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Roy Barrett of London, Ontario, was charming in white organza bloused over taffeta with coronet headdress and veil of tulle illusion. She carried a white Bible crested with an orchid.

Her matron of honor was Mrs. N. J. Goldberg, of Orillia, who was gowned in powder blue crystalled taffeta matching her dress. She carried a nosegay of pink roses and white 'mums.

A rummage sale was planned for was turned out of October and a social evening will be held at the home of Helen Lennox in December. All members were invited to attend.

Tea and buns were appointed to provide and serve refreshments at the local C.N.I.B. October meeting.

Business concluded, the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Rollins and Scotty Hallam, for an evening of games.

Wellington Couple Attend Toronto U.E.L. Branch

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Young of Wellington, spent three days in Toronto, last week and on Thursday evening attended the regular monthly meeting of the Toronto Branch U.E.L., during which nearly a score of new members were received into the branch.

Mrs. R. S. McLaughlin presided the main address of the evening during which she highlighted the members who had unstintingly gave of their time, talents and even money in the mature interest to the project of renovation and restoration of the United Empire Loyalist burial grounds at Adolphustown. Her closing thought was, "If any members of the Bay of Quinte branch are here tonight may I ask you to keep a watchful eye on the hallowed ground wherein our U.E.L. ancestors lie buried. It is a heritage of which we are all proud."

Mr. Young as president of the Bay of Quinte branch, was called upon for a few remarks during which he said the hope of Mrs. McLaughlin would be a watchword of the Bay of Quinte members. He also tendered appreciation of his members for the cooperation of Toronto branch in the establishment of a local branch.

Mr. Douglas F. Bleecker, also a Bellevillian, reviewed the recent ceremony of unveiling a memorials plaque to Captain John Walden Meyers in St. Thomas' Anglican church, Belleville.

ST. LAWRENCE POWER DEVELOPMENT

Mr. A. L. Clarry presented an interesting report of his tour of the St. Lawrence power development project made under personal direction of Dr. Carroll. His graphical put new life into the address on this project and most certainly brought to light many things unseen by individuals visiting it.

Following the meeting, a social hour was enjoyed while the hostesses served tea and refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. Young had opportunity to call upon several friends and relatives they had not seen for over two years. Fortunately the weather was all that could have been desired for.

Mr. Young would remind all members in the Bay of Quinte branch, U.E.L., the final meeting of the year will be held at Adolphustown, on Wednesday evening November 7th.

Kinette Club Plans Future Activities

The Belleville Kinette Club held its October dinner meeting on Tuesday at St. Thomas' Parish House.

Isabel Miller and Marion Jeffrey were responsible for the decorations, which were in keeping with the true Hallowe'en greeting each member received at the door.

President Jean Smith presided. Ruth Goldberg, as Sgt.-at-arms, extracted the fines. Barbara Wheaton and Aileen Fitzpatrick led a sing-song with Phyllis Fraser as pianist.

Edna Brenot gave the secretary's report and Helen Lennox read the financial statement.

The members unanimously voted to purchase a wreath to be placed at the Cenotaph on Remembrance Day. It was voted to send $25 donation to the C.N.I.B.

Helen Wilbur asked for volunteers from the club to assist the Electric Kinsmen in their sale of electric light bulbs. Plans were stated that this sale was the Kinsmen's Club main project for the community and that it was important that all Kinettes aid them in their sale.

A rummage sale was planned for was turned out of October and a social evening will be held at the home of Helen Lennox in December. All members were invited to attend.

Tea and buns were appointed to provide and serve refreshments at the local C.N.I.B. October meeting.

Business concluded, the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Rollins and Scotty Hallam, for an evening of games.

This --- and That

By HAREDIT STEVENS

Today is indeed a red letter day in the story of Belleville and Hastings County. Birth, death, illness, pain, suffering are the lot of mortals, but somehow we expects neither sex nor sect; but when the new wing of the Belleville General Hospital is officially opened this afternoon, men and women will get some of the tangible evidence that the hospital will be easier and safer in our community. A Theban poet wrote before the birth of Jesus: "Every noble deed disdains suppressed in silence." A hospital is beyond question a noble monument, built on the bedrock of the noble and selfless aspirations of men and women. It is said that the works of men are, by the very nature of things, transient, but a hospital perpetuates the noble deeds of alleviation of suffering by the day in and day out, so there is no danger in the future to break silence in open support of our hospital.

Probably no other citizen will be so profoundly and gratefully happy today as Mrs. Mikel, the grand lady of Belleville whose memory goes back to the courageous group of women who started and nourished the Belleville General in its infancy. It is such a noble endeavour and tribute should not be silenced. Mrs. Mikel is going to retire to Toronto shortly, it is a happy thing that one of the ladies will have her participation in the fulfillment of a dream. The deeds of the Board of Governors will not be silenced as the new wing opens today, and the sick, old and young as their needs are tended to from the new wing. The Belleville hospital wing was not easy as Mrs. Mikel can remember; the steps, one by one, in the hospital's progress, were not accomplished without sacrifice and hard work; the new wing is not dedicated today with the wave of a wand. The whole community and area has been the silence by support and appreciation of our hospital. When we think about the willing efforts of voluntary workers down through the years, we thoughts go to the original band of women, the doctors, the nurses, the staff and women on the board, the women's hospital auxiliary, the countless men and women who supports the Belleville General Hospital.

T. E. T. pays its respects to the men and women who, from the beginning to today's new wing, have made our hospital one of the finest in Canada. Some days ago we read a few lines from which we paraphrase: "They have won the esteem of all of us, without soliciting the favor of any, or fearing the displeasure of their detractors. Therefore our tribute is an appeal for a noble deed to be kept vibrantly alive by a whole community refusing to keep silent about support to our hospital in all its activities.

Going Shopping?

Maybe it's our imagination, but as we browsed about this week we had the feeling that an air of expectancy pervaded the shops. Doubtless our imagination did run away from us as unconsciously we suspected that shopping was having an international flavor, the mad rush for Christmas. Windows, display counters and the street fair as though all were waiting for Santa Claus, toys, gift offerings and so on. After all, it is only October 17.

One cannot escape noticing the great use of bows in feminine fashions; they appear everywhere and are used in all kinds of fabrics, in wool and jersey as well as lighter fabrics. Sometimes they are used on a sheath to define a high waistline. Or, on a bouffant style, they may be pure ornamentation.

There are some very good bargains in hosiery, so it might be a good time to put away gifts. You may not find a great range of lengths in these bargains but for the medium person they are good buys and worth looking into.

Quite truthfully, T. E. T. did not discover any particular items that stood out as unusual or new on our rounds. From a general point of view, one thing that came to mind was the ever present matter of prices. For the simple housewife, as most of us are, the complicated economic set up defeat our understanding. It is difficult for us to figure out the reasons for prices on locally-grown produce; then we look at imported prices. Take coffee for instance — we were told the price is high because of a short crop. Then take coffee — coffee four years prior because supply was reduced by frost but the price has never gone down. We sometimes wish that explanations we could understand were forthcoming from the non-simple experts.

Good Shopping.

100th Anniversary Marked By Moira Chapter, R.A.M.

"Thanksgiving" was the theme of a fine address delivered last evening by Canon A. E. McConnell, rector of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, at the 100th anniversary of Moira Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, No. 7, Grand Registry of Canada, "Ladies' Night" in the Masonic Temple, Foster Ave.

The address was preceded by a sumptuous turkey dinner prepared by the Mazzanaga W.M. under the direction of Mrs. Hillman.

Those at the head table, which was colorfully draped with blue, purple, orange and pink, included, from left to right: Mr. and Mrs. Cyril McMullen, the Rt. Ex. Companion H. C. McElrath and Mrs. McElrath, Ex. Companion F. S. Follwell, M.P.; Canon A. E. and Mrs. McConnell; Ex. Comp. Ex. K. Hodgen, chairman, and Mrs. Hodgen; Ex. Comp. A. V. Roe, Grand Superintendent of Prince Edward District, and Mrs. Roy, of Napanee; Mr. and Mrs. Mooney Davidson, Rt. Ex. Comp. H. G. McElrath and Mrs. McElrath, and Ex. Comp. W. B. Humphreys and Mrs. Humphreys.

Canon McConnell who was introduced by Mr. Follwell, M.P., was born in Northern Ireland, and at 13 years of age came to Canada, receiving his education at Canada Collegiate Institute and Trinity College, Toronto. He served in World War II as assistant of the O.T.C., at Brockville, three and one-half years overseas, was honored with M.B.E. and for many years was chaplain of the Trent Masonic lodge.

Canon McConnell based his talk on the words of Jesus, who said "If a man accepted me, let him a mile, go with him two," mentioned the "second mile" part of Thanksgiving; the "second mile" in family life, which too often is left out. Much of the cause of discords is often blamed either on the "third, fourth" or on "me." They need to go the second mile. It has been said "Love is blind" but love should never become a "neg."

In speaking of fathers, Canon McConnell quoted Emerson, who said: "What you are shouts so loud I cannot hear what you say." Every father is a potential model for his son, his every act is copied. Courtesy in the home should abound one toward another, with thanksgiving.

In national life there is also the "second mile." A better type of citizen needs to be developed; make of the strangers within our gates, Canadian citizens; build them into the scheme of things. The second mile.

THE SECOND MILE

Then there is the 'second mile' in Masonic life, which includes brotherly love relief, and truth." In connection with this, who spiritually is the greatest? Canon McConnell who spiked his talk with stories, related how a woman drier was hit by a tree being lifted by a crane. The company to blame, said they would bear the entire expense of repairs, but the lady in question insisted that some one go with her to her husband, and bear witness to the fact, that the tree had actually come out into the road and hit her. "To give thanks," concluded the speaker, "one must give himself."

Mrs. Beverly Shaw favored with two fine selections, "Romance," and "Walk Hand in Hand." and Captain Ken Corby, vocal accompanied her by Mrs. Mooney Davidson.

The toast to the ladies was proposed by Ex. Comp. Humphreys, H. C. McElrath, to which Mrs. Ann Davidson responded.

The speaker was thanked by the Rt. Ex. Companion, H. S. McElrath, and the ladies, by Ex. Companion, W. B. Humphreys.

Thanks were also extended to Companion Ken Yorke, of the entertainment committee for a fine program.

Quinte W.I. Enjoys Travelogue

The Quinte Branch of the Women's Institute held its October meeting at the lovely home of Mrs. Robert Atkins, with an attendance of 26 members.

The president, Mrs. C. Reid, opened the meeting in the usual manner and extended a welcome to all members, thanking the hostess for the use of her home for the meeting.

The president reminded all of the convention at the Collegiate auditorium on October 23-25, also the contest course, "Brighten Your Home With Color," which is to be held in the Front Road Church on November 2nd, 1.30 to 4 p.m.

The business being dispensed with the meeting was turned over to the convener, Mrs. Harry Grills. The motto was well given by Mrs. C. Howard who concluded her part with a reading on "Thanksgiving."

The contest was conducted by Mrs. Grills on "Candy," with Mrs. Parrott winning first prize and Mrs. Atkinson, the consolation.

Mrs. Fitzgerald gave a talk on "Public Relations and Community Activities," which was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Archie Greatrix gave a travelogue on her eight weeks' trip to the old country and down into the states. Mrs. Greatrix spoke of the terrible flooded lands that was prevalent at the time of her visit, also of her trip up the mountains and encountering so many bears. However, her trip was not all on the gloomy side. She told of some amusing experiences as well. Her talk was much enjoyed and a promise from her of more of her trip in the future.

Mrs. C. Reid, president, closed the meeting after which all partook of the bountiful refreshments provided by the hostess and Mrs. Grills and her group.

The next meeting will be in the form of a card party on an evening in November at the home of Mrs. Cora Howard, all members are to bring refreshments.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

TODAY'S THOUGHT ABOUT GOOD MANNERS

I've never known anyone who was not proud of the good manners of a friend. And in that idea there is certainly an inspiration for us to acquire the good manners our friends will be proud of!

CORRECT, THOUGH UNUSUAL, FORM FOR DIVORCEE'S NAME

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am soon to receive my final divorce decree, and would appreciate your advice about the form of name I wish to use after my divorce. My maiden name (let's say, for example) was Mary Hillhouse Lee. Let's say about-to-be-ex-husband's name (let's say) is John Clark. In my name after my divorce I would, for a special reason, very much like to use my second baptismal name (Hillhouse) rather than my maiden surname. That is, use the name Mrs. Hillhouse Clark (rather than the usual form I wish to use is never correct. I would so much appreciate your always-helpful advice about the Ways-of-Names.

—About-to-be-a-Divorcee

I am so glad you wrote me about this, because now I have the happiness of telling you that the form of name you particularly wish to use is correct. It is a correct form although it is not the form customarily chosen by a divorcee. In other words, you may correctly use your second baptismal name combined with your married surname — Mrs. Hillhouse Clark. When this form of name is chosen, there is usually, as in your case, some very special reason for preferring the second baptismal name rather than the maiden surname.

CORRECT ORDER OF RECEIVING-LINE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter is to be married soon, and we have two questions we would like to ask you.

1. In the receiving-line I know that the bride's mother stand first; and next to me, the groom's mother. Who is next, the bride or the groom? And what is the order of the other members of the receiving-line?

2. Should the groom's father wear the same type of attire the bride's father wears, or should he wear a dark suit? — N.

1. There are several correct ways to form the receiving-line but a quite customary one is: Next in the line, the mother of the bride, as hostess; the groom's mother, the woman guest of honor at the wedding; then the bride and groom, the bride at the groom's right; the maid of honor; last, the bridesmaids. It is essential that the bride should be at the groom's right.

If the fathers are to be in the receiving-line, the bride's father, as host, may stand next to his wife, or he may stand next to the groom's mother; and the groom's father, as man guest of honor at the wedding, may stand next to the bride's mother, or he may stand next to his wife.

2. Usually the groom's father wears the same type of attire the bride's father and the men in the wedding party wear. This is consistent because the groom's father is the man guest of honor at the wedding, and so should be dressed appropriately to this distinction.

THE BRIDE'S MOTHER MAY GIVE HER IN MARRIAGE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Since my father passed away a very long time ago, would it be correct for my mother to give me in marriage? I feel much "closer" to her than I do to my brother who lives in another place or to a male relative in the family. I am the last in a family of five to be married, and for this reason I would especially prefer to have my mother give me in marriage. — Reader . . . . . .

Indeed I hope you will give your mother the honor of giving you in marriage. It is, to my thinking, a loving and most appealing gesture. This is a correct procedure, is very intimate friend, unable to decide what present to send, sensibly gives a Gift Certificate on some store where there would will be offered an ample choice of wedding presents. If the gift is to be a money-gift, a check is the attractive way to give it; the check to be enclosed in a note asking the bride-to-be to buy with it something for the home-to-be, something she's always dreamed "come true." This note-with-enclosure should not be given at the wedding reception. Like any other wedding present, it should be sent to the bride-to-be at her home-address as soon as possible before the wedding date.

THANKING YOUR HOSTESS A DAY OR SO AFTER THE PARTY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

Please settle this problem for us. "A" says that after a supper party at someone's house the guest should definitely call the hostess to send day or so after any party . . . . either by note or by telephone call. But personally I'll always agree with "A's" thoughtful and gracious way of looking at matters. I know, of course, that many, many people (etiquette-authorities included) pooh-pooh the idea of thanking the hostess a day or so after the party, when she has been thanked as the guest during the party. But why not, I ask, assure your kind hostess that her party was a great success, and that you think her for inviting you to share her hospitality, that you had a wonderful time? Leave me the hostess who isn't happy and delighted to have this warm-hearted assurance that her thoughtfulness and effort to make her party a success was really appreciated!

Small Priced Pearls

By ALICE ALDEN

There's a wealth of high style millinery available this season at moderate price tags. But one must choose with care, eschewing the showy, the over-trimmed and concentrating on good fabric well handled and good lines that are essentially simple in concept. One such hat is this high toque of Golden Era velveteen which for trimming is content with a rim of elaborately shirred self fabric, and a lacy veil. The hat comes with its own matching bag.

quite often done when the bride's father has passed away. Of course, however, you should talk this over with the minister who is to perform the ceremony, to ask for his approval and his guidance about the procedure. My suggestion is that you invite your brother to escort you up the aisle, and then, if the minister approves, have your brother stand in her place at the first pew on the left of the aisle; respond "I do" to the question "Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?" Or, just before this question is to be asked, the best man may escort her to the designated place near the minister, actually to place your hand in the minister's as she makes her response.

WHERE SHOULD STICKERS BE ATTACHED TO ENVELOPES?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please settle our discussion. "A" says that stickers printed with name and address should be attached to the flap of the envelope. "B" insists they should be placed on the upper left corner of the front of the envelope. Which is right? —Reader

Either is right . . the sticker may be attached to the back of the envelope just as the name-and-address, or the address, may be engraved or printed on the flap of the envelope. However, "B's" style would be more approved by the post office, which likes return addresses on the front of envelopes.

HOW ABOUT MONEY FOR A WEDDING GIFT?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Would it be appropriate to give a bride money for a wedding present? If so, what is the proper way to do this? Can it be given with a card enclosed, to the bride, at the wedding reception? — S.

To give the bride money as a wedding present is not, of course, the customary thing to do, and so there would be, or should be, some reason for making this unusual gesture. For example, if you are a close friend or a very intimate friend and have been told, perhaps by the bride herself, that she would welcome the money to buy a something which she wishes particularly to have and which she has located, it might be appropriate for you to give her a check for the sum of money decided on. Sometimes nowadays a relative or

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

TALK THEM ONE OVER WITH YOUR LOCAL SERVICE ORGANIZATION

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm the mother of three children. I go to work, and have a husband who doesn't appreciate it. He goes around with another woman and stays out till all hours, then when he comes home he demands that I cook for him. He also uses bad words in front of the little ones. I live in constant fear, as he has beaten me several times.

I've told him to get 'out, that we don't need him, but he laughs and tells me as long as I get money from him there is nothing I can do.

I've gone to Domestic Relations Court and they told me that if he supports me and the children I can do nothing. He hasn't what specific ground you would have for getting a legal separation of any sort from him—unless you had definite evidence that would enable you to charge him with infidelity. You would have to consult a lawyer on all this.

You might also get some advice on your situation by going to see someone at your local social service organization. You could write a letter or call on the phone—get the name, address and phone number from the phone book—and ask for an appointment to talk over a difficult family problem. Then, in a personal talk with one of the workers, you could explain every detail of your home problem and you would be helped to find the best way of handling it. It would be very wise idea for you to make this contact so that you can keep in touch with them and they can give you help and advice whenever you need it.

LAUGH YOUR HUSBAND OUT OF THIS

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

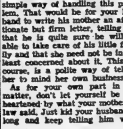
I've been married nearly a year and we have a baby boy. He's a dear, but a funny thing has just happened.

My husband got a letter from his mother asking him if he was crazy to start a family while we were still so young, and he wasn't making very much money yet. This has upset him so much that he seems to have lost all the pleasure he formerly took in the thought of having a child. This, of course, spoils my pleasure, too.

Please tell me what I can do so that both of us can be happy again. — Mrs. M.P.

Dear M.P.:

It seems to me there is a very simple way of handling this problem. That would be for your husband to write his mother an affectionate but firm letter, telling her that he is quite sure he will be able to take care of his little family and that she need not be in the least concerned about it. This, of course, is a polite way of telling her to mind her own business.



As for your own part in the matter, don't let yourself be disheartened by what your mother-in-law said. Just kid your husband along and keep telling him what fun it's going to be when there is much chatter both of you will be a baby in the family, and how when you're parents.

If he was pleased at the prospect in the beginning, you may be sure he'll be much more pleased when the baby arrives. And if you refuse to let yourself be depressed by the way he's acting now, and just brush it off with a laugh, he's bound to get over it quickly.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

A brisk toweling after the bath stimulates back skin, leaves it fresh and glowing.

Now that the season for "formals" is getting into full swing, what's the condition of your back and arms? The new gowns are pretty revealing, as you've probably observed, and the first time you try one on, you may be a little conscious if back, arms and shoulders are not as radiantly glowing and softly textured as your facial complexion. Don't fret, however. Start beauty-conditioning them immediately.

Before considering the treatment for skin texture, we'll talk about posture, since improper posture detracts from a beautiful back and shoulders. If you're in the habit of slumping, for instance, shoulders may be rounded and the back may be developing an ugly hump. day clothes camouflage both these defects to some degree, but in an evening gown they're definitely noticeable. So, if your posture's poor, it's time to take steps. Concentrate on standing tall and straight, practising as often as possible before a full-length mirror. It takes effort, of course, because it seems more comfortable to slump. But in the long run it doesn't pay since poor posture is not only unattractive but can cause many aches and pains.

Where the skin is concerned, soap and water is the answer. It frequently happens that women—even those who are ever so meticulous about their daily bath—don't scrub and lather back and shoulders as thoroughly as they should. Thus blemishes appear and, at this season of the year, there may even be faint traces of a faded tan. None of this contributes to a beautiful back. So get out that bath brush or mitt and use it nightly.

When you begin the back-washing don't stint on the soapsuds. Work up a thick, meringue-like lather, and if you have trouble reaching every part of your back, try this method:

Mentally dibide your back into three crosswise bands. Start by putting your right hand behind your head and placing it on your left shoulder. Scrub well all the way across to the right shoulder. Now rinse out and re-lather the mitt or brush and scrub the left side to the right in the middle "band" of your back. Do the same thing for the waist-line area.

Repeat the procedure with your left hand, starting with the right side each time.

Wind up by giving each shoulder an extra scrubbing from the front, then take the soapsuds on down the arm, paying special attention to the elbow, and the back of the upper arm. If your armpits aren't absolutely smooth, go to work on them with lots of lather and a safety razor.

Now finish your bath, rinse yourself thoroughly, treat your skin to a good toweling, and you'll not only feel but look fresh and glowing.

But don't neglect the soapsuds beauty routine after the first fine flush of victory. Keep at it every day and you'll soon discover that the complexion on your back and arms is as lovely as your facial complexion.

Royal Danish Ballet Pleases Toronto Critics

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian balletomanes Monday night went to see the Royal Danish Ballet, ranked as one of the world's three greatest companies, and left impressed with its freshness.

Led by seven male and seven female dancers of the first rank, the 35-member company danced two ballets and excerpts from a third in the first of two performances in Toronto, the only Canadian point in its 11-city North American tour.

Ranked in the ballet world along with England's Sadler's Wells Company and Russia's Bolshoi group — the state-subsidized Danish troupe is making its first tour outside of Europe in its 200-year history.

PRESENT THREE

The ballets presented Monday night were La Somnambula choreographed by George Balanchine; The Whims of Cupid, a 170-year-old ballet and the oldest in the group's repertoire, and the third set of Napoli by August Bournonville, their most famous choreographer.

Herbert Whittaker, Globe and Mail, commended the company as a whole and the "method of training which produces such a stalwart, forthright and handsome group."

Hugh Thomson, Toronto Daily Star, said the show, particularly Napoli, had "the audience in a great state of delight and excitement."

"Their chief charm is freshness. They have a very fresh style which is peculiarly their own. They go in heavily for character dancing and do it very well."

FOXBORO W.A.

The general meeting of the Foxboro W.A. was held at home of Mrs. Bernard Hollinger on Wednesday night with 41 members present.

Mrs. La Rue, president, called the meeting to order.

Mrs. Dean Dafoe had charge of the devotional period for Group 3 and used hymns as a sing-song, followed by The Lord's Prayer.

The Scripture was then read by Mrs. William Reid and a reading explaining same by Mrs. D. Dafoe.

Mrs. Dudley read a poem closing this part of the program.

The treasurer's report showed a nice sum in the treasury.

It was voted to give $100 to the M.M. fund of the church, and also to give an extra donation of $200, to the Manse fund. The W.A. agreed to pay half of the caretaker's wages.

The fall rally was discussed. The Foxboro W.A. belongs to the southwestern Hastings rally to be made up of 14 locals and will be meeting in the near future. A committee was appointed to look after the devotional period.

Mrs. E. Griffis and Mrs. C. Harry favored with a solo as program for Group 1.

Plans were discussed for the turkey supper to be held on Wednesday night, October 17, also for a banquet for which the W.A. is catering on October 24.

Group 3 had a sale of home-cooking, handiwork and vegetables from which they cleared $17.

Group 2 served refreshments.

Bringing Up Baby

NOTES COLLECTED BY Mrs. Baby Expert

Variations on a theme. Keeping baby's fingernails sometimes presents a bit of a problem since infants usually keep their little fists tightly clenched. Two mothers suggest these solutions:

1. Baby can directly after a bath-bug when baby is drowsy, his fingers relaxed. Run baby's fingernails through a bit of baby powder to guards slipping area.

2. For a slip bug baby place baby on your lap in front of a mirror. Self-reflected glory is absorbing.

* * *

Case of approved are usually the case when you offer baby Gerber Strained Bananas. That's because they have a natural banana flavor, a delicate appetizing color and a creamy, creamy-smooth texture. Doctors specify ripe bananas as an early food not only because babies like the taste, but because they provide energy-giving carbohydrates in easy-to-digest form. Only fully ripe fruit is used—and ripening is controlled for uniformity.

* * *

Knit-nots. When buying sweaters for baby choose tight weaves. They're less likely to snag, won't catch on baby's fingernails, hold their shape better.

* * *

Shining idea dept. If baby's nursing bottles acquire a cloudy look, a tablespoon of vinegar or lemon juice added to the sterilizing water will restore original sparkle.

Christmas care for you-know-who. Not a bit too soon to order a GERBER BABY DOLL for your darling. It's a $3.75 VALUE for only $1.00 and six Gerber labels or cereal box tops. This charming 12 inch replica of the Gerber Baby drinks, wets, sits up—has movable arms and legs. Soft vinyl head and rubber body makes it completely safe. Comes with play accessories. Whipcord wool in a rich dark brown shade is used smartly for a separate waist-length jacket and flared, unpressed pleated skirt. With the suit is a white embroidered cotton blouse. The cropped jacket is chic with bright brass buttons marking the double-breasted line. The skirt has slit pockets in front. A good deal for the career girls, and a nice number for the campus.

Soroptimist Club Enjoys Talk By U.N. Representative

Soroptimist International of Belleville held its regular dinner meeting recently in Laithner's Town Room.

In the absence of the president, Miss Helen Symons, Miss Lillian Comrtyea presided.

Two delightful solos were contributed by Mrs. Newman, accompanied by Mrs. Bowes at the piano.

As a special guest, Miss Ann Johnston, of Trenton, was introduced by Mrs. A. Maxer. Miss Johnston is a commercial specialist at the new Trenton high school. She is also a member of the Business and Professional Women's Club in Trenton and is now the Ontario representative on the United Nations Committee.

Miss Johnston gave a vivid, intelligent and informative address on her recent visit to the United Nations in New York, challenging the members of the club to a greater interest in national affairs.

Miss Johnston used a projector and screen to bring to her audience pictures of the United Nations building, for which she received an appreciative "thank you" from the club members.

Soroptimist International has representatives in the United Nations and the clubs make regular contributions to U.N.E.S.C.O.

October is Founder's Month, and each Soroptimist Club commemorates this milestone with appropriate observance, designed to bring to the public an awareness of Soroptimist aims and objects through the activities of Soroptimists throughout the world.

Mayor Jane Forrester has graciously accepted an honorary membership in the Belleville club.

Miss Gertrude Moore, president of Soroptimist International of Toronto, presented a plaque to Dorothy Machem, superintendent of Women's College Hospital to mark the furnishing of a four-bed ward in the new wing.

U.S. AIDS TAX AIDS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service has ruled out that the out-of-pocket expense of persons giving volunteer service to the Red Cross, churches, and hospitals are deductible in figuring income taxes. This would include the cost of buying and laundering uniforms used by nurses' aides and other Red Cross volunteers, the IRS said.

Three New Guide Commissioners Added to Assoc.

Three new commissioners were introduced to the local Association of Guides at the annual meeting which was held today in Bridge Street United Church. With the Belleville area divided into three sections, each with its own commission the local Association felt that the 1956-57 season was off to a good start.

Mrs. D. Settle will be responsible for the area designated "Belleville East," Mrs. H. Hagerd, "Belleville South-east and Mrs. M. C. Ryan, "Belleville North-east."

In reporting on the work already accomplished and that in the planning stage, the commissioners gave evidence of the enthusiasm and energy each is giving to her office.

Mrs. Bradford, retiring chairman of the local Association, pointed out that while the new arrangement would relieve the Association of much of the work and worry of the past years when there was no commissioner, there was still much that the Association could and should do to alleviate the onerous duties of these busy women. The local Association needs the support of every parent and local citizen who is interested in Guiding in order to give the best moral and financial support to the work of the Commissioners.

The work of the local Association is continuous with reports made to the membership at three meetings each year. These meetings are held on the third Monday of the months of October, January and May. Mrs. Bradford urged all those present to spread the word that attendance at these meetings is one tangible way in which parents may show their interest in and appreciation of the work done by the commissioners and Guides.

INTERNATIONAL WEEK

Captain Gerow gave an interesting account of the International Weekend held in Watertown in June when she and six Guides from this city spent a weekend in profitable study and entertainment as guests of the Girl Scouts of Watertown.

Reports from summer Guide camps revealed the work accomplished and the fellowship enjoyed by Guides who participate in this phase of Guiding. Kerrie Lee Meagher reported on Doe Lake Camp, Jeanne Belair on the local senior camp, and Mary Ann Cork on the local junior camp.

The members of the Association were delighted and impressed by the vivacious accounts given by the three Guides.

Mrs. Bradford referred to the splendid work done by Captain Samuels, who acts as Commandant of the local camps. She emphasized, as did the convener of the camp committee later in her report, the close supervision, the excellent standard of cleanliness and the good work accomplished on various badges.

ANNUAL REPORTS

Annual reports were presented by officers of the Association.

Mrs. D. Stewart, the treasurers' report; Mrs. D. Durno, the camp convener; Mrs. A. Lewis, the badge secretaries.

Mrs. Durno presented the report of the nominating committee, which was accepted by the Association. The following officers were installed:

Hon chairman, Mrs. R. D. Arnott; past chairman, Mrs. G. A. Bradford; recording secretary, Mrs. E. McArthur; treasurer, Mrs. A. Wynne; badge secretary, Mrs. A. Lewis; social convener, Mrs. C. Miller; camp convener, Mrs. Rae Clark; scrap book, Mrs. R. D. Arnott, press reporter, Mrs. G. A. Bradford and members at large: Mrs. M. O'Connor, Mrs. William Van Tassel, Mrs. J. Dyble, Mrs. C. Durno and one member to be added.

Mrs. Stewart took the chair and affirmed her intentions to support and further the work of the Guides and Brownies of this city.

RANGERS COMPANY FORMED

The immediate plans for such assistance included those of the formation of a Rangers Company and a training course for Patrol Leaders which it is hoped will be held in January. With a further reminder to members that the third Monday of October, January and May were the dates of the regular meetings, the meeting adjourned.

CWL Wants Ambassador At Vatican

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The national Catholic Women's League, noting that there is no Canadian representative at the Vatican, resolved Tuesday to petition the federal government to appoint an ambassador to it. The league, convening here during the League's general meeting, last year, stated that such an appointment is part of Canada's responsibility as a leading country of the free world.

It also agreed to forward to the federal government a resolution opposing any move by the department of external affairs to endorse the Peiping government as the official government of China.

The league said that the department has said Canadian public opinion is demanding recognition of the Communist government. The league, however, felt public opinion was exactly the opposite.

Another petition to be forwarded to the federal government suggests that the age limit for children's allowances be increased to 18 from 16. The extension is necessary, the CWL said, because children are being detained longer in school and because the cost of living is rising.

Temperance Of Youth, Talk At W.A. Meet

The regular meeting of College Hill W.A. was held in the church hall last Wednesday with 14 members and one guest present.

Mrs. Leona Bailey read the minutes of the last meeting and conducted the roll call and Mrs. Doris Price gave a satisfactory treasurer's report.

Business discussions were next in order. Plans were made for the rummage sale held recently and the bazaar, which will be held in the church hall in November.

Fifteen sick calls were reported.

The devotional was conducted by Mesdames West, Thompson and Greenwood. Psalm 65 was read by Mrs. Greenwood. Mrs. Jean Thompson gave an appropriate reading, "The Goodness of God," and a poem, "God's Gift."

Mrs. West favored with a solo.

After the singing of a hymn, Mrs. Farnsworth closed the devotional period with prayer.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker, Miss Barnum, was introduced by Mrs. Farnsworth. Miss Barnum, who was a leader during the summer for the "Youth Temperance Council" at Cosmocon Lake Camp for Children, gave an interesting talk on "The temperance of youth."

Mrs. Bailey thanked Mrs. Farnsworth.

A social hour was enjoyed with refreshments being served by Mesdames Watson, Rodgers and Vandervoort.

Women's Activities

ST. JOHN'S W.A.

TWEED — The W.M.S. of St. John's United Church, Tweed, held its October thanksoffering meeting in the church parlors last Thursday with ladies from the Evening Auxiliary of St. Andrew's Presbyterian and St. James' Anglican W.A. as guests.

The president, Mrs. P. C. Barnett, opened the meeting with "The Church's One Foundation," followed by prayer.

Mrs. Carman Aiton led in an impressive worship service and general thanksgiving read in unison. Mrs. S. G. Way read passages of Scripture from 2nd and 3rd chapters of Ephesians.

The offering was received and dedicated by Mrs. W. K. Pace.

Mrs. Lincoln Elliott introduced the speaker, Mrs. Pierce Jones of Picton, literature secretary of the Belleville Presbytery, who gave an interesting talk, displaying various books for study.

A fine film, "Decision in Thailand" was shown.

Refreshments and a pleasant social half hour followed.

Youth for Christ Holds Rally in Masonic Temple

On Saturday night the regular Youth for Christ rally was held in the Masonic Temple, under the direction of Mr. Jim Blackwood. The song service was conducted by Mr. Ernie Belch, with Miss Linda Pritchard at the piano, with the congregation joining enthusiastically into the singing of many choruses and hymns, including "Love Lifted Me" and "Jesus Saves." Prayer was led by Mr. Nelson Wynston of Toronto.

Three talented local boys provided two enjoyable instrumental numbers. Mr. Douglas Stark played a violin selection, "Make Me a Blessing," and the Daniel Brothers rendered a trumpet duet, "Rock of Ages."

The slate of coming events was announced by Mr. Blackwood and promises some fine entertainment for the young people of Belleville. A "Funspiration," to be held at the "Y" on next week will also feature Mr. Ed. Prosser, a popular young man in Y.F.C. circles. Of special interest was the coming on November 10th of the film "The Story of John Wesley."

The Rev. George Thropmorton of the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, introduced to the congregation a young man, recently converted to Christ through the showing of "Mr. Texas", at the Brampton Reformatory. This young man gave a stirring testimony of what Christ has done for him and stated that he is now attending a Bible College in Toronto.

"EASTWARD TO ASIA"

"Eastward to Asia," the latest film to be released by the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, was then shown. This film is a documentary travelogue of Dr. Graham's recently completed 50,000 mile tour of India, Manila, Formosa, Japan, Hawaii and the Philippines.

Everywhere the results were the same; in India a congregation of 100,000 gathered in one service to hear the Gospel; in Korea 60,000 sat on the ground for the same purpose, and in Manila out of 35,000 listeners, 6,000 persons responded to Dr. Graham's invitation to publicly confess Christ as Saviour, the largest number of converts ever recorded in a single service.

In summing up, Billy Graham stated that although there are cultural and racial differences, affection, a smile and the Gospel of Christ arouse the same response everywhere. The Bible says if Christ is lifted up, He would draw all men unto Himself and Dr. Billy Graham has proven this fact.

This film sent each listener away with a new appreciation of what the gospel of Christ meant to a people whose culture is separated from their own by centuries of time and thousands of miles.

New Members Received Into Edith Cavell Lodge

Edith Cavell Lodge No. 648, L.A. to R. of R.T., held the regular monthly meeting recently in Engineers' Hall, Pine Street, with the president Vera Reynolds presiding.

After the opening ceremony, the officers assembled the short form of initiation and welcome into the lodge two new members Mrs. Ruth Green and Mrs. Emily Love.

A short business meeting followed where final arrangements were made for the fall tea and bazaar.

A social hour and refreshments were enjoyed.

Girl Is Kept In Wooden Cage For Ten Years

HARRIMAN, Tenn. (AP)—Roane County authorities disclosed Tuesday a 13-year-old girl has been living in a small wooden cage in her home near here for the last 10 years. The cage is reported made of wooden slats and about three feet square.

County Judge Elmer Ehlen said he and other officials had sought unsuccessfully to get the girl admitted to the state institution for mentally retarded children near Donelson.

"I spent two hours at Donelson about two weeks ago," Ehlen said. "They told me they had been for only about 1,200 patients, and that there were 1,300 applications for those beds."

The girl weighs only 30 pounds, the judge said.

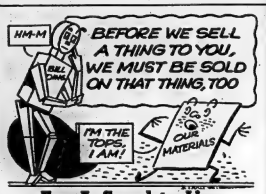
The child—identified by Ehlen only as "Jeannie"—is one of 13 children in a family living in the Swan Pond community. The children range in age from a few months to 15 years.

The father works at odd jobs here. The mother is ill.

The mother said Jeannie became ill when she was two. The child never talked again, the mother related.

Steel Producers Get Big Orders

NEW YORK (AP) — Hard-pressed steel producers trying to keep up with the demand for steel are beginning to get the expected big orders from automobile manufacturers this week, says Iron Age, national metalworking weekly.



Mills in at least one large producing centre report that major auto companies want 100 per cent of their normal tonnage of sheet steel for December, the magazine adds.

Detroit has been playing it close to the vest this year, Iron Age says, and when the buying public gets its first good look at the new models, the flood gates may swing open.

Even without auto orders, the industry has been operating at capacity and above to keep pace with demand, Iron Age says.

WINS AWARD

TORONTO (CP) — Denise Assteel, 11, received an award from the American Veterinary Medical Association for outstanding acts of kindness to animals during the last year. Denise, out on a hike, retrieved a three - legged dog, owned by Toronto bandleader Denny Vaughan, from a ravine.

GOODMAN'S STORE FOR MEN — 307 FRONT ST.

Trade Minister Howe Warns Americans Balance of Trade Will Not Always Favor U.S.

MILWAUKEE, (CP) — American businessmen have been told by Canadian Trade Minister Howe they should not take it for granted that Canada will continue to buy more from the United States than it exports to that country.

Speaking here Tuesday to the Milwaukee Association of Commerce, the 70-year-old American-born minister said American exporters should remember that Canadians can buy only if they have an equal opportunity to sell.

Mr. Howe was referring to Canada's growing trade deficit with the U.S which reached a record $218,000,000 in the first eight months of 1956. The eight-month figure was $364,000,000 higher than in the corresponding period of 1955.

Americans, he said, take it for granted that Canada will continue to buy every year $1,000,000,000 more from the U.S than Americans have to Canada. They also took it for granted they would continue to be paid in Canadian dollar raw materials while placing high tariffs against Canadian imports and threatening further restrictions.

He said he was not stating that Canada is about to retaliate by raising barriers to American imports.

"It is just that I am convinced that Americans who sell goods in Canada and appreciate the value of the Canadian market would do well to remind themselves more often that Canada is a separate nation, not a state of the union, a nation which in the long run can import only as much as it exports."

Referring to large stocks of wheat in both countries and the U.S wheat-disposal program, he said the problem could be solved by close consultation between the two governments. He was opposed to panic methods.

"There is, in the Canadian view, nothing to be gained by one country attempting to dump its surplus problems onto the other. This can only have the effect of making the whole problem worse.

"I believe that we in Canada have practised what we preach. Our wheat has been sold for Canadian currency, which, as you know, is as hard as the United States dollar; already great strides there has been no subsidization of production or export sales."

Queen Joins Chorus Against Soggy Summer

CRAWFORD, Scotland (Reuters)—One more voice has been added to the chorus of complaints about Britain's soggy summer this year—that of the Queen.

She gracefully rebuked the unseasonable rain when she officially opened a new reservoir near here Tuesday.

"Few in my life live in these islands, blessed as they are with the mild and singularly varied climate of the Gulf Stream, it is often hard to realize that there could ever be a shortage of water anywhere," the Queen said.

Then she added: "After a summer such as we have just undergone, we may wonder—as the rain comes remorselessly down—how we have to spend so much time, money and material on its conservation."

West York Votes Thursday to Elect Member

TORONTO (CP)—Electors in the Ontario provincial riding of York West go to the polls Thursday in a by-election to fill the legislature seat left vacant by the sudden death this summer of Elmer Bradden.

There are three candidates: Arthur Nagels, 38, Liberal; Leslie Rowntree, 42, Progressive Conservative; and Lynn Williams, 22, CCF.

The Progressive Conservatives took the seat at each of the last two provincial general elections.

It has been a quiet campaign. Each candidate has been helped by his party's provincial leader. Premier Frost spoke at a reception for Mr. Rowntree. Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver and CCF leader Donald MacDonald each spoke at public meetings on behalf of his party's candidate.

This is the second provincial by-election since the 1955 general election. The Progressive Conservatives retained the seat in Renfrew South. Standing in the House now is PCs 83, Liberals 10, Liberal-Labor 1, CCF, 2, Vacant 1; total 98.

NEEDED RECORDING

TORONTO (CP) — Eighteen-year-old Joseph Crouchman was remanded a week for sentence after admitting the theft of a tape recorder he borrowed to record a speech on juvenile delinquency. He pawned the machine for $50.

FORMER BLONDE WINS WORLD BEAUTY TITLE IN LONDON

A brunette, who admitted she was really a blonde, won the Miss World beauty title in London, England, in competition with 13 other girls. Petra Shurmann, No. 1, a 20-year-old West German model, was judged ahead of Betty Lane Cherry, No. 2, of the U.S.; Rina Weiss, No. 3, of Israel, and Mildrdil Tokura, No. 4 of Japan. Miss Schurmann's dimensions are 36-20-33. She fainted when crowned but revived in time to receive a $500 cheque and keys to a red sports car. (Central Press Canadian).

Vice-Presidential Candidates Carry Load in Drive for Votes

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower and Democrat Adlai Stevenson swing into new campaign territory today after letting the vice-presidential candidates carry the major load in Tuesday's drive for votes.

Vice-President Richard Nixon, speaking in Buffalo, said Stevenson's policies "would increase the chances of war."

And Senator Estes Kefauver, Stevenson's running mate in the Nov. 6 U.S. election, said in a radio-TV broadcast Tuesday night that there was "a corruption" among former Eisenhower administration officials.

The two vice-presidential candidates led the campaign attacks as President Eisenhower prepared to enter the political battle for Washington, State and Stevenson began a whistlestop tour of Michigan, Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana. Eisenhower will speak in Detroit and a Seattle rally tonight.

Meanwhile, Stevenson was reported standing firm on his controversial proposal that the United States take the lead in an attempt to end testing of hydrogen weapons.

Eisenhower spoke in St. Paul and Minneapolis Tuesday, and an aide later reported him optimistic about Republican chances of carrying Minnesota.

Eisenhower made only a passing reference to the H-bomb issue Tuesday but Nixon said the U.S. would be "taking a fearful risk" in electing Stevenson if he persists in the stand he has taken.

Nixon said "in a nutshell," the difference between the Eisenhower and Stevenson positions is:

"Mr. Stevenson says we should stop our tests if we can get other nations to sign agreements that they will do so.

"President Eisenhower says that we should stop our tests only if we can get an agreement which is backed up by foolproof inspection."

Nixon said "Mr. Stevenson's policy of military weakness and naive reliance on Communist promises would increase the chances of war."

Kefauver said more top administration officials "have been involved in corruption than under any administration since the Republican administration of General Grant." He listed three Eisenhower appointees who resigned after questions were raised about improper conduct of their offices.

"It's bad news, Madam—your husband will be the victim of foul play!"

"Will I be acquitted?"

Nazi Spies Got Roosevelt's Message to 'Winnie' in Week

LONDON (Reuters) — German spies delivered into Hitler's hands details of a top-secret personal message from President Roosevelt to Winston Churchill within a week of its receipt in London.

The message, according to captured German foreign ministry documents published here today, concerned the handing over to Britain of 50 used American destroyers, the supplying of 500 anti-aircraft guns and ammunition and steel deliveries.

U.S. Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy delivered the message to Prime Minister Churchill May 16, 1940—19 months before the United States entered the Second World War.

One of the main points made by Roosevelt, according to the documents, was that the American fleet at that time was "concentrated at Hawaii and it must in any case remain for the moment."

The documents published today cover the period from March 18 to June 22, 1940. Seven volumes already have been published in result in a penalty of $20.

New Scale of Fines

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto council announced Tuesday the city's scale of parking penalties will become effective on Metropolitan roads Jan. 1.

The council controls roads in Toronto and 12 area municipalities.

Among the new fines are $10 for stopping on no-stopping roads during rush hours, and $5 for parking on a no-parking route during rush hours.

Council chairman Fred Gardiner said failure to pay a fine and to respond to two summonses could accord with a 1946 Anglo-American agreement.

The German correspondence published today reports on plans for sabotage in the United States, planting of agents within the government in Washington, refusal of the American press to be "bought" and many other details of the Nazi campaign in America.

Worst Traffic Record in Toronto Area

BARRIE (CP) — Attorney-General Roberts of Ontario said Tuesday the Toronto area, with 72 fatalities, has the worst traffic record in the province for the first nine months of 1956.

Speaking to No. 7 branch of the Ontario Provincial Police Association, he said there were 709 fatalities in Ontario to the end of September.

Essex and Kent counties were credited with 37 each, Wentworth had 32, Sudbury, 29, Carleton, 27, and Peel, 24.

One person was being killed on Ontario highways every eight hours and "eight to ten times as many are being injured."

GOOD FIGURING

REGINA (CP) — School superintendent C. C. How last January told public school members that 10,942 pupils would be enrolled in city public schools in the new term in September. The actual total: 10,853.

UN Security Council Talks About Suez Brought Results 'As Good as Expected'—Lloyd

LONDON (Reuters) — Foreign Minister Selwyn Lloyd said today that he and United States State Secretary Dulles agreed the result of the Security Council talks on the Suez Canal was "as good a one as could be expected under the circumstances."

Lloyd, who was interviewed at London airport on his return with Prime Minister Eden from overnight talks in Paris, was asked "Do you think the American attitude over Suez has rather let us down over this crisis?"

He replied "With regard to our work in the Security Council I cooperated closely with Mr. Dulles, and I think we both regarded the result as good a one as could be expected in the circumstances."

The sudden trip of the British statesmen Tuesday to confer with Premier Guy Mollet and Foreign Minister Christian Pineau ended early today after hours of discussions.

Eden told reporters at the airport in Paris his "very full discussions" in Paris will be resulted in "close agreement" on the vital waterway and other Middle East matters.

In Cairo today, Wing Commander Aly Sabry, political adviser to Egyptian President Nasser said Britain, France and Egypt would hold "further exploratory talks" on the Suez crisis within the next 10 days, probably in Geneva.

A joint communique issued shortly after midnight said Britain and France had resolved to adhere to the requirements on the canal's future use unanimously approved in the Security Council last week.

These requirements, which took the form of six principles, were contained in the first part of a resolution under consideration by the Security Council.

The communique, noting "with regret" the six principles were "already being questioned in certain Egyptian quarters," said Britain and France were resolved to stand by the second part of the resolution — international operation of the canal.

The second part of the resolution, which received nine votes but was vetoed by Russia, was based on proposals for international control advanced by the 18-nation London conference in August.

The communique also said the leaders had a general exchange of views on other problems in the Middle East and decided to maintain constant contact on these questions. "In the spirit of the closest Anglo-French friendship."

A spokesman for the British delegation in Paris Tuesday night denied that Eden and Mollet were "hatching a conspiracy" to send a test convoy, including an Israeli ship through the canal.

Sir George Young denied reports published in Cairo in the mass-circulation newspaper Al Misr Masr and the semi-official Al Gomhouria that such a move was discussed. Egypt has refused to let Israeli shipping through the canal because she contends a state of war still exists between the two countries.

Lutheran Church Abolishes Ban On Remarriage

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—The United Lutheran Church Tuesday abolished its long-standing rigid ban against second marriages and adopted a more flexible approach to it on spiritual reform.

It was for divorce wherever the circumstances, the church bluntly called it sinful and cited Jesus' "God's order."

But the denomination's convention, representing North America's largest Lutheran body, declared that God forgives sin and divorced persons should get another chance at marriage if their heart is right.

Acting after long — and sometimes deeply theological — argument, delegates overwhelmingly voted out the old rule approving remarriage only for the "innocent party" to divorce granted for adultery or desertion.

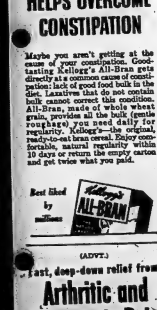
ASKS RETENTION

Dr. F. R. Knubel of New York, in a fervent plea for retention of the old rule, said:

"Christianity has been the great heart voice behind marriage purity down through the years and has been because Christianity had a law on this particular thing."

He said the new approach meant that if a person said "I'm sorry" about his past marital breaks and that was good enough to let him marry again."

SHOULD BE FORGIVE



Bet Rev. Martin J. Heinecken, professor of Lutheran Theological Seminary, Philadelphia, declared that "if God forgives, we also should forgive."

The new policy sets detailed requirements for remarriage including inner reform, repentance for the guilt of the past divorce, meeting obligations to the new partner and a Christian attitude toward the new marriage.

The statement adopted "for guidance" of pastors and congregations, also approves birth control and the planning of the size of families in accordance with ability to provide.

Businessmen and Prosperous People Asked to Support Schools

QUEBEC (CP) — Businessmen and prosperous people in general should be willing to put up money to support their freedom, Dr. Watson Kirkconnell, president of Acadia University, Wolfville, N.S., said today in an address to the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

Universities are in grave financial difficulties, he said, and if the survival of these centres of intellectual freedom were really of importance, why should not businessmen come to the rescue of university budgets?

If every firm in Canada would contribute one per cent of its gross profit each year to a fund for Canadian universities, the benefit would be incalculable.

ARE NATIONAL CENTRES

Universities, properly maintained, were the national centres in which freedom of thought was most clearly and consciously preserved, and if there was to be a free and fresh flow of valid ideas, it was preeminently at the universities that this would be found and maintained.

Dr. Kirkconnell spoke on a panel entitled "Economics, education and the businessman," presided over by Maj.-Gen. R. H Keffler, vice-president, public relations, Bell Telephone of Canada.

Other speakers included Capt. Joseph Jeffery of London, Ont., president of London Life Insurance Company.

The comments were contained in texts released to the press in advance of delivery.

MUST BE ACTIVE

Captain Jeffery said the chamber could not survive on policy alone. Its strength lay in its wide membership, representing all shades of thought, and if it was to survive in the small villages and rural communities it must do more than pass resolutions. It must have an active program that would not only hold members but get new ones.

As tasks for local chambers, Capt. Jeffery suggested

Sell free enterprise in an intelligent way in their own communities; attack such things as traffic control, the parking problem and room clearance; get interested in good local government; ensure that business is kept on a high plane; encourage, as the London chamber plans to do, visits between Quebec and Ontario cities.

Kansas Mother Kills Two Sons

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Mrs. Mary Ann Gamache, 34, was held in jail today and Sedgwick County lawyer Warner Moore said she acknowledged stabbing two of her three little boys to death.

Moore said Mrs. Gamache had told him she had not harmed Danny, 7, because he was a good boy.

The double slaying was not discovered until the distraught woman was picked up Tuesday by an officer who found her wandering on railroad tracks about 40 miles from Wichita. She said she planned to throw herself under a train.

15 KILLED

TUNIS (AP) — Fifteen French soldiers were killed and 17 wounded as Algerian fighting spilled over the border into strategically neutral Tunisia Tuesday.

98 Candidates Run for Seats In N.S. Election

HALIFAX (CP) — How best to woo the voters is the all-important question now for 98 candidates in the Nova Scotia election Tuesday, Oct. 30.

Forty-three seats are at stake in a House raised by Liberals for 23 years. Tuesday was nomination day and 43 Liberals, 43 Progressive Conservatives, 11 CCFers and an Independent Liberal filed papers.

The CCF slate of 11 is the minimum to qualify the party for free radio and television time on the CBC—one-quarter of the 43. The party ran 18 in 1953 and elected two.

The CCF 11th nominee entered the field in Annapolis East just before the 2 p.m. nomination deadline. Rev. Murray Best, a Middleton, N.S., Baptist clergyman, opposes Liberal Premier Henry Hicks and a Progressive Conservative.

WOMAN NOMINATED

A lone woman was nominated in Colchester, where a Progressive Conservative leader Robert Stanfield is running. She is Mrs. Margaret Norrie, a Liberal, mother of four children. The Nova Scotia House has never had a woman member.

Premier Hicks, in his first election as government leader, hopes for the seventh Liberal victory since 1933. He took office after Premier Angus L. Macdonald's death in 1954.

The standing in the House at dissolution was Liberal 19, Progressive Conservative 13, CCF two and Labor-Progressive one. Redistribution increased the number of seats to 43 from 37.

Tyendinaga Twp. Council

Members present: Leslie McLaren, reeve; Charles Long, deputy-reeve, and Martin Doyle, Michael Horrigan and Russell Glass, councillors.

Minutes of previous meeting were read and adopted.

It was tentatively agreed that Thurlow maintain boundary road from Tyendinaga 2rd concession north, and Tyendinaga to maintain from Tyendinaga 1st concession to 3rd concession. The necessary by-laws to be drawn up at a later date.

A request from Tyendinaga Municipal Telephone system for loan up to $3,000 was granted by township council. The interest on loan to be at the same rate as that paid by the corporation of the Township of Tyendinaga.

Kenneth Bradshaw was appointed dog-catcher, General expenses for September amounting to $568.03 and road pay sheet of $1,123 were approved and placed on list for payment.

It was noted by sheep valuator, Henry Larkin, that sheep damages to date are slightly higher than at the same time last year.

REMEMBRANCE CHANGED

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's national Remembrance Day service at the National War Memorial Sunday, Nov. 11 will start at 2:30 p.m. EST instead of 10:30 a.m. as in past years, the Canadian Legion announced Tuesday. The change in time has been made because an afternoon ceremony will not conflict with morning church services.

Wartime Premier Of France Hits Soft Suez Policy

PARIS (AP)—Wartime Premier Paul Reynaud Tuesday asked the French government to explain why it failed to prevent the seizure of Egypt to internationalize the Suez Canal.

The man who led France in the unsuccessful defense against the Nazi onslaught sharply criticized the policy Socialist Premier Guy Mollet's cabinet followed in the Suez crisis.

Reynaud was one of the first speakers in a week-long debate on major French problems in the French National Assembly. He said:

"The government must tell us why it did not support to the end of the London conference upon Egypt. Why did it not use force as it said it would."

NO OTHER COURSE

The former premier conceded that once the use of force was eliminated, the only thing to do was to appeal to the UN Security Council. He denounced Egypt's nationalization of the canal as a violation of political morality and international law, and added:

"The more time goes by the greater (Egyptian president) Nasser's victory becomes."

Reynaud's only recommendation for the future action was "to reform our constitution at home and to create a united Europe abroad."

The assembly also heard a bitter attack on U.S. policy by Deputy Jean Legendre of the right-wing Independent party. He called on Mollet to tell the United States that the French people were deeply humiliated by U.S. failure to back France's use of force than by Nasser's nationalizing of the canal.

WAVE OF PACIFISM

Legendre said that the true reason for American failure to go along with a tough policy on the floor is that the United States is prosperous and wants to enjoy its prosperity in peace.

"There is a wave of pacifism there," he said. "Combined with isolationism and colonialism. Any U.S. chief of state, Republican or Democratic, will have to take this into account."

Claim Trinkets Caused Accident

KITCHENER (CP)—Police testified Monday a car involved in a fatal crash with a trolley bus last May had toys, tassels, chains and earrings strung around the windshield.

Maurice Lorbetski, 19, is charged with criminal negligence in connection with the crash in Waterloo May 3, in which Mary McDonald, 22, and Elvin Layman, 24, suffered fatal injuries.

Crown Attorney Harold Manman Monday submitted a toy monkey suspended on elastic as a sample of the objects strung inside Lorbetski's car. He suggested the trinkets obstructed the driver's vision.

The case continues.

You are listening to my report on the deals played in the 3rd international bridge match. In the finals of 256 deals were left the Swedish team in competition with the American team.

You have already heard the bidding on deal number one but may like to know how the stars played it. So, here are the cards again:

NORTH
	♠K 2
	♥7 2
	♦K 7 3
	♣A 9 8 6 5 4

WEST	EAST
♠J 7	♠Q 10 9 5 4 3

♦A Q J 10	♦4
♣J 9 3	♣10 2

SOUTH
♠A 8 6
♥A Q 8 5 3
♦2
♣K Q J 7

In room one the Swedish team was in four hearts by south. The opening west lead was singleton club that dummy ace won. A trump was taken by south's queen finesse and trump ace was cashed.

A trump return was taken by east and a diamond return gave west ace a trick. The diamond return fell to dummy's king when east refused to ruff. So, south sluffed a spade there.

Thereafter, all east got was his trump top and the contract of four hearts took the needed ten tricks. Opponents got the diamond ace and two trump tricks. Nothing else.

In room two the Swedish team was also declarer. But with west four diamonds doubled. Against this the north lead was a heart. South's queen took it and heart ace took a second trick.

Then south led club and ruffed. When this held he shifted to his lone trump. The eightspot played by west was taken with north's king and the club ace return from there was ruffed by west.

After pulling outstanding trumps, declarer finally had to give up two spade tricks and was thus defeated three tricks doubled. Less 100 for honors he lost less than a heart game was worth to south.

With nothing unusual in these plays it is too early to be bored. Both teams had it in hand to perform brilliantly when occasion found it necessary. And you will notice in other deals.

This is only the first of the 56 hands played in the finals. So, hang on until your patience gives out.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was helping ma carry thing home from the market, and some lady stopped going past, saying to me, Well, I guess these days, I imagine bumping into each other more often.

Being a round lady with narrow feet, and ma said, Goodness, I never well of all things.

And she looked at her like some body wondering what to say next, and the lady said, I'm afraid you dont even remember me.

I remember you perfectly, dont be silly, ma said. Your name is on the tip of my tung, but that's as far as I can get if for a moment. It's been a long time, the last we all, she said, and the lady said, That's true, and of course you never were very good at names, even away back then. But still my name is so unusual, or at least it was before I got married and changed it. So stil, a.ter all, she said.

I appriciate your feelings, ma said, I know just how it is when somebody reckonizes your face but that's as far as it goes, she said, and the lady said, Yes, I certainly have the advantage of you, because whatever your name may be now, I know it was Lucinda Spargo in high school. My last name was Dindlepeck, she said.

But I'm not Lucinda Spargo and never was, ma said, and the lady said, Then you couldn't of known Tarantella Dindlepeck and Mervey, we've never met before in our lives. Well, what a coincidens, she said.

And she kept on going and so did we, ma said. Oh dear, I guess we embarrissed there for a while.

No wonder you couldn't think of her name, ma, I said, Anyways, it was fun while it lasted. I said.

142 Old Motion Pictures Being Shown by 7 TV Stations

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—In this current week 142 old motion pictures are being shown by seven television stations in the New York metropolitan area. It is possible for home viewers here to watch movies on one or another channel continuously every day from 9 a.m. until 1.30 a.m. the following morning.

The release of large numbers of films to television is often discussed from the aspect of the film and TV industries. But what, if anything, has been the effect on the viewer?

For some time we've been questioning and listening to numerous viewers on this subject of old films. One's conclusion perhaps sounds serious, yet it is worthy of emphasis.

People watch and enjoy films, no matter how old, which were good at the time of their release. Thus, currently in the New York area, you hear expressions of pleasure at seeing Charles Laughton in The Private Life of Henry VIII, which was released in 1933, and Lloyd Nolan in The House on 92nd Street, released in 1945.

On the other hand, no one seems to have sat with such turkeys as Slim Summerville in I'm From Arkansas and all the bad ones which inevitably are found in a group of 142 films.

SOLD IN BLOCKS

Well, Hollywood and English studios say that the only practicable method of releasing old films to television is by blocks or packages. TV stations have to purchase in that form or not at all — and many have decided that showing old films is the only practicable method of filling all the programming hours in a week and obtaining essential advertising revenues.

It is, in short, good and practicable business. But good business can be a far cry from good entertainment.

Obviously what the business offices either do not know or do not care about is the fact that the public already is doing something about it. For the public is not crazy; it is a great variety of selective human beings. One thing business offices should remember: each human being comes equipped with eyes and ears and a wrist, and the wrist readily turns a dial on a TV set.

ABC HEAD QUITS

NEW YORK (AP)—Robert E. Kintner quit Tuesday as president of the American Broadcasting Company in what was termed a dispute over policies. Kintner, 47, had held the $100,000-a-year post since Dec. 31, 1949. He was the youngest president of any network when he took the job.

Most Promising Candidate For Stardom Is School Teacher

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD. (AP) — Education's loss is Hollywood's gain. The year's most promising candidate for stardom is a handsome actor who was once an honest-to-goodness school teacher in Wisconsin.

The lucky lad is Kerwin Mathews, tall, dark-haired and with flawless diction and a profile right off a Greek coin. He's 30, single at present and on the brink of fame.

Kerwin is starring in Garment Centre, taking the role originally planned for Glen Ford. Before taking off for New York locations, he sat down for his first interview. Here's his story:

Born in Seattle, Wash., he grew up in Janesville, Wis., attended Milton College, served in the air force, returned to Beloit College. That's where he got the acting bug. He worked in Beloit's dinguished little theatre.

Finally he threw caution to the winds and assaulted Hollywood. "I got nowhere," he said. "I found an agent and had auditions all over town, but nobody wanted to hire me."

He was obsessed by the knowledge that Columbia was seeking a lead for Joseph and his Brethren. He felt he could handle it but his agent kept saying the time wasn't ripe to approach Columbia.

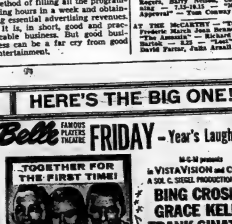
He got a job and on the day he was about to leave for a business trip, the agent called to say, "The time is now."

Kerwin cancelled the trip, auditioned for the role, was tested and signed, just like that.

And was success his? Well, no. Any student of recent Hollywood history recalls the Joseph and his Brethren saga. Rita Hayworth walked out on the picture three days before it was to start. "The script was ready, the sets were built and had to let my hair grow for six months," Kerwin recalled.



Fortunately, he was able to cut his hair for Garment Centre. But he has been told to stand by to give barbers the brush. Joseph and his Brethren is being planned for another go at Columbia.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

THE COACH SPEAKS

"Belleville wants a good hockey club—a contending team that will hold its own with the rest of the league. It is my job to provide it—and I'm going to do it, if it is humanly possible."

That was Coach Bep Guidolin talking, and from the look on the former National Hockey Leaguer's face, he wasn't cracking jokes.

From a coach's point of view, there is no sentiment in hockey. Guidolin knows that from experience. "I may lose some friends in Belleville before I am satisfied with the player strength—but the job comes first, and that is all that matters," he said.

Guidolin made it plain to this reporter that he is no respecter of persons. The Belleville McFarlands will be composed of players who show the required ability. Others who do not, will be cut regardless of where they come from, who they played with or records on paper. It is their ability to produce on the ice that will count.

Bep and Les Douglas, manager-coach of the Kingston senior "A" entry have perhaps tougher jobs than the coaches of the remaining squads.

Whitby, Cornwall and Pembroke had more or less a nucleus of a senior "A" club, but the two central clubs have had to start from scratch, more or less.

Unless, as Guidolin says, a club has a nucleus of players of an upper bracket before it makes the jump, a formidable record is hard. That is the problem that faces Belleville and Kingston in particular.

"Once that's done," he said, "then it is not so hard next year, and the years after."

"This is a fine city and I like it very much. I would like to stay here but at the same time my job is to provide a good hockey club, one that will be a contender—and I intend to do that very thing."

He is satisfied with most of the player material, but would like another good defence player and possibly two others. He knows a lot of hockey in his time, for he played with and against them and knows what they can do once they hit their stride.

The coach was satisfied, he said, with their performance in Kitchener when they held the famous Greenshirts, Allan Cup winners, to an 8-7 score. The main feature about the game, he said, was the fact the McFarlands went out and scored seven goals against the Dutchies on their own familiar ice and surroundings. The McFarlands were the first club to play the Greenshirts where the latter were at full strength. That came from genial Ernie Tomasi, manager of the Kitchener club.

As one of the French Canadian players quipped on that long bus safari back home: "Dat's a good score. Hell, dat's five more dan dose Russians could score against 'em."

Guidolin is working hard to whip his team into shape for their all-important first game here on Friday night against the reputedly strong Cornwall Chevrolets. Manager Ray Miron and playing coach Gerry Plamondon have reportedly gathered a powerful organization together but this fact does not given Guidolin any qualms.

"They won't be any stronger than the Kitchener Greenshirts and the way this club skated and played against them proves that we have a good all-round potential in the McFarlands. I know a lot of the Chevvies and our club will give them the battle of their lives."

Lucien Gilbert, the forward who nearly breezed Bob Senior's noggin' into Market Square last Friday with one of his "blazers" has a shot that nearly equals that of the famous Roy Conacher, Guidolin says.

This department can see Gilbert's first goal in Kitchener —and Bob Senior hasn't seen that puck yet. Nor did he see the second one as it whizzed by him. It fairly smokes as it travels eastwards and Guidolin believes "Gilbert" will score plenty before the playoff begins around.

He was reticient when questioned about the various players. Not he did say he liked Keith MacDonald's "never-quit" style. Besides that the Prince Edward county winger scored two clean-cut goals in Kitchener.

Mustangs Stress Defence Tactics

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — More stress is being laid this week on defensive tactics of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs as they prepare for Saturday's Senior Intercollegiate Football Union game against Varsity Blues at Toronto.

Head coach Johnny Metras said Tuesday a top defence will be needed to stop Varsity's rookie backfield, masterminded by quarterback Larry Joyce and featuring pile-driving halfback Tim Reid, a great ground gainer.

"We've got two teams right now," said Metras, a bit sadly. "The one that beat McGill two weeks ago, and the one that lost to Queen's last Saturday. I'm trying to figure it out."

BACK FROM RICK LIST

Neil Desborough, the speedy little halfback who has been sidelined from the start of the season with injuries, is expected to be ready for action against Toronto.

Trying for more speed in his backfield, Metras said fullback Frankie Caputo will see more play. The Sault Ste. Marie sophomore carried the ball well at Kingston.

For the Toronto game, Doug MacKenzie will move into the wingback spot, with Keith MacDonald going to the intermediate ranks.

TIGER-CAT REUNION

HAMILTON (CP) — About 120 former Hamilton Tiger-Cat football stars, one of whom played on the 1897 team, are expected to attend an old-timers' reunion here Oct. 27. The oldest grid great expected is octogenarian S. S. Seppio Du Moulin, the last surviving member of the 1897 team.

Adams Crew in First Spot By Value of Three Straight; Meet Leafs 'Crew Cuts' Next

Canadian Press Staff Writer

General manager Jack Adams figures his Detroit Red Wings got off to a fine start in the National Hockey League this season because they didn't have to worry about the league's all-star game.

Each year the defending Stanley Cup champions oppose the league's all-stars in a pre-season engagement. For the first time in three seasons the Wings were not the stars' opponents this year. Montreal Canadiens, who ended Detroit's two-year championship streak last spring, took on the all-stars Oct. 9 and battled to a 1-1 draw.

"In the past when we had to build a team for the all-star game we had to step on it," Adams says. "This season that pressure was off and we were able to analyze, juggle and experiment a good deal more than in other years."

Wings are in first place with three victories in as many games for six points. Toronto Maple Leafs are tied with Canadiens for second spot with four points while Chicago Black Hawks hold their usual cellar position, winless in three games.

Coach Phil Watson, who watched his Rangers get beaten 3-1 by Wings last Sunday, agrees that Detroit is stronger.

"Maybe it's Detroit's year again," he says. "These Wings are in perfect shape. I watched them on television against Toronto Saturday and they really outclassed the Leafs. They outclassed us, too."

Rangers nearly beat out Detroit last season for second spot, losing it by two points.

The Blueshirts open their home season tonight against Boston in the only game. Leafs are at Detroit and Hawks visit Montreal Thursday night.

Wings will be without right winger Bill Dineen and Alex Delvecchio when they tangle with the Leafs. Dineen suffered a knee injury last Thursday and will be out for another week.

Delvecchio isn't expected back for at least seven more weeks. He has a fractured ankle. Adams announced Monday that Billy McNeill has been recalled from Edmonton Flyers of the Western Hockey League.

Post-Season Moves Started By Baseball Major Leagues

NEW YORK (AP) — Eddie Stanky, out as manager of Minneapolis Millers of the American Association, won't be long idle waiting for him with New York Giants—unless Giant brass has a change of heart.

Horace Stoneham, president of the Giants, quickly scotched reports Tuesday that the fiery ex-Giant infielder would join manager Bill Rigney as a coaching aide.

"There's nothing to such talk," Stoneham said.

The Dallas club of the Texas League announced it had granted John (Red) Davis his release so he could accept another Sunday as Minneapolis manager next season.

The club said Davis, who had managed Dallas for five years, was offered the Minneapolis job by Carl Hubbell, director of the Giants' farm system. The Giants own the Minneapolis team and have a working agreement with Dallas.

SEVERAL PLAYER SHIFTS

Meanwhile, there was a lot of post-season baseball action in the major leagues as clubs brought up talent from farm clubs and shuffled some old hands.

Here were the moves.

Glen Hall Looks Good To Detroiters

By RON ANDREWS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—A big reason why Detroit Red Wings hold a lofty position in the National Hockey League standings is Glenn Hall, their stingy netminder.

Wings are on top of the league and Hall is the leader in the efficiency ratings for the goaltenders. After the first weekend of the season, Hall holds a .974 average, having blocked 75 of 78 shots aimed at him.

Right behind is Lorne (Gump) Worsley of the New York Rangers. Worsley racked up a shutout against Chicago Black Hawks in his first outing but Red Wing snipers put two pucks behind him in the last two games. Gump stopped 64 of 66 shots directed at him.

Third in the ratings is Jacques Plante, last year's Vezina Trophy winner. The Montreal Canadiens' puck stopper, like Worsley, picked up a shutout in his first game of the season and was then beaten twice by Boston Bruins. Bruins won the game 3-2 but their final goal was scored into an empty net after Plante had been removed. Plante picked out 30 of 31 shots for a .967 average.

Al Rollins of the Hawks let in seven of 90 shots for a .922 average. Terry Sawchuk, worst enemy to opposing forwards a few seasons ago when he was with Detroit, is fifth with .918 average. He stopped 89 of 97 shots.

In last spot is Ed Chadwick, youthful rookie of Toronto Maple Leafs, with a record of 63 stops in 79 tries and an even .900 average. The Leaf team has actually been scored upon about times but Chadwick was removed in favor of an extra forward and a goal only scored while he was on the bench.

MUNGER ON WAIVERS

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirates Tuesday asked waivers on pitcher George (Red) Munger, 38-year-old right-handed pitcher who won three and lost four with the Pirates this year. The Pirates said waivers were asked for the purpose of giving Munger his unconditional release.

Mickey Wins Slugging Title 'Duke' Takes National Crown

By BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Mickey Mantle won the American League slugging championship in 1956 with the highest average in 15 years. The New York Yankees' centre fielder piled up 376 total bases in 533 times at bat for a .705 mark.

Figures compiled by The Associated Press today also show Duke Snider of Brooklyn Dodgers was the National League's paceSetter. He edged Milwaukee's Joe Adcock—.598 to .597.

The Duke has the second for both Mantle and Snider. Mickey was the top man in 1955 with .611 while Snider was high in 1953 when he nipped Eddie Mathews of Milwaukee by a narrow margin—.627 to .6269.

Mantle, who also led the junior circuit in batting, runs batted in and home runs, numbered 79 extra-base hits among his 188 safeties last season. In addition to his 52 four-baggers, the 24-year-old switch-hitter had 22 doubles and five triples.

Ted Williams of Boston Red Sox, runnerup to Mantle in '56 with a .603 average, was the last player to have a better than .705 slugging mark. He finished with .733 in 1941.

Only six other players have slugged as high as .700. Babe Ruth of the Yankees did it nine times, Jimmy Foxx of the Red Sox and Philadelphia Athletics three, Rogers Hornsby of St. Louis Cards twice, and Lou Gehrig of the Yanks, Stan Musial of the Cards and Hack Wilson of Chicago Cubs each reached .700 once. Ruth holds the record—.847 in 1920.

Yogi Berra of the Yankees and Stuart Wilson of Detroit wound up in a third-place deadlock this year. Both showed .534 marks.

Snider, the National League's leader in home runs with 43, also topped the number of official times at bat.

Mighty 'Swaps' Out of Danger Won't Be Destroyed,—Trainer

CAMDEN, N.J (AP)—The great Swaps, a little uncomfortable from a leg injury he incurred in a fall in a sting and standing only on his other valuable legs, is in "not in any immediate danger" says Meshach Tenney, trainer of the record-setting racehorse.

In fact, Tenney said today, Swaps "is 50-per-cent better than Sunday (when he reinjured himself."

Tenney's statement, while indicating there was still concern for the condition of the four-year-old California colt, put to rest for the time being fears that Swaps might be destroyed.

These fears arose Tuesday night when a spokesman for Garden State Park, where Swaps is stabled, said veterinarians were working feverishly to save the colt. The spokesman said Swaps, winner of 1955 Kentucky Derby, didn't appear to have much of a chance.

He said complications arising from the leg fracture, suffered in a workout at Garden State Park, had to the summoning of four top veterinarians. The track spokesman did not say what these complications were.

Swaps suffered the leg fracture while taking a six-furlong workout. He reinjured the leg while being led up in his stall Sunday, breaking the cast on the leg. GREEN NEWS CAST

Tuesday, a new and stronger cast was put on. The concentration of veterinarians, including one from an insurance company that reportedly holds a $1,000,000 policy on Swaps, gave rise to rumors that were capped by the spokesman's statement.

But this is the way Tenney put it:

"As previously announced we proceeded to check the colt's ankle bind leg . . since it was an interesting case, some of the best veterinarians came in to observe and help change the cast.

"Everything went as scheduled . . nothing of an unusual nature happened. What caused all of the wild and unfounded rumors to get circulated is beyond my comprehension.

"He is 50 per cent better than Sunday. He is not in any immediate danger and is as happy as can be with such an injury.

SUPPORTED BY SLINGS

The sling for the left hind leg was provided by Jones Beach, owner of Swaps' arch rival, Nashua. There was another sling available for the colt's hind leg, his weight as he stood on the other valuable legs.

But the question is Swaps' future on the track. Tenney and Rex Ellsworth, Swaps' co-owner, had figured he might race again next year. Now its a question of waiting to see if any complications should develop and, if none, how far they can mend.

Swaps first nationwide acclaim came when he defeated Nashua in the Kentucky Derby, Nashua defeated him later in a match race at Chicago.

Swaps, winner of nearly $900,000, holds four world's records and has tied a fifth.

Northern OHA Balanced Loop

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) The Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A Southern Group Series opens operations Thursday and Friday, with most observers are looking for the most evenly-balanced circuit in years.

North Bay Trappers meet Sault Ste. Marie Indians in the league opener at North Bay.

Defending champion Sudbury Wolves and the Indians will start the new season with virtually the same teams that finished the 1955-56 schedule, while Trappers and Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds have rebuilt in favor of youth.

Sudbury coach Johnny O'Flaherty has retained goalie Johnny Albani, forwards Hub Beaudry, Yacker Flynn and Wally McKinnon, defencemen Ron Ingram and Francis Dearborn on one line and Francis O'Grady, Andy Milne and Nick Thomlak on another forward unit.

OTHER HOLDOVERS

Also returning to Wolves' camp are Johnny Gillis and Johnny Arundel, with Armand Lemieux, Marcel Clements and Alf Racarri expected to battle for the team's remaining regular positions.

Bobby Forhan, a defenceman last year, may join the team if he fails to stick with Winnipeg Warriors of the Western League.

Indians also are virtually standing pat on Tuesday returning players already signed are Eddie Joss, Laurie Peterson, Johnny Offdahl, Don McCreedy, Gerry Pinnow, Gary Bird, Pentti Hronen, Harry Sear, Russ Rowsichuk, Bill Birkey, Hmmm, Chuck Holdaway and Gordie Heale.

COUNT ON JUNIORS

North Bay is counting heavily on two of last season's top juniors, Ken Laufman and Gerry Gribbin. High-scoring forward Ken Laufman, who shot 31 goals and had 37 assists with the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks last winter, has joined Trappers.

Also in the fold are Art Stratton, who had 38 goals and 41 assists for St. Catharines Teepees of the OHA Junior A, Howie Glover, brother of Freddie of Cleveland Barons in the American League, Don Hogan and goalie Dennis Brodeur.

At Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., the accent will be on offence. Smoothpassing forwards include Don McLean, who turned down a professional offer from Buffalo Bisons of the AHL, Johnny Marian and Cleland Morrison, Mike Hatchford, Johnny Lumley, Johnny Bailey, Gary Sharpe, Cliff Hamilton, Jackie Hamilton, son of the NHL's Fern, Jim Leclair and Vic Delfordie.

Lords Ready For Beaches

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — London Lords, concentrating on the favorite role of Toronto Beaches, were put through a stiff workout Tuesday night in Jack Jacobs on Tuesday night in preparation for Saturday's game here against Beaches. The Lords will be trying for their first home victory.

London's only current casualty is tackle Hal Krebs, on the limp with a bad knee. He is expected to be ready for Saturday, however.

A win for the Beaches would lift them into a first-place tie with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, providing Kitchener bows to the Sarnia Golden Bears Saturday afternoon. On the other hand, London and Kitchener would leave London only two points back of Sarnia and throw the two into second, third and fourth spots wide open.

Rochester Rockets bowed out of the league last week through financial troubles.

It was the final exhibition game for both teams before the opening of the regular schedule here Thursday night between Sault Ste. Marie Indians and the Trappers.

Jack Tighe May Field-Boss Newly-Owned Detroit Tigers

By ED WILEY

NEW YORK (AP) — The new owners of Detroit Tigers staged a press conference today at which they were expected to confirm month-long reports that coach Jack Tighe is to be the field boss of their $5,000,000 investment.

That would leave only one managerial vacancy in the majors, Cleveland Indians still have to name a successor to the resigned Al Lopez.

Tighe, who joined the Tiger family in 1951 as a farm club catcher, was brought up to the parent club as a minor league scout two years ago after managing in the minors. He became first base coach when Bucky Harris succeeded Fred Hutchinson as manager in 1953.

Harris recently resigned when the new bosses demanded a more aggressive manager.

In the only other managerial moves to date, Chicago Cubs recently named Bob Scheffing to succeed Stan Hack and Baltimore Orioles extended Paul Richards' contract through 1958.

The world champion New York Yankees also signed Casey Stengel for another two years.

On the negative side, New York Giants chilled reports that Manager Stanky, whom they fired as manager of their Minneapolis farm club, was due for a spot on manager Bill Rigney's coaching staff.

Stanky, the fiery little guy who managed St. Louis Cardinals from 1952 through part of 1955 after his playing career came to an end with the Giants, took the ouster as "a shock." He said: "I thought I did a fairly good job with the material I had," in piloting the defending American Association champions to the playoff semi-finals.

Stanky denied there was any trouble between himself and his players, a rumor that recently had scratched him off the list of prospects for the Detroit job.

Giants vice-president Charles (Chub) Feeney said "I'd rather not go into that" when asked about the player trouble report.

Stanky said he was "given the impression" he would be called up to the Giants' coaching staff next season, but club president Horace Stoneham said no.

"We talked about it with Rigney," Stoneham said, "discussing it during the season and during the world series. But at the last minute, Rigney said 'no.' It was Rigney's decision to make."

Feeney added that Stanky had been offered a job as a scout, but nothing "with the big club."

Ontario Curlers Up Membership

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Curling Association now has 135 member clubs, an increase of five over last year.

A report tabled Tuesday at the association's 51 annual meeting also showed an increase of more than 1,000 male and 500 female members.

The members adopted the rules of the Dominion Curling Association and elected the following officers:

T. H. Simpson, Hamilton, president; D. W. McCulloch, Galt, vice-president; Albert E. Dunker, Kitchener, second vice-president; W. H. McMurtry, secretary treasurer; C. W. MacQueen, assistant secretary.

Longshot Wins At Yonkers

YONKERS, N.Y (AP) — American Way, a 17-to-1 longshot owned by Alex Parsons of Brantford and driven by Del McTavish of Lachute, Que., won the featured Goshen Pace at Yonkers Raceway Tuesday night.

American Way came home half a length ahead of Mighty Green, the 7-to-5 favorite. Willie's Folly was third.

The winner, registering his second success in 21 starts this season, paced the mile in 2:06 4-5 and returned $35.90, $9.60 and $5.40.

American Way went to the front shortly after the start, relinquished the lead to Mighty Green at the half-mile mark, then came on again as the favorite faltered nearing the wire.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y (AP)— The home folks will give Sal Maglie a "day" on Oct. 27, it was announced today by Mayor Peter Cascia.

Maglie, a native of this city, a veteran pitcher with the New York Giants, will be honored during ceremonies between the first and second baseball games of the World Series between the Giants and the New York Yankees.

Nina was found guilty in London last week of stealing two cheap hats from a London department store. She was discharged on payment of court costs.

She now is on her way back to Russia.

"The hat affair was a provocation," she told reporters. "My honor is unblemished and I intend to continue my career."

She said the captain of the Russian liner had ripped off a part of the deck for her. There, behind canvas screens, she had been training during the North Sea crossing.

Nina left London Oct. 12 after she was convicted of stealing the five hats but discharged with payment of costs.

Her appearance in the London court came unexpectedly after she "disappeared" and had presumably been staying in the Russian embassy in London since she was

Harridge Notes 71st Birthday

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP)—Will Harridge observed his 71st birthday anniversary in robust health Tuesday and looked forward to continuing service as president of the American League baseball.

The esteemed executive virtually has shanghaied into baseball by the late Ban Johnson, American League founder, in 1911.

Johnson took a tilting at young Harridge's ability in scuting clubs while working as clerk and stenographer in the Chicago passenger administration department of the Wabash Railroad.

Johnson hired him and Harridge has been with the league ever since, the last quarter of a century as president.

"It may come as somewhat of a surprise to club owners to know that I have a contract as league president," Harridge said in an interview.

"But I have, and it expires in December, 1957. As long as my health stays good I want to carry on until at least the contract is up."

There was a rumor during the recent world series that Harridge was thinking of retiring and that Crosin of Boston Red Sox was the front-runner as his successor.

Harridge said that he would not be surprised if there is major league baseball on the Pacific Coast "within 10 years at the most."

"It will be a big move and it will take time to make it," he added. "When it comes, there probably will be 10-team leagues."

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (Reuters)—Nina Ponomareva, the Soviet woman discus thrower found guilty of a shoplifting charge in Britain, said aboard the liner Vyacheslav Moskov Tuesday night that she will go to Melbourne, Australia, to compete in the Olympic Games next month.

Nina was found guilty in London last week of stealing two cheap hats from a London department store. She was discharged on payment of court costs.

She now is on her way back to Russia.

PROTEST EXPECTED

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government is almost certain to make formal representations against the anti-dumping act in the United States tariff which would affect the products of the groundfish industry of the Atlantic provinces, a government official said Friday night. He said the government will take a very serious view of the matter.

SIMPLE METHOD

MASSEY, Ont. (CP) — Emptyhanded partridge hunters can envy an eight-year-old schoolboy here, who bagged a bird on his first try. He saw one on his way home from school and felled it from 15 feet with a large stone.

Rocket Firing Delayed by Faulty Weather

FORT CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) Some southern drawl bounced into the northern tundra Tuesday, forcing postponement of a rocket experiment.

American-built 36-foot air force Asrobee was to have been fired from a 120-foolish tower 12 miles east of this Northern Manitoba base. But radio interference from the north and from allied military and scientific installations in the sweeping United States up set the schedule.

American scientists and military experts say indicated the first high-altitude rocket to be launched in Canada now will probably be shot into the atmosphere at night to avoid the interference with sensitive radio instruments employed in the experiment.

MESSAGES PICKED UP

U.S. Army Signal Corps operators have picked up interfering radio messages from taxi cabs in Fort Bragg, N.C., air force bases in Florida and the White Sands, N.M., proving ground.

The firing, originally set for Tuesday, was postponed until tonight because the stray radio signals made scientific measurement.

The radio interference appeared to be a two-way affair. Officials said White Sands had earlier complained of radio interference thought to be from Fort Churchill.

Instruments packed into the nose of the rocket will measure upper air density, temperature and winds and transmit the data to ground observers by radio.

Knew Ship Doomed

NEW YORK (AP)—The captain of the Andrea Doria "knew" he would lose his ship was doomed even as he tried desperately to avoid a collision with the Swedish liner Stockholm.

Capt. Piero Calamai of the Italian lines told a pre-trial federal hearing he ordered a hard left turn as the Stockholm loomed out of the darkness off Nantucket last July 25.

"How long after you gave the order did you realize there would be a collision and you would not be able to pass?" he was asked.

"I don't get the point . . . a question of seconds," Calamai replied.

Fifty lives were lost and more than $40,000,000 in damage claims followed in the wreck of the proud lision, which sent the Doria to the bottom. The pre-trial hearings are a prelude to federal court trial of the damage suits.

The Swedish liner struck the pre-collision manoeuvres of the other ship for "the tragedy."

A lawyer for the Italian Line offered to send divers down to the sunken ship to search for bodies for logbooks if the Swedish American Line does the same for $50. But counsel for the Swedish American Line said it is up to the Italian Line to produce the books.

Charles S. Haight, counsel for the Swedish American Line, stressed the absence of the Doria's navigation, radar and wireless lors in cross-examining Capt. Calamai.

Eugene Underwood, counsel to the Italian Line, objected on his client's behalf to send divers for the logs. But Haight rejected the proposal, and it was dropped.

Alberta Ready To Sign New Rental Agreement

EDMONTON (CP) — Premier Manning's office said Tuesday the Alberta government has notified Ottawa it is ready to sign a new five-year tax-rental agreement, pending the successful conclusion of technical discussions now in progress.

Earlier the premier said in a press conference the government has advised Finance Minister Harris it is willing to negotiate a new wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions, some of 10 to 30 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissues on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed suppositories of Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles

Science Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain. Thousands have been relieved—without resort to surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observation.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in many cases doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make this astonishing statement in a word—"Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions, some of 10 to 30 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissues on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed suppositories of Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Thursday, Oct. 18, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Encouraging rays for all work, while lines of credence take time count. Extra hard work can lead to additional achievement. Romance, fun also in order.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Monetary interests require stricter attention now. In shopping, check quality as well as price. Some sensible self-denial and cutting down on non-essentials could do no harm.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Compare ideas with friends, loved ones; you may be helped more than you supposed. Remain calm, alert to opportunity.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Today is full of promise and good tidings for worthwhile interests, and there should be no time or room for pet peeves, unnecessary jealousies. Enjoy this day rightly.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Your innate initiative, buoyancy and general capability can, properly used today, bring gains, fresh benefits, perhaps valuable new friends and contacts.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Good influences for worthwhile endeavors, wholesome activities generally, and for personal and romantic interests. Artistic pursuits also favored.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — You should find yourself in the thick of things by noon. But don't worry; you have the equipment to succeed if you apply it properly. Make decisions deliberately, calmly. No carelessness.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Information you receive may be misleading, so be wary, astute. Going businesses, essentials, family matters most highly favored. Use every reasonable, honest effort to achieve.

November 23 to December 21 — (Sagittarius) — Aim at faultless performance now since much can be achieved by you capable, well-balanced folk. Keen observation suggested.

December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — This is no day in which to make drastic changes. Go forward with pre-planned activities; seek help but don't be insistent about it. Be sensible in money matters, consistent in effort.

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius)—A sensible but hopeful procedure in your affairs can bring pleasant and fruitful results not only for today but for the future. A splendid day for personal achievement.

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Establish your program and pace yourself to accomplish without waste motion. Seek all the advantages possible. You may have occasion to travel, guard your health; think well before acting but do recognize values.

You born today enjoy travel, good fun; at times must curb a tendency to stray too far from accustomed. Your genial personality and capable performance makes a vital impression on others. Just be sure you do not overdo it; don't strain health. Avoid useless argument, carelessness with money. You can attain a high position in industry, a profession or trade; could gain recognition in music, the stage, in public office. Birthdate of: Thomas Love Peacock, novelist, poet.

Two Americans, German Get Nobel Medicine Prize

Evolved Simple Method Of Charting Heart Interior

Foreign Policy Of U.S. Criticized By French Deputy

PARIS (CP)—The United States was accused by a right-wing deputy in the French National Assembly Wednesday of putting "armed old men" at the head of its affairs.

Pierre Andre, a right-wing Independent deputy, led strong criticism of American foreign policy for the second consecutive day as the assembly switched from discussing Suez to Algeria.

Referring both to the Suez dispute with Egypt and the Algerian nationalists uprising, Andre said: "It is more and more evident that the U.S. state department protects the Arab chiefs in the Middle East and Africa to ours.

"Our American friends have three times imposed on us their old men—Eisenhower, 66, after general paralysis in 1919, Roosevelt, who returned from Yalta to his country to die, and Truman, however, who is a sick man."

"Whatever our American friends think," he said, "Nasser's nationalization of the Suez Canal is also an American defeat. In all North Africa, Moslems are naming their sons 'Nasser' instead of 'Nassers'—not 'Dulles' or 'Eisenhower.'"

There were some murmurs of protest from the assembly when he asked: "Must French blood flow because President Eisenhower's doctors have forbidden him to get emotional shocks?"

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Two Americans and a German were awarded the 1956 Nobel Prize in medicine jointly today for evolving a simple method of charting the interior of the human heart.

The winners are Drs. Andre F. Cournand, 61, and Dickinson W. Richards Jr., 61, both of Columbia University in New York, and Werner Forssmann, 52 of Bad Kreuznach, West Germany.

The Caroline Institute of Medicine and Physiology, which awards the awards under the will of the late inventor Alfred Bernhard Nobel, said in its citation the prize was given in recognition of "the introduction of heart catheterization and discoveries made thereby."

For their contribution to the fight against heart disease, the three scientists will share a Nobel Prize money totalling $38,633.

IN DECEMBER

The awards will be presented here Dec. 10, along with the literary Nobel Prize to be announced in its and those for physics and chemistry, which will be announced at the end of this month.

The three doctors are credited with having opened a new area in medicine and physiology dates back to a 1929 experiment by Forssmann, then a Berlin urologist curious about the functions of the heart.

Forssmann sat down one night behind an x-ray screen and mirror and pushed a tertiary catheter—a flexible tubular instrument which is introduced into canals or passages of the body—from the crook of his arm into his heart.

WARNED TO RESIGN

Forssmann's colleagues warned him to stop what regarded as a suicidal exploit. He did so only after repeating the experiment to show it could be done without fatal results.

More than a decade later Forssmann's idea was refined by a New York Columbia University team, headed by Dr. Cournand and including Dr. Richards, at New York's Bellevue Hospital. Cournand's experiments were designed to clarify what happened to the hearts and circulatory systems of wounded soldiers.

The Columbia doctors attached pressure manometers to catheters and pushed into the heart and further on into the pulmonary artery. The instruments recorded blood pressure and other conditions inside the heart.

BOMB SHAKES DEBATERS

CAMBRIDGE, England (AP)—An unknown heckler threw the scholarly Cambridge Union debating chamber into a big flap Tuesday night by touting a time bomb through the window.

The speaker called on the chamber's 600 members to "look up in the air by flapping their gowns.

NASSER MEETS ENVOY

CAIRO (Reuters) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser saw the new American ambassador, Raymond Hare, for their first business meeting here Tuesday night. Hare told reporters afterwards: "We discussed the Suez Canal." Asked whether relations between the United States and Egypt were on the right track, he said: "Relations are falling into their normal course."

Bercovitz Wants New Trial Not Ticket-of-Leave

MONTREAL (CP)—The Herald says Louis Bercovitz, now serving a life sentence for the brief shooting of underworld boss Harry Davis, has written that he would welcome a new trial but would not accept his freedom on ticket-of-leave.

The newspaper, in a copyright story, says it received this information in a 7,500-word letter from 47-year-old Bercovitz.

Two months ago, Toronto lawyer Arthur Maloney submitted a report to Justice Minister Fulton urging immediate release of Bercovitz on the grounds that he was convicted of a "unfair trial."

As alternatives to immediate release, Mr. Maloney suggested a review of the case by Quebec Court of Appeals or a new trial.

ACTING PEP WIFE

The report, he said, was the result of a year-long investigation and he was not acting for Mr. Bercovitz's wife.

The Herald today quotes Bercovitz as saying in the letter that his conviction was unfair, "a shameful blotting on justice" and that he was "framed."

"It is not my wish, in accepting release by ticket-of-leave, I would be acknowledging . . . my conviction and imprisonment as just, proper and legal!" he is said to have written. "That I will never do."

No decision on the Maloney report has been announced yet by the justice department. However, The Montreal Star's Ottawa bureau from Mr. Garson that he expects to rule on the case by the end of this week, or early next week.

Today's Chuckle

He: "Will you ever stop saying no to everything I ask?"

She: "Ask me another hat. Go ahead, just ask-tor it!"

FALL FREEZE-UP SLOWS RESCUE OF THREE IN NORTH

Been on Arctic Lake Past Twenty Days

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) A woman, her husband and a pilot today huddled in an improvised shelter on a frigid Arctic lake to await rescue after 20 days and nights in the frigid wastes of the Northwest Territories.

Their primitive camp was sighted Wednesday by an RCAF Flying Boncar after veterans Arctic flyer Wop Bassaraba, a fourth member of the party, had struggled out of the camp on foot 12 miles of treacherous muskeg swamp and bush to reach a mining camp, 120 miles northeast of Yellowknife.

Pilot Boscar parachuted supplies to John Gerry Hunter, 34, his 28-year-old wife and George Gonsalves, a pilot from Argentina. The group, whose two abandoned light aircraft are close by, waved to the RCAF plane.

Today the RCAF and at least one civilian pilot planned to fly ski-equipped planes to the site, and 150 miles south of the Arctic Circle. Their chief problem is that the ice, now four inches thick, will freeze up, may not be thick enough to land on.

Hunter, meanwhile, resting at the Bayrock property of Yellowknife Mines, is not in serious danger because of ice conditions. There is radio contact between the camp and Yellowknife, and planes can get in or out.

The Hunter group left Coppermine on Coronation Gulf, 90 miles north of the Arctic Circle, on July 29 on what proved to be been a four-hour flight to Norman Wells on the Mackenzie River.

Fog and probably snow drove the little Cessna-185 off course and forced them down miles from civilization.

Warmer said although food ran short, the party was equipped with fishing nets and was able to shoot caribou. He had a warm sleeping bag.

Hunter, organized one of the biggest air searches in Arctic history and prospected 60,000 square miles of almost treeless semi-tundra without finding them.

Wednesday's rescue plane dropped two six-man survival kits and two pair of snowshoes. The pilot said he saw two persons around the camp and apparently all was well.

Stevenson's Call for H-Bomb Ban Heats Election Campaign

WASHINGTON (CP) — Adlai E. Stevenson's call for a ban on H-bomb tests is blossoming rapidly as one of his most fruitful issues of the United States election campaign.

The Democratic presidential nominee made his big pitch on the H-bomb Monday night, appearing in a televised speech from Chicago to seek world agreement on the ending of the tests if elected president. He pictured the "stark, merciless, terrible catastrophe" which he said he believes threatens the human race.

Stevenson's speech was forced the Republican administration to reconsider its campaign policy on the issue. President Eisenhower, who told a Washington press conference last week he had said his "last word" on the subject, now apparently is having second thoughts about the political wisdom of that statement.

The president let it be known Wednesday in Seattle, where he is in the midst of a whirlwind swing in a campaign for re-election, that he has ordered his top officials to prepare a new policy to Stevenson's proposal that the United States take the lead in trying to halt the atomic tests. The reply, officials said, will correct "inaccuracies," set the record straight" and be issued as a "statement of policy."

Wednesday night, Eisenhower accused Stevenson of telling the American people "political fairy tales" instead of dealing with "the world of reality."

In a speech at Seattle he said American workers are "more prosperous and secure than ever in history." Eisenhower accused the Democrats of resorting to what he termed devices of "the half truth . . . the hit and run statement . . . the deliberate distortion."

The president said "in these days of political frenzy" the Democrats are not telling a story of what he termed a generally prosperous and happy America.

In Michigan Wednesday night Stevenson appeared to be at the point of enjoying any hope he may have held of matching Eisenhower's personal vote-appeal. He said that even the U.S. president in history had enjoyed the popularity Eisenhower has held for four years.

With a trace of exasperation in his voice, he added that "certainly, no administration in history has enjoyed such immunity from criticism" as Eisenhower's.

Then Stevenson cut loose with slashing attacks on Vice-President Richard Nixon.

Stevenson said Nixon's political "trademark is slander." He depicted the vice-president as a "man of many masks," adding: "Who can say they have seen his real face?"

He said that, spotlighted against the "moral leadership" required of a president, Nixon's record was "profoundly disturbing."

Stevenson also said upsetting American relations with India. He said the vice-president had been "dangerously inexperienced" in saying two years ago that the United States would send troops into Indochina.

Stevenson has rejected the Stevenson H-bomb proposal as "catastrophic nonsense" and a "theatrical gesture."

The issue has extended beyond the political arena and touched off a controversy among atomic scientists.

Eleven members of the physics faculty of Columbia University, including Dr. Enrico Fermi, headed, issued a statement saying they saw "merit" in Stevenson's proposal for a "standstill" agreement on the proposal.

Scientist Estes Kefauver, Stevenson's vice-presidential running mate, caught the public eye when he said that hydrogen bombs could "right now blow the earth apart by the force they exert" to "change the seasons." One scientist said he thinks "very much" whether the U.S. possesses a bomb that wonderful.

BANK OF CANADA AGAIN TIGHTENS SCREWS ON CREDIT

Rate Now 3½ Percent, 6th Rise in 14 Months

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bank of Canada has tightened the screws on its credit-restraining policy with a new interest rate boost which may eventually spread throughout the Canadian money market.

In particular it could lead to a higher cost for National Housing Act mortgages, although a central source said there will be no immediate increase in the NHA interest ceiling now at 5½ per cent for loans guaranteed by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Some authorities believe this ceiling may be boosted by cabinet to six per cent within a month or two. The rates on uninsured commercial mortgages currently are about 6½ per cent. Loans on NHA mortgages have declined and housing starts have fallen.

The central bank's interest rate Wednesday night was raised by a record 3½ per cent from 3¾ per cent—the sixth rise in 14 months. This compared with 1½ per cent in August a year ago. Since August the increases had been unprecedented.

ON LOANS TO BANKS

The rate is that applicable on central bank loans to chartered banks and other lending institutions on day-to-day money. It is related to the yields on treasury bills, a form of short-term government security sold at a discount.

The new rate boost was designed as a further check on credit to financial institutions that the central bank will not tolerate any overall expansion in credit.

Experts said it means there likely will be a tight-money policy all through 1957. It reduces hopes for any large tax cuts in the 1957-58 budget to be brought down next spring. It also means Finance Minister Harris will have to look for another large surplus as an anti-inflationary measure.

The immediate effect of the government's plan to attempt to control the current building boom to stretch out prosperity over a period of years; to prevent it all from coming into a boom-and-bust complex.

The new restriction is designed to fight a mild, creeping form of inflation; to make expansion more selective and reduce competition for scarce materials.

Lost in Fog, Scot Stranded On 4,000-Foot Peak in B.C.

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — Search party officials pinned their hopes early today on a bed-ridden Scots immigrant in the race to find a hiking companion missing since Sunday on the 4,000-foot peak of Mount Seymour.

The hunt for 24-year-old Alex Lamont and for the body of a third hiker will be greatly simplified if Robert Fraser, 39, can leave his hospital bed here and help direct the search, officials said.

Duncan, exhausted and almost incoherent, Wednesday stumbled into a North Vancouver home and told police he had left Patterson high on the 4,000-foot mountain and had found Fraser dead. Gordon McFarlane dead in a mountainside creek.

Fraser's body had a deep gash across the forehead and officials said he had apparently fallen, knocked himself unconscious and drowned.

Duncan, Patterson and McFarlane, all Scottish immigrants, had set out on the top of a road on Mount Seymour late Sunday and set out on a hike. They became lost in a fog.

Burglars Blamed For School Fire At Port Credit

Either Set on Purpose Or Were Careless Smokers

TORONTO (CP)—One wing of the Port Credit high school was destroyed by fire today. Police blamed the fire on persons who broke into the school Wednesday night.

Damage was estimated at between $500,000 and $750,000. Firemen reported at mid - morning that the flames, though a risk, they may have been caused by chemicals in the science laboratories.

The entire building was insured for $1,600,000.

Fire engines from nearby Port Credit, Erindale and Clarkson answered first alarms at 4:30 a.m. and reported the blaze almost extinguished at one point. Later, however, it flared up again.

AFTER MONEY

Lost in the fire was $300 collected by students for Toronto's Canadian United appeal.

Police said they believe the persons who broke into the school may have been after the money.

Chief Robert McKee of Peel-Credit Fire department said the Ontario fire marshal's office will be asked to investigate.

Meanwhile classes for the school's 830 pupils were suspended until substitute classrooms can be arranged.

Police said burglars had broken into the 22-room school by smashing a window in the art media shop, then smashed rooms before the fire started.

"It was either deliberate arson or the result of careless smoking after the break-in," said Port Credit Sergeant Edward Bochnert.

Doria's Captain Unaware Women Locked in Cabin

NEW YORK (AP)—The captain of the Andrea Doria says he did not know that two women were locked in their staterooom, went down with the Doria.

Capt. Piero Calamai testified Wednesday in pre-trial hearings of damage suits resulting from the sinking of the Doria last July after a collision with the Swedish liner Stockholm. Some 50 lives were lost in the accident.

During cross examination, Calamai was told that two women had been left alive in a cabin long after the ship was abandoned. He replied:

"I hear it now for the first time."

The captain said he received a call from cabin 230 and sent a rescue squad there. He said the squad reported that the call actually came from cabin 236, where they rescued a little girl whose arm had been caught between her berth and the bulkhead.

Five Britons Are Still Held On Spy Charges

CAIRO (Reuters) — Four machine-gun Britons were brought singly before a court here today for an Egyptian inquiry to determine whether they should be remanded in custody on spy charges. They already have been detained for more than six weeks.

Defence lawyers told reporters after the 150 minute secret hearings that proceedings will be kept at the stage of inquiry" and had asked that the men be held in custody for a further period of 45 days.

Manufacturer Defends Low Tariff Policy

QUEBEC (CP)—Something of a free trade speech—certainly an anti-high-tariff speech — was delivered today by a Canadian manufacturer to the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

The speech was by R. C. Berkinshaw of Toronto, president and general manager of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Canada and a member of the Canadian Manufacturer's Association, and past president of the Canadian Council of the International Chamber of Commerce.

Some tariffs are needed, he said, but advocated higher tariff protection in an industry due to Canada's present trade policy, but he could not see that the country would ever derived benefit from such a policy.

BAD RESULTS

Higher tariff protection for industry desirable to foreign competition would have resulted in higher costs and the retention of labor in protected industries which could more profitably have been employed in industries in which Canada has a natural advantage, he said.

To the extent that such a protectionist policy would have been followed, our economy would have tended to become static rather than dynamic."

Russia Prepared to Agree To Halt of A-Weapon Test

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) Soviet Delegate Arkady A. Sobolev said today the Soviet Union is ready to agree with the United States and Britain on an immediate, unconditional halt to test explosions of nuclear weapons.

Sobolev made the statement to a reporter in answer to a question on Russia's current stand on the disarmament issue.

He is said nothing about the political controversy between Stevenson, Democratic presidential nominee who has proposed negotiating a halt to H-bomb tests, and President Eisenhower, Republican nominee who has rejected Stevenson's idea.

The United States position in UN disarmament talks is that any ban on test blasts must be part of a comprehensive disarmament plan with adequate inspection safeguards.

The Soviet Union is ready to enter now into an agreement with the other powers for an immediate halt to the test explosions of nuclear weapons without conditions, Sobolev said. "We believe this might be the first step toward a system of international control and eventual prohibition of the nuclear weapons."

Stevenson has mentioned only the hydrogen bomb in his speeches calling for a halt to test explosions. But Sobolev said the Russian position applies to all nuclear weapons.

Sobolev said the Soviet Union at first proposed that the ban on test explosions should be a part of a disarmament agreement but that in the last three years the Soviet Union has eliminated its suggestion of any condition.

Combination Treatment Promises Speedy Recovery From Hepatitis

NEW YORK (AP) — Two doctors say a new combination treatment promises speedy recovery from infectious hepatitis, a stubborn liver disease.

Combination of the hormone cortisone and an antibiotic cleared up the jaundice-yellowing disease within a week or two in 12 patients treated so far, doctors Max Jacobson and Reuben Kessler of New York City write in the New York State Journal of Medicine.

Recovery from hepatitis usually takes many months, with strict bed rest for weeks. While only 12 persons have been treated with the new technique, none has had a relapse. The first was treated five years ago.

Infectious hepatitis is caused by a virus, and the disease is apparently increasing, the physicians said. Some 30,000 cases were reported in the United States last year, and many more may not have been reported to health boards.

The infected liver enlarges, the patient gets jaundice, becomes weak, usually feels nauseated. Red cell and high-protein diet have been the main treatment.

To this regular treatment, Jacobson and Kessler added a combination of small doses of cortisone and aureomycin or archomycin. The solution is given daily by vein injections for a week or more.

Patients usually feel better in a day or two and signs of the disease disappear within a week, the doctors said.

Expect Jordan Will Demand End Of British Pact

AMMAN, Jordan (Reuters) — Whatever the outcome of Jordan's parliamentary election next Saturday, Britain appears likely to face powerful demands for the repeal of the Anglo-Jordan treaty.

The 30-year pact, which came into effect in 1948, permits Britain to maintain army and air force bases in the Arab territory.

All parties and candidates, judging by their election manifestos and speeches, are united on two things—bitter hatred of Israel and opposition to "Western imperialism."

Political quarters here forecast the election will result in a swing to the left, with the National Socialists and Baath (Arab Socialist Renaissance) parties making the biggest gains.

But these quarters think it unlikely that any single bloc will have a clear majority and be able to form a government.

Burglar Blamed For Stolen Diary

TORONTO (CP) — Police said Wednesday a diary stolen from a car belonging to Mrs. Lorne Worthington, wife of the Toronto Argonauts football coach, was taken by a burglar who broke into the car.

Police said they believe the person who broke into the car may have been after the money.

Chief Robert McKee of Peel-Credit Fire department said the Ontario fire marshal's office will be asked to investigate.

Meanwhile classes for the school's 830 pupils were suspended until substitute classrooms can be arranged.

Police said burglars had broken into the 22-room school by smashing a window in the art media shop, then smashed rooms before the fire started.

"It was either deliberate arson or the result of careless smoking after the break-in," said Port Credit Sergeant Edward Bochnert.

Turned Loose in Pile of Presents, Bowmanville Kids Run Wild on TV

NEW YORK (CP)—Kids don't tie up into a tidy television package. They're messy. Wednesday night's CBS-TV show Get a Secret set out to prove this theory. The guest was an Ontario farm woman named Mrs. Bertha Whyte. And the secret was so boisterous that Garry Moore, the combination master of ceremonies, and Jimmy Morgan, the comedian of the panelists, hardly had time to get a gag away.

Mom Whyte, as her charges know her and as the panelists soon determined, is "mother" to all 30 and a flock of grandchildren.

The fact that Mom and her husband are foster parents to nine and have five children of their own—brought up the question of the total number of youngsters they care for on their farm at Bowmanville, Ont.

Mrs. Whyte approximated, which is understandable. "I belong 70," she said, "and we have five to come when we go home."

Fire Damages Tweed Residence

TWEED (Special) — Fire of undetermined origin caused damage estimated at between $5,000 and $6,000 to the residence of Harry Roscoe, Madoc mining executive, on Metcalfe Street, Wednesday afternoon.

Flames seeping through partitions defied the efforts of the village fire department for some time before it was brought under control.

The blaze is said to have started in the kitchen and gradually ate its way to the roof. Most of the furniture on the ground floor was removed by neighbors.

Mrs. Roscoe was sitting on the front verandah of her home and did not know it was on fire until neighbors noticed smoke pouring from the back kitchen.

Fire Chief Clarence Mooth said he could not ascertain the cause of the blaze. Electrical equipment checked after the fire was found to be in good order and not turned on.

The house was a red granite structure and was practically new.

Children Play With Pet

Barry and Susan Overend, age 13 and 10, respectively, play with their six-months-old pet crow "Blackie". The pet crow is greatly attracted by bright objects which it grabs in its beak and then promptly hides.

Overend Family's Pet Crow Enjoys Cup of Coffee

A pet crow which can do almost anything but talk and is showing indications of learning to speak, is the household pet of the Overend family at 259 William Street.

One of two crows taken from their nest as babies, the pet "Blackie" drinks coffee out of a cup, turns somersaults and delights in picking up shiny objects in its beak and promptly hiding them.

Barry Overend, 13, found the crows in their nest in a cedar tree near Lazier's Dam north of the city. He brought them home and tamed them, but one died six weeks ago.

But "Blackie" is as chipper as can be. The crow makes an outdoor flight in the morning as it calls for members of the Overend household to visit in its basement cage.

It even followed Barry to school on several occasions, much to the delight of other children and alarm of local residents. Since then its wings have been clipped to prevent it straying too far from home.

Two Scufflers Pay Heavy Fines In City Court

A couple of weeks ago an exminer and a finance company employee decided to break the Sabbath by smashing each other in the face at a local dance palace. If that wasn't enough fun for one, after they had been scuffling for about an hour, decided to punch out a few windows, damage a couple of doors and tear down an awning.

The destruction of property was possibly the result of alcoholic stimulation flowing through their bodies after they destroyed a suit worn by the defendant, ruined his shoes and other clothing. Then the provincial police stepped into the picture.

Magistrate T. Y. Willis fined the two $10 and costs of $23.75 for causing a disturbance in a public place.

Two gents from the Tyendinaga reserve punched at one another a few days ago, while a third man sat quietly on a pile of wood.

Three O.P.P. constables stepped in and were rewarded with soiled uniforms. But they apprehended their men.

Magistrate Willis fined two $10 and costs of seven dollars and ordered them to split the law officers' cleaning bill of $3.75.

Hedley Hannah, of Foxboro, pleaded guilty to a third offence drunk driving charge. He was given the minimum of three months in jail.

A Toronto man was fined $25 and ordered to pay costs of $47.50 when he pleaded guilty, in absentia, of careless driving. Magistrate Willis entered a plea of not guilty for Andrew Nesbitt but he was found guilty on the evidence.

Two youths had their operator's licences suspended for on month when they were found guilty this morning of driving without a permit. They were further ordered to pay a fine of $10 and three dollars costs.

Austin Watkin Re-Elected Pres. Of Bowling Club

The Belleville Bowling Club at their annual meeting held at the clubhouse on Yeomans Street on Tuesday evening honored "Curr" Argue, a past resident of the club, past president of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association and indefatigable supporter of this pastime by conferring on him a life membership in the club.

Mr. Argue was taken completely by surprise but in a few words he told how much he appreciated the honor conferred and that as long as he was able he would assist in every way possible the progress of his home club. He wished for all the best of every thing in the years ahead.

Austin Watkin, who was president last year, and worked hard and long for the success of the club, was re-elected to the office by an unanimous vote of the members present. Other officers elected were Orlo Smith, vice-president, Claude D. Tice, secretary, Gordon L. Edwards, assistant secretary, Greena chairman, George Watkin and Cotton tournament chairman, Gerald B. Hyde. There was an election for the executive posts and Jack Graham, Ernie Jones, A. E. McArthur, Bruce Miller W. B. "Skit" Vandervoort, C. "Fitzgerald" and Gordon Watkin were named. The auditors are H. A. Parker and Doug Row, while the Honorary Presidents are R. J. Wray and Cliff Argue. The various committee and tournament chairmen will be selected at a meeting of the executive to be held shortly, so that work for next year can be planned.

INCREASED MEMBERSHIP

The club had a gain in membership of 25 per cent, which was considered an excellent showing as other clubs in the district were not so fortunate. The report of the treasurer showed a healthy bank balance but it was moved that all receipts and bills should be in the hands of the treasurer by October 15th and that the fiscal year be ended on October 31st. This motion was made as various tournaments reported and everyone showing greater receipts than last year. The jitneys averaged 28 persons per night but many of them were rained out by the inclement weather that existed the past summer.

The executive was given power to negotiate with respect to repairing or purchasing a new lawn mower and also to enquire about a new power spiker. It was shown that the new green-maintaining machine had given entire satisfaction and that by having it all the first of next year, the pests could be more quickly attacked. A vote of thanks was tendered to Wilfred Price for the fine work on the board of directors this year during the year and wished for the new executive every success. Jack Shaw was particularly thanked for his donation for an evening jitney. It was one of the most successful of the season.

The president gave the members present a resume of the year over and a very healthy discussion was held on the several matters which will give the executive a clearer picture of the wishes of the membership. A committee will be named to sit in with the women's section of the club to discuss several financial matters.

Before leaving the chair, the president thanked the membership for the honor conferred on him and also the directorate for the wonderful co-operation that had been given throughout the year. "It was a pleasure to work with them and I am sure that the club showed progress during the year," said Mr. Watkin. After being elected for another term Mr. Watkin asked all for the same co-operation in the coming year.

Liquor Board Allows More Time To Buy Spirits

TORONTO (CP) — The liquor control board of Ontario has slightly increased hours for sale of spirits.

The board said today wine now may be purchased at vintners' outlet: as late as 9:30 p.m. on certain week nights in Toronto or 9 p.m. in other Ontario centres, and passengers on transcontinental trains may purchase liquor, wine or beer.

A regulation made effective Oct. 1 permits the later closing of wine outlets "on the first evening preceding night." The "shopping night" varies in many Ontario areas. The hours were changed from the 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. standard after experiments were conducted during the last three months of 1955.

The liquor licence board agreed to permit the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian National Railways to serve spirits on trans-provincial trains as they now do on transcontinental ones. Northern Ontario routes will not be affected unless they are transcontinental runs.

Secretaries of Local Law Firms Seeking Five-Day Week

What may turn out to be one of the most interesting cases in local law circles for some time looms in the form of a petition which will be presented by secretaries of local law firms for confirmation of the summertime five-day working week throughout the year.

The petition, which is couched in approved legal nomenclature, reads as follows:

"Whereas it is customary for secretaries to observe a five-day week and, whereas government offices, court houses are closed on Saturdays and whereas all statutory holidays fall on Mondays, we the undersigned secretaries of the various lawyers of the city of Belleville respectfully request all legal offices to be closed on Saturday commencing not later than November 1st."

The unidentified secretary said the petition presently bears the signatures of 22 of 24 secretaries employed by 20 law firms of the city. The other seven girls, whose signatures are now being sought, have also expressed a desire to go along, but hesitant because of the negative attitude of their employers to the five - day week.

Quinte Drops 20-11 Decision To BCI Seniors

BCIVS Seniors came through with a hard-fought 20-11 victory over Quinte Secondary school in a senior COSSA rugby fixture on Memorial Park gridiron.

Quinte opened the scoring in the initial quarter with George Musgrove passing to Pierce for a converted T.D.

The visitors charged back for a field goal by Paterson and a touchdown by Musgrove, but BCI were leading good. Quinte came back to take an 11-9 lead by halftime with Dean Tripp plunging across the line.

BCI went on from there in the second half, Gary Dunno carrying for one major and Rowbotham for another. One convert was completed for the 20-11 score.

BCI Juniors Tie St. Mikes

St. Michael's Juniors are still undefeated in the COSSA rugby league following BCIVS' visit to held St. Mikes to a 19-19 deadlock on the BCI grounds on Wednesday afternoon.

BCI opened the scoring early in the first quarter with Bob Alexander tossed touchdown passes to Bill Foster and Jack Elliott. Both conversions were automatically converted since no goal posts are available on the playing field.

St. Mike's roared back to knot the score. John Berrigan got the major on a quarterback sneak. Marty Halloran plunged for the convert. Pat Tracey had intercepted a BCI pass and smashed over for the major on a long run. A safety touch put BCI back in front before the half ended.

Bob Alexander carried across for the deciding early in the fourth quarter while St. Mikes came back with a safety touch.

Ron Carter got the touch but Pat Tracey intercepted another pass attempt and shortly after scoring the tying touchdown.

Bill Foster and Bob Alexander went well on the offensive with Jack Elliott and Ron Adair standing out in the forward line.

Larry Mavety and Larry Lynch led the St. Mikes' attackers while Dennis Thompson, Bob Halloran and Lorne Haley sparked the defence.

Rotary Members Attend Meeting At North Bay

CAMPBELLFORD — Members of the Campbellford Rotary Club heard reports from eight of their members on the Rotary Convention held in North Bay last week, when they met at their regular luncheon in the Parish Hall on Bridge St.

Eight members of the club, including president Leo Doherty, past president W. H. Brayford and Ralph J. Locke, vice-president Cliff Gibson and Rotarians Hector Macmillan, Eldon M. Ibey and Grant Anderson, represented the Campbellford club at the convention. Each spoke briefly on Monday, giving his personal impression of the convention.

The speakers were thanked by Rotarian the Rev. Gordon Whitehorne.

PROUD TRADITIONS

Trois-Rivieres, pulp and paper manufacturing city in Quebec, was a busy trading post in 1615.

She said the Prince Edward and Hastings Law Association will vote on the petition at a meeting to be held at an unspecified date under the presidency of Mr. E. G. Porter, Q.C.

The feminine employees of another law office, who also requested to remain unidentified, said that lawyers are definitely inclined to overwork and the full-or weekend holiday would be highly beneficial to them too.

When contacted, Mr. Porter was extremely reticent. He admitted knowing little about this concert of secretaries for the extended working hours of their employers. While he had not heard anything about a meeting to consider the matter, he conceded that to become effective the new agreement would require the approval of his association.

Mr. Porter said that his firm and several others already close on Friday afternoon at 5 p.m. While he thought most of the law firms would approve a five-day week, he expressed the opinion that some of the older, longer established offices, which have become used to the extended week, might possibly cast a dissident vote.

The Belleville Chapter of the Rosicrucian Order, AMORC, held its first convocation on Tuesday, October 16, at 8.30 p.m. in the Prince of Wales School, Dundas St. Several guests were four from Kingston, two from Picton, and four from Trenton.

Leslie Orr, Master, read the Grand Master's message for the month and a discussion period followed.

Section of U.S. Portion of Seaway Now Completed

WASHINGTON (AP)—One section of the U.S. portion of the St. Lawrence seaway — due to be ready for navigation in its entirety by 1959—has been completed.

This was reported today by Administrator Lewis G. Castle of the U.S. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, the agency created to build and maintain the U.S. portion of the international 27-foot-deep waterway.

In the completed section, Castle said in a monthly progress report, is a 2½-mile channel and the 19-mile Long Sault canal northeast of Massena, N.Y., and five miles west of Eisenhower Lock.

On the mainland portion of the Long Sault canal, excavation is being carried out along a five-mile reach. During the last month, contractors removed 840,000 yards of material and placed 290,000 cubic yards in embankments.

Castle said "excellent progress" is being made in concrete placing operations at the Eisenhower and Grasse River locks. Approximately 55,540 cubic yards were placed in the Grasse River Lock during December and 55,700 in Eisenhower Lock during the same period.

Excavation and blasting of two shoals in the St. Lawrence River's Thousand Islands section now is about 12 per cent completed, Castle said.

Defence Lawyer Assails Record Of Polish Press

POZNAN, Poland (Reuters)—A defence lawyer in the bread riot trials today accused Poland's press of "poisoning minds" and able to straighten up and tell the truth.

"The task of the press of giving the truth to the public is—in this millions—a crippled one," said lawyer Leon Kaczynski.

Kaczynski, who is the Polish press at the 11th day of the trial of eight youths accused of stirring the riots to attack security police headquarters here. The trial is one of several arising from riots June 28 in which 53 persons were killed and 300 injured.

The defence accused Polish newspapers of publishing only fragments of evidence against the state and of describing the defendants as "hooligans and bandits."

CROWDS LAUGH

Crowds in the packed courtroom broke to be glared at by the press benches and declared: "The press has been a bunchbacks until now. Let it cannot straighten itself up."

Kaczynski asked for a suspended sentence against the defendant, 18-year-old Wladyslaw Kaczkowski, who admitted taking part in the arms raids.

IN MEMORIAM

EGGLETON. — In loving memory of our dear son, Beryl Eggleton, who passed away suddenly, October 18th, four years ago today.

It's not at the time the years go by,
But the silence that follows after;
And remembrance of sweet days long ago,
Of laughter and tears and song.
In the midst of my friends, I am lonely,
With a smile on my face, I mourn.
Longing dear son, for you only,
Sweet memories linger and sadly say:
Good night, dear boy, we love and sadly miss you.
Mother, Mary Ellen Eggleton.

WEESE. — In loving memory of a dear husband and dad, Kenneth Weese, who passed away October 18th, 1953.

Time heals not,
One day at noon in October,
Over the dear husband's grave,
The Saviour came to take you,
Up to heaven to be saved.
Your work on earth was over,
Though you wished to stay,
But to heaven you went dearest,
For Jesus called you away.
In our hearts is a picture,
Of the beautiful smile you wore,
Of the kind face we loved by,
We miss you every more.
Now I am left to mourn you,
How lonesome we have to be,
But God took you dearest and took you home,
Where we hope to meet again.
Now rest on, dear dad in heaven,
And there our meeting be,
Please come to the gate and meet us,
When we reach eternity.
—Always remembered by his wife, daughter, Alta and son-in-law, Bill, grandchildren, Jim and Judy, great-grandchildren, Kathy and Kent.

CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to thank all our kind friends and neighbors, those who provided us with flowers, for their many acts of kindness during our recent bereavement in the loss of our beloved husband and father.
—Mrs. Robert Rodgers and Thomas.

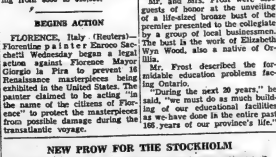
New Financing Plan Paying off For Sudbury

SUDBURY (CP) — An experiment in municipal financing is paying off for the city of Sudbury.

City council is offering its debentures for sale to district residents and already one month before the bonds will be ready—more than $250,000 has been reserved.

Clerk comptroller Pat Murphy said the Sudbury-Nipissing Regional Credit Union had purchased $5,000 to push the sale over the $250,000 mark and he expects the reserve sale will reach $300,000.



Allan E. Rosen, president of Arcadia Nickel Corporation, has ordered $100,000 in bonds which will be made up and validated in $500 certificates and will pay 4% per cent interest.

Another large block has been ordered by the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers and $68,000 worth has been ordered by residents in lots ranging from $300 to $15,000.

BEGINS ACTION

FLORENCE, Italy (Reuters)—Florentine painter Enrico Sacchetti Wednesday began a legal action against Florentine Mayor Giorgio la Pira to prevent 16 Renaissance masterpieces being exhibited in the United States. The painter claimed to be acting "in the name of the citizens of Florence" to protect the masterpieces from possible damage during the transatlantic voyage.

Premier Frost Opens Collegiate In Orillia

ORILLIA (CP)—Premier Frost returned to the town of his youth Wednesday to officially open the new $350,000 addition to the Orillia District Collegiate and Vocational Institute.

Mr. and Mrs. Frost were also guests of honor at the unveiling of a life-sized bronze bust of the premier presented to the collegiate by a group of local businessmen. The bust is the work of Elizabeth Wyn Wood, also a native of Orillia.

Mr. Frost described the formidable education problems facing Ontario.

"During the next 20 years," he said, "we must do as much building of our educational facilities as we have done in the entire past 166 years of our province's life."

Federal Govt. Should Pay Full Cost Says Hees

CARMAN, Man. (CP)—George Hees, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Toronto Broadview, said Wednesday night if the trans-Canada highway is to be completed in the foreseeable future, the federal government must assume the financial responsibility for its construction.

He told a meeting of the Lisgar Progressive Conservative Association here the government's present proposal to pay 90 per cent of the cost of 10 per cent of each province's road will not get the highway built.

His statements were contained in the text of a speech issued to the press before delivery.

"Today, more than five years after the trans-Canada highway was started, we find that only about one-third of the road has been completed," he said. "Each of the nine provinces which signed the agreement is lagging behind in about the same proportion."

He said the provinces, "with great demands upon them to build roads to serve the people living within their own borders, simply do not have the funds to spend their 50-per-cent share of the cost of the road. To spend money on this highway would have meant just that much less money to spend on highways which are their primary concern.

"I think that it has become obvious that if this highway is to be built within the next five years, the federal government must finance its entire construction. On the grounds of defence alone, its construction can be justified as being entirely a federal responsibility."

Germans Could Not Buy American Press in War

LONDON (Reuters)—The Germans found out during the Second World War that the American press couldn't be bought.

Kurt Thomsen, head of the German embassy in Washington, had to tell this to Nazi superiors in Berlin when pressed to carry out an "enlightenment campaign" in the U.S. on German war aims.

He reported that "influential journalists" with whom he was in touch refused to "lend themselves even for money."

Thomsen's report was among the German foreign office dated March 29, 1940 was among captured Nazi documents published here this week. It said:

"Experience shows that articles cannot get into the American press as they can, for instance, into the French. Even the English cannot achieve this here on the spot but only from London, if at all.

"Influential journalists of high repute with whom I am in contact will not lend themselves, even for money, to publishing outside my editorial office their name without alteration or re-editing. Lesser-known journalists whose arts are not accepted by important newspapers, especially if they offer articles in accord with the German point of view.

"Whether in the editor method appears practicable, but acceptance depends, of course, on the editor."

Coast Guard Aids Men Who Stole Oshawa Cruiser

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Police today were searching for two Canadian men who allegedly stole a 20-foot cabin cruiser from Oshawa, Ont., and then abandoned the vessel after being towed by a U.S. Coast Guard cutter into nearby Summerville Wednesday.

The Monroe County sheriff's office said the men ran out of gas on Lake Ontario Wednesday and were first taken under tow by the steamer W. Schuyler.

Authorities said the Moore then radioed the Summerville coast guard base and a cutter picked up the cruiser and towed it about 18 miles to port. Later the cruiser was identified as the community life-saving boat stolen earlier in the day at Oshawa.

The sheriff's office here did not identify the Canadians but said the men were known to Ontario officials.

Rocket-Firing Program Is Further Delayed

FORT CHURCHILL, Man. (CP)—The American rocket-firing program near this northern Canadian base has been plagued by instrument breakdowns and radio interference which has upset the launching schedule.

A rocket is not expected to be fired on the sub-arctic barrens near here until Friday, four days after the time originally set for the rocket's launching. It also will be a different rocket from the one scheduled to be blasted off first.

It appears now that the two-stage, 16-foot Calpex rocket, previously placed second in a line of eight rockets to be set off here in the next five weeks, will be taking the jump-off spot from the larger 26-foot Arcobee.

A U.S. Air Force officer said Wednesday night the Arcobee may be fired Saturday night instead.

Atomic Fishing Boat Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — An "atomic fishing boat" that would use the atom's energy to lure, capture, and refrigerate or can the fish is envisioned by a University of Wisconsin scientist.

Dr. Arthur D. Hasler says the atomic "luring" would be done this way:

The ship's atomic reactor, in addition to propelling the ship, would furnish enough current to electrify the water in the area near the vessel—and thereby attract the fish to a point where they could be pumped aboard.

He envisioned atomic-powered "refrigeration rooms" to keep fish refrigerated "for many weeks" until the vessel had a full load.

Four Are Killed When 2 Freight Trains Collide

PINEOLA, Fla. (AP)—Two Atlantic Coast Line freight trains smashed head-on into each other today and a funeral home director said four men were killed and their bodies may be in the burning trains.

"There are four dead that we know of," said Hank Porter of Inverness, eight miles north of Pinola. "The trains are on fire and we can't get in to see for sure if there are more bodies.

"The cars are all piled up. It's a terrible thing."

Two of the known dead, who were not identified immediately, were taken to the Porter funeral home. Two more bodies were known to be still miles north during trains.

Three injured men were brought from the wreck.

Cause of the collision in this area—county 60 miles north of Tampa could not be determined.

Slowdown Strikes In Three Red Cities Reported

BERLIN (AP) — Labor unrest has erupted into slowdown strikes in three Communist East German cities, a West Berlin newspaper reported.

The independent paper Der Tag says 2,000 Red police had been rushed from East Berlin to the city of Magdeburg, reported centre of the strikes.

Official sources in West Berlin said so far they had not received confirmation of Der Tag's report. But the official Communist trade union paper Tribune said two days ago that workers in four big Magdeburg plants had shown "dissatisfaction" with excessive work and poor pay.

SAYS JUSTIFIED

The Der Tag report said the complaints were justified and warned local union officials to take care that in the drive "the interests of the workers are not violated."

Der Tag says the slowdowns have spread to sections of factories in two other cities—Erfurt and Karl-Marx-Stadt.

"The main reason for the refusal to work," the report said, "lies in the fact that management has raised work quotas without granting suitable increases."

Hundred Stars In Screen Story On Broadway

NEW YORK (AP) — In the screen adaptation of the classic Around the World in 80 Days, producer Michael Todd brought into the Broadway Rivoli Theatre reporters tonight a lovely screen poem—with laughs.

It has a hundred stars, a world tour in color, and songs and jokes and love and tenderness and dancing and art.

It is a wonderful show.

Todd has assembled an unbelievable number of stage and screen stars today bits in this picture, many whom he couldn't afford to pay at their regular salaries.

WONDERFUL CAST

For instance he has screen star Ronald Colman playing an official of a railroad line in India, a role of about six lines. He has Joe E. Brown, John Carradine, Charles Coburn, Melville Cooper, Noel Coward, Reginald Denny, Andy Devine, Marlene Dietrich, John Gielgud, Hermione Gingold, Jose Greco, Cedric Hardwicke, Buster Keaton, Beatrice Lillie, Peter Lorre, Edmund Lowe, Victor McLaglen, Robert Morley, Jack Oakie, George Raft and Red Skelton playing minor roles in this fantastic, but beautiful film.

Todd takes you on a colorful tour of every section of the globe. And he does it with imagination and a sense of the dramatic impacts for the bits of the story plot that he allows to interweave itself with the historical colorful travelogue which forms the basis of his picture.

TRAFFIC DANGER AT FOUR CORNERS

Lucky is an adjective subject to various interpretations but for many pedestrians in this city lucky means only that they have been fortunate enough not to have been run over by onrushing traffic at the four corners.

Frequent complaints regarding regulation of vehicle traffic at this busy hub come particularly from pedestrians who have nearly had it while crossing Front Street with the green light from the southwest to the southeast corner in an easterly direction.

These near-accident cases maintain that in crossing with the green light in this easterly direction they are naturally forced to keep their eyes peeled on the right for any car approaching northward along Front which would strike them if it failed to heed the warning red light always a large audience. The attention is absorbed in against it in time. While their attention is absorbed in this necessary protective action, the harried walkers complain that oncoming transports and other highway traffic making a right hand turn south with the green light, from West Bridge onto Front, suddenly sweep down on them from behind, necessitating a startled leap for safety on their part or a dead stop by the driver of the vehicle, who has already committed himself to a full speed turn.

In view of the great number of pedestrians crossing Front Street at this point, further consideration of their legally prescribed rights of maintaining an uninterrupted passage to the far side of the street would seem to be in order.

Consideration should be given to a ruling obliging eastbound traffic on Bridge Street to come to a full stop prior to turning southward with the green light on Front Street.

There might be some objection on the ground that the flow of traffic would be retarded but the fact that this momentary stop would be less than the longer wait occasioned by the regulation of lights would question the validity of such an argument. This enforced stop would certainly be preferable to fatal accidents.

The opportunity given the driver of a vehicle in this situation while maintaining full control of his vehicle appears to be cheap insurance against the possibility of serious accidents likely to occur if positive action is not taken to afford the necessary protection to pedestrians.

While they are within their rights in turning with the green light, many drivers appear to be in ignorance of the law which decrees that pedestrians crossing the street must maintain an uninterrupted passage to the opposite curb. If during this passage, the pedestrian is struck by a vehicle, regardless of whether the traffic light has turned red during this passage, the driver of the vehicle shall be held legally responsible.

In other words, pedestrians have the right of way over the traffic turning against them.

This section of the Highway Traffic Act, very appropriately, is designed to ensure respect for the sanctity of the person rather than to assure the uninterrupted passage of the vehicle.

The first right and proper consideration, the law should be worthy of respect.

OFF-SHORE ISLANDS

An unfinished sentence by Pennsylvania's Democratic Governor George Leader fascinates us.

Last week, while addressing a political rally at Oakland, Cal., he said, in referring to Vice-President Richard Nixon: "I hope you can find an off-shore island for - - -"

At this point his words were drowned out by a roar from the crowd.

It would be interesting to learn what prompted that roar.

Nine leading Republicans have declared that the governor was referring to the prison island of Alcatraz, a fact that the crowd thought? If so, they appear to have lamentably short memories. For there is only one connection in which that "off-shore island" has ever been associated, that is in reference to Quemoy and the other islands, so often termed "off-shore islands," held by the Chinese Nationalists off the coast of mainland China. There is time when it appeared that a Communist attack on these islands might plunge the world into a new all-embracing war, Vice-President Nixon was widely believed to be a staunch advocate of extending to those islands the atomic umbrella of security with which the United States had covered Chiang Kai-Shek's home base on Formosa.

If Governor Leader had these islands in mind, it was an amusing quip. He now says that he was thinking of Seal Rocks, as a tribute to "the trained seal of the reactionary Republican administration" and Treasure Island, in view of Nixon's success in raising campaign funds for his party. These, however, may only be second thoughts, after the Governor started to wonder whether there was anything to be gained politically by taunting Nixon with his stand during the Far East crisis. If Leader really had these islands in mind originally, he was in error because Nixon would have been the case in a reference to Alcatraz, but has a memory as short as his Republican critics.

Should some one ask me how I feel,
The grandmas always answer:
"Fine."
They do not want me to reveal
Whatever aches and pains are mine.

The nurse says I am getting well;
The doctor takes supreme delight
In hearing friends and loved ones tell
About my growing appetite.

To answer I am not allowed,
Though I'm the patient who complains,
And it would make me very proud
To talk about my aches and pains.

Alice in Campaign Land

By Doris Paul in the Christian Science Monitor

The next time Alice fell down her hole she found herself in the middle of a Political Scene.

"Dear me," she said, "whatever is that?" For there were those who were blowing through the sprouts of leeks, and those who were (while standing on their heads) were with great simplicity saying "Boo!" Others, in pairs and none to nose, were glaring like bantam cocks at one another, or posed with aplomb on unsteady stilts — all cleverly adroit with their feet. Further on were a number of figures with wide-open mouths out of which were issuing, as prettily as you please, puffs and whorls of bright purple silk.

Everybody stopped doing whatever he was doing and asked up-gently, "which are you?"

"Not which," corrected Alice. "Who, I'm a child."

"On the contrary," said the Red Queen, "who's don't matter a fig. It's the which of you that counts. Come along, speak up!"

The Mad Hatter, in nonchalant sort of fashion, stopped together the Hoddles Tweedledee and Tweedledum. "Disorderly, disorderly," he cried.

"Precisely," said the Red Queen. "Out with it, girl! You're this. Or you're the other. That's plain as anyone can see."

Alice looked dubious. "Perhaps I'm not either," she said timidly. "But personally this wasn't tactful at all.

"Tact — all the upsidedowners booed. And the smallest of the Oysters shrilly cried: "Tact? Why, that's hallpiddly! How un-

"Quite so," the Red Queen agreed, "positively unpracpreper-tingly. "Sheer blanc mange, if you ask me."

"All right," said Alice, ever willing (within reason) to oblige a stranger in a strange land, "but which?"

But one of the figures on one of the planks, who at once had floated forward, bowing to the Red Queen, conversed with his hand clapped to his mouth. "Not which, but whichever-tityandplentyofunshine. Also, for pink cheeks for each baby, sanitary protection, and a square deal." Then he smiled, most winningly, and whispered to the Red Queen.

"W ell, that," said Alice, "sounds all right." And she smiled back. With which encouragement the half of the company.

"And I," said Alice, a second figure from another plank, "am for peacepeoperpartyandpiosyfu n - - -"

"Hear, hear!" said the ladies' auxiliaries and, beautifully made pale cheeks, sanitation made sanitation and health for all." And he too smiled, as winningly as the first one.

"Before you are" said Alice; feeling pleased "I can be for both."

But in a shrill voice the smallest Oyster exclaimed. "Why the silly little thing! — she, thinks he means business!"

"Doesn't he?" asked Alice; then, remembering, "Him!"

"Him!" cried everybody, pointing two ways.

"I don't suppose," she conceded, "there must be a difference if he is for it. But what is he say?"

"Furthermore and moreover," a third figure now warned, "if you fail to elect me - - -"

"But we're not talking about you nor are we elected," Alice asked.

"Of course we are?" half the company assured her.

"If you fail to elect me," repeated the third figure, "what on earth will later on happen?"

"I don't know," said Alice. "What will?"

"The nation will fall out!" the other half told her.

"Fall out" was the first lot, sounding happy as larks. "There you are, they admit it! They're against the nation!"

"On the other hand," the Mad Hatter explained, "if you don't turn it around the bottom's up."

"I'm afraid," Alice said, "I can't quite follow."

"Which one?" cried everybody, suddenly very interested.

But the Mad Hatter said, in a kindly way, "Don't you fret. If you don't see him, his side will lose. And if you do elect him, he'll have won, you do elect him, he'll have won, and he and how will his side get along with that?"

"Won't they be pleased?"

"Terrifically. But why? Look at what happened that other time."

Alice took a deep breath. "Would you mind," she asked, "if we decided all over again, where we were — or where we weren't, I suppose I mean. Now both of you," she said resolutely, "are for peacepropersympathyandplenty."

There was an immediate hubbub. "Indeed not!" cried the company sounding outraged.

"But they are — they were - -"

"She's impossible," her side smoothed the Red Queen. "Really, my dear, you are quite impossible." Alice, hanging on to her Sunday manners, said a bit desperately, "Then perhaps would you tell me what it is you're not for?"

One of the figures on a plank, as if charmed to comply, at once floated forward and ringingly announced, "That is all of us. All everybody knows, is warpoverty-extinctionandhatred of war."

"I see," she said. Then added, with surprise, "But whoever is for that, they aren't against everybody, pointing two ways.

The Mad Hatter said, "Here, dear — you'd better come and have a cup."

"Oh, thank you," said Alice, "I don't mind if I do!"

She sat down and he remarked in a soothing sort of way, "You'll catch on, you know."

"Oh, I do," she carelessly waved that aside.

"You mean that they do?" Alice asked.

"Certainly not!" he said. "How silly can you get?" He had peered into his cup, where there wasn't any tea, but, instead, there was red, lowering his voice and stirring with great care so as to spoil no one's fun, "do you know why the election would really fall out?"

"No," said poor Alice, "When and would it?"

"If they ever began," the Mad Hatter confided, "to mean too much or too little the same."

He's Long Gone Says Groaner

Brockville Recorder and Times

There will be feelings of regret in Toronto's east end over Bing Crosby's recent admission that he's "long gone." The still-handsome singer with the soft voice who has been soothing the world for nearly 30 years admits he is running out of drive and enthusiasm.

This realistic admission by one of the world's top artists comes as a refreshing reversal of the usual attitude of highly-paid Hollywood stars. Most won't admit they are washed up and they inch an ankle over the coffin side.

Bing made his statement to a London newspaper, saying declared for his recorded is down to "faint whisper." H- continued: "I'm long gone. I'm just not enthusiastic as I used to be. The feel for a song isn't there, the desire to sing, to be in action — and when this is absent, so is the style."

This graceful exit, it is to be hoped, can be followed by as graceful a retirement. The old groaner surely deserves it!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Being really dear is quite an ecumenical virtue. But being slightly dear has its advantages. One of my ear drums was ruptured in the first war and the other was damaged when I was a young reporter by attending one of those secret police meetings and having to listen. Hon-est-ear and I've been on very special lists. He hits me on the head with a sort of tuning fork and says a few words and I ask me do I hear anything. He repeats numbers half under his breath, meanwhile frowning away from me and asking me to repeat them after him. It is like the chart at the eye specialist's. I don't hear anything, but I think of a number and say and give it to him.

"Do you notice any decline in your hearing?" he enquires.

"You bet," I assure him. "It's wonderful at the moment. I can't quite make out what the actors are saying, but I don't hear those two women in the seat behind me either. And I haven't heard any baby crying since you spoke to the bachelors chewing humbugs in five years."

"Aha," says the ear specialist. "And how about telephone bells?"

"We had the bells taken out at our house fifteen years ago," I explain," and replaced by buzzers. You can cut out the buzzers when you are quite near the phone, which saves all that pressing over the house."

"Do you still hear me?"

"Whoops calls me up anymore," I explained.

"Look," he says. "You're losing your hearing!"

"I can hear what I want to hear," I answered. "Yes."

"Birds?" asked he.

"Mockingbirds," I assured him, "don't sing the way they did in the old days. The way I remember their noble singing is far ahead of the way they sing nowadays."

"Whippoorwills?"

"Very tiresome they used to be."

"Music?"

"Turn it up loud," I revealed, referring of course to the radio or record player. "Some of the high notes are a little scratchy, and the bass notes mumble a bit, but most of it is decent. You remember how it ought to be. These present-day musicians spend most of their time working in dance bands and only work on symphony in their spare time, and they recordings. Can they be expected to be as good as they were thirty years ago?"

"Can anybody?" agrees the specialist, hitting me on the head again with his knobbed tuning fork.

Indians Need Better Deal

Toronto Telegram

A report presented to General Council of the United Church has commended that the Dominion Government be asked to step up "the pace of progress" in housing, and living conditions in Indian on reserves. It dealt, of course, with those reserves in which the Unified Church carries on many kinds of missionary application even to these when it stated that "some Indians were lazy, immoral, non-social and unambitious. Rev. E. R. Mc. Millan, Toronto, general secretary of the commission making the report, complained that many newspaper and "disastrous misrepresentation" by radio had created the idea that large numbers of Indian people on the reserves are industrious, good citizens, cultured and of unimpeachable character."

The fact remains that there is much room for betterment on the reserves. Some progress is being made, the report of the Indian affairs branch at Ottawa shows a substantial increase in the number of Indian pupils at non-Indian schools — Sarnia and Wallaceburg are illustrations. Individual land-holding has been facilitated, the report states, and there is wider use of band funds on projects of community benefit. But the conditions are still deplorable.

Certainly those Indians who work and live off the reserves are generally treated like other Canadian citizens; but the reserve problem itself is outmoded.

Slums on the reserves breed crime and disease as readily as slums in the cities. The former can be wiped out if Mr. Pickering's department, as the report says, as the United Church report proposes, the improvement of education, housing and living standards. Education is the key; without it the Indian generally cannot emerge from the status of second-class citizens. These people deserve much better treatment than their predecessors, and it is the interest of Canada that they should receive it.

Personal Health Talks

Anesthesia For Childbirth

As a plodding general practitioner, ready, willing, and fairly competent to treat whatever came our way, I was not attracted to obstetrics. However, I was no bungler either, for I had delivered more patients as an intern in a charity hospital than most physicians deliver in the first five or ten years in private practice.

A few weeks after I opened an office in Penn Yan, at the age of 22, a real estate and insurance man in the village asked me to hurry out to his daughter's. She was in labor and the doctor who had been engaged to attend her was off on a tout. I delivered a 14-pound baby (her first) with forceps, at the patient's home on the farm, without serious injury to mother or infant. Under chloroform anesthesia, administered by a relative who had formerly worked.

Another time a doctor in the village called me to the home of his patient to administer the anesthetic while the applied forceps to deliver the baby. The patient had been in labor for hours with little or no progress. She had had no anesthetic—the doctor was assisted by my inquiry. While she was getting things sterilized, I began to give the anesthetic. I am in the obstetric stage — which means just enough to keep from visiting her son, Mr. E. M. Juby, in Tweed. vomiting or not enough to make the patient unconscious. As soon as the first pain started she stopped tossing wildly about and wailing. She followed my orders and rested quietly between pains. Before the doctor could get the forceps ready the patient was ready to deliver herself normally.

I found that her doctor like many others in the community, didn't believe in anesthesia for childbirth or didn't know how to use it. However technique it may seem to sophisticated I can say I never failed to offer a laboring woman an anesthetic, although a good many of my patients thanked me politely and said they didn't want any.

There was just one obstetric patient who not only declined the anesthetic that first night I attended, but bore her baby without avoiding any evidence of pain or great discomfort. Possibly there was a psychological factor — the patient was unmarried, and had accompanied her condition from her family up to the moment she she was having her baby at home.

The doctor whose purpose in forceps extraction was made unnecessary by anesthesia, sidled me over to him to administer the anesthesia while he delivered the baby. When I reached the house of his patient, I found the doctor excitedly searching a standard textbook of obstetrics to find what to do, a patient who had been bleeding considerably in the final months of her pregnancy and who now had a large hemorrhage and looked extremely bad. I started the anesthetic with diffidence. The doctor presently explained to the patient's husband: "There—that's the afterbirth. It came first, but Hi Ed here came next." I then immediately afterward the patient expired.

I never discussed the case with the doctor or anybody else, but on other hand I never felt ever felt at ease in my conscience perhaps I should bring about upon examining the patient before I gave an anesthetic. I might have delivered a live arm instead of the afterbirth. That would have given the patient at least a chance to live, with or without her baby. At any rate, in any obstetric case or should know, the thing to do in such a case (called placenta previa) is to bring about upon leaning by any other presenting part into the birth canal and tear the placenta (afterbirth) intact. This stops bleeding for the duration of labor, and gives the patient a chance to survive.

Today, Caesarean section would be the method of choice in most cases of placenta previa.

WAYS AND WAYS OF LIVING

There are three ways to go through life.

The first way is to lounge through life. A few people have the wealth and leisure which enable life to be lived in this way to the end of their birth, and they are pathetic, unhappy creatures. Others feel that to lounge through life would be utter bliss. Many people of modest means and some who are in poverty lounge through life, and are utterly worthless to themselves and to the world.

The second way to go through life is to lunge through it. There are some who do this in a spirit of violence. Society lays hands on them and puts them under restraint. World conquerors are in this class. So are the humble people everywhere who make quick and violent exhibitions of pride, lost their tempers, who cast aside their future in a moment of passion.

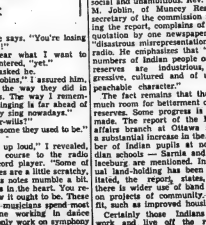
The third way to go through life is to lurge through life. Those who lounge through life are barren and frustrated. Those who lunge in the world's life are bitter and unhappy. Those who love through life are at peace with themselves and with the world, because we are essentially spirits living in the world that is essentially spiritual.

The cross is the sign of Christian faith, the emblem of that One who showed us all how to live the life of love.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

JUST TO KNOW

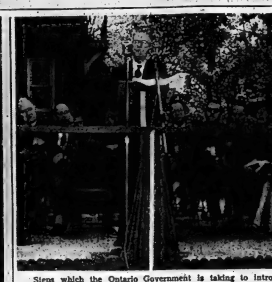


How very little we know anyone! Those whom we think we know much about are too often those of the fact that they are actually strangers. On the other hand, there are those we have never contacted us late in life, and who are so intimate with us that a mutual understanding that to look into their eyes or grasp their hand is like a deep leap into Heaven itself.

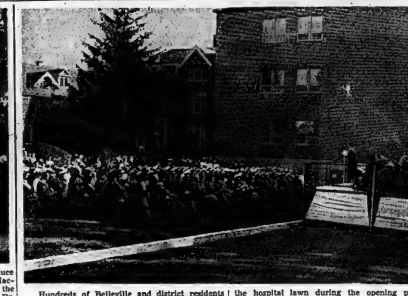
Just to know some people is to get a glimpse at immortality. To have gathered a mere handful of friends over an entire lifetime is something notable, but from my point of view, and from my experience, I have learned that "just around the corner" a new friend may be awaiting.

I have just read an absorbing biography of the late Edward Shelton entitled "The Man Who Lived Twice," by Eric Wollencott Barnes. I never knew, or met, Edward Shelton, but since reading the story of his life I seem to have met and known him Those who did know him well, loved him, and had a high regard for his genius and his character.

In this book is described the life of a man who was paralyzed, bedridden, and blind for over twenty years, but who always lived triumphantly in spite of all these handicaps. He kept giving himself away, and in giving up his life in all those years he had selected as friends. Habitually he was always interested in others and their needs and the problems they had to solve.



It is hard to know people is to be invited into their heart and given the privilege of partaking of their joys and experience as recorded in their alert and receptive minds. Here is a new cluster of thoughts from Aristotle. He said: "We must not only know who we are, because we are human and mortal, to think human and mortal thoughts. In so far as we may we should practise immortality, and omit no effort to live in accordance with the best that is in us."



Scenes As Belleville General Hospital New Wing Officially Opened

Mrs. W. C. Mikel, former president of the Women's Christian Association which until 1947 operated the Belleville General Hospital, is shown accepting the new hospital wing key from the Honorable Mackinnon Phillips, Ontario Minister of Health, during ribbon cutting ceremonies yesterday. From the left are: F. G. Robertson, parliamentary assistant to the Minister of National Health and Welfare; Mrs. J. E. Buchan, president Women's Hospital Auxiliaries of Ontario; Mayor Jane Forrester; Mrs. Charles McLean, president Ontario Hospital Association; J. N. Yanover, chairman of the Belleville General Hospital Board of Governors; Mrs. Mikel, Mr. Mackinnon Phillips, and Frank Murray of Radio Station CJBQ.

Steps which the Ontario Government is taking to introduce health insurance in Ontario were outlined by the Honorable Mackinnon Phillips, Minister of Health for Ontario, as he spoke at the official opening of the new hospital wing here yesterday. Dr. Phillips is shown with provincial and local hospital officials as he spoke to the gathering on hand for the opening.

Hundreds of Belleville and district residents were on hand Wednesday afternoon as the new one-and-a-quarter million dollar wing at Belleville General Hospital was officially opened. Part of the crowd attending the opening is shown on the hospital lawn during the opening program held in the shadow of the new structure. Speaking to the assembly is Mrs. Charles McLean, president of the Ontario Hospital Association. Following the official opening guests and visitors inspected the new wing.

Ontario Minister of Health Asks Mrs. W. C. Mikel to Cut Ribbon Opening Hospital Wing

By JAN HARSH

Hon. Mackinnon Phillips, Ontario Minister of Health, was in the city on Wednesday for the ribbon-cutting ceremony to officially open the new wing of Belleville General Hospital. He was a spectator.

It had been assumed by practically everybody that Dr. Phillips would cut the ribbon. But, in a happy gesture, he relinquished that honor in favor of Mrs. W. C. Mikel, member of the Board of Governors with the longest service.

Mrs. Mikel was taken completely by surprise by this switch in the program. Dr. Phillips, after his address, accompanied by the other speakers, led the crowd to the door where the cutting of the ribbon was to take place. Then he said that Mrs. Mikel would perform the ceremony. "I know I've worked at the hospital for a good many years, but I never expected to have the honor of opening the new wing," Mrs. Mikel explained.

After the ceremony, public inspection of the building followed, with nurses located in the various departments to answer any questions.

The front lawn of the hospital was crowded with citizens for the speeches which preceded the official opening. Weather was ideal for the out-door setting for these addresses.

J. N. Yanover, chairman of the board of governors, opened the dedication ceremony by extending a welcome to the many guests. He thanked those who helped make the new wing a reality. In his statements he remarked, "there are still two major projects that should be undertaken as soon as possible." These, Mr. Yanover explained, are the construction of a new laboratory and another nurses residence.

Following the chairman's remarks, Rev. James A. Spearman led the group in prayer.

PEOPLE MAKE A HOSPITAL

In his message to the audience Dr. W. Douglas Piercey, executive director of the Canadian Hospital Association, stated hospitals are being opened from coast to coast almost daily. It is usually people who make a hospital and not just materials he continued. "You who are members of the community should take interest in your hospital because some day you may have need of its services," he said in conclusion.

The president of the Ontario Hospital Association, Mrs. Charles McLean, was among the notables speaking during the afternoon. She stated a hospital holds different meanings for different people. One group will look at a hospital as a place of employment, while professional men will see it as a workshop. The community will consider a hospital as a place of healing.

Mrs. J. E. Buchan, president of the Women's Hospital Auxiliaries Association of Ontario, described the work of this organization during her message.

The parliamentary assistant to the minister of national health and welfare, Dr. F. G. Robertson, was introduced by Mayor Jane H. Forrester. "This ceremony," he remarked, "has a particular significance for me because some 47 years ago I first saw the light of day here." He continued by saying the completion of this hospital wing is not an isolated thing, but part of a movement taking place in all parts of the nation. The establishment of some 80,000 beds has been assisted by the national health program. The extension of hospitals, he stated, is constantly taking place. These things do not just happen, but instead take careful planning.

BUILD BETTER HOSPITALS

"We are not only building more hospitals," Dr. Robertson said, "but we are building better hospitals." Hospital plans are being studied in relation to what is being done in other places. In this way ideas can be passed from one hospital to another. The role of the federal government, he added, is to use its weight in financial resources to help the provinces.

Warden E. Wood of Hastings County, introduced the main speaker, Dr. Mackinnon Phillips, Minister of Health for the province of Ontario. In his address Dr. Phillips stated "this new wing and its up-to-date equipment are evidence of the way the people of Ontario are and have been facing up to the increasing need for hospital accommodation."

He continued by describing the large sums of money paid in grants by the provincial government. "Taking a look at the overall picture of Ontario government assistance in the way of capital construction grants to all hospitals, we see that since 1947, when the grants payments formula presently in use was introduced, the province has approved of more than 47 million dollars for this purpose. With this and other assistance, our hospitals have increased their bed capacity from around 16,000 in 1946 to approximately 28,000 beds today."

HOSPITAL INSURANCE PLANS

Dr. Phillips described the Ontario Hospital Services Commission, Ontario's first step towards putting into effect some form of hospitalization insurance. Grants which were administered directly by the Department of Health have now passed into the hands of this commission. It is presently engaged in collecting essential data on hospital insurance programs. When this information is complete a comprehensive plan will be presented to the people of Ontario. The plan chosen will contain the best features of all those which have been brought into operation in other areas. The commission has three members now and more will be added when necessary. It will contain various divisions, such as one to handle an educational program for the training of hospital personnel, an architectural and planning division, and a division concerned with research and statistics. These divisions, according to the speaker, are among those in the process of formation at the present time.

The health minister concluded by relating the operating costs of hospitals in Ontario. "In seven years," he stated, "operating costs increased from 33 millions to 96 millions, or more than 176 per cent, while salaries and wages jumped more than 238 per cent. All in all, for the same period the average daily cost to the hospitals for keeping one patient jumped from $7.16 to $14.30. Even as you and I, hospitals are feeling the impact of the steady climb in the cost of living."

During the afternoon ceremony the students nurses' choir sang two selections, "He," and "Bless This House."

After the tour tea was served in the dining room by the Ladies' Auxiliary. Mrs. R. H. Wray, Mrs. Charles Taylor, and Mrs. Fred Deacon were the committee in charge. Servers included Mrs. E. Buchanan, Mrs. Robert Boyce, Mrs. Harry Fuke, Mrs. Ben Safe, Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson, Mrs. Jack O'Flynn, and Mrs. Gilbert Scott.

Completing the list of servers were Mrs. P. Cane, Mrs. J. McArthur, Mrs. Kenneth Smith, Mrs. Freeman Burrows, Mrs. Leona Wilson, Mrs. J. Lennox Smith, Mrs. Bruce Lattimer, Mrs. E. Follwell, Mrs. Alpin Drysdale and Mrs. William Hurst.

Flowers in the tea room were in charge of Mrs. Jack Marshall and Mrs. R. W. Smith.

TURN LOOSE

Glamor girls were on hand, looking glamorous. Burl Ives wandered in with guitar and folklore for a guest appearance. But once the multiple secret was out, the children dominated the stage.

JUST A START

Heaped for them behind a curtain was the stockpile of gifts from a multitude of manufacturers. Of course the dolls, the hobby horses, the toy guns were the major attractions, but the playthings were just a start.

There were washing machines, sewing machines, a movie projector, baby cribs, stack upon stack of diapers, shoes, sleepers, snow suits, sleds, rubber boots and blankets. School supplies and a stack of Bibles added to the list. The cast being what it was, the junior member was just over two and the age range tapered off at 13—near-crits was a constant companion.

One toddler locked herself in the bathroom—they had to force the door to get her on stage on time. The experience didn't faze her in the least. During the telecast she earned the nickname of "Gypsy Rose" by playing games with her skirt, trying either to hike it over her head or at least bile the hem.

Through it all Mom Whyte and her husband remained calm. Her only complaint was that her feet hurt. Her impression of the evening:

"I loved being on TV but I still don't know whether I'd want it around the house."

33 Necks Washed, But Only 30 Made Trip to New York

NEW YORK (CP)—Mom Whyte miscounted.

She was supposed to spruce up 30 of her foster brood for a New York television appearance and somehow 33 necks got washed for the occasion.

We learned of the doubly sad experience of an absent three residents of the home for children Mom runs at Bowmanville, Ont., as we were introduced to the 30 survivors, who arrived in a blaze of press agentry and were established, napkins rampant, in the dining room of a downtown hotel.

Mom, actually Mrs. Bertha Whyte, has been the subject of much praise and some controversy since she took in some 60 children from broken families, whom she is giving a family life on the 50-acre Whyte farm.

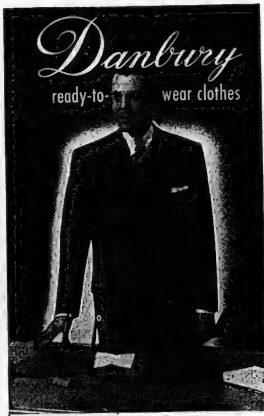
NO TIME

There was no time for discussing this in the brief introductions Wednesday.

"We need an adult at this table," said Mrs. Whyte, firmly. So we sat. The children range from two years to 15. This was the seven-to-10 set.

The main course was turkey with dressing, green peas and pickled beets.

"Never tasted beets like these before," said the group spokesman, all of seven years old, as he tore the paper covering from a sugar cube, chewed the beet, ate the sugar and took a chunk of turkey for a chaser.



"I like milk," added another, trying to make us feel at home. He was at the time, swilling another sugar cube—many vanished into pockets—in his glass of water and ignoring the milk entirely.

Meanwhile, another table companion was stalking his food, chin along the tablecloth, after discarding knife and fork and mashing beets, turkeys and peas into a strategic corner.

NO AGREEMENT

SIMCOE (CP)—The market appraisal committee of the Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Marketing Association failed Wednesday to reach agreement on a minimum average price for the current crop. It will meet later at the call of Chairman Frances R. Gregory.

Weddings

COOPER—BOLTON

St. Paul's Presbyterian church, Oshawa, was the scene of a pretty autumn wedding on Saturday, October 4, at 1.30 p.m., when Shirley Elaine Bolton, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bolton, Oshawa, became the bride of Alfred Ivan Cooper, of Brockville, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cooper, North Augusta, Ontario.

The Rev. Bruce Miles officiated at the double ring ceremony, before a background of bronze and white baby chrysanthemums and ferns.

Mrs. Ross Bell, church organist, provided the traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Jean McNab, who sang before the ceremony "The Lord's Prayer," and during the signing of the register "Bless This House".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in a charming bridal gown of Chantilly lace in ballerina-length and matching lace jacket with Peter Pan collar and long lily-point sleeves. She wore an elbow-length nylon veil with a petal cut cap of sequins and seed pearls and carried a white Bible, a graduation present from her pink rosebuds and white satin streamers.

Miss Barbara Bolton, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, wore gowned in French blue crystal tette and net in ballerina-length. She wore a small matching hat and gloves and carried a bouquet of pink and white 'mums.

Mr. Glenn Blanchard of Perth, was groomsman and the ushers were, Mr. William Cooper of Oshawa, and Mr. Fred Blanchard of Brockville.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held in the church parlors where the guests were received by the bride's mother wearing a bronze crystalette dress with soft green accessories and a corsage of yellow 'mums. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in charcoal blue taffeta with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow 'mums.

The bride's table was centred with a beautiful wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom and misted about the base with tulle.

For a wedding trip by motor through the United States by way of Niagara Falls and Buffalo, the bride chose a tailored suit of brown tweed with matching accessories and mauve lace jacket and corsage of pink rosebuds.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Cooper will reside in Brockville.

Guests attended from North Augusta, Belleville, Centralia, Brockville, Perth, Kingston and Toronto.

The bride, formerly of Belleville, attended the nursing school and Belleville Collegiate, before moving to Brockville, where she trained at the General Hospital, graduating in June 1958.

She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Murphy, Coleman Street.

Belleville Chapter 55 OES Holds Attractive Autumn Tea

Lovely autumn weather lured many patrons to the autumn tea and bazaar held yesterday afternoon in the Masonic Temple, under the auspices of the Belleville Chapter 55 of the O.E.S.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. R. Slavin, Worthy Matron and Mr. G. Adams, Associate Matron, who graciously welcomed each and all. Mrs. Pitt, Past Matron, and Mrs. L. Brickman had charge of the tickets.

The Temple auditorium with its gorgeous autumn leaves, golden pumpkins, and deep green pines, coupled with the attractive booths in shades of brown, orange, beige and bronze, was a bower of beauty.

ATTRACTIVE TEA ROOM

The tea room, separated from the emporium by a white picket fence with wide-open gates adorned with little sad trees, golden pumpkins and trailing bittersweet, was but a foretaste of the interior which was with a profusion of stalks of corn, highlighted with a wee scarecrow standing sentry, fortified by the silken white flag of the Order and the colorful Union Jack, while the white standards of bronze oak sprays held sway at other attractive points.

The little guest tables were covered by tiny, blue wheelbarrows of fruit, and the long tea table, with its white damask, and lovely centrepieces of gold and bronze 'mums, mingled with apples, pine and green grapes in tiered arrangement and flanked by silver candelabra with tall maroon, orange and fawn candles, bespoke the recent Harvest Festival of Thanksgiving.

Bethel United Church Marks 82nd Anniversary

Last Sunday, the Bethel (Rawdon) congregation of the United church observed the 82nd anniversary of the founding of the church, with a large assembly of worshippers in attendance from the community and nearby points.

The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and pines and the basket of flowers on the communion table was placed in memory of the late Mr. James Warren by Mrs. Warren and family.

Mrs. D. R. Aylsworth of Napanee, was the guest speaker, while her brother, the Rev. W. G. Fletcher had charge of the two services. She said in part, "There are no juvenile delinquents, only parental delinquents. Children are everywhere calls upon us to be happy in Psalms, Prophets, Gospels or Epistles.

"Children have no race prejudices. They are taught them by adults. They play just as naturally with colored children as with white children and any nationality as with fellow Canadian children.

"Curiosity is another quality of character of all children and they are of delight to adults, never only thus do they grow intellectually, and they thus does progress the race in the world.

"Finally, and perhaps most important, children are naturally have faith in their parents, and we betray that trust to our peril and theirs. If we could but have such faith in our loving Heavenly Father, who never lets us down, how much richer and fuller life would be."

In the evening, she reminded her audience that anniversaries are times for looking back and looking forward. "We look back with gratitude to God for all that He has done for us and thankfulness to the pioneers who have gone on before us, and left us such a goodly heritage and glowing example to follow. We ought to look forward with faith and hope toward a yet more glorious future."

Mrs. Aylsworth challenged her listeners to take full share in the building of that better tomorrow She told of the needs of the church for trained workers, and called upon the young people to consider full time Christian service as laymen or housewives or teachers or factory workers. She drew illustrations of the heroes of the faith in the past from the 11th chapter of Hebrews, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Moses, David and the prophets. She also made mention of St. Augustine and Hugh Latimer who, before the stake was burned at the stake in England for the faith they held, Take heart, Master Ridley, we shall light a torch this day, which pray God will not be put out." "Let us take heart from the courage and faith of those who have gone on before us and go forward to greater things before for the sake of Jesus Christ, our Master, who leads us on.

Special music, arranged by Mrs. Harold Elliott, A.T.C.M., church organist, was rendered by a full choir at both services.

In the morning, the choir rendered the anthem "Ye Joyful in The Lord," by I. B. Wilson. The guest soloist, Mr. Paul Ross of Wooler, sang "Wherever You Walk", by Handel.

At the evening service, the choir sang the anthem, "The Lord of the Hills" by R. E. Nolte, with Mrs. Donald Heath and Mrs. Carleton Potts taking the solo parts. Mr. Ross rendered a baritone solo, "Green Pastures", by W. Sanderson. The evening service closed with the rendition of "Lead On, O King Eternal."

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IGNORE IT AND SEE WHAT HAPPENS

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

My boy friend and I—we're both 21 years old—have been going together for almost two years and he says we're not going steady because he doesn't believe in it. Yet all his family and friends, and mine too, know we're more than just friends. I know he more than just likes me, but he's never admitted it but once.

Yesterday he told me something that gave me quite a shock.

You see, there is a girl who works at the drug store about four blocks away, and my friends had told me that he had driven her home from work the night before, after he left my house. In fact, he said that usually when he leaves my house, he has been going to the drug store and giving her a ride home.

Now I'm not jealous, and I know there isn't anything wrong in it, but I just can't get over it. I know he doesn't care for her, because she has a lot of boy friends, and I think she is engaged to a fellow in the service (I hope). What do you think about all this? Shall I ask him if he's still taking her home, and shall I let him do it?

— May

Dear May: If you're a smart young woman, you'll act as though it didn't make any difference to you whether he took her home or not. In other words, you'll ignore it.

All you'd do if you kept the subject alive by asking him if he's still taking her home, would be to create an uncomfortable feeling between you, and what good would that do? You say you're not jealous, but whether you actually are or not, your boy friend would think you are if you pursued the subject, whereas if you just drop it, and act as though you never heard of it, it may give him a respect for you that will strengthen your position with him.

My advice would be that you go on, for awhile anyway, just as you've been doing, and wait to see what develops. Either this fellow is going to drift away, as time goes on, or he's going to drop the other girl. And if he is going to drift away, you'll see the signs in time to back gracefully out of your friendship with him before he makes it clear that he wants you to.

So keep your eyes open and watch to see which way the signs point, then take action accordingly.

IF YOU'RE STILL MARRIED, YOU SHOULDN'T GO ON DATES

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm 17 years old and have a baby, but my husband doesn't live with me and never expects to. I don't have a divorce at the present time.

There are boys who don't know I'm married and have a baby, and would like to date me. Should I refuse a date because I'm still married? And if I should have a date with a boy who doesn't know this, should I tell him on the first date, or wait until I'm going with him awhile?

— G.M.

Dear G.M.: If you never expect to live with your husband again, as it appears, in my opinion you shouldn't remain married to him. I can see no justification for maintaining a completely empty relationship which prevents you from leading a normal life.

Moreover, for a married girl to have dates can lead to nothing but trouble. If you go out with a boy without telling him the circumstances, you only hurt him if his intentions toward you are honest, and if his intentions aren't honorable, you'll only hurt yourself. Either way, no good can come of it.

I strongly urge you to clarify your status before going on any dates with any young man.

Gather Round the Soup Pot

By Mary Moore

You must be psychic or hungry or thirsty for I was just getting myself squared around to give you some more soup recipes when, crisp and coucles, came letters saying "more soup recipes, please Mary"—and one especially from Trna W, asking for Pepper Pot, Vichyssoise and Carrot soup.

I hasten to comply. I'm delighted for these requests bring a welcome change to our menus and will usher some new soup connoisseurs to our ranks.

PEPPER POT SOUP:

One-third cup each chopped green pepper, onion and raw beef, 1 tablespoon melted butter or fat, 1-4 lb. finely diced tripe, 2 tablespoons raw rice (or 2 tablespoons each raw rice and pot barley), 3 cups cold water, 1 lb veal knuckle, 3-4 cup chopped tomato, 1-4 to 1-3 teaspoon black pepper, 2 teaspoons salt. Gently saute the pepper, onion and beef in bottom of soup pot in the melted fat for four or five minutes, then add all ingredients except the tomato, and simmer covered for 2 1-3 hours. Add tomato and simmer 20 minutes longer. Remove veal bone, and chop up meat and return to soup (or use it for another dish). Taste again to see if soup could stand more salt and pepper. It is supposed to be quite hot with black pepper.

CREME VICHYSSOISE

Two each large carrots, medium onions and potatoes, and leeks (white part only), 1 tablespoon each butter and rice, 3 teaspoons olive oil, 2 1-2 cups good quality chicken broth, 1-2 pint heavy cream. Chop carrots, onions, leeks and potatoes very finely, and gently cook in the butter and olive oil until soft (about 10 to 15 minutes) stirring constantly over low heat to prevent scorching. Add chicken stock and rice and simmer gently 1 1-2 hours. Strain, forcing all vegetables through sieve, or as much as possible. Cool. Add cream. Chill thoroughly and serve cold garnished lightly with chopped chives and parsley. Note: This soup may be served hot too.

CREAM OF CARROT SOUP

To 3 1-2 cups finely diced carrot add 1 chopped onion, 2 or 3 tablespoons minced raw or cooked ham or very finely chopped bacon rinds or 2 chicken bouillon cubes and 2 cups water and simmer covered until very tender. Rub through sieve. Season with salt and pepper and monosodium glutamate and add to 2 cups thin white sauce made by melting 2 tablespoons butter, stirring in 2 tablespoons flour then 2 cups hot milk until thick. Heat puree and sauce together and taste again. This is lovely served with small croutons. Some of us like this sprinkled with a little finely grated old cheese.

Mother's Helper

A GOOD main dish for a boy's supper party is meat loaf—youngsters like it, it's easy to make and economical. The boys will be delighted if you mold the loaf into the shape of a football, with strips of pimento across the top to look like lacings. Add to the sports motif with cutout, and colored pennant-shaped place cards stuck into plum duffs.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

TODAY'S TIP ON HOSTESS-COURTESY

We all like the hostess who warm-heartedly greets a guest with "I'm so glad to see you," or "How delightful that you could come." And who, to the departing guest, says, "Thank you, so much, for coming," or "I'm so happy that you could come." A most gracious and graceful prologue and epilogue to Hospitality!

CORRECT FORM FOR NAMES OF BRIDE'S PARENTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married soon. My father died several years ago. In the newspaper announcements is it correct to refer to my father in the following manner "daughter of Mrs. Sarah Smith and the late Joseph Smith"? Or is this form used only when the death has been recent? — Bride-to-be

Since a widow, in all her social contacts, should use her husband's name just as she did when he was living, the correct form for the names in the newspaper announcements should be: "daughter of Mrs. Joseph Smith and the late Mr. Smith." This is the correct accepted form, and the lines are indented. No punctuation at the end of the lines. Like this:

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hill
125 Park Street
Pleasantown 3
Connecticut

3. I like very much the idea of your delivering your wedding invitation in person to the parents of the groom. Of course this invitation isn't actually an invitation since the groom's parents know the plans for the wedding. But thoughtful bride-to-be, as soon the invitations are delivered to from the engraver, delivers either by mail, or "in person" you can graciously do first few sets to the groom's p ents, as keepsakes of The Gre Event.

name-form, whether or not the death of the bride's father has been recent.

IMPORTANT QUESTIONS ABOUT WEDDING INVITATIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married in a few weeks, and have some questions concerning my wedding invitations.

1. Which is correct: "junior" and "senior" . . . or "Jr." and "Sr." . . . or "Junior" and "Senior"?

2. When addressing the outside envelope, should the names be in 3 or 4 lines? Should each line be indented?

3. Would it be correct to mail an invitation to the groom's parents, or to deliver it in person? — I.M.

1. When "Jr." is abbreviated, it is capitalized; when it is written out, it is "junior," not capitalized. Neither "senior" nor "Sr." is used with a man's name.

2. The 4-line address is the ac-

Bethel United Church Marks 92nd Year

RAWDON — Bethel United Church, on the Rawdon circuit, held its 92nd anniversary on Sunday, October 14th, with a good attendance at both services.

The church was decorated with sheaves of variegated mums, evergreens and maple leaves.

The guest soloist was Mr. Paul Sandel of Wooler, who rendered Sandel's "When'er You Walk," in the morning and Sandrew's favorite, "Green Pastures," in the evening.

Mrs. D. F. Aylsworth, Napanee, was the anniversary speaker. At the evening service she paid tribute to the pioneers who had built the church and urged the friends of today to be grateful to those of the majestic past. She emphasized that it was the task of the members of Bethel United Church and their children to carry on the work of the glorious future.

Anniversary time is one for reminiscing. Never before in the history of the world is the church so badly needed, as well as workers to carry the torch. She based her message on two important words, "Faith and Hope." Mrs. Aylsworth gave a graphic picture of Arizona where she served the church for one year.

Mrs. Harold Elliott, ATCM, rendered "Morning Prelude," "Sabbath Chimes" and Stainer's "Jubilate March" in the morning. The full choir sang Wilson's selection "Be Joyful in the Lord."

The pastor, Rev. W. G. Fletcher, B.A., opened the morning service with "The ing of Love My Shepherd Is." As a prelude to the sermon the congregation sang "The Church's One Foundation." The morning service closed on the theme of fellowship and service, "Use Me, Lord."

In the evening Mrs. Elliott rendered Schubert's "Reverie," Osmond's "Eventide," and "Allegro" by Bach.

The pastor opened with a hymn of yielding and the offering was gathered by Messrs. W. N. Heath and Don Heath.

Previous to the sermon the congregation sang "Christ is Our Rescate on High," and closed with that great church hymn, "Crowned On, O King Eternal, the Lily of March Has Come."

The choir rendered "The Lord of the Hills" by R. E. Nolte, with Mrs. Don Heath and Mrs. Carleton Potts taking the solo parts.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

BASIC FALL WARDROBE FOR THE BUSINESS GIRL

Suits are the backbone of the business girl's wardrobe. Choose them with care.

If "clothes make the man," as we constantly hear, how much more important must they be for a woman! The right ones, that is. Put a group of pretty girls in floor socks and it will be the rare one, indeed, who'll draw the wolf whistles.

All of which goes to prove that every woman—and especially the business woman—needs the right wardrobe. This calls for choosing colors and styles that are becoming and, if the budget's involved—as it almost always is—it also calls for some economical thinking on the subject.

To look her best, how many and what kind of fall and winter clothes does a girl require? According to one expert, the business girl can get along with a basic wardrobe that includes the following:

Dresses: At least three wool dresses for the office, with four silk prints or faille suits and dresses. The latter are especially practical since you can dress them up or down with accessories.

As for evening clothes, these depend pretty on the type of social life she leads. If a girl goes out formally infrequently, she can get along with one evening gown. If however, she's constantly off on a whirl of dances and other evening parties, more evening gowns will be required.

Suits, the backbone of a working girl's wardrobe, are a smart investment. For late fall and winter, five will be needed. They expand the wardrobe considerably, since they can be changed off with blouses and sweaters of which one should have about a dozen. The vogue for mix-matching is a tremendous help to the business girl's budget.

When it comes to shoes, your rack should hold a pair each of black, brown and navy blue. They're basic. In addition, the well dressed girl should have two other pairs, such as red or British tan. You'll also need a pair of evening slippers, preferably in a metallic such as gold or silver which can be worn with almost any color.

Coats should include an all-day coat, a dressy coat and a sports coat; also a good-looking raincoat, preferably with matching hat. And, speaking of hats, you get by, according to our expert, with three to six—some tailored, some dressy. As for handbags, you should have one in each color. Also plan on seven pairs of gloves and enough costume jewelry, belts and scarves to vary your basic costume. Don't go overboard on these accessories. Just buy what you'll use.

Women's Institute

MOUNTAIN VIEW — Mrs. W. Burkitt opened her home to entertain the October meeting of Mountain View Women's Institute. There were 19 members, several visitors and a number of children present.

The president, Mrs. Barber, opened the meeting in the usual manner.

The motto: "Industry is the Country's Stepping Stone to Success," was ably given by Mrs. Clifford Barber.

The topic, "Canadian Industries," was under the convenership of Mrs. George Neal. Mrs. Neal gave an interesting paper on the Dimock Ltd. firm which is located in Belleville. Mrs. S. Barber gave a reading on "Royalty's Mode of Travel, Yesterday and Today," and Mrs. W. Burkitt gave a reading on "Thanksgiving."

Mrs. Clark Sprung thanked the hostess for her hospitality and Mrs. Ben Anderson also thanked her for entertaining the Institute in her place.

The meeting was closed after which the hostess, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. G. Minaker, and several others, served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

Three Candidates To Choose From In By-Election

TORONTO (CP)—Voters today chose from among three candidates in a provincial by-election in York, a riding that alternated in recent years between Progressive Conservative and CCF.

Leslie Rowntree, 42, Progressive Conservative; Lynn Williams, 32, CCF and Arthur Nagels, 38, Liberal, are contesting the seat left vacant by the death last summer of Elmer Brandon, who won for the Conservatives in the 1955 general election.

A good turnout was expected among the 61,028 eligible voters. Warm, cloudy weather was forecast. Polling hours were 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. EST.

Since the 1945 general election the Conservatives and CCF have held the riding for two terms each. The last Liberal elected to the legislature for York West was William James Gardhouse in 1943.

WAS CANDIDATE

Mr. Nagels was a Liberal candidate in 1955 running third to Mr. Brandon and C. H. Millard, CCF candidate who won the seat in the general election of 1945 and '51. Last year Mr. Brandon polled 14,372 votes, Mr. Millard 10,175 and Mr. Nagels 6,871.

Mr. Rowntree, a lawyer, based his campaign chiefly on the record of the Frost government.

Mr. Williams, an organizer for the United Steelworkers of America, is a strong supporter of a health and welfare scheme. He urged electors to strengthen the Opposition in the legislature.

Mr. Nagels, a sales engineer, urged increased provincial financial aid for municipalities and more support for education.

Standing in the House before today's voting: Conservatives 57; Liberals 10; CCF 3; Liberal-Labor 1; vacant 3; Total 86.

BANK OF CANADA

But the belt-tightening and interest-rate boost may attract a heavier flow of United States capital to Canada. The new Bank of Canada move has widened the gap between Canadian and American interest costs.

When the Bank of Canada made its last increase of one-quarter of one per cent, on Aug. 2, federal reserve banks in the U.S. soon followed with a rise to three per cent. Thus the American-Canadian gap was one-quarter of one per cent. Now it is one-half of one per cent.

Higher Canadian interest rates would tend to attract more American capital to this country. Canadian borrowers would find it cheaper to borrow in the U.S. All this would tend to increase Canada's foreign debt. This may react on the exchange value of the Canadian dollar. It now is at a premium of about 2 cents. A heavier flow of American capital could push the premium higher.

BROUGHT INCREASE

The summer climb of the central bank's interest charges and the restraining influence on credit expansion brought a boost by the chartered banks in their basic prime lending rate. It moved from 4½ per cent to five per cent and later to 5¼. All other bank lending rates have tended to follow the higher pattern.

The banks in turn have increased interest rates on savings deposits to 3½ per cent from two.

The chartered banks have agreed to put a lid on the overall volume of loans. To some extent so have the stock exchanges and sales financing corporations. Informal agreements with these latter groups were reached in confidential talks with the central bank in the last month.

Canadian Chamber Opposes Govt. Health Plan Proposal

By FORBES RHODE
Canadian Press Business Editor

QUEBEC (CP) — Opposition to the federal government's proposal to share with provinces the costs of a standard-ward-level hospital insurance plan, was expressed Wednesday by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

At the same time, the chamber said government aid is necessary in the provision of adequate health facilities.

On the government's specific proposal, however, it stated:

"Such a plan would lead inevitably to compulsory health insurance of a comprehensive nature and to state medicine.

"Any financial assistance provided by the federal government should be directed to areas in which the individual is generally unable to help himself, to the indigent, the aged, the chronically ill and to those who suffer catastrophic medical expenses."

The chamber endorsed the action of many employers in assisting employees to meet medical care, and said voluntary plans should be encouraged with aid from employers when appropriate.

The federal government's proposal is dependent upon acceptance by provinces containing a majority of the population.

The chamber's view on hospital insurance was one item in a 42-page statement of policy and of resolutions adopted Wednesday.

In another policy statement, the chamber said:

"Freedom of enterprise is not a negative concept available mainly for the defence of vested private interests. It is positive and dynamic and imposes on the individual the duty to be enterprising and, in doing so, to maintain a high standard of ethics in the community and to contribute to the common welfare.

"It is the freedom of the individual the duty to be enterprising and take his own chances and, at times, make his own mistakes."

To fight communism, the chamber urged that provincial governments step up the teaching of free enterprise in schools; and that the aid of all public media be enlisted.

WANTED CHURCH AID

This resolution, as adopted by the policy committee, would also have suggested enlisting "the aid of churches and synagogues in spreading the story of free enterprise."

This portion was deleted in Wednesday's full session, however after J. H. Moore, general manager of the Hamilton Chamber of Commerce, said the suggestion was inconsistent with other chamber views. Business men, he stated sometimes criticized clergymen who they felt expressed "left-wing" tendencies. The suggested paragraph would have the effect of giving chamber approval to the right to propagate any economic system from the pulpit. He moved its deletion and was supported by a vote.

REMOVES MACHINES

KITCHENER (CP) — Following a recent ruling by the Supreme Court of Canada that coin-operated machines are illegal, operator Ted Jarosz said Wednesday that he has begun to remove his pinball machines from public places here.

RAILMEN SEEK RAISE

LONDON (Reuters)—Leaders of the 370,000-strong National Union of Railwaymen decided Wednesday night to make an immediate claim is estimated to cost £40,000,000 ($112,000,000) a year. A second union, the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, has filed a separate claim for a 15-per-cent pay boost. Britain's railroads are state-owned.

Union Scores Ballot Box Victory in N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP)—The International Longshoremen's Association, 66-year-old orphan of organized labor, has scored a ballot box victory to retain its right to represent 22,000 waterfront workers in the port of New York.

The U.S. National Labor Relations Board announced today that the ILA and syndicates of dock workers voted 11,837 to 7,426 in favor of the ILA against the AFL-CIO International Brotherhood of Longshoremen.

This is the third time in three years that the ILA has beaten challenges by the IBL, set up by the AFL as a rival after the AFL ousted the ILA on charges of failing to rid itself of racket and crime elements. That was before the merger of the AFL and CIO.

The ILA victories in the two previous elections were by slim margins. The ILA's counsel said the new victory should lead the AFL-CIO to "welcome back" the ousted union.

PRAISED CONDUCT

The orderly conduct of the election won praise from officials of the police department and the waterfront commission of New York harbor, a New York State-New Jersey agency. Heavy police details were assigned to the polling places.

A similar election between the two unions in December, 1953, was marked by stabbings and brawls. The result of that election, in which the ILA was the apparent victor, were set aside by the NLRB on the ground that voters had been intimidated and coerced. The NLRB ordered a new election, and in May, 1954, the ILA won 9,407 to 9,144. The IBL resumed its organizing efforts and campaigning, and instituted Wednesday's new test of strength.

Presbyterian Claims Religion Being Made Into Museum Piece

GALT (CP) — A Presbyterian minister says Canada is becoming a country of dumb Christians and religion is being turned into a museum piece.

Rev. Mario di Gangi of St. Enoch's Church, Hamilton, said Wednesday: "What we need is informed and intelligent church members who will bring the claims of Christ to bear on every aspect of life. What we have is mere Sunday Christianity."

Mr. Di Gangi spoke at the Toronto and Kingston synod of the Presbyterian Church in Canada during a discussion of evangelism and social action.

"When I say modern Christians are dumb, I mean they don't speak and they don't act. People in our times seem to lack religious conviction, and what conviction they have they rarely articulate. Christian conviction should be applied to every single sphere of human endeavor.

SIZE UNCHANGED

"We should take particular note of this. It is scandalous that while Canada's population has increased tremendously since 1925 the size of the Presbyterian Church has remained virtually the same.

"We spend so much time oiling the machinery of our congregations acting as publicity men and handling a multitude of other jobs that we have no time for the job for which we were called.

"While we criticize these (other religions) which accept converts in large numbers, let us at the same time examine ourselves."

Rev. K. G. Macmillan of Guelph, moderator of the synod, said there is an increasing awareness that something is wrong within the church today.

Interdenominational back - biting through the media of church magazines is the result of the Presbyterian Church's inferiority complex, Rev. J. A. Ross of Woodbridge stated.

"The slight little things against some denominations," he said, "in these years are not necessary, and such a chip on the shoulder is very undignified for our church."

Greater interest in church history was urged by Rev. J. P. Skegoe, a former moderator of the general assembly and convenor of the synod's historical committee.

He said it is time for the Presbyterian Church to reconsider its attitudes towards the church union which occurred 31 years ago, forming the United Church of Canada.

"It is time we rethought our position, and we cannot do that unless we know why. We understand why such a large number of Presbyterians (who) join the United Church) took the vote they did then.

"Such rethinking must include an understanding of the reformed faiths of new Canadians so that we can help them settle down here. All we have at the moment is lack of vision, lack of leadership and stubborn congregations."

Isn't that just like a man? You can be sure this spilled water won't get wiped up till morning. ◆ But take heart, ladies! With Stride—a magnificent new Johnson's Wax—on your floors, a damp cloth whisks away spill spots, even if left for hours!

SPILL ON IT, SPLASH ON IT, PUNISH IT —JUST AN EASY ONCE-OVER RESTORES THE LUSTRE, WITHOUT RE-WAXING!
No wonder the swing is to Johnson's Stride! For in Stride women have found at last a self-polishing wax that actually protects like paste wax. You just spread Stride on—it dries to a rich wax lustre. And from then on, spills wipe up without a trace, even after they've dried. A little buffing erases scuff marks.
Your usual damp mopping actually brightens the lustre... brings back Stride's beauty again and again, without re-waxing! So you wax less often. That means fewer of those back-breaking scrub-ups before waxing, too...that's what Stride can mean to you! Why don't you join the swing to Johnson's Stride?

Study Salmon Migration 1,200 Miles in Ocean

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP)—Biologists and technicians from Canada the United States and Japan have returned from a five-month fishing trip which took them 1,200 miles out in the Pacific Ocean, to study salmon migration.

Dr. Ferris Neave of the fisheries researcer board of Canada said the purpose of the trip was "to find out where the British Columbia, Alaska and Asiatic fish are and find out how much overlapping there is between North American and Asiatic salmon."

"There is absolutely no evidence at present that the Japanese are getting the Fraser River fish," Dr. Neave said.

"The Russians have much more reason to worry about the Japanese than we have."

Details of the scientists' findings will be given at a meeting of the International North Pacific Treaty Commission in Seattle.

The federal government chartered the fish packer Challenger and the $160,000 luxury Sedney Key West 11 for the investigation. Mile-long gill nets of four sizes were set at 36 stations between the 42nd and 52th parallels and west to 150 degrees longitude and fish were caught at nearly all stations.

The fish boats were equipped with elaborate refrigeration systems and fish were frozen and saved for study at the Departure Bay biological station near here.

The scientists took oceanographic and physical data, water temperatures and water samples down to 900 feet, and made a study of plankton.

The two vessels travelled 18,000 miles during their investigations.

Two Canadian Adventurers Went Six Days Without Food

ROTTERDAM (Reuters)—Two young Canadian adventurers, who left Miami in a battered ketch Orenda in the Atlantic five days ago after they were given up for lost, went for almost a week without tasting solid food, it was learned here today.

Leonidas Angelides, Greek-born captain of the Libertian steamer Marblanca, today told how the starved, exhausted sailors turned down his offer to be taken to safety.

Angelides, who arrived here today, said the Orenda was spotted from his ship because a sharp lookout had been ordered for survivors or wreckage of the United States Air Force Liftmaster reported lost in the area.

The Marblanca bore in to rough seas, the ketch came alongside, and the two sailors—Bert Smith, 31, of Toronto, and Alan Batternby 29, formerly of Blackpool, England — stumbled aboard the steamer, muttering: "Thank God, captain, God is good."

The 37-foot Orenda sailed for Europe from North Sydney, N.S. on Sept. 7. The tiny ketch was sighted in mid-Atlantic on Sept. 22 by the United States liner America.

The America circled the ketch for 40 minutes, but saw no sign of life aboard and it was feared the boat was derelict. Relatives of Smith and Batternby were informed that the men were considered lost at sea.

Today, Angelides said the men were tired and wet, but in fairly good condition when he spoke to them last Saturday. He said Batternby had a slight skin rash, but was supplied with penicillin.

Angelides said the men were scarcely able to speak until after they had been given hot milk and coffee. Then they told him that bowling gales had snapped the boom of the Orenda, and for the last five days they had nothing solid to eat.

Although he begged them to complete their voyage as passengers on the Marblanca, Angelides said, they were determined to bring their ketch to port by themselves.

The captain gave them provisions for about 40 days and materials to repair the broken boom and mend the tattered sails. As the revived Canadians sailed off again, the Marblanca signalled that the "lost" men were safe.

Record Shipping Year Noted At Churchill

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — Progress of the St. Lawrence power project entails the damming of the swift-flowing Long Sault Rapids. To some this means the elimination of just another beauty spot.

But it means a lot more for 84-year-old Captain J. P. Stephenson, a sailor turned farmer who began shooting the rapids back in 1892 as a youth of 17.

Since then, the retired captain and pilot of the "rapids" class passenger steamers has travelled through them 1,300 times and won renown as one of the most adept "rapids men" on the turbulent St. Lawrence.

45-YEAR PROBLEM

Captain Stephenson knows the rapids probably better than any man alive. He made a career of shooting rapids and the treacherous Long Sault was his pet problem for 45 years.

A sturdy old side-wheeler plying between Montreal and Toronto—the Richelieu-Ontario Navigation Company's passenger steamer Algoman—was his first ship.

After two years as deckhand he was promoted to wheelsman. Although at times this proved a backbreaking job, for at first the ship was steered by manual labor, it gave him a chance to learn the dangerous twists and turns of the rapids.

Shortly afterward he was commissioned as a pilot and transferred to the Canada Steamship Lines steamer Hamilton, receiving his master's ticket in 1899—a year after he bought a farm near Newington on which he now lives with his wife.

Promoted to captain of the Hamilton that year, he sailed the side-wheel ship on its regular run from Montreal to Hamilton until 1904.

WELL-KNOWN SHIPS

From then on his sailing career was to bring him varied experience on practically all navigable waterways in Canada and he became master and pilot of two of the best - known vessels ever to sail in this region — the Rapids Prince and the Rapids Queen.

Many passengers were made seasick by the tossing of the ships in the rapids, Captain Stephenson recalls. Unlike the canal freighters, the rapids steamers were built with a 6 foot, 6 inch draft and double hull. They would travel through the rapids to the north shore and hit an abrupt current trend about halfway through on trips in both directions, he said.

Here, the ship had to be swung sharply to starboard and then hard to port. This wasn't designed to make the passengers sick, said the captain, but it often did.

Now the old-time rapids skipper is waiting to see the Long Sault Rapids when they are dried up.

"After sailing through them 1,300 times," he said, "I'd like to see what was underneath all that foam."

PIGGY-BACK SPECIAL FROM BELLEVILLE

Part of a train of 58 flat cars travel from Belleville, to Montreal carrying 17 diesel locomotives, 24 refrigerator cars and 17 other equipment destined for Canadian National Railways narrow-gauge line in Newfoundland. Tracks in Newfoundland are more than 14 inches narrower than those on the mainland, so the locomotives and cars had to be carried piggy-back over the regular rails to Montreal for shipment by water to Newfoundland. Canada's New Official Atlas Ready for Distribution in '58

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's new official atlas — the first since 1917—may be ready in 1958.

Geographers and draftsmen of the federal mines department have been working on the long-awaited atlas for more than four years.

Head of the project is Dr. Norman L. Nicholson, 37-year-old director of the department's geographical branch, who says the 1958 date "is very approximate."

The new atlas, eagerly sought by teachers, industry, universities and other sources, will be a big improvement over the obsolete bound volume of 1917.

It will contain 113 sheets of maps, measuring 28 by 20 inches, in a loose-leaf binder so they can be removed and placed on a wall blackboard for teaching purposes. Loose - leaf presentation also will facilitate replacement of maps that become obsolete.

Need for the atlas, which will be sold to the public through the Queen's Printer, was pointed out in 1946 by the Canadian Social Science Research Council—an advisory body made up largely of university personnel in the social sciences.

The geographical branch was put to work on the project after the government studied the council's recommendations.

Dr. Nicholson says the producers of the atlas "intend to try to present all important aspects of Canada's geography — physical, human and economic."

The maps will show such things as the distribution of the country's population, where its Eskimos and Indians live, its natural resources — grain crops, mineral wealth, forests and others — atmospheric pressure and climatic conditions.

One map the branch is particularly proud of will feature parts of historical maps, starting with one made in 1613 by the French explorer Samuel Champlain.

These maps, said Dr. Nicholson, "will show the way in which knowledge of Canada grew."

Dr. Nicholson was appointed branch director Oct. 12 this year. He joined the branch in 1949 as head of its Canadian geography section and served as assistant director under W. J. Watson, now professor of geography at Edinburgh University.

A native of England and graduate of University of London, University of Western Ontario, London, Ont., and Toronto University, he planned the branch's annual field program and himself headed six studies in the Arctic.

He says the north's vast development and survey and aerial photographic work will result in vast changes in maps of the region.

Scale of the basic map will be approximately one inch to 128 miles — an internationally accepted scale.

Dr. Nicholson says he already has "a big file" of requests from other countries for copies.

Most major nations have official atlases, usually published by state governments. India and Australia recently published new ones. Work is under way in the United Kingdom on an up-to-date version.

"The United States has always wanted one but it is not ready yet," Dr. Nicholson said. "Work there is still at the committee stage."

Six Ontario Industrial Areas To Be Examined

TORONTO (CP)—The University of Toronto has announced a round table conference of 120 prominent Canadians who will discuss over a two-year period the impact of expanding industrialization on Canadian society. The first of three yearly sessions will begin Monday.

Working with university researchers, leaders of business, industry, labor, government and service professions such as medicine will examine six first-hand six Ontario industrial areas.

They will revisit the six areas next fall. Later they will evaluate findings and remark on social implications.

Participants will be men such as A. E. Grauer, president of the B.C. Electric Co., Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, and Crawford Gordon Jr., president and general manager of A. V. Roe Canada Ltd.

PLANNED FOR YEAR

The project has been planned for a year by the Toronto School of Social Work under Professor Charles E. Hendry. It will cost $100,000, to be provided by a university grant, contributions from industry and fees from participants.

The study will be similar to the Duke of Edinburgh's Commonwealth conference on human problems in industrial communities held in Oxford, England, in July.

The area to be examined are the Cornwall section of the St. Lawrence seaway project; Iroquois Falls, a town with a single industry, pulp and paper; the uranium centre of Blind River; the Malton area, home of aircraft workers from a single large company; Scarborough, an industrial suburb of Toronto; and a downtown Toronto area in process of redevelopment.

Theme of the conference, which the university says will be "one of the most significant conferences ever held in Canada," will be set Monday by British industrialist Sir Geoffrey Vickers. He will list what he considers "the needs of man."

Sinking of Empress of Ireland Could Have Been Avoided Had Marine Radar Been Available

MONTREAL (CP)—A man who survived the sinking of the Empress of Ireland 42 years ago says the tragedy could have been avoided had marine radar been available in those days.

Ronald Ferguson, general manager of Marconi International Marine Communications Company of London, was chief radio officer aboard the 14,000-ton passenger liner when she went down in the St. Lawrence River, 20 miles east of Father Point, Que.

The 63-year-old executive, here to discuss radar development with officials of the Canadian Marconi Company, recalled that the liner was rammed while anchored in heavy fog.

The Empress of Ireland sank three miles off shore, 15 minutes after being struck by the 8,000-ton Norwegian Collier Storstad on May 29, 1914. The death list was 1,024, including 350 who died of exposure after being among 700 persons who were picked up.

Mr. Ferguson, who has watched the development of radar from its infancy, said the collision couldn't have occurred with modern radar equipment."

The only electronic device in those days was the direction finder, put into use in 1912 for plotting the ship's position, "and the man who sent the S O S just before the Empress of Ireland slipped into her grave at the bottom of the river.

She was bound from Quebec City to Britain. It was 2 a.m., and Mr. Ferguson was preparing to go to bed.

"Something apparently went haywire on the other ship," he said.

"Suddenly there was a crash. The ship heaved over after a few minutes. She started to list badly.

"Partly clothed, I dashed toward the radio room," Mr. Ferguson added. "I met one of the ship's officers coming to fetch me. He told me to send an S O S and shouted 'she'll be down in five minutes.'

"I saw him hurled against the wall. They found him later with a broken neck."

There were people everywhere, some running about in confusion, others jumping overboard, Mr. Ferguson said. "There was time only to lower a few lifeboats.

"The ship heaved over more. I leaped into the water.

"Two ships — the Lady Evelyn and Eureka—picked up our S O S and sped to the rescue. The Storstad, damaged but not in danger of sinking, turned around and joined in the picking up of survivors.

"A lifeboat approached me in the darkness but I couldn't reach it. Then one of the men on the lifeboat saw a friend in the water and threw an oar toward him.

"I caught hold, rowed with one oar, turned toward me and I managed to catch on!" Mr. Ferguson added.

He was taken aboard the Lady Evelyn, from where he dispatched a message to Father Point for relay to the owners. Wireless equipment had only recently been installed and the Lady Evelyn had no radio operator on board.

Mr. Ferguson then sent a message to London, giving the world the first news of the disaster.

He spent the night aboard the ship and "got the biggest scare of my life" in the morning when he caught sight of a lifeboat, loaded with people, drifting out side the portside.

"I jumped to my feet," he said, "only to learn that the captain had called a lifeboat drill."

RETURN TRUE BILL

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—A grand jury Wednesday returned a true bill in the murder indictment against William Andrew Bery, 31.

The accused is charged with the July 1 slaying of Mrs. Vivian Mytruk, 26-year-old nurse's aide whose body was found under the back porch of a store. Mr. Justice R. I. Ferguson adjourned the case until Oct. 22.

Three Candidates Besides Eisenhower and Stevenson Running for U.S. Presidency

WASHINGTON (CP) — You hear a lot these days about Dwight D. Eisenhower and Adlai E. Stevenson but very little about T. Coleman Andrews, Darlington Hoopes or Henry Krajewski.

Yet, all five are candidates for the presidency of the United States.

Eisenhower and Stevenson, of course, are the leading figures on the American political stage. Eisenhower as the Republican president now seeking a second-term in the White House and Stevenson as the Democratic nominee in the Nov. 4 presidential contest.

Andrews, Hoopes and Karjewski play minor roles as the leaders of three of a group of splinter parties scattered around the fringe of U.S. politics. To date, seven minor party tickets have been named in this election campaign but, if past history is a yardstick, few will qualify or poll votes in more than 20 of the 48 states.

In 1952, splinter candidates polled only 300,000 votes, 0.5 per cent of the record popular vote of 61,551,942.

Secondary parties find little popular favor in the United States. At least firmly wedded by tradition—and some political trickery —to the two-party system, and the third party has risen in decades to shake the dominant hold on U.S. politics exercised by the two major groups—the Democrats and the Republicans.

In election year, the splinter groups make a token bid on the ballot slips by drawing power among the voters by spotlighting of their item last national organization capable of arousing country-wide support and in recent years qualified some voters, raised by major party policy-makers who sense their influence value, have made it difficult for them to get on the ballot.

Andrews, a Virginia Democrat and former U.S. internal revenue commissioner, has been nominated for president by the Constitution party, a states' rights, anti-federal-encroachment group. He also has been endorsed by a newly-formed group known as the "National Conservative Movement" and by a strongly pro-segregation group which has put him on the ballot in Virginia as candidate of the "States' Rights party of Virginia."

Hoopes is the presidential candidate of the Socialist party, which reached its hey-day in 1912 and has been running downhill since. In the 1912 contest, socialist presidential candidate Eugene Debs captured 901,873 votes — six per cent of the total. In 1952, the Socialist ticket drew only 19,685.

Krajewski, Secaucus, N.J., tavern owner and one-time pig farmer, represents the Poor Man's party, virtually a one-man operation which has the annexation of Canada as a plank and "more beer parties for the poor man" as one of its most alluring election promises. On that platform, Krajewski polled 4,203 votes four years ago.

The Socialist-Labor party, a left-wing off - shoot of the Socialist party, has nominated Eric Hass of New York as its presidential candidate with the Socialist Workers Group, another left-wing faction, has Farrell Dobbs, also a New Yorker, at the head of its ticket. Hass polled 30,276 votes in 1952 and Dobbs 10,306.

The Prohibition party, which rolled up a vote total of 72,769 in 21 states four years ago, has named Dr. Enoch A. Holtwick, a retired history professor from Greenville, Ill., while the Greenback party, which has been campaigning for money reform since 1874, selected Fred C. Proehl, 75-year-old Edmonds, Wash., grocer, as its standard-bearer.

Proehl, also a candidate four years ago, believes in greenbacks — banknotes, and lots of them—as substitutes for interest - bearing bonds used in financing such things as government power projects. Voting records show the Greenbackers went voteless in 1952.

In some states, ballot qualifications are so rigid that minor parties, unable to enter the election races, draw their only support from ballot "write-in"—electors scribbling their preference for the minority candidate on the voting slip itself.

In 1936, a third party movement —the Union party—was able to get on the ballot in only 36 states. Similar difficulties were encountered in 1948 by the Dixiecrats, made up of Southern Democrats who rebelled against civil rights legislation, and the Progressive party, then led by Henry Wallace, the former Democratic vice-president.

Ross Thatcher Does Not Expect To Be Elected

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ross Thatcher, former CCF member of Parliament for Moose Jaw-Lake Centre, says he considered becoming a Social Credit element for a long time before switching to the Liberal party.

"I couldn't figure out their monetary system so I gave up," he said in an interview here. Mr. Thatcher is in Vancouver for a sister's wedding.

The 39-year-old hardware merchant from Moose Jaw says he doesn't expect to be elected in the next federal election.

"Being elected as a Liberal in Saskatchewan is almost impossible. I'd say my chances are about one in three. I'd have a much better chance as a Social Crediter. I was offered the Socred leadership in Saskatchewan, you know."

Mr. Thatcher said he joined the CCF party after sensing the bitter feeling amongst the unemployed in the 1930s when he left university.

"It looked like a good thing. But boy, was I wrong. Their ideas were fine, for instance, government factories for the unemployed—were very sound but of course completely impractical."

Rate Increase Asked Will Not Meet all Needed

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's two biggest railroads said Wednesday that a 15-per-cent increase in general rail freight rates being sought from the board of transport commissioners would not provide their full income requirements for this year.

Mr. Thatcher said he joined the CCF party after sensing the bitter feeling amongst the unemployed in the 1930s when he left university.

"It looked like a good thing. But boy, was I wrong. Their ideas were fine, for instance, government factories for the unemployed—were very sound but of course completely impractical."

NEAR RAIL PACT

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. railroads and a score of labor unions representing nearly 1,000,000 rail workers Wednesday were reported nearing an agreement for a two-year contract providing substantial pay increases. Negotiations are being carried on in Chicago.

Koreans Claim Japs, Reds Raid Fishing Grounds

SEOUL, Korea (Reuters) — A South Korean government spokesman has accused Japanese and Communist Chinese fishing interests of co-operating in fishing forays within South Korean territorial waters.

The spokesman said that Korean coast guards and Chinese fishermen were involved in a struggle Monday night when coast guards escorting two captured Japanese vessels captured a Chinese vessel off the south coast of Korea.

During the search of the Chinese vessel, in which a Japanese-made rifle and ammunition were found, the South Koreans found their ship was being surrounded by "unidentified ships which approached in a menacing manner," he said.

This was the first incident involving Communist Chinese and South Korean ships since last year, when four South Korean coast guards were captured by Chinese off the southwest coast of Korea. They have not been returned.

Chevrolet Introdnces Fuel Injection In 1957 Models

Featuring horizontal-sweep styling, the 1957 Chevrolet looks even longer than its 200 inches — two-and-one-half inches more than last year. All bodies are lower, too, and further additions have been made to windshield area, the whole adding up to striking eye-appeal. Among the many mechanical advancements is revolutionary fuel-injection as an available option. Shown above is the Bel Air sport coupe.

In an announcement today that caught most of the automotive world by surprise, General Motors of Canada announced that fuel injected and a new triple-turbine automatic transmission will make their debut on the 1957 Chevrolets.

A long-time objective of automotive engineers, Ramjet fuel injection will be introduced on the Corvette engine, a lively new V8 of 283-horsepower that is to be available as an option throughout the line of Chevrolet passenger cars.

The 1957 Chevrolets go on display at dealer showrooms shortly. Also to be unveiled for the first time is the new transmission, known as Turboglide.

In eye-appeal and physical appearance, the 1957 Chevrolets differ strikingly from the 1956 models. While two and one-half inches have been added to the overall lengths, the horizontal sweep of new styling motif gives the impression that the car is even longer than 200 inches. All bodies are lower, with a reduction of an inch and a half in height of the cowl and substantially increased windshield areas.

HAVE RUGGED FRONT

Common to the design of all passenger cars is a rugged front end that combines a massive guard and bumper ensemble with an aluminum grille screen and inset parking lamps. Lance-shaped wind splits on the hood add a touch of modernity. However, most of the duplication in the appearance between the three series ends here. Chevrolet again offers exclusive exteriors and interiors in each of its series.

In respect to the mechanical advances on the new Chevrolet, Ramjet fuel injection replaces the customary carburetor. Because of quicker power response and faster warm-up, it is expected to gain wide adoption within a few years. Chevrolet pioneers the device in its field and will be one of the few makes, regardless of price, to offer the advance on engines this year.

NEW TRANSMISSION

The Turboglide transmission is a Chevrolet exclusive. It carries the principle of torque conversion — first introduced in Chevrolet's Powerglide in 1950 — to a new peak in efficiency.

The triple turbine — with infinitely variable ratio characteristics — produces an uninterrupted driving force at all speeds. There is no feeling of "shift" at any level.

Incorporating an unusual "hill retarder", Turboglide is included in a choice of 22 power trains, suggestive of the customized trend that has so greatly influenced passenger car models in recent years.

Chevrolet offers 20 different models for its 1957 passenger car line-up with the widest color choice in its history — a total of 490 model color combinations compared with 364 at the outset of 1956 production. Of the 17 exterior colors, seven are new.

Although the 1957 Chevrolet boasts a number of improvements that will enhance the comfort and safety of driving, major interest of the chassis story is found in the greatest variety of power plants ever produced by a low price car builder. Offered in the Chevrolet passenger car line are one six and four eight-cylinder engines, ranging in horsepower from 140 to 283.

Tourist Wants All Trimmings

TORONTO (CP) — A Canadian travel authority says more holidays are ruined by poor accommodation and inferior food than by any factor short of the smile.

Gordon Wood, vice-president of Trans-Canada Air Lines and president of the Canadian Tourist Association, said Tuesday "The age of the cabin and the bathroom down the hall are dead. The tourist, whether from Moose Jaw or Milwaukee, wants all the trimmings. If he cannot find them he will not come back and, worse still, he will advise his friends not to come."

He addressed a dinner gathering of the Canadian Motor Hotel Association. Officers elected at today's sessions were:

Peter R. Maxwell, Toronto, president; Carl Starkman, Sarnia, vice president; Walter E. Elliott, Kitchener, secretary, Albert Strassberger, Kitchener, treasurer.

Oppa Knox Speaks Again

CALGARY (CP)—Harvey Knox stepfather of import Chuck Ronnie Knox, says football players should form a club to prevent them being talked about by clubs "like a bunch of dirty, rotten, scrummy gutbags."

He said Wednesday in an interview over radio station CFCN that a football player can only get ahead if he is playing with a successful club.

He was commenting on an article by a Toronto sports writer who said Ronnie would be better off if he were left to shift for himself.

"A 21-year-old boy isn't qualified to hold his own dealings with men who run football," said Harvey, who has acted as Ronnie's part-time manager.

Ronnie recently left Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four Football Union to join last place Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Larks Seek 11 in Row

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes will be trying for a record 11 victories in a row on their home field when they oppose Hamilton Tiger-Cats in a Big Four football game here Saturday.

The Alouettes have never been beaten in regular season or playoff games at home since they moved to McGill Stadium at the start of the 1954 season. Their last loss in Montreal was to Hamilton, by 22-11 in the last game of the 1953 season at the Montreal Amateur baseball park.

Edmonton Eskimos of the western conference run up a home string that was snapped at 20 victories earlier this season.

SPORT IN BRIEF

MOSES WARD "RETIRED"

DETROIT (AP) — The permanent suspension of Moses Ward, Detroit middleweight now fighting out of New York, was announced Wednesday by Floyd Stevens, chairman of the Michigan state athletic board of control.

Stevens, also president of the National Boxing Association, tabbed the suspension will be observed in all states where the NBA governs boxing. He said Ward's poor record over the past 18 months dictated the decision.

LANE TO SEE ACTION

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP)—Lloyd Stevens, president of the National Boxing Association, indicated Wednesday that a suspension against Kenny Lane would be lifted in time for the Muskegon, Mich., lightweight to meet Frankie Ryff at Miami, Fla., Nov. 7.

"I feel that the Lane situation will be resolved at our Oct. 26 meeting in Detroit," Stevens said. The Miami boxing commission this week approved the bout despite an indefinite NBA suspension against Lane pending investigation of a contract dispute in New Orleans.

Manchester U Beats Germany

MANCHESTER, England (Reuters) — Manchester United, the English Soccer League champion, beat Borussia of Dortmund, Germany 3-2 here Wednesday night in the first leg of their European Soccer Cup second round match.

At Bristol, England and France fought a scoreless tie in their international soccer game between teams of players under 23 years old.

Varsity Parades Quarterback Line

TORONTO (CP) — University of Toronto Blues will continue their parade of quarterbacks when the University of Western Ontario Mustangs in a Senior Intercollegiate football league game here Saturday.

For the third successive game they will start with a different quarterback handling the team.

Six-foot-five-inch Harry Wilson will have his chance against the Mustang squad, Dalt White, Varsity coach, said Wednesday night.

Wilson will follow Larry Joynt who followed Eddie Skrzypek in the Blue's succession of quarterbacks.

Joynt was sidelined by a pulled knee ligament received in the Varsity's 15-13 win over McGill Redmen last Saturday. Skrzypek is still handicapped by a sore ankle suffered in the 7-7 opening game against Queen's two weeks ago.

"There isn't much to choose between any of our quarterbacks," said White. "We didn't have an opportunity to put Wilson into a game before, but he's an experienced player who throws a good pass. We're not worried about him."

Lions Win Over Chicoutimi

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP)—Trois-Rivieres Lions, in the Quebec Hockey League cellar all last year, pulled into a first-place tie in the new QHL season by defeating Chicoutimi Saguenens 5-3 Wednesday night.

It was the second straight victory for the Lions after an opening-game defeat and the first loss for Chicoutimi after two wins. The two teams are tied with Quebec for the league lead.

Trois-Rivieres scored on the first three shots they fired at Chicoutimi goalie Ray Frederick. Claude Vinet counted twice, while Jack Bownass, Dino Mascotto and Denis Pepin got one goal each.

Stan Smrke scored two for Chicoutimi and Fern Perreault the third.

British Soccer

NEWPORT, Monmouthshire, England (CP)—English third division soccer clubs are bending attentive ear to the merry jingling of turnstiles at Newport county's Somerton Park.

In a year when the majority of division's 46 clubs are reporting falling attendance, Newport county is averaging more than 1,800 fans a game for the first time in more than two years.

Club officials credit their success to a bold pay-according scheme under which each player is paid an extra 10 shillings for every 1,000 fans above 10,000 at home games. The scheme, technically illegal under league rules, is also paying off on the field.

The players' drive to produce good-pleasing soccer has lifted the club into contention for first place in the standings, a marked improvement over last season when Newport County finished a lowly 18th in the Southern section.

The Football League isn't too happy about the Newport experiment since the bonus plan conceivably could infringe on league regulations placing a £15 weekly minimum on players' wages. The average wage for third division players is about £10.

No Previews In Australia

MELBOURNE (AP)—The Australian Olympic Federation has banned Australian competitors from taking part in the international competitions here before the games.

"We won't be party to any games previews," the federation told amateur sports officials.

An international athletics meeting is planned in Olympic Park on Nov. 10.

Superb Production Accorded The Letter With Miss McKenna

By CHARLES MERCER

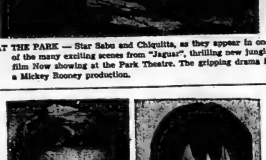
NEW YORK (AP)—The superb production accorded The Letter on Producers' Showcase (NBC-TV) the other evening demonstrated what live television can do with a play that has run its course on Broadway and on film.

After 30 years The Letter came on the home screen as fresh and vital entertainment, thanks to superior writing, acting, direction and production.

The Letter has a facile plot. The wife of an English Malaya planter murders her lover from jealousy of his Oriental mistress. The Oriental woman comes into possession of a letter the English woman wrote the murdered man.

With the reluctant connivance of her lawyer she buys the letter from the Oriental woman, who cares less about the money than the abasement of the English woman. She is freed—but she is not free. Her husband, learning of her unfaithfulness, is nevertheless willing for the reconciliation she believed she desired with him. But at the final moment she relishes the lover the man she murdered.

HUMAN DUPLICITY



The Letter is, above this, a study of human duplicity and of the inherent conflict between East and West. In its Producers' Showcase presentation Monday evening these basic themes came through clearly and convincingly.

The essential nature of the woman was captured by Siobhan McKenna, a magnificent actress who chose to play the role broadly —which seemed wise in a 90 minute television production. When Somerset Maugham created the character of the woman he was not concerned with absolute evil, but with the utter confusion of human passions.

Michael Rennie, as the lawyer who regretfully abetted the woman in obtaining her acquittal, superbly set off Miss McKenna's intensity. As the suffering husband, John Mills underplayed Miss McKenna most effectively.

AT THE PARK — Star Sabu and Chiquita, as they appear in one of the many exciting scenes from "Jaguar", thrilling new jungle film Now showing at the Park Theatre. The gripping drama is a Mickey Rooney production.

AT THE PARK — Tab Hunter and Natalie Wood are pursued by a vengeance seeking land baron's gang in "The Burning Hills" in Cinemascope and WarnerColor outdoor adventure drama, which starts tonight at the Park Theatre.

Movie Column

Mickey Rooney Appears Glad Old Movies Being Shown on TV

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Mickey Rooney takes sharp issue with Clark Gable, Judy Garland and other stars who have objected to the showing of their old movies on television.

The release of the huge studio backlogs, especially those of MGM, has brought strong protest from some stars who argue:

1. They frequent appearances on TV will diminish their value as film stars;

2. They may actually be competing with themselves on TV;

3. They are getting no money from the showings.

The irrepressible Mick doesn't go along with the mourners.

"Too much exposure?" he asked. "How can you have too much exposure? Has anyone defined how much is too much?

"I don't see how they can hurt pictures can hurt me. In fact, I think they're out to help me."

After all, the Rooney name will be kept before the public, and his versatility will be underlined. His career certainly should be helped when the public, press and producers see him in such widely varied films as Boy's Town, Babes in Arms, The Human Comedy, National Velvet, Young Tom Edison and Girl Crazy.

As for the money involved, Mickey philosophized: "You can't get any of it, so why worry?"

Mickey's current career continues at a busy clip. He did three pictures this year, including a much-lauded performance in The Bold and the Brave. This summer he played several profitable weeks at Las Vegas, Reno and Lake Tahoe.

Added to all of this is his TV series, Hey, Mulligan, which is playing profitably on the re-run circuit. Unlike the MGM movies, he shares in the profits of these.

But still the ambitious Mickey isn't satisfied.

"Sure, I can always go out on the road and make money as an entertainer," he said. "But that doesn't progress your career. When you're out of Hollywood, they forget you."

SAIL HO!

The Bay of Quinte Power Squadron is keeping step with its sister units across the country. Commodore Bill Bell announced today that the squadron will commence its annual special course in boat handling starting Monday, 8 p.m., at B.C.I.

The course, which embraces some six months of weekly instruction is a qualifying one that touches several subjects. Graduates can take post-course special subjects. Potential admirals should register at Room 318 Monday evening.

Officers of the squadron who are taking a vital interest in the course are, besides Commodore Bell, Lennox Smith, vice-commodore; Al Wickerson, rear commodore; Freeman Burrows, flag officer and directors A. Master, Jim Forrester, Ernie Calebourne, George Haigh and Bob Boyce.

The growth of pleasure boating in the country has been phenomenal. So rapid has been the rise in popularity in this sport, which provides more than the proverbial spice of danger, that the elements of safety and caution have often been ignored.

Early in 1933 a group of enthusiasts foresaw this growth and determined to form an organization in Canada that would teach the fundamentals of seamanship to the landsman who had acquired a boat without having any knowledge of marine safety regulations, of pilotage or of the principles of basic navigation.

From these early beginnings, which centred around the St. Clair River, the Windsor Power Squadron-which was to become the nucleus of the present association, was born. By 1939 a second and then a third squadron came into being in Sarnia and London, Ontario.

In 1949 annual meetings were instituted. The first of these events, attended by representatives from Windsor, Sarnia, Toronto, Hamilton and Port Dover, was held at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto.

Today this body is known as the Canadian Power Squadron. It is divided into seventeen regional squadron groups and has a total membership of about a thousand.

As each year passes, though, existing totals go by the board, and in 1956 the Toronto squadron, though a leader, typical of all, expects to almost double its membership of a year ago. The Quinte squadron has a membership of 66.

New squadrons are constantly being formed, as the sport of boating comes within the grasp of the general public. So great has been the increase in Canada's boating population that in two hikes in the Georgian Bay area alone there are now over thirty thousand craft afloat.

The urge to study and to acquire the necessary degree of proficiency became so great among the members of the Squadrons that in 1950 an educational department was formed. It was headed by a director with an additional representative from each of the squadrons existing at that time.

The Canadian Power Squadrons are pledged to the establishment of a high degree of skill in the handling and navigation of yachts, both powered and under sail. Anyone wishing to join the Squadron must therefore first pass an entrance examination. If he wishes to become a member of the organization, there is no other way. Once the examination has been passed the applicant must be approved by the Board of Admission.

Courses in seamanship, advanced piloting, junior navigation, advanced navigation, motor maintenance, sailing and weather, open to members of the Squadrons, are all framed with the intention of the amateur boatman in mind. They are so devised as to teach him the whys and wherefores of operating pleasure boats so that he will handle his craft with ease and confidence.

The tremendous increase in the number of craft operating in Canada's fresh water sea lanes has led to a stricter enforcement of the Canada Shipping Act as it applies to small boats. Now there is even talk of every boatman being required to carry a certificate of competence when at the wheel.

The Squadron course has been cited as the best instruction of its kind so far devised.

According to Captain G. L. C. Johnson, assistant chief of Nautical Services, however, if the complete Power Squadron instruction is not possible, a C.P.S. examination, based on a short course which may conveniently be divided into eight subjects, would perhaps suffice.

These subjects are: (1) Equipment and Government Regulations; (2) Rules of the Road at Sea; (3) Seamanship; (4) Safety at Sea; (5) The Mariner's Compass; (6) Aids to Navigation; (7) Charts and Piloting; (8) Manners and Customs on Shipboard.

The flag of the Canadian Power Squadron can be displayed only by enrolled members, its display signifying that the boat is in the charge of a capable person who has made a study of piloting and small boat handling, and will recognize the rights of others and the traditions of the sea.

The privileges of the flag are jealously guarded. It may not be bought or sold, rented, loaned, or given away. It is proudly displayed from the starboard yard arm of a motor boat, and on craft under sail, it is flown from the starboard spreader.

On the social side weekend cruisers take place almost every weekend during the boating season. Often "predicted log" contests are held, in which the skill and experience of members is put to the test. The winners of these contests are the boats which negotiate a course in the time more closely approaching a previous estimate.

POLAR TRIP TO GAMES

STOCKHOLM (AP) — German, Austrian and Yugoslav athletes will fly over northern polar regions to Melbourne for the 1956 Olympic Games, it was announced Wednesday.

Three flights have been organized as test arrangements for regular service between Copenhagen and Tokyo and will be used to transport the athletes to Australia.

REAUME SIDELINED

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs will be without the services of defenceman Marc Reaume when they play the Red Wings in a National Hockey League game in Detroit tonight.

Reaume suffered a bruised heel in a workout and was unable to skate Wednesday.

Left-winger Bob Pulford, recovering from a back injury, also will miss the game.

Has Stopped 91 of 93 Shots In First Three Loop Games For Sparkling 978 Average

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Phil Watson dropped a remark in the New York Rangers' dressing room Wednesday night which may indicate one of two things: either the usually volatile coach is mellowing, or he has one of the most-improved clubs in the National Hockey League.

Talking to newspaper men after the Rangers had shut out Boston Bruins 2-0 in New York, to take over undisputed possession of second place, Watson said:

"I don't want to say I was disappointed with us in winning."

The comment was significant because Watson, a noted perfectionist, practically never admits he is fully satisfied with the way his team is playing, even when it wins.

Last season, when the Rangers played second to finish in third place, Phil was usually pleased after Ranger victories but wouldn't admit his club couldn't do better.

One player who came in for a fair amount of criticism from Watson during the last half of the 1955-56 season was Lorne (Gump) Worsley.

Worsley has changed, and fiery Phil admitted Wednesday night he was particularly happy with Worsley who now has two shutouts in three games—half the number he had all last season.

Worsley was hampered in the final part of last season by a knee injury. During the summer he had an operation and Watson remarked that it has "made Worsley better than ever."

Gump, who has stopped all but two of 93 shots in three games for a league-leading 978 average, turned back 27 Bruin shots while Andy Hebenton and Dave Creighton were picking up goals.

Hebenton beat Terry Sawchuk at 4:38 of the first period with a 55-foot screen shot. The goal was unassisted. At 2:35 of the second, Ron Murphy set up Creighton on a picture play.

Boston, losing its second defeat, lost defenceman Allan Stanley who suffered a severe leg gash on Ranger Lou Fontinato's skate. Stanley will be out for three to four weeks.

He was taken to hospital where 20 stitches were taken in the leg muscle and 17 were needed to close the wound just above the left ankle.

The game was the only one scheduled. Tonight Montreal Canadiens play host to Chicago Black Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs travel to Detroit.

Here's That Western Sr. Suit Cut to Perfection by Taylor

KITCHENER (CP)—Most of the five cubs in the Ontario Hockey Association's senior A western group will meet the season with three teams—one going, one coming and one on the ice.

Lineups are taking a settled pattern as Chatham Maroons, Windsor Bulldogs, Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, Stratford Indians and Owen Sound Mercurys prepare to open league action.

The season opens Friday with Windsor at Stratford and Kitchener-Waterloo in Chatham. Stratford moves to Kitchener and Chatham to Owen Sound Saturday while Owen Sound goes to Windsor Sunday.

There have been many changes in players rostered on each club that makes it difficult to forecast prospects.

Windsor Bulldogs, with Detroit industrialist Tony Wilne's backing announced early chances of trying to wreck the league but rumbles have subsided since the defending champions from Chatham defeated Windsor twice in preseason exhibitions.

Windsor has a new coach in Jack Stewart, who handled Kitchener-Waterloo Canuck juniors for the last two years. George Goe, for many years a National Hockey League forward now is business manager.

Biggest acquisitions for the Bulldogs are centre Lou Bendo and goalie Don Head, gained from Stratford Indians in a deal that finally required the authorization of the OHA executive, and Joe Klukay from Toronto Maple Leafs of the NHL. Returning are such forwards as Frank Bathgate, Reg Abbott, Jim Shearer, Earl Keyes, Jed Haidy, Walt Pawlyshyn and Bobby Brown.

The Bulldogs say they have a defence problem. They have been using Carl Dunn, Ken Mosdell, George McLagan and Ralph Willis on defence. Matt Vukovich from Port Arthur Bruins is rumored. Indications are there will be some changes and additions made.

Chatham Maroons are out to rove last year's win was no fluke. Coach Bill Chamberlain, an experienced trading hand, has picked up much new talent, including ex-pros Gord Gowan from Brandon, Man., Fred Pletsch from Hershey and Ed Palazzo from Trois-Rivieres, Que.

Chatham has Burt goalie Marve Edwards, a playoff standout, but has been getting good work from turns including Andy Blair, Doug Baldwin and Dick Kolanen on defence, forwards Ted Power, Chick Chalmers, Ernie Dick, Alex Vicelot, Graham Joyce, Ed Busch.

Kitchener - Waterloo coach Bob Bauer will probably have up to a half-dozen newcomers on the lineup, which failed in the playoffs. Olympics and lost out unexpectedly in the league final.

Goalie Dunc Brodeur has gone to North Bay. Bob Senior, just out of junior ranks there, figures is the regular. The Dutchmen have defenceman Art Hurst back from Stratford. They will probably use Butch Martin from Elmira, and Ralph Gosling, 21 year old from Owen Sound, back of the blue line.

Up front Ken Laufman, Jerry Theberge and Chuck Henderson could be one line. Others will be fashioned of Jack Taylor, Jack McKenzie and Don Roge, all ex-school kids, and Charlie Brooker. Paul Knox, and others.

Newcomers will be the colorful Billy Graham, halfback of the Dutchmen football team who is in the setup in setting an all-time scoring record for senior football in Canada.

Question mark teams are at Owen Sound and Stratford.

The Mercurys have revamped their club, casting off many veterans and adding young blood here. Tommy Burlington, retired from active role, is coaching.

They are set in goal with Bob Gibson and have Harry Kazarian, Kent Douglas from K-W Canucks, Frank Bergeron, and Tom Jamieson. Holdover forwards include Buck Forsland, Jerry Reid, Roy Leckie, the former Toronto Leaf centre and Jackie Hamilton, Stoddard, Red Reid, Ed Loutit and Vern Stuart.

Loss of Hosking and Elmer Skov may leave their defence weakened.

Stratford Indians have a new executive, a new coach in Phil Vitale, and a lot of holes to fill. They have lined up Jack Evans, formerly of Sarnia, Ont., as a defence replacement, and are dickering with Bud Brooker to deal with the Dutchmen. Two defence men from Winnipeg are expected to try out as well as a number of new forwards. One of them is Jim Uniac, ex-Stratford Boy up from Hershey in the American Hockey League.

Goal will be a problem. The Indians haven't any top-flight experienced netminder to replace Head. Returning forwards include veterans Bill Fyfe, Tommy Walker, George Aitken, Dinny Flanagan and Mickey Roth.

Gate Split Big Issue At Conference

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 60-40 gate split plan is expected to be a major issue at the annual meeting of the Western Interprovincial Football Union in Winnipeg next January.

British Columbia Lions will fight it, but Calgary Stampeders and Saskatchewan Roughriders are expected to support it.

Under the plan the home team would keep 60 per cent of the gate and the visiting club 40 per cent.

By Calgary, Mervin (Red) Dutton, Stampeders president, said reports that his club is prepared to pull out of the WIU unless it gets a split gate are not true.

"We don't quit very easy here," he said. "However, we would like to see a 60-40 gate split arrangement similar to that in baseball.

"After all we can't continue losing all the time."

PICKING UP A BIT

Dutton said the club still is operating in the red, but he expected it will do better financially this season than in any of the previous five.

Edmonton is not sympathetic to the split plan, and neither is Ken Preston, boss of Winnipeg's reaction.

The B.C. Lions, while fighting a 60-40 split, may offer to raise the deficit pool contribution to the extra head and a maximum of $20,000. The coast entry has had a successful box office season with crowds averaging 25,000 a game, Lions Brass.

A deficit pool plan was set up at the last annual meeting of the WIFU under the name, total league attendance this season will be forecasted and counted by the five clubs. This year the Lions will pay the $15,000 maximum to the pool.

A crowd of 1,200 watched the two Ontario Hockey Association clubs. Four Majors and three TeePees received five-minute seven-minute brawl penalties at the end of the game.

Frank Mahovlich paced the winners with goals in the first and third periods. Other Toronto scorers were Jack McAlister, Bob Boucher and Gino Uniacke. Jim McKenzie scored the TeePee goal.

Argos Fire Backfield Coach 'In Best Interests of Club'

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football Union fired backfield coach Bill Earley Wednesday night, declaring the action was taken in "the best interests of the club."

The move came as a surprise because there had been rumors that head coach Ralph Swiacki was in danger of being dropped by the last place Argonauts, who have lost their last five games. Asked for comment on the rumors, Joe Weigh, Argonaut vice-president, said he thinks Swiacki is "a good coach."

No reason was given for Earley's dismissal. The brief club announcement said:

"The directors of the Argonaut Football Club incorporated have dispensed with the services of Bill Earley. This action was taken in the best interests of the club. Bill Earley has been notified of this decision."

FROM NOTRE DAME

The 34-year-old Earley, assistant coach at Notre Dame for nine years, joined Argonauts last season. He played backfield with Swiacki and both coached

Each Yankee Gets $8,715.76 World Series Loot

NEW YORK (AP) — The biggest chunk of the $738,561.63 world series players' pool went to 30 members of the world champion New York Yankees, with each pocketed $8,715.76. Twenty-eight members of Brooklyn Dodgers collected full shares of $8,254.34 as record losers' share.

The players' pool is derived from the first four games each year. A total of 332 players, managers, coaches, batboys, ballboys, clubhouse attendants, trainers, groundskeepers and travelling secretaries dipped into the 1956 pool.

The Yankees took a $59 top share cut for voting late-comer Enos Slaughter a higher percentage while the series was in progress. The Yankees and the Dodgers split 70 per cent of the melon. That slice amounted to $350,993.15; with the Dodgers getting $215,582.59 of the final figures announced by commissioner Ford Frick Wednesday.

American League All-Star Game

NEW YORK (CP) — A high-scoring group of forwards, backed by solid defencemen and a pair of experienced goalies, were announced Wednesday by Buffalo coach Frank Eddolls as his American Hockey League all-star team which will play Providence Reds, last season's champions, in an exhibition Oct. 22.

Eddolls' 10 forwards scored a total of 208 goals and 412 points during the 1955-56 AHL season. One of his choices, Ray Hannley of the Bisons, has spent the last 11 seasons as a regular National Hockey League netminder. The other, Gil Mayer of Hershey Bears, had an AHL star season.

The defencemen are Frank Mathers of Hershey, Fraser Gallivan of Buffalo, Steve Kraftcheck of Cleveland Barons, Gord Tuttle of Springfield Indians and Tom Williams of Rochester Americans.

Forwards selected by Eddolls are: Willie Marshall, Hershey; Larry Wilson and Ken Wharram, Buffalo; Bob Bailey, Springfield; Bob Solinger Hershey; Joe Lund, Rochester; Jim McFadyen, Springfield; Donc Fisher, Hershey; Fred Glover and Cal Stearns, Buffalo.

Net receipts from the game are placed in the players' emergency fund, to provide financial assistance to any player whose career is ended by hockey injuries.

Bears on Top Beat Barons 4-3

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hershey Bears moved into first place in the American Hockey League by defeating Cleveland Barons 4-3 in Wednesday night's only league contest.

Floyd Smith and Al Nicholson of the Bears scored in the first period. The Barons tied it up in the second stanza on goals by John McLellan and Gordon Vejprava.

Nicholson counted again in the third, and his goal was matched by Fred Glover of the Barons. Bob Hassard scored the winning marker in the fading minutes.

Eighteen penalties were handed out in the rough-and-tumble contest. Pete Conway, rugged Baron defenceman, was sent off four times.

Three Cities Seek Franchise Of Famed Washington Senators

NEW YORK (AP)—The board of directors of Washington Senators will huddle Friday in connection moving their franchise to Los Angeles or San Francisco or Louisville — or possibly not to move it at all.

Those three cities have made offers for the American League franchise, with most of the talk built around Los Angeles.

Other American League club officials say they won't comment on how they would vote on a Washington request to move until they "see a lot of things in black and white"—with cost the most important item.

F. C. Wrigley, Chicago Cub owner who also owns Los Angeles Angels, said the Pacific Coast League team's franchise is not for sale, and no one has offered to buy it. A major league club can draft a minor league franchise.

Commenting on a report that the Los Angeles county board of supervisors would build a new ball park for the AL Senators and finance purchase of the Angels franchise, Wrigley said:

"It is my understanding that just one of the board supervisors offered to do that."

Elsewhere there were various managerial announcements.

SELKIRK IN NEW JOB

George Selkirk, a native of Huntsville, Ont., was named supervisor of player personnel for Kansas City Athletics. The former New York Yankee outfielder and veteran minor league manager will take over on Dec. 1 duties which were handled during the past year by Parke Carroll, business manager.

Selkirk, who makes his home at Rochester, N.Y., played in the Yankee outfield from 1934 through 1942. He has managed clubs for the Yankees at Newark, Binghampton, Kansas City, Toledo and Wichita, Kan.

Eddie Lopat was rehired to manage Richmond Virginians of the International League. Lopat, former New York Yankee pitching star, will give up his playing duties with the Virginians. He pitched fairly regularly during the 1956 campaign.

There was a report Johnny Pesky, the long-time Boston Red Sox infield star who managed Durham to second place in the class B Carolina League this season, will manage Birmingham of the Southern Association in 1957. But both the Birmingham club, which let out Phil Page when relations were severed with the Yankees, and Detroit, which just signed an agreement with the Barons, denied a new manager has been selected.

TIGHE GETS JOB

The Detroit Tigers were busy with a fresh start under new owners and a new manager. Jack Tighe, 43-year-old Tiger first base coach, was named Wednesday as successor to the resigned Bucky Harris. He signed a one-year contract.

Elsewhere, August Busch, owner of St. Louis Cardinals, said he was pleased with field manager Fred Hutchinson and general manager Frank Lane. Both will be back next year, he said.

The Baltimore Orioles cut loose two veterans. They gave infielder Grady Hatton, outfielder Hoot Evers and southpaw Johnny Schmitz unconditional releases.

BISONS BUY FIVE

Buffalo of the International League bought five players. From Mobile of the Southern Association they obtained Rod Graber, a centrefielder who batted .294 last year. From Columbia, S.C., of the South Atlantic League they got Rudolph Mayling, and Fleming Roche, Jr., both infielders. Gilberto Valentin, a shortstop, and Joseph Fuhr, a third baseman. Detroit Tigers bought third baseman George Risley from Sacramento of the Pacific Coast League.

And San Diego of the PCL announced it had traded outfielder Bob Usher to Cleveland Indians for infielder Stan Pawlowski and cash.

Nashua Day In Lexington

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Today officially was Nashua Day in Lexington as this horse capital prepared to honor racing's top money winner in his farewell public appearance.

Nashua will gallop around the mile and a sixteenth oval at nearby Keeneland.

The handsome four - year - old hero's racing career ended last Saturday at Belmont Park when he established an American record for two miles in the Jockey Club Gold Cup. The victory pushed his winnings to $1,288,565.

Now the strong son of Nasrullah-Segula is headed for the stud at Spendthrift Farm, owned by Leslie Combs II. Combs heads the syndicate which bought Nashua for $1,251,200 nearly a year ago after the death of his owner, William Woodward Jr.

Combs, jockey Eddie Arcaro, 43-year-old trainer Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons and others connected with Nashua's racing career were to share his final few minutes before the public late this afternoon. Arcaro planned a call for speed at the quarter pole, sending Nashua past the finish line blazing.

Special awards will be made to Nashua and all those connected with his racing career.

Surprise Verdict Beats Lozart

BOSTON (AP)—The high rating of Isaac (Kid) Logart as a contender for the world's welterweight championship still appeared justified today despite a 10-round loss to unranked Gaspar Ortega of Mexico.

The 23-year-old Cuban, rated the No. 3 contender by the National Boxing Association and Ring Magazine, lost by decision in a nontelevised bout Wednesday night on some surprising vote-casting by the officials.

Boxing writers had Logart the winner by a 5-1 margin, and several other veteran ring men also figured the Cuban had won.

Logart subjected Ortega to a heavy body battering from the opening bell, but the Mexican Dandy's fast-round style gained him the votes of referee Eddie Curley and judge Artie Norton. The second judge voted it a draw.

Ortega, a 4-1 underdog, pulled off a trick in the sixth round. He spun Logart into the ropes and before the Cuban could turn around, belted him with a wicked left. Ortega then sent across a good right. Logart reeled across the ring, but hung on and came back punching.

Logart weighed 146, Ortega 148.

Psutka Joins Kitchener Club

KITCHENER (CP) — Defenceman Harry Psutka has rejoined Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen in a three-for-one player trade between Dutchmen and Stratford Indians of the Ontario Hockey Association senior A series.

Psutka was traded to Stratford by Dutchmen two years ago. Going to Stratford are defencemen Eyrle Kilnick and Joe Schertel and right winger Pete Kowalchuck.

Dutchies meet Maroons at Chatham in the league opener Friday.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, October 19, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Put over your pet ideas or new and novel methods if the opportunity presents. Be consistent, and don't become perturbed if the pressure is on. Avoid worry.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Good resolutions, clever management and wholesome activities, whether of work or recreational nature, are honored by benefic aspects. Be alert to opportunities but don't overtax yourself.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — If things get "off schedule" don't become upset. The one who calmly and thoroughly analyzes situations and then acts is the one most likely to succeed.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — A day for cautious observance of the rules. Don't step out of bounds in your search for gain. Be ready to work in harmony with competent associates, friends, loved ones.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Cancer's advice applies to you, too. Avoid hasty conclusions, needless errors, risky deals. A fair return can be expected for like effort. Control emotions; use common sense.

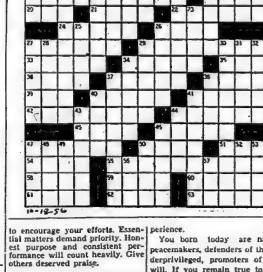
August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Conserve the energy for essential tasks. Aim to achieve a new record in quality and efficiency. Others will try to emulate it. Day favors personal interests.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Don't let enticing promises of abundant gain distort your sense of values. Others may get something for nothing. Make each act and thought count.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Excellent influences to encourage your efforts. Essential matters demand priority. Honest purpose and consistent performance will count heavily. Give others deserved praise.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Watch finances; neither overspend nor oversave. A happy medium course is best. Follow preplanned program in an enterprising manner. When day's work is accomplished, relax, rest for the morrow.

December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — A progressive day for the energetic ones. See that you are among them. The day may challenge your ingenuity. Buckle down, use fine talents. Be foresighted, too.



January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — Time things well. Avoid spending energy on worthless projects. Tackle essentials first so as day draws to a close you can take a breather.

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Incompleted work, familiar matters can be handled quickly, quietly. Avoid a free-and-easy attitude. Use common sense and be guided by past experience.

You born today are natural peacemakers, defenders of the underprivileged, promoters of good will. If you remain true to your better self you can achieve great things. You will work hard to provide the best for your family. You also like comforts; do not be extravagant in this connection. Your personality attracts. Dramatic ability strong.

Country Needs More Engineers Says Pearson

ELLIOT LAKE, Ont. (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson says he is becoming increasingly aware of the inadequacies of the Canadian education system in turning out engineering and technical graduates.

He told the final branch of the Canadian Mining and Metallurgy Institute that the shortage of technical personnel was evident in other Western countries, as well as Canada, and steps would have to be taken to keep up with educational development in the U.S.S.R.

Speaking here in the course of a tour of the Blind River uranium area, Mr. Pearson said that during the last year for which figures are available, Russian universities turned out 60,000 engineers compared to the 22,000 graduated from universities in the United States.

Canada had a total university enrollment of 60,000—or one in every 250 persons.

On the international front, he said member nations are losing interest in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, possibly because "we are not as frightened as we were when NATO was founded."

Over Counter Salesman Called Milk Bootlegger

TORONTO (CP)—Two licensed dairymen from near St. Thomas claimed they are only trying to run out of business by a free-lance dairy farmer who sells milk in bulk from a stand on his farmstead and is forcing them to cut prices below the profit level.

They called Jas Verdun "a milk bootlegger" and asked the Ontario milk control board Tuesday to lower the $4.43 price the board requires they pay milk producers so they can meet the competition. They said they have cut prices both on over-the-counter sales and delivered milk and still lose 1¼ cents a quart or 60 cents on each hundredweight of milk they market.

Mr. Verdun, a graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College and a dairy farmer, said he entered the cash-and-carry retail business because he found milk prices too high, mainly because delivery costs were high and lost bottles cost dairymen money.

BUILT A PLANT

He built a pasteurizing plant last March on his Aylmer farm, about 12 miles east of St. Thomas and built a milk bar to handle sales. He will be able to do deliveries. Over-the-counter he sells a three-quart jug of milk for 50 cents and gets a four-cent deposit on the jugs.

Counsel for the two Aylmer dairymen, Sydney Glover, president of the James Glover Dairies Limited, and John D. Rice, president of the Aylmer Dairy Limited, told the milk board his clients began losing business as soon as Mr. Verdun opened his stand last May 18 they cut to 17 cents the over-the-counter price for a quart of milk and 15 cents from 21 to 19 cents the price delivered. They claim they are losing money and ask the milk board to reduce the price to producers from $4.43 to at least $2.85 a hundredweight.

Mr. Verdun said he can't supply all his customers from his own herd of 40 Holstein cows and buys milk from other producers, paying the milk board's $4.43 price. He said he also buys his own milk for that price, on his books, and still makes money. The milk board said it has asked Mr. Verdun application for a license to cover his milk selling operations.

MANSLAUGHTER FOUND

Liberace Plans Libel Action

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Liberace's lawyer said Wednesday night the pianist plans immediate libel action in England against the London Daily Mirror.

John R. Jacobs Jr., said Liberace instructed him in a transatlantic telephone conversation. He arrange for the suit to be filed for the maximum money damages allowed under British law.

Jacobs said Liberace referred to an article published Sept. 26 under the byline Cassandra was "just too much for any man to stomach."

The pianist, who is making a European concert tour with his brother George, was quoted by Jacobs as saying:

"If I didn't have the contracted concert dates in the immediate future, and my appearances depend upon my hands, I would knock Cassandra's teeth down his throat—and I ain't kidding."

Given Two Years

WINDSOR (CP)—A 28-year-old Toronto man who, according to the prosecution "carried out a vicious attack on a helpless eight-year-old girl," was sentenced to two years in Kingston penitentiary Wednesday.

Joseph J. Bedard, Toronto, pleaded guilty on a charge of assault occasioning bodily harm. He was committed to higher court for trial on a charge of abducting the girl.

The child was so nervous and distraught when she saw Bedard in court, she was moved closer to Magistrate Angus MacMillan and as far away as possible from the accused.

84-Year-Old Captain Began Shooting Rapids Back in '89

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — In the four years that Percy A. Costello has been Canadian National Railways station agent here, passenger traffic and express have increased 40 per cent and freight volume has jumped even more.

The record grain - shipping season at this Hudson Bay port, 610 miles north of Winnipeg, has kept two switching engines puffing steadily to move the heavy traffic of box cars from the Prairies. The railyards here were constantly filled as more than 16,000,000 bushels of grain were loaded on overseas ships in the 2½-month season.

Extension by United States army engineers of a road across the barren tundra from near Port Churchill to the International Geophysical Year rocket - firing site, 12 miles east, has also brought almost 250 cars of supplies and construction equipment into the rail centre.

More than 100 cars of the equipment have already been shipped back to the U. S.

Leaders Ready to Demand Independence From Moscow

Jordan Warns UN It Plans Action Unless Raids End

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) Jordan warned today that it will take matters in its own hands unless the UN Security Council can stop alleged Israeli aggression immediately.

Calling for the strongest UN penalties short of military action, Jordan's Ambassador, Abdul Monem Rifai, said:

"If the council doesn't take action to stop the Israeli aggression right away, then my country will have to seek other methods by which it could insure the safety of our borders."

Rifai did not elaborate except to say that "such a development, if it happens, will extend beyond our present local arrangements." This appeared to be a reference to large-scale military action, perhaps, with the aid of other Arab forces.

LATEST INCIDENTS

The Jordan representative told the council that Israel's recent activities could not be described as border incidents.

"It is war," he continued, "except that it lacks the rules of war, the bravery of war and the honor and morals of war."

Rifai said the whole trouble stemmed from an aggressive Israeli policy and that the latest incidents were premeditated and unprovoked."

"Israel," he said, "is destroying the very foundations of the general armistice agreement."

Rifai's last spell out what sort of penalties he wanted the council to invoke. He urged action under Article 41 of the UN Charter which provides for the severance of diplomatic relations, economic restrictions and possible rupture of all outside communications.

WARSAW (AP)—A responsible source said Nikita S. Khrushchev appeared in Warsaw today just as Wladislaw Gomulka, once jailed as a Titoist, was being triumphantly restored to a position of power in the Polish party.

The informant said the Soviet premier's visit took part in discussions of the opening session of the Polish United Workers (Communist) party central committee and then went into conference with Polish leaders.

This report said Khrushchev apparently was concerned that the speed of "de-Stalinization" in Poland might carry the country too far from the Kremlin intended earlier last year when it approved the doctrine of "many ways to socialism."

There was no official announcement that Khrushchev was here. Observers also noted another a point of noting that he was not present at the signing of an end-the-war declaration with Japan at the Kremlin today). This would be highly significant in view of an implicit threat by the Warsaw government to the position of the defence ministry the Russians installed in this country years ago.

Election of Gomulka and his cohorts as chief secretary abolished the defence minister of pre-Communist days—and the head of the Polish central committee meeting which opened this morning.

Polish Communist sources also reported ready to demand independence from Moscow's influence—a step that could have historic importance for Poland's future and the whole East European bloc of countries now tied closely to Moscow.

Along with Gomulka, the communists re-elected Edward Ochab, Marek-Spychalski, Zenon Kliszko and Loge Sowinski. All four were purged and jailed as the height of the Kremlin's split with President Tito of Yugoslavia, whose independent brand of communism refused him to ouster from the Cominform.

Marek-Spychalski's return raised widespread speculation that the downfall of Defence Minister Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky in a surprise shake-up. Rokossovsky was defence minister before Gomulka's purge. He became a Polish citizen and a member of the Polish Politburo.

Rokossovsky, who will be 59 in December, was reported under his recent weeks to face a pact with the resurgent Gomulka, but to many Poles the marshal is a symbol of the Soviet domination which the current session of the central committee is expected to end.

Another government leader reported on the way out of power is Premier Zenon Nowak. He too is reported to have been treating Gomulka with without success.

The central committee was faced with a series of demands from Polish youth and workers' organizations all for more freedom of information in political and economic affairs.

DONALD FLEMING PLANS TO SEEK PC LEADERSHIP

Denies Diefenbaker Assured of Victory

OTTAWA (CP) — Donald Fleming today announced his candidature for the national leadership of the Progressive Conservative party.

John Diefenbaker, member of Parliament for Prince Albert, and Davie Fulton, member for Kamloops, both expressed willingness to run for the leadership.

The 51-year-old Commons member for Toronto Eglinton told a press conference that he believes it to be a great responsibility that the Diefenbaker has obtained 80 per cent of the party's caucus support."

"I have every confidence that a sizeable portion of the members of the caucus are with me."

He said also that if he is chosen leader of the party he will not be in favor of any coalition with other Commons groups. He opposed any reports of the possibility of an alliance between the Conservatives and the Social Credit group in the Commons.

SECOND TRY

This would be Mr. Fleming's second try for the leadership. He placed third in 1948 with George Drew behind Hon. George Drew and John Diefenbaker.

He has been in the Commons since 1945, the Toronto lawyer emphasized that Parliament has provided me with a robust constitution, excellent health and an abundance of energy.

He also said: "Never have I undertaken a heavier load of my responsibilities. Always I have endeavored to put the interests of this nation, equal concern for the welfare of my fellow Canadians in the Atlantic provinces, in the West, in Quebec and in Ontario."

At his press conference he spoke both in English and in French.

He said he hopes to draw a large measure of support from Quebec as well as from other parts of Canada.

The leadership contest will take place at a convention to be held in Ottawa in the week of Dec. 10. Actual balloting won't come until Dec. 14.

Sinclair Appeals For Immigrants From States

CHICAGO (CP) — Canadian Fisheries Minister Sinclair has called for a greater population to develop the country's university-trained young Americans to help swell the Canadian population to develop the country's vast resources.

Canada has become a magnet for the world's investors, he said, but it should not depend on this capital to work developing its resources. The United States would be best source of immigrants who could be readily assimilated into Canada's way of life.

"The United States actually has a debt to pay back to Canada in this matter," Mr. Sinclair said in an address to the annual meeting of the Audit Bureau of Circulation.

Atomic Chief Says H-Bomb Tests Needed to Provide Survival Data

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) U.S. atomic chief Admiral Strauss said today hydrogen bomb tests must be continued not only to insure new weapons but to provide data needed for civilian survival under a nuclear attack.

Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, in a prepared statement for a joint U.S.-Canadian civil defence committee meeting, said the contention of Admiral Stevenson's proposal that the U.S. take the lead in disarmament and end H-bomb tests.

"In order to provide our people and our allies with instruction which may later save their lives," Strauss said, "the civil defence authorities need constant access to new and up-to-date information about the effects of nuclear weapons of all types and sizes."

Without the tests, he added, U.S. "defences would deteriorate, both in terms of civil protection and in the degree to which we need to reject any nuclear aggression."

He referred also, as he has before, to developments reducing the amount of radioactive fallout from the newer weapons.

Stevenson, the Democratic presidential candidate, has said the U.S. election has said continued tests "may cause the human race unwarranted damage," largely because of what he calls "the most unreliable element in the world's fallout. Many scientists have backed Stevenson's position.

Without referring to Stevenson, Strauss said:

"Contrary to radioactivity, as a vague, unproven danger to generations unborn, we have weighed against the more immediate and infinitely greater dangers of defeat and perhaps of obliteration at the hands of an enemy who possesses nuclear weapons of mass destruction and who might have no compunction about using them if suspect he thought we were too weak to defend ourselves and retaliate in kind."

Eisenhower Swats Stevenson On Hydrogen-Bomb Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrat Adlai Stevenson apparently is going to have his cake and eat it, making a major election campaign issue out of the controversial H-bomb tests.

President Eisenhower, who last week said he was through talking about the tests, took up the subject again Thursday night with a resounding swat at Stevenson's views.

Stevenson has come out repeatedly for negotiations toward an international ban on hydrogen bomb tests. He has coupled this stand with a plea for less "wasteful" methods of building up the U.S. armed forces than the current military drain.

Eisenhower, campaigning in Portland, Ore., for votes in the Nov. 6 election, said:

"I have not promised you—nor do I ever intend to—that the way to defend peace or freedom is to abandon simultaneously our military draft and testing of our most advanced military weapons, under the circumstances of today's world.

"For I know—as I believe all Americans know — that, without strength in this world of today, the road to world peace would be a good intentions."

It was the president's first public mention of the issues since Wednesday when he directed preparation of a detailed report by his cabinet on those matters. The White House plans to make the report public next week.

Meanwhile, Stevenson, speaking at Youngstown, Ohio, shifted his emphasis to the draft.

The Democratic candidate proposed university scholarships would provide "specialized training in conjunction with a two-year draft service" to encourage more men to volunteer for the armed forces. The scholarships would go to qualified applicants agreeing to spend a specified time in the service.

The draft, which generally requires two years' active service, was criticized by Stevenson as inefficient because it results in a high proportion of inexperienced personnel.

Today Stevenson's campaign manager and the presidential race has reached the point where "neither side is going to claim victory or defeat until victory is achieved by winning over the "undecided" voters.

Stevenson has only a politically doubtful Kentucky today.

In Gary, Ind., former president Harry Truman for the Republicans are offering a vice-presidential candidate who would never possibly be elected president in his own right."

He said Vice-President Nixon has a voting record "consistently against the interests of the workers, the farmers and small business."

Truman also said President Eisenhower was "a part-time president even before he got sick."

"This is a fact," he said, "that can't be run from a golf course or handled by a part-time farmer. I'm not talking about this and they are worried. . . They think it's a little early to talk seriously at the possibility of turning the government over to him."

U.S. and Britain Hit Snag Over Common Policy on Suez

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Britain are reported to have hit a new snag in trying to work out common policy on the Suez Canal dispute.

This one concerns the first payment of tolls for ships going through the canal.

However, some diplomatic officials here say that at the heart of the current disagreement is the basic issue of how tough a line the Western powers should take in the Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

The specific problem of what the newly-organized Suez Canal Users Association will be its active relationship between State Secretary Dulles and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd.

Dulles is described as advocating that any money paid to the users' association by ships going through the Suez should be turned over to Egypt for use of the canal—less, of course, any association expenses for the pilot services and the like.

Lloyd is said to have proposed that such tolls be held as blocked funds not to be paid to Egypt until there is a final settlement of the Suez controversy.

Either proposal in effect would carry over the American ship owners' present practice of paying tolls to Egypt. But it would enhance the prestige and authority of the new association by making it an intermediary.

The British position also will pay-ment is in line with the present practice of the British and French governments of paying tolls to the Suez Canal Co., which Nasser declared nationalized last July. The company is holding them in a blocked account pending an ultimate settlement.

Two Bandits Slip Through Police Cordon

TORONTO (CP)—Two amateur holdup men, armed and disguised as Santa Claus, managed to slip through a police cordon on the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch in Toronto's Highland Creek Thursday slipped through a police cordon Thursday night.

Squads of police, some armed with sub-machine guns, rifles and shotguns ringed a ravine and continued searching until early today.

The two armed men robbed a motorist on Highway 401 Thursday and forced the car to drive to the bank, where they produced guns and ordered customers and staff to line up against the wall.

Bank manager Fred Cathew said one man remained on the other side of the counter, covering eight employees while the other scooped for money. The till wicket was emply, the drawer stuck in a second and a vault contained no cash.

The men fled on foot when they were unable to start the getaway car they had stolen.

Two men picked up in the area were later released.

Neptune Crashes Killing Three

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Navy reported a patrol aircraft crashed on the Antarctic ice shelf Thursday, killing three and injuring five members of the crew.

The Neptune was one of seven planes enroute from Christchurch, New Zealand, to McMurdo Sound and carrying advance units of an Antarctic expedition headed by Rear Admiral George Dufek.

Dufek flew into McMurdo Sound, one of the key bases of the South Polar expedition Wednesday.

Mounties Wonder If Kidnap Victim Man They Want

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCMP is trying to learn whether the Louis Allaq Molner reported missing in Montreal, and subsequent in Mexico City is the Louis Allen Molnar they are looking for in connection with a most-wanted men.

A spokesman said today enquiries have been made through Mexican police and immigration officials to determine whether the similar names with a slightly different spelling are those of the same man.

Although news reports from Mexico City identify the name as "Louis Allan Molner," the RCMP said a report received Wednesday said the name was "Louis Allen Molnar."

It was regarded as a possibility that the two Canadian criminals were misled by the similarity in names and listed different spellings.

There is "a strong possibility" there may be a connection between Molner and his wife, the former Rita Ann LaBine, 20-year-old Charles LaBine, Toronto plumbing figure, were reported missing in Mexico City.

Molner has been detained four hours in their apartment by five armed men, last Oct. 4. The suspected extortionists, trapped by Mexico police, were subsequently arrested in court.

Louis Allen Molnar, alias Ward, was placed on the RCMP's most-wanted list following an armed robbery of a Cornwall chain food (Dominion) store.

RUSSIA TOASTS AFGHAN

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Sardar Mohammed Daud Khan of Afghanistan was received at the Kremlin Thursday by Premier Nikolai Bulganin, the Soviet news agency Tass said.

CONSERVATIVES WIN YORK WEST BY BIG MAJORITY

Leslie Rownstree Defeats Two Other Candidates

TORONTO (CP)—Leslie Rownstree, 38-year-old barrister, Thursday night was elected member of the Ontario legislature for York West, retaining the seat for the Progressive Conservatives against Liberal and CCF opponents.

Mr. Rownstree, 42, rolled up 11,061 votes, more than the combined total of the CCF and Liberal candidates.

Lynn Williams polled 6,068 votes to put the CCF in second place. Liberals' Arthur Nagels counted 4,535.

The vacancy left the House standing: Conservatives 84; Liberals 10; CCF 3; Liberal-Labor 1. Total 98.

All three candidates expressed disappointment in the light vote. Of 63,028 eligible voters, only 21,664 went to the polls in perfect autumn weather.

In the 1953 general election 31,338 voted. Ebner Brandon, whose death last summer left the seat vacant, polled only 11,727 votes, well short of the overall majority Mr. Rownstree won Thursday.

Mr. Rownstree based his campaign chiefly on the record of the Tory government. He said it was dedicated to work for flood control and conservation in the Humber River valley that runs through his northwestern Metropolitan Toronto riding.

Runner-up Williams, a 32-year-old professional engineer and member of the Steelworkers of America (CLC), conceded 90 minutes after the polls closed.

Mr. Nagels, 38, said he was bitterly disappointed at the result. He said he had fought against "overwhelming public opinion" in the election. He was beaten by 6,526 votes.

York West's new member is a former TNCN editor now consultant and marine law.

In six elections in the riding since 1943 the Conservatives have won four times, the CCF twice; West, retaining the director of organization for the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions, won the seat for the CCF in 1943 and 1948.

Three Students Killed in Fire At University

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP) — Three University of Idaho students were killed today when an early morning fire destroyed the scholastic honorary house at the school's dormitory housing 130 men.

Fire Chief Ben Smith said the fire broke out in the main floor lounge of Gault Hall, a $500,000 brick-and-steel structure which was opened only last January. He said the building was "supposed to be completely fire proof."

Dead are Ralph Fall Smith trapped in the halls of the building. The third is a fellow student.

The blaze was the fourth in a series at the school.

Dr. C. J. Engelhardt, dean of students, called the deaths "murder."

Coin's Flip Ends Happily in Rescue Of Three Stranded by Arctic Lake

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Two pilots flipped a coin—the Canadian who knew the north and the Argentine who wanted to try it—to choose who would venture 36 miles into the bleak unknown of the sub-Arctic.

The winner would seek help for their two passengers—a young Catholic bride of seven months and her husband—then stranded since 12 days by an accident. The loser would fly in a Bayrock mine of Yellowknife Mines Ltd., today and get a bath.

The pilots explained that the flipping method had been used like them 200 miles south of their course. They had had no radio contact since bushes but were short on rations. They had a fish net and a gun and ammunition. Between them they caught 40 fish, 20 squirrels, two ducks and a whisky-jacks.

The night Warner reached the missing camp, an RCAF Flying Boxcar dropped three parachutes and as duck turned to darkness the trio searched for the food. When McAvoy arrived the next morning they had two, Otto cubes

Blast In Bottled Gas Depot Kills Seven, Injures Six

Five Homes Also Burned In Illinois Explosion

HERRIN, Ill. (AP) — Exploding propane gas rumbled Thursday night into fire that mushroomed from a bottled gas plant with flame-thrower effect.

Seven persons were fatally injured, six others were badly burned and five homes and the gas plant warehouse were destroyed. Of the dead, three died today.

The fire set off a series of explosions. Gas tanks exploded like giant bombs, hurling fragments 100 yards away. Witnesses said other propane tanks exploded "like blowtorches."

The dead: Fred Kerley, 62; Mrs. Elizabeth Kerley, 62, his wife; Charlotte Jarvis, 11; Robert Lee Keller, 3; Oscar Williams, 38; Mrs. Violet Williams, 32, his wife, and Freddie Williams, 3, their son. Children at play were swept by the flames. Some of the destroyed houses were blown apart, but the gas apparently had the most lethal effect.

ALL BURNED

Hospital attendants said nearly all of the dead and injured had third-degree burns over 40 to 90 per cent of their bodies.

Authorities said the gas, escaping from a valve on a tank on a gas truck, apparently spread to the nearby residential area and was ignited by an open flame in one of the homes.

Doctors said of the injured, "there are a lot we won't be able to do anything for."

Several physicians attending a conference in Herrin aided in treatment of the victims. Blood plasma was sent from nearby towns.

The American Red Cross declared the stricken neighborhood a disaster area.

Policeman Walter Lowe said six of the victims were in a yard near the depot when the first blast occurred. The fire covered about 200 yards, he said.

The explosion occurred at the height of the worst rain of southern Illinois town of 10,000 about 110 miles southeast of St. Louis.

FIRE FOLLOWS BLAST

Police Chief Roy Cole said Henry Reed, operator of the depot, was filling the small tanks—cylinders about 4 feet high—from the feed long—from a large tank truck when a leak apparently developed.

"The area was filled with escaping gas," Cole said. "Some-one ignited it. Then the explosion came."

Flood Jim McAvoy, Fire Department chief, said the fire started in MEMBER GROWS SIX POTATOES WEIGHING 8¾ LBS.

It must be the season.

Stories of big potatoes have been in the news frequently this fall with each grower of mammoth-sized spuds generously outdoing the other.

The most recent to join the ranks as a grower of big spuds is Elmer Sanderson, of M.L.A. for Hastings West, who this morning brought a basket of Sebago potatoes to the Ontario Intelligencer office. The potatoes filled the basket — weight eight-and-three-quarter pounds.

Mr. Sanderock has reason to be proud of the potatoes because of the fact that he planted and hoed them himself.

Quinte District Credit Unions Hold Banquet

Yesterday was designated across the country as Credit Union Day. In Belleville the Quinte District Credit Union Chapter celebrated the occasion at a banquet in the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans' hall.

"This is the one day in the year set aside when Credit Union members are encouraged to affirm their beliefs in the lofty principles upon which our movement is built, and to re-dedicate themselves to their obligations as our movement," said guest speaker J. M. Hallinan, general manager of the Ontario Credit Union League.

J. M. HALLINAN

Thousands of credit unions are serving millions of members in 60 countries, he said, and provide for these members and their families a great measure of economic and social security, Mr. Hallinan said.

"The credit union movement has shown as nothing else could show that democracy can truly work, not only in the political sphere but also in the economic.

"At the Chapter level, we must take ourselves out of the economic areas we are rendering the support that they advocate by preaching and developing credit union movement within this well-defined area, I continued the speaker.

He reminded his audience that persons properly organized into credit unions have done wonderful things that, as unorganized or disorganized individuals, they could never have achieved. These groups of people having formed credit unions have taken the next logical step and incorporated it into that representing the organized credit union movement in Ontario, he said.

EXPLAINS ORGANIZATION

Mr. Hallinan said that at the annual meeting the members elect a board of directors of 18 people, and charge them with the responsibility of carrying on the affairs of the league between annual meetings. The board in turn discharges this responsibility by hiring a full-time trained staff to do the actual work. Essential the policies that have been established by individual members.

"The league is ever anxious to bring credit union services to groups of people where it is felt a need for such service exists, and where those that will enjoy the benefits of credit union membership recognize this need, and are prepared to satisfy them, but the organization of new credit unions is merely one aspect of league activity," said Mr. Hallinan.

A number of qualified and technical field staff members are available at all times to assist credit unions with operating problems and to assist them in establishing proper policies in harmony with the accepted practices of the organized movement.

The league carries on a continual educational program through the publication of the "Ontario Credit Union News". Mr. Hallinan was appointed editor of the publication in 1943), and the preparation of pamphlets, leaflets and other educational material as conditions require.

"Our government recognizes the league as the official body of the credit union movement in Ontario," said the speaker, "and consults the league from time to time concerning amendments to our standard by-laws and the Act, which in the light of practical experience and because of the dynamic nature of our movement, shall change in the course of time."

Mr. Hallinan stated that "the credit union movement has directly struck a death blow at usury." In this age of atomic power and super organizations, when people are beginning to think self-help is no longer possible, "it is worthwhile to take a good look at credit unions."

"While all thinking people accept the benefits of consumer credit and see what a potent factor it is in our modern economy, there is a tendency to go overboard in encouraging people to mortgage their tomorrows to the hilt. Many easy credit plans now advertised have that effect. Credit unions, however, do a real service to the economy by insisting that credit be for provident and productive purposes only, and by emphasizing the wise use of family income," he concluded.

Mr. Hallinan was introduced by Cliff McElroy of Port Credit and thanked by Les Digby.

Napanee District Girl Instantly Killed in Crash

A seven-year-old Napanee district girl was instantly killed and her father and sister were injured shortly before ten o'clock this morning as their car went out of control on the Salmon River Motel curve east of Millbrook and overturned.

Killed was Gwyneth vanVlack, daughter of Everett vanVlack, 35, R.R. 5, Napanee, who was driver of the car and was injured in the mishap. The dead girl's sister, Marsha vanVlack, age 6, suffered a broken collar bone and other injuries.

The vanVlack car was said to have been west bound when it went off the pavement on the Salmon River curve. It went into the north ditch, then in diagonally across the highway into the south ditch and then overturned and skidded down the pavement.

Distance from point of the car went out of control until it came to rest was said to be nearly 500 feet.

Coroner Dr. D. C. McVicker of Deseronto said there would be no inquest. Ontario Provincial Constable G. McNutt investigated.

The family was on its way to Ajax, where the dead child was to be investigated as a flower girl at the wedding of an aunt. She and her sister were seated in the back seat and are said to have been reciting school memory work. It is believed that one of them shoved something up for her father to see, distracting his attention and resulting in him losing control of the car.

The curve on which the accident took place is considered a dangerous one. Two weeks ago Corporal Mrs. Diva Mantesti, was killed when the car in which she and her brother were riding went out of control on the curve and crashed into a tree.

Two years ago four young Belleville people were seriously injured when their car went out of control on the same curve and crashed into a tree.

Russia Developing 'New Face' Engineering Association Told

Road Inspector Declares Notes Are Missing

Joseph J. McLaren, of Belleville, a former inspector with the Ontario department concerning concessionaire work on a section of highway 401 are missing from his work notebook.

He said Thursday the notes are vital evidence if a court action against him arises in connection with charges that a construction company built specifications on parts of the highway.

In Toronto, R. A. Elson, deputy highways minister, said it is not unusual for a grade inspector's diary to be examined when an even changed. It is a diary normally kept, not as a personal record, but as a day-to-day job record, he added.

Earlier in the day Premier Frost said he will make a personal check into the charges.

ADMIT MINOR FAULTS

Mr. McLaren said earlier this week that he, J. McFarlane Construction Co. did not adhere to specifications on parts of the highway in Hastings and Prince Edward counties. The highways department said Thursday investigations showed some minor infractions on the project but no evidence of fraud.

Mr. Elson said that Mr. McLaren had tendered his resignation. He said he has accepted Mr. McLaren denies that he offered his resignation.

The Belleville company has started a civil action against Mr. McLaren for libel alleged libel and slander. Mr. McLaren has served with the writ in his home here.

1955-56 DATES

Mr. McLaren said the missing notes were made between October 1955, and last April. He said he still has two of the original notes from which the notes were missing. "But I don't see material which can't be replaced."

He first noticed some notes were missing shortly after his diary was returned to him, along with a new one, after it was placed up by a department of highways official from Kingston in April.

Mr. Elson was asked whether a senior engineer might be authorized to remove pages. He replied: "I don't know how they do things in the Ontario Highways."

The minister said the diaries contained the date, weather and road conditions, notes on construction and perhaps the inspector's own comments as a record for future reference.

Mr. Elson said he did not know the particular pages alleged to have been removed from the diary but that daily records, pages may be removed and not replaced. They may be taken out when completed, he said.

"If there is anything that has to be investigated we will investigate it. We are not trying in any way, shape or form to cover up anything."

Mr. Elson said he considered the matter is now "reasonably well handled."

"I don't know what this chap is trying to do to the department. I've got 10,000 employees busting their necks trying to build and maintain highways for this province. They are doing their best and will continue to do their best."

Several Changes within the Russian government have given the people behind the Iron Curtain a new lease on life. Dr. J. A. Corry, vice-principal of Queen's University, told the annual banquet of the Northern Electric Engineering Association last night that Russia is developing a "new face."

Dr. Corry's demise government by committee has been introduced to Russia. The creation of a freer and joint leadership form of government has reduced the dominance of the secret police behind the Iron Curtain. In recent years Russia has indicated a growing desire to trade cultural, economic and scientific ideas with the western world.

The Russian peasantry has benefited from this "new face." The government has urged farmers to grow more produce and to sell it privately. Since the collective system of selling agricultural produce was ousted the economy of the Soviet farm treasury has increased considerably.

Industrial growth is being given to the production of consumer goods rather than emphasizing the manufacture of heavy machinery for military and commercial use. This innovation has resulted in a higher standard of living behind the Iron Curtain than its people have ever realized before.

Another phase of this "new face" is shown in the attitude to-ward Russian satellite countries. As a prime example, Poland is becoming another Yugoslavia, the speaker indicated. Some of these countries are demanding a portion of their independence.

WANT MORE FREEDOM

Freedom of thought and action are two of the foremost wants expressed by the people behind the Iron Curtain, Canadians are certain the right to think as they wish and to express their opinions within the limits of the law. Because of this the majority of people behind the Curtain dislike more Canada and have expressed this in their letters.

In conclusion Dr. Corry said, "The development of the intercontinental ballistic missile requires that we spare no effort to maintain the deterrent initiative because the leaders of both Western and Communist-controlled countries appalled at the destructiveness of nuclear weapons."

The doctor was introduced by Mr. William Barrie and thanked by Mr. Ray Lewis.

A social evening followed which was under the chairmanship of Mr. Needham Throop. Included in the entertainment were the showing of the Distant Early Warning Radar Line in northern Canada and the terminal regarding the Western Electric Co.

Among the guests was Mr. A. B. Hunt, manager of the television station under construction while his ability was impaired and was sentenced to seven days in jail. A local man was arrested on an eighth day holiday at the expense of the county after he couldn't raise $13 to pay his fine for being drunk in a public place.

Fire in Leaves Ignites House, Gutting Interior

Fire tore through the house of Bob Poole, 122 John Street South, shortly after one o'clock this afternoon and destroyed the interior contents of the dwelling place.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance said he believed the blaze started in a pile of leaves near the house and spread to the insulbrick-sided building.

Mr. Poole was asleep when the fire started and an unidentified man, living in the area, raised worker, darted into the house and sounded the alarm to the occupant. The bedroom was a complete loss.

Burned up in the conflagration were Mr. Poole's clothes, furniture and personal effects.

Three Months For Fraud Count

Magistrate T. Y. Wills sentenced John Mosier, of Toronto, to three months in jail this morning for passing a cheque on a Belleville used car dealer last year with intent to fraud. Mosier purchased an auto for $100, drove it until the motor burned out, then abandoned it at the Kingston road terminal.

The car was located at a Kingston car dealer's establishment earlier this week.

One man pleaded guilty to driving an automobile while his ability was impaired and was sentenced to seven days in jail. A local man was arrested on an eighth day holiday at the expense of the county after he couldn't raise $13 to pay his fine for being drunk in a public place.

Western oils moved in a wider range than any other section. Triad and Canadian Export Gas were up 30 cents. Scurry-Rainbow and General Pete lost the same amount.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar was at a discount of 2 17-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon today. Thursday's noon rate 97 13-32 cents. Pound sterling $2.71⅞, up ⅛.

TITOIST

One demand was presented in a letter from a workers meeting Thursday at the Zeran motor works.

It assailed "indecision and passivity" in the government and demanded a speedup in the process of decentralizing control of industry. It criticized the giving of good jobs to ministers who had proved inept and suggested that Deputy Premier Stanislaw Lapot, who has over-all responsibility for industry, be fired. It charged him with responsibility for the Poznan "threat and freedom" riots last June 28.

The committee was reported preparing a declaration that it would put the Polish Reds on a similar plane with the Yugoslav Communist party — a basis of equality with Soviet Communists.

It also was scheduled to consider a new farm policy which would reverse the process of Soviet-style collectivization.

Reports spread that the Soviet and Chinese Communist parties have sent letters cautioning their Polish colleagues not to carry the independence idea too far.

Some members of the Polish commitiion also were reported opposed to any move toward a post-ion similar to that of Yugoslav President Tito. But their views were not expected to carry much weight. A growing anti-Russian feeling, coupled with the obvious need for drastic action to save Poland's sagging economy, has placed popular sentiment behind those favoring independence of action similar to that Tito has achieved.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Choice steers, good and choice heifers, all grades of fed yearlings, cows and bulls were steady this week at the Canada public stockyards.

Lower grades of steers and heifers were 50 cents a hundredweight lower and generally unwanted. Calves were steady. Hogs were steady while lambs gained 50 cents a hundredweight.

Receipts of cattle were some 3,600 head more than last week and about 400 head more than the same week in 1955. Western cattle receipts were 1,533 head, a decrease of 350. Shipments to eastern Canadian slaughterers totalled 10 carloads.

There were no exports to the U.S. An estimated 3,000 head will be unsold at the close, most for replacements and a scattering of common and medium slaughter steers and heifers. The dressed beef trade is reported slow.

BUYERS CAUTIOUS

A fairly active market which featured trading in slaughter cattle last week did not materialize this week's session. Heavy numbers of low-grade cattle, plus low yields of the choice grades, caused buyers to operate very cautiously. Although prices appeared to be lower on the choice kinds, comparing price with quality, this could be held steady.

Cattle grading good and lower traded fully 50 cents lower. Top grades of heifers were generally unchanged with the lower grades down.

Dry-fed yearlings were in short supply and sold actively firm. Cows cleaned up readily at steady prices and bulls were active at strong prices.

PRICES

Choice steers $21-22, a few loads up to $22.50; good steers $19-20.50; medium $15-18.50; common $12-15; good heifers $18-18.50, few choice to $19; medium $15-17; common $13-14; good steers and heifers $8-12; choice dry-fed yearlings $23-24; an odd top at $24.50; good yearlings by $22-23; medium $17-21; good cows mostly $11, an odd top at $11.50; medium $10-11; common $9-10; canner and cutter cows $7-9; good heavy bologna bulls $13 a hundredweight, common and medium light bulls down to $9.

Replacement cattle: Selling of replacements by auction was tried for the first time and proved moderately successful. This method will only be used on Wednesdays for the time being. Good stockers and feeders $19-19.50, steer stock calves gaining a premium.

Most of the sales ranged in price from $14-17; stock heifers were mostly $12-14.

Calves: Veal calves were actively firm with heavy fat calves offered to sell. Good vealers $23-26, choice to $28.50; medium $17-22; common $10-16; a few mixed sold for slaughter $9-12.

Hogs: Grade A $20.50 a hundredweight, sows $1 a hundredweight higher at $19; stags $13 a hundredweight both on a dressed-weight basis.

Sheep and lambs: Lambs were 50 cents a hundredweight higher with choice ewes and wethers $20.50, some long-hauls at $20.75; bucks were discounted at $1 a hundredweight, heavy lambs discounted as much as $3 a hundredweight, cull lambs down to $15 a hundredweight, feeder lambs $15-17, sales to $18; sheep $3-9 a hundredweight according to quality.

Four Killed In Explosion At Oslo, Norway

OSLO, Norway (AP)—At least four persons died and a dozen were hurt in an explosion today at an A-bomb-proof government ammunition works dug into the mountains 45 miles north of Oslo.

A spokesman for the Raufoss works said four bodies had been recovered three hours after the blast occurred in a hall where normally about 100 persons work. There was no immediate word as to the cause of the explosion.

The Raufoss works, owned by the Norwegian government, produces ammunition and high explosives, including ammunition for NATO forces.

Immediately after the explosion, the area around Raufoss was blocked to civilian traffic. Civilian defence units from Oslo were called patched and all available police from the Raufoss and Gjovvik areas were called in for emergency service.

Blind Woman's Testimony Convicts Killer

LONDON (Reuters) — With a blind woman's testimony as major evidence, Thomas Patrick Delahunty, 26, today was convicted of murder and sentenced to death.

Miss Margaret Danier, 54, an assistant Braille editor to the National Institute for the Blind, was strangled in her bedroom.

Miss Catherine Birch, 32, who is blind, testified she heard footsteps on the stairs the night of the slaying. She opened her door and heard a man's voice say "Hello, love" and "Goodbye, love."

Delahunty pleaded not guilty, claiming he seized Miss Danier by the throat merely to stop her from screaming.

No one has been hanged in Britain since the House of Commons last February passed a motion abolishing the death penalty for murder. However, the House of Lords voted against the bill. When the Upper House disapproves, a measure cannot become law for one year.

Dizzy With Technical Talk, C of C Delegates End Session

QUEBEC (CP) — "On to Victoria" was the slogan of the annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce as it ended Thursday, and set its sights for a meeting on the Pacific coast a year from now.

The simple slogan was a relief to people who for four days talked in technical terms of such matters as monetary and fiscal policy — men had lost track of the football standings and hardly knew the hockey season was under way.

Monetary and fiscal policy was the chief item of discussion during the meetings. Delegates generally approved the official policy of trying to keep prices from shooting up, but cast questioning looks at the steps being taken by monetary authorities — chiefly through the Bank of Canada — to make money harder to borrow and thus tame the current boom.

IMPACT DISCUSSED

K. W. Taylor, deputy minister of finance, conceded that monetary and fiscal controls are blunt instruments which can't be easily moulded to fit particular situations. He added:

"This is hardly an argument against their use, but rather for devising other particular measures to meet particular needs."

A. C. Ashforth, president of the Toronto-Dominion Bank, said:

"No one will argue that the impact of monetary controls has been the same on all segments of the economy, but the monetary authorities and chartered banks are on the lookout to guard against any inequities which it is within their power to avoid."

Most speakers confessed they didn't know what was going to happen to prices and some of them indicated a feeling of considerable apprehension.

One view was that prices are just going to keep going up — definitely. A further view of this was that it doesn't matter if they do go up indefinitely so long as they don't go up too fast.

Also expressed was the fear costs would become so high Canadians wouldn't be able to sell their goods in world markets. This was relieved somewhat by the view that Canada was doing at least as well as other countries in inflation control, and was probably doing better.

In all the talk of credit controls one thing seemed to be made clear:

Credit is not being cut down. It is going up and bank loans today are $1,500,000,000 higher than a year ago. It is not, however, being allowed to grow as fast as it would if there were no restrictions.

TRADE DEFICIT OKAY

Little concern was expressed about Canada's current trade deficit. It was considered a part of the Canadian boom which would correct itself later on.

The United States, subject of much criticism because of its crop disposal problems, got some credit from David Kirk, secretary of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture. He said:

"We should not forget that we have also enjoyed the price protection afforded by the United States support policy or that in spite of the appalling size of the surplus disposal problem that the United States faces, she has exercised considerable discretion and consideration in the way she has gone about the job of disposal."

HOWE GIVES ADVICE

A prophet is said to be without honor in his own country, but it is to be hoped that this adage does not apply to the man who has won his reputation in another land. Perhaps, when he returns to his native soil, he receives the attention customarily accorded the hometown boy who made good. If so, American citizens may pay proper heed to the sound sense which Hon. C. D. Howe talked when he addressed the Canadian Club in Chicago the other night. Mr. Howe appears to believe that his American birth gives him the right to speak home truths in his native land. Since nobody will deny that the Minister of Trade and Commerce is a Canadian of cheddar cheese (also a welcome immigrant to these shores): the result is always newsworthy.

Speaking in Chicago Mr. Howe appealed to United States corporations to give Canadians a greater opportunity to participate in their branch operations in this country, both as investors and as managers.

"Canadians," he said, "do not appear to be excluded from an opportunity of participating in the fortunes, good or bad, of large-scale enterprises incorporated in Canada but controlled. They may not buy many shares, but they resent exclusion."

In other words, in Mr. Howe's opinion, Canadians are more concerned with a principle than with being barred from an opportunity to enjoy private profit. In this belief Mr. Howe is probably right, since as far as the opportunity to profit is concerned comparable chances may be found by investing in Canadian-owned companies.

"They (Canadians) do not like to see large-scale Canadian enterprises entirely dependent upon foreign parents for their research and top management," Mr. Howe said.

The statement is probably accurate, but the objection does not appear to us to be as serious as that voiced in Mr. Howe's next sentence: "They (Canadians) do not like to see the financial results of large-scale Canadian enterprises treated as if they were the exclusive concern of foreign owners." Canadians do not like this because it is not true—these industries are as important to Canadians as a whole as they are to their United States owners. On them depends a great deal of our present prosperity. Most Canadians, and Mr. Howe, have fully recognize this. As the Minister of Trade and Commerce said, the vast majority of Canadians will continue to welcome American investments. They would, however, like to see American investors take some of Mr. Howe's advice.

Mr. Howe said that Americans must reckon with the pride and nationalism of Canadians. He pointed out to us that they must also reckon with something more, Canadians' self-interest. Mr. Howe says he hopes that Canada will never impose rigid laws controlling foreign enterprise. One may share this hope and at the same time point out that other countries have felt it necessary to enforce such laws. For instance, a press release from the Department of Trade and Commerce, which Mr. Howe heads, a release issued at almost the same time that Mr. Howe was speaking in Chicago, contained an article dealing with the problems of Canadian manufacturers who desire to establish a strong demand for their products in France. These manufacturers, it says, if they feel that the demand is strong enough to justify establishing manufacturing facilities in France, can follow one of two courses, licensing a French manufacturer to produce their goods or establishing branch plants. It adds that the first policy, "if satisfactory arrangement can be worked out with a French manufacturer, involves fewer problems. "When it comes to establishing a branch plant, the task is more difficult. It takes considerable time for a foreign company to obtain authorization to engage in certain types of business there. The investor must go through extensive formalities, submit a good many documents and win the approval of various government agencies."

The easiest way for American manufacturers to make certain that they will never get tangled up in that kind of red tape in Canada is to listen to Mr. Howe and act on his advice.

A RIGHT—WHICH CAN BE FOREITED

Once more we have run across a statement that Ontario motorists should learn "that they drive vehicles on public highways not as a matter of right but rather as a privilege."

This statement has become commonplace. It is to be hoped that its unjustified repetition has not convinced motorists of its accuracy.

Its acceptance, by the Department of Highways and by the general public, would be extremely dangerous. To obtain a driver's licence is a privilege, and any one would have any reason for complain if he were deprived of this right. A man has no legitimate complaint if he is denied a privilege.

The law-abiding motorist drives by right, not by privilege. But he forfeits this right if he endangers the lives of others. It is not merely the right of the Minister of Highways to withdraw a privilege if the motorist continually breaks the law; it is his duty.

BOY AND MAN

I like to see them hand in hand,
The grownup dad, the little son,
Start off to the big city and
Know they are on the way to fun.
The little fellow's eager eyes
See novelties in every store,
But nothing that his father wise
Has not discovered long before.

There's wisdom acting as the guide,
There's childhood, to whom all things are new,
The young have not encountered pride
Or selfishness as grownups do.
It is a wonder-world and gay,
Where pain has not supplanted joy,
A field of mystery and play
Into every little wide-eyed boy.

The father has encountered greed
And pain of grief and bitter hate,
He knows that very near are need
And loss and all the blows of fate.
His fondest hopes come crashing down
From time to time he's had to see;
He knows the splendors of the town
Are not what they appear to be.

And yet he knows that little boy,
Who walks s proudly with his guide,
Will have to learn his present joy
By trouble, will be thrust aside,
And back of every gay display
In windows where the shop lights burn,
Are care and heartach tucked away
And lessons children grow to learn.

Struck by Lightning

By John Gould in the Christian Science Monitor

Of all life's myriad pleasures, one of the most unusual is being struck by lightning, and I can now state that I have been struck by lightning and recommend it as one of the top experiences on the agenda. Up until now the only people I have known who were struck by lightning have been Ben Franklin and Benjamin Franklin, but with my wife it was nonintentional, as it was with me.

Mr. Franklin, of course, could well have been disintegrated on the spot, and there is something which suggests that he was struck to send up a kite during a thunderstorm, but as nothing untoward happened he became a great man for a specific reason considered wise. The conclusions he reached, on that occasion, are correct, and I concur in them.

My wife, having been struck by lightning between the sink and the breadboard, has often been a little thought-shy about lightning, but every night, and has always been (other than when she was struck with or without conversational openers. I have frequently analyzed the situation, trying to figure out how she got around to it, for one minute she is discussing supper, and the next she would be telling of the time she got struck. I have long thought that research by lightning is one of the easiest things to talk about.

* * *

In a way, my wife's experience is a special one, for entertaining thunder, for it was unnoticed and suppressed, whereas she quickly collected an audience and a reputation for the record. Immediately afterward the automatic telephone system in our home, one of human hands and began to ring, and the pressure cooker ran to a steady 1,500 degrees F. and glowed.

My wife was still trying to figure out who the telephone call would be for, and at that moment her anatomical consciousness received the glad tidings with an internal clam. She got up and fell to the floor. By that time the elements had subsided and I was all over, and she related a shriek.

* * *

I had been up in the woods selecting a couple of spruce poles to repair the pooper-range gate in the shower struck, and sought shelter in the sugar house, which is a little building perched on top of a hill. When I heard my wife I responded to her call promptly, and found her surrounded by neighbors and friends who were examining the blackness, trying to find out how to shut off the laundry.

She was not dead, but very much over, and over. A sulfurous aroma pervaded the house, and the telephone was dead as a spectre. The linoleum had been ripped off the kitchen floor and deposited in another wearing weather reports, and somebody found that a mixing spoon had been welded to the refrigerator.

Since then it has been often that I have considered myself lucky, and my wife has acted somewhat as if she thought herself better than the rest of us, as a special way, and has so set apart. I had often reflected on the unfortunate position of another who had also been struck by lightning. I felt sad, and I suppose it would be lucky old I.

* * *

When the shower came up the other day, when it got struck I was standing up a little cement job. I was bringing the last bit of mixture in a pail, and was laying it in on with a trowel to get the last smoothness of the work, and was hoping to get enough hands laid over the job before the rain came, so the surface wouldn't get dapped.

Holding the pail of cement under in one arm, and smoothing the trowel against the job with the other hand, I was possibly asking for it. The set-up must have seemed attractive to the electrical disturbance then approaching, for it lost no time in embracing the opportunity, and my attention was attracted at once.

I was enveloped in a kind of gigantic click, first, and a'though time was scant I did manage some kind of internal thought mechanism which considered it a click, as it turned out, that the click was a bolt of lightning. It was not a thought for cogitation, and I didn't overdo it, but I distinctly remember an abbreviated kind of inward agreement about the basic fact.

Then a jingle-jingle-jingle-jingle stitched itself to the arm wound around the pail of wet cement, and the pail of cement began sending messages in Morse Code, via me, to the trowel. I was observing the trowel with interest during all this, for I am observant by nature, and it turned blue out on the end, quivered like a musical saw, and then hung limp.

* * *

I remember organizing my muscular coordinations, and going through the business of yelling, and I quote, "Yipe!" in a loud, clear falsetto, but afterward I noticed that the dog, who works with me by lying asleep under foot, had not roused, and I am inclined to think I yelled yipe without using any noise, for if I yell yipe that hard and make a noise the dog wouldn't come home for two weeks.

Of course, I immediately went up to the house and told my wife I had been struck by lightning, and she said I looked funny with my hair standing on end, ha, ha. She afterward exhibited concern, but I think she feels I did it on purpose to spoil her fun. Naturally I wouldn't do a thing like that. Now she says, "Oh, yes—John got struck by lightning, just the way I did, up in the kitchen; you see, the telephone set up this jingling, and . . ."

Being Funny Is No Joke

Montreal Gazette

Vaudeville died when movies proved that each show could be different; vaudevillians had been playing the same acts in the same theatres for years.

If movies quickened the pace of production, television has speeded it a thousand times faster. For the musician, the singer, the straight actor, this produces a new problem: boredom. Boredom, it has become a nightmare.

For the TV comedian, this means that success is next door to oblivion. The weekly listener ratings chart the big progress from the top but TV's short history proves that no one stays there. There is only one move to make from the top, and that's downward.

It is reported that Red Skelton, who had been doing quite well for some time, suddenly found himself at the top of the weekly listener ratings. The report says that he came near a nervous breakdown when he heard the news.

His sad tale is not, unfortunately, the product of Skelton's gag-writers. Where, for instance, is Milton Berle now? Only a few short years ago he was "Mr. Television," the most popular star on the network.

Familiarity breeds boredom. The fan who wouldn't miss Berle's occasional appearance in a movie or at a night club was able to see him every week, merely by turning a dial.

It's not just familiarity. When people go to a theatre, they've deliberately chosen it for its play or its cast. They have made an investment and they're prepared to enjoy themselves. That attitude toward the TV show is that they're presented to turn it off if it isn't first-rate. The TV star finds himself in the position of a record in a juke-box.

Edgar Bergen, veteran of stage and radio, quickly, TV proved. pared to be washed up in two years."

However, U.S. network television pays handsomely. Being a washed-out institution is better than just being washed-up.

It's the people who live these vanishing comedians who are really worrying.

How 'Getting Sack' Started

Windsor Daily Star

Recently we noted a word one in common parlance in Ontario. A dispatch told of the firing of automotive employees in England, and spoke of them "getting the sack." It is the term often used when workers were employees of individuals this was an appropriate term. When a man was fired he was shown the door and told to get out, bag and baggage. The "sack" was the bag in which the ordinary worker could carry some of his possessions, slung over his shoulder, as he unhappily trudged down the road in search of another job.

On Hiring The Retiring

Financial Post

We met a happy man the other day.

He was 65, and he had just retired from his job as sales and service manager of a western Canadian firm. He was heading for a six-month, leisurely tour of Europe.

"I can afford the trip," he told us, "because I've been living on a pasture when I get home. My company pension will give me a different job. There's less responsibility, less pressure — but it's a job where my experience is useful. I don't get the salary that went with my old job — but the salary I do get, plus my pension, means I don't have to take any big cut in living standards. My wife and I can still afford to do the things we like to do — but with more time to enjoy them."

We called the company, and found its president equally pleased with the arrangement. "We've reorganized the department," he said, "and Joe takes great pleasure in the fact that it takes four new men to do his old job. Actually, the jobs are different, but Joe will not be overjoyed with them in any way, so he won't be bothered with the old fellow's problems. Joe's job is one that requires a man who knows a lot about both the various phases of division operate — and I don't know how we'd have filled it if Joe hadn't been willing to take it on."

Re-hiring retiring employees is one way of beating both the shortage of skilled help and the problem of inflation-cut pensions. Where it applies, it's a good solution for both management and employees.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FOLDED HANDS

When I see a person sitting quietly, with folded hands, there is brought to my mind a picture I cannot fact. That person has arrived at the time in life when he has been learned the gospel of relaxation. Richard King, the English writer, once wrote, that folded hands were "the symbol of a mental state—not merely of a bodily attitude."

More people worry about life and its problems in middle life than in old age. They have not at that time served their apprenticeship. But as the silver gathers about the temples there are folded hands that offer a silent philosophy to the beauty of life—years well spent, and with increased well preserved.

Folded hands are the aftermath of work and busy hours. They are the sign of meditation and acceptance. If you do not carry the fun of life within your mind and heart, you have not discovered the right kind of fun. With folded hands you can smile with a sincere satisfaction, for you have lived life courageously and discovered it to be good.

Our fathers never resorted to folded hands until the work of the day—and later, until the work of life was nearing its earthly end. The picture was one of peace and calm. Those folded hands expressed happiness in this world. "From none but me," Emerson declared, "wrote Burton in his remarkable poem, "Kasidah." Peace, contentment, and hope, all wrapped up in faith, give us assurance as we sit with those folded hands, reading silently from the diary of our heart.

Remember nothing with regret. Pray God that the great lesson of life may have been learned. Then confidently go forward.

Personal Health Talks

There are No Capillary Blood Vessels

No matter how thin you slice it, it's still baloney.

There are only two kinds of tubes or vessels that carry blood—arteries which convey blood from the heart to every part of the body, and veins which return blood from every part of the body to the heart, the right side of the heart, which pumps it to the lungs for oxygenation and decarbonization (removal of carbon dioxide, "carbonic acid gas") before it returns to the left side of the heart to be pumped again through general circulation.

Some oldtimers in medicine and related fields, observed that arteries carrying pure decarbonated and oxygenated blood to all parts of the body become smaller and smaller as they get farther and farther from the great trunk artery (aorta) and ultimately become so small that one can hardly see them at all except with magnifying glass or microscope. When the arteries become so small that they are invisible to the naked eye, they are called arterioles.

Yahbut, ye still have the problem of conducting the oxygen from the blood and reloading it with carbon dioxide to be carried back to the lungs and blown off. How does the fresh, pure arterial blood get from the arteries to and through the venules or veins?

This is said to be an embarrassing question for an anatomist, a physiologist, or a pathologist to answer. But the oldtimers in the medical profession dispose of it as easily as they do other rude questions which only a mother could love, such as, "Why tell poor trustful souls they must take digitalis every day if the want to remain alive?" and, "How can you distinguish an illness or indisposition as a 'cold' before the nature of the illness becomes manifest?" The eminent medical authorities dispose of such impertinent questions in the way they have found satisfactory to their customers. They loftily ignore the challenge.

From years of research, I have concluded that "capillaries" were not invented by anyone. They got into medical literature as bedsheets, gremlins, and flying saucers got into popular literature.

No one has isolated a capillary vessel.

No one can demonstrate such a vessel under the microscope.

The truth is that where the ultimate, finest visible (under the microscope) arteriole terminates, the blood flow comes through the tissue where the cells pick up oxygen and give off carbon dioxide.

Capillaries are purely mythical, except in the imagination of doctors who still believe in "colds" and still pay their credulous clients with dicitalis, as though the droopy and dizzy introduced by the old woman of Shropshire were magic against heart failure.

Whether there are capillary vessels or not may be a question of little importance. I harp on it here in the hope that intelligent persons who realize I must be right about it may be led to wonder whether I may not be right about some interesting questions such as those asked above.

Strength for The Day

NEW HABITS FOR A NEW WORLD

Every great change which takes place in human ways of living produces a physical and mental readaptation to environment.

Do we wonder that we have so many "nervous breakdowns," so many heart attacks and nervous breakdowns? Are we surprised that the startling emergence into modern life of the problem of juvenile delinquency? There is one reason for any of these things. All physical phenomena are explainable.

But certainly one cause of many modern situations is that we have suddenly changed from a way of life involving considerable physical effort to a way of life involving very little physical effort. Yet we keep eating the same amount of food that our forebears did, who worked on the farms. We mind.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The reason night clubs and cafes affording evening entertainment do not more generally succeed, as they are in Canada is, according to a night club proprietor friend in a former army comrade of mine, due to the unhealthy appearance of the majority of waiting staffs.

"If I could just persuade a few good looking young men and girls and healthy-looking girls to come in here," he said, "I could retire in ten years, the place would be so jammed. But just look at them—"

The entertainers, a group of three young men musicians and a girl singer, had just relieved each other at the stand. The night club was reasonably full of people of the various age groups.

"The entertainers," I suggested, "weren't too healthy looking." Kind of gaunt. A little greasy. A few wrinkles here. I would have said the girl looked like TB."

"Look at the guests," cut in my friend.

I have been in lots of night clubs in my travels, and I must admit the crowds you see in them are pretty much of a type whether in Winnipeg, New York, London or Caboocank. But it had not occurred to me that they looked unhealthy.

They did, directly by the proprietor's frosty eye, I realized that the one predominant characteristic of all with him.

the guests, whether young, middle-aged or frowsy-elderly, was their lack of a healthy look.

"Show me," he demanded bitterly, "one healthy specimen! The kind we all used to see in the pubs, to try to cover a look of fatigue. They were not frequenters of pool or pot-boiled. Young and old."

I indicated two or three fairly robust gentlemen.

"Half out," declared the proprietor. "Of course they would be the haunted look in their eyes. Nobody is happy sometimes think a night club is nothing but a therapeutic institution for the artificial and synthetic creation of the unsatisfied one who are afraid to breathe deep."

"Maybe you're a little off colour yourself," I suggested.

"Maybe I am," said the proprietor. "I think I'll take a couple of weeks off and run down to the States."

"Night clubs!." I supposed. "Where else?" he said he.

Mining Magnate Refuses to Pay Ransom Demand

TORONTO (CP) — Charles LaBine, Toronto mining company executive, today said he totally disproved him last Oct. 6 from Mexico City, where scientists held her prisoner, and asked for $5,000, but "I wouldn't give them a cent."

Mr. LaBine's statement was a new angle to a case revived Thursday when William O'Dwyer, former New York mayor now practising law in Mexico City, said his firm is dropping the extortion investigation because Mexican police finished it with their 30 arrest of five men.

Mr. LaBine said his daughter called a "business friend" when he refused to pay the ransom. The men, after holding Mr. and Mrs. Louis Allan Molner prisoner for four hours, are said to have left with jewels and a small amount of cash.

MARRIED IN JULY

The 21-year-old wife, the former Rita Ann LaBine, was married last July in Mexico, where she was studying art at the University of Mexico.

She is expecting a child and her doctors have sent her to Cuernavaca, a resort city, for recovery from the shock of her ordeal.

Mr. and Mrs. Molner were back in their home in City apartment for four hours Oct. 6 by armed men who said they were government agents investigating their papers and activities in Mexico.

They were "constantly threatened with pistols for four hours and were on the point of being kidnapped in order that a large amount of dollars could be demanded as ransom, in addition to the money and jewels already taken," a lawyer representing the Canadians said.

The extortionists demanded $10,000 in cash, but when this was not immediately available they took certain jewels and a small amount of cash. They said they would return for the balance.

TRAPPED BY POLICE

The suspects were captured Oct. 10 in a trap laid by secret agents. They were scheduled to appear in court today for an initial hearing.

At a press conference Thursday in Mexico City, Mr. O'Dwyer said his firm entered the case only to protect Mrs. Molner, whom he identified as from the LaBine family. He said his firm knew little of Molner, but felt his papers were in order and his activities in Mexico legal.

The LaBine name first became famous when Charles' brother, Gilbert, discovered in 1929 North America's first pitchblende deposit.

A few years ago the brothers found a rich uranium ore body in northern Saskatchewan. From it grew Gunnar Mines Ltd. Gilbert is president of the company, his brother is vice-president.

Attorney-General Says Bones In Grave Not Tom Thomson's

TORONTO (CP)—A mysterious skeleton dug from an unmarked grave on a lonely hill in Algonquin Park two weeks ago is not that of Canadian painter Tom Thomson, Attorney-General Dunlop of Ontario said Thursday.

Mr. Roberts said it has been determined the bones are those of a male Indian or half-breed about 20 years of age. He said officials are continuing their investigation of a hole in the skull.

Thomson, one of Canada's greatest painters, died 39 years ago under unusual circumstances and was buried near the spot where the skeleton was found on the shores of Canoe Lake. He was 39 when he died.

Official records state, however, that the body was moved from its unmarked grave at the park to Leith, near Owen Sound.

The skeleton was found Oct. 1 in a wilderness grave by two men investigating a local legend that Thomson's body had never been moved.

RANGER'S STORY

One of the men, William Little, superintendent of the Ontario Reformatory at Brampton, said he and Ranger Mark Robinson of forest ranger who investigated Thomson's death that the body was still in its original grave.

Mr. Little said Ranger Mark Robinson told him the body was not moved to the church cemetery at Leith; that the undertaker hired to transfer the body took an empty coffin to the new grave.

Mr. Little and three others, Jack Eastaugh of suburban Etobicoke and Leonard Gibson and Frank Braught of Guelph decided after many years to "prove to our satisfaction that Robinson was wrong."

The men visited the site of a small burial ground on a hill near the lake and found two marked graves and near them three depressions in the ground. In the third depression they found the skeleton in a cedar coffin.

UNDERTAKER'S REPLY

After the announcement of the find was made, F. W. Churchill, 73, a former undertaker, said he had exhumed Thomson's body and sent it to Owen Sound for reburial in 1917.

Thomson's fame as an artist is widespread despite the fact he had been painting seriously for only three years before he died. Among his best known paintings are The Jack Pine, The West Wind, The Northern River and Autumn, Much of his painting was done in Algonquin Park.

July 8, 1917, his canoe was found at Canoe Lake. The paddles were lashed to the inside of the craft, indicating the owner may have been portaging the craft when something happened.

About 10 days later a body was found in the water. The head was bloody from a large head wound. There was no evidence of foul play and it was thought the man may have fallen on slippery rocks while taking his canoe from the water.

The body was identified as that of Thomson and was buried immediately because of advanced decomposition. An inquest was held later. The jury decided it was accidental death.

Doctor Impressed With Eskimos Found Scattered Along Coast

OTTAWA (CP)—To the French it's "c'est la vie." The British say "that's life." A Canadian shrugs philosophically and murmurs "ionungnaa."

The attitude, particularly at times of unhappiness, tragedy, disaster, seems to be typical of Eskimo philosophy, says Dr. F. H. Kennedy, recently returned from heading a medical party examining Eskimos in the eastern Arctic.

"Ionungnaa or other words of similar with that remark," he said in an interview on his return from 17½ months aboard the Arctic patrol ship C. D. Howe.

A HARD LIFE

It was Dr. Kennedy's first trip north for the health department's Indian and northern health services branch. He was impressed by the Eskimos he found scattered along the coasts of distant islands, living in tents on isolated inlets.

Their life was always been hard, he said. Eskimos are lost on the ice when they go fishing and hunting, polar bears kill them, they die of exposure. They face it with a shrug and "ionungnaa."

"They're a wonderful people. They're not only cheerful, they're completely honest."

And because of their isolation and dependence upon each other for survival, they help one another in a way that few persons do in southern Canada.

"Imagine dumping your children on friends for a couple of years," Dr. Kennedy said.

QUICK DECISION

But that's what is done by Eskimos who are found too ill for treatment on the spot and must be brought south. The patrol boat is waiting offshore, perhaps, for the medical party to complete its examination of the inhabitants along some desolate coast. The case goes an Eskimo woman must come out to be treated for tuberculosis.

"The Eskimos are very sensible people," said Dr. Kennedy. "When you tell them they will get worse and might pass the disease on to their children they make up their minds on the spot."

The woman will ask for 15 or 20 minutes to arrange for her children to be taken care of. She goes to one neighbor with one child, passes a couple more to another neighbor, tells them she will be gone a year or two, puts on her parka and says "let's go."

"But they are very affectionate. They kiss their children goodbye. The woman usually cry a bit."

Dr. Kennedy said the fact most Eskimos taken out for treatment last year have already returned made this part a little easier. And again, as in the face of all their difficulties, the Eskimo usually met this problem with the same philosophic "ionungnaa."

Eight of Ten Provinces Want No Rate Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Spokesmen for eight of Canada's 10 provinces warned Thursday that approval of a railway application for a 15-per-cent freight rate increase will seriously accelerate inflation in this country.

The warning was made by M. A. MacPherson, counsel for Saskatchewan, and the Western and Maritime provinces began their summaries of their case against the increase before the board of transport commissioners. He was supported by counsel for all other provinces except Ontario and Quebec.

The CNR — CPR application, made earlier this year, was met in part by an interim increase of seven per cent effective last July 1. The board now is dealing with the application as a whole.

Mr. MacPherson, chief spokesman for provincial governments opposed to rate increases, said the board should give serious consideration to the Bank of Canada's decision to increase the bank rate to a record 3½ per cent to curb inflation.

"I am satisfied that economists would feel there is nothing better calculated to promote a further measure of inflation than an increase in freight rates at this time," Mr. MacPherson said.

Training Cruiser Cook Provides Best of Food

BLACKVILLE, N.B. (CP) — The days when the duties of ship's cook automatically fell to the unluckiest, if not the best-tempered member of the crew, are no more. That's the word from CPO George McIntyre of Blackville and Victoria, B. C., senior member of the galley staff on the 9,000-ton training cruiser, Ontario.

"In the old days, the cook was usually the weakest man on board," says CPO McIntyre. "Because he wasn't able to do any heavier work, he was made responsible for the food. Today, you have to be in top shape to work in this branch of the navy.

A navy cook since 1938, McIntyre and his staff have a major job providing for the 600 men on board the Ontario, particularly when the ship is on a long cruise.

Used to thinking of meals in astronomical terms, he admits he finds it difficult to adjust himself to restaurant eating ashore.

"Ordering a solitary meal for myself and not having anything to do with its preparation is a funny experience," he confesses ruefully, "quite different from supervising daily preparations of 1,800 meals, plus the baking of 200 loaves of bread.

Average monthly consumption of staple foods is something like 8,293 loaves of bread, 18,133 pounds of meat, 10,136 pounds of vegetables, and 3,672 dozen eggs.

Things have changed vastly since CPO McIntyre entered the navy 18 years ago. Today, the service employs the latest cooking techniques and equipment, and all food is subjected to thorough inspection before it is taken aboard.

"The work isn't easy, but there is much to be said for it when you have the finest equipment and the highest quality foods to work with," says McIntyre.

FUGITIVE KAYOS SELF

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP)—A man identified as Steve J. Sandercock, 29, of Chicago, knocked himself out Thursday while fleeing from police who wanted to question him. Sandercock turned a corner too fast and ran into a concrete column in front of a store. He was stunned, suffered a cut eye and forehead, a wrist injury and possible rib fracture. He was charged with receiving stolen property.

Polls Show Democrats Could Win Michigan, Possibly Minn.

(This is the fifth of a series of election campaign summaries by AP political reporters who are surveying sentiment in key states across the U.S.)

MICHIGAN

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Yellow pumpkins piled high at roadside stands, full, brown corn drying in the fields and fat dairy herds grazing in the rolling meadows attest that this was a good farm year in Michigan.

But whether this outward placidity spells polling-place support for the Republican administration's farm policies and thus for President Eisenhower's re-election run—is to be determined.

The Republicans must hold the farmers if they are to offset Democratic majorities in Wayne County, including Detroit. The big city area casts 40 per cent of Michigan's estimated 2,600,000 ballots.

WILLIAMS TO WIN

Eisenhower took the state by a 321,000-vote margin over Adlai Stevenson in 1952. Republicans this year hope to cut into the city vote in the battle for the state's 20 electoral votes. They are running Detroit Mayor Albert B. Cobo against Democratic Governor C. Mennen Williams. There is no Senate contest this year.

Williams rode out the 1952 Eisenhower landslide. And he won hands down in 1954 and this year seems capable of breasting any Eisenhower tide. Whether he can pull Stevenson in with him is regarded as doubtful.

MINNESOTA

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — President Eisenhower has a big but diminishing backlog of respect and popularity that may carry him to a repeat political victory in Minnesota. But by no means is it safe bet that this will happen.

For Minnesota still has some unhappy farmers, despite the boom corn and soybean crops on record. As a result, the battle for Minnesota's 11 electoral votes is uncomfortable close.

THE FARM ISSUE

Peace, prosperity and what some voters term his "honesty and sincerity" are working for Eisenhower in Minnesota. Few people mention his health as a campaign issue. In the state ranking fifth in value of farm products, the farm issue is the big one. And it is in rural areas that Eisenhower's popularity has subsided most.

But if economic conditions hurt Eisenhower on the farms, they may help him in normally Democratic labor areas in cities and the iron range country in the north. While Minneapolis-Moline has shut down here because of big stocks of tractors and other equipment farmers aren't buying, the number of people on payrolls in Minnesota set successive records in August and September.

OREGON

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — If you're looking for a good testing ground of President Eisenhower's personal popularity, Oregon is the right place.

Republicans will grant Eisenhower has lost votes because of falling farm prices and such regional problems as the dispute over Hells Canyon dams.

A slowdown in home construction—blamed chiefly on tight credit—has hit the lumber industry.

GOOD BUSINESS

However, while this has been going on and farm income has dropped by nine per cent, business in general has been good. Jobs, pay rates and earnings are at new highs. And there's not a cry rising on Ike's personal standing to see him through.

Democrats don't deny Eisenhower has maintained a strong following in Oregon, even though its registration went Democratic this year. And most predictions are that Adlai Stevenson can forget about the state's six electoral votes.

However, statewide newspaper polls favor Senator Wayne Morse, opposing Eisenhower's most casual critics, to win re-election over Douglas McKay. The former Oregon governor gave up his job as secretary of the interior to challenge Morse, who switched to the Democrats after winning election as a Republican.

St. John's Guild Sponsors Fine Bazaar, Tea

St. John's Guild, of St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill, held its annual fall bazaar in the parish hall at Christ Church, yesterday afternoon, with a large assembly of friends and patrons.

The hall was artistically decorated at various points with autumn flowers, and the dining room, with its little gaudy tablecloths was a cherished meeting-place for many a friendly tête-à-tête. The fancy emporium upstairs, autumn colors predominated in yellow, bronze and red, with the counters silk decked with sprays of bittersweet, rose hips, Canadian holly-ess and willowy asparagus ferns.

The long tea table was lovely with its pumpkin centrepiece filled with button 'mums in yellow, bronze and white, white and lavender. Tall green candles in crystal holders, flickered a cheerful welcome, with side centres of gladiolas, and California poppies, mingled with and between, which decented the snowy-white cloths of the guest tables. Out a damaskcovered side table a lovely arrangement of white and pale pink roses, white-colored snapdragons, and mauve Canadiana daisies drew appreciative glances.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. L. Arthur Page, wife of the rector of St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill, and Mrs. R. Collyer, president of the Guild.

Mrs. George Corby, assisted by Mrs. J. Exley, presided at the treasurer's table with its bouquet of little autumn flowers.

Pouring tea for the afternoon were: Mrs. M. Sexsmith and Mrs. L. V. Porter; Mrs. O. Grimson and Mrs. M. E. Jackson. Those serving: Mrs. W. Roberts, Mrs. J. Bennett, Mrs. R. Bailey and Mrs. C. Brewer; Mrs. Hubert Thorburn, Mrs. Ida Johnson, Mrs. W. Leeming and Mrs. C. Brown.

In the auditorium the home-cooking, the miscellaneous, and the aprons and parks, all drew their own patrons. In charge of the homecooking were: Mrs. W. Leeming and Mrs. W. Messer; of the miscellaneous, Mrs. H. Putman and Mrs. R. Collyer; and of the plants and vegetables, Mrs. R. Collyer.

What remained of the delicious homecooking was evident of the usual fine cakes and pies, tarts, cookies, angel cakes, tea biscuits, cocoanut topped cup cakes, fruit cookies, and the like, served at the St. John's Guild teas and bazaars.

As with the homecooking, a lot of nice articles had been sold from the miscellaneous booth before the reporter arrived, but those remaining included men's garters and sleeve holders; compass and protractor sets, nice for high school students; crystal salts and peppers; ornaments of red dogs; little deer and wolves; face powders; metal and glass dishes; child's color book of H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh; creams; fudge and peanut brittle; little surprise packages of children's articles and costume jewellery.

The plant booth was a delightful place to browse for those with a green thumb. Here were little baby tears; tiny cactus gardens with various types of cactus; winter bouquets of colorful straw flowers mingled with baby's breath; African violets in white, mauve, deep purple, and orchid shades; tall sansevieria; rubber plants; ornamental oats in blue, crimson, yellow, mauve and silvery, a scintillating spot of lovely color and foliage.

Beside the pretty flowers which charm the sight there were carrots, hard cabbages, turnips, everything to make that basic pot of vegetable soup so tempting on a cold night, also pumpkins for mouth-watering pies.

The apron and fancy work table also was filled with pretty articles, so nice for home use or for gifts, which remind us that Christmas is just a little over two months away, when just such things as the following: Tablecloths, lace-edged pillowslips, centrepieces, knit articles; aprons of every variety and style, some with tiny, blue flowered backgrounds, others with hearts and diamonds; child cotton skirts for the tenyear; dolls' dresses, stuffed dolls, and crochet lace for edging tea cloths and many other articles.

Clearly tea and ideally arranged bazaar, merriting a "well done" for workers, and their assistants.

WEDDINGS

GIBSON—RUDNALLS

St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Stirling, was the scene of a lovely, autumn wedding on Saturday, October 13, at 2.00 p.m., when the Rev. W. H. V. Walker, united in marriage, Dorothy Louise Rudnalls, of Stirling, daughter of Mrs. Maude Rudnalls, to John Warren Gibson, of Bancroft, son of Mrs. H. Roy Gibson of Belleville, and the late Mr. Gibson. Chrysanthemums and ferns adorned the chancel rail, and white satin bows the guest pews.

The wedding music was rendered by Mrs. H. Morrow with "O Promise Me," being played during the signing of the register.

The bride, who was escorted to the altar by her uncle, Mr. Clarence Thomason, and given in marriage by her mother, Mrs. Maude Runnalls, was lovely in her waist-length Bridal veil, held by Prence Chantilly lace embroidered with sequins and fashioned with jewelled neckline and long sleeves pointed over the wrists. The apron skirt was of layers and gathers of misty tulle. She wore a shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion lace, held by a tiara of pearls encrusted with crystal sequins, and carried a bouquet of white carnations mingled with stephanotis.

Mrs. William H. Muirhead of Belleville, attended the bride, gowned in navy blue velvet, with fitted bodice in strapless style, and bouffant skirt, matching hood forming the cape. She carried a satin backed rosegay of pink carnations and white 'mums.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Robert Gibson, of Green Credit, while Messrs. Allan S. Munro, of Belleville, and William H. Muirhead of Belleville, were ushers.

The reception was held at Maple Haven, Trent Road, where the bride's table was centred with white damask, centred with a three-tier wedding cake, flanked by white 'mums, lighted with white tapers and the bridal flowers.

The bride's mother's gown was of street-length crepe in royal blue with black accessories and corsage of bronze and yellow 'mums. Assisting her in the receiving line was the bridegroom's mother, wearing a street-length gown of rose and gold crepe-taffeta with matching hat, tan accessories, and corsage of yellow and bronze 'mums.

Following the reception, the young couple left for points unknown the bride travelling in a fitted suit of English tweed, tan accessories, and corsage of bronze 'mums. On their return they will reside in Bancroft upon their return.

Guests attended from Stirling, Belleville, Bancroft, Port Credit, and Toronto.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was honored by showers at the home of Mrs. William Rudnalls, Belleville; at the home of Mrs. Allan Munro, Stirling, and at the home of Mrs. C. Weston of Belleville.

HAMMOND—RAYMER

A quiet but pretty double-ring wedding took place in St. Paul's United church, Ajax, Ontario, on September 29, at 3 p.m., when the minister, the Rev. A. M. Butler officiated at the marriage of Jane Gold Raymer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Raymer of Ajax, to Glenn James Hammond son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hammond of Stirling, Ontario.

The bride was attired in a ballerina-length dress of blue net over taffeta, and matching headdress held by a tiny net veil. She carried a white Bible crested with pink roses and white ribbon and wore a single strand of pearls and matching earrings.

Attending the bride was her sister, Dolores, (Mrs. M. Lesley), wearing pale blue taffeta in ballerina-length dress with matching headdress. She carried a nosegay of pink carnations, white 'mums and pink roses. She wore a single strand of pearls with matching earrings.

Mr. Ray Hammond of Cobourg, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman.

A reception to about 50 guests was held at the home of the bride, 11 Nelson Street, Ajax, where the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a two-piece gown in gunmetal and turquoise with black and white accessories and corsage of red roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, attired in charcoal blue with navy accessories and corsage of yellow roses.

For the honeymoon trip, the bride chose a suit in brown and beige with brown accessories and corsage of pink roses.

So-Ed Club Views Colored Slides, Enjoys Dancing

The So-Xd Club of the Belleville Y.M.C.A. held its third meeting of the fall session at the Y.M.C.A. on Wednesday evening.

The first part of the program devoted to interest activities, was fortunate in having Mr. Michael Chubb of the Moira River Conservation Authority as one of the speakers. Mr. Chubb showed the Field and Stream group an excellent coloured slide collection and gave an exceedingly interesting and informative description of the conservation work being carried out in the Moira Water Shed. Following this address, a movie was given by Messrs. Townsend and Clott of the Belleville Bridge Club to another attentive group.

Mr. Don McDougall of the Belleville Camera Club continued with his photographic project by developing a roll of film taken at last week's meeting. Next week Mr. McDougall hopes to demonstrate the making of prints. The newly dancing group was launched in the Y.M.C.A. gym floor with such dances as the 'Gay Gordons' and the 'Palais Glide' by Mrs. Rose Gilchrist.

After the interest activities, the group's gathered together for the evening's talk. Bert Lawson introduced the guest speaker Mr. K. G. M. Ross, B.A., who gave a highly amusing and informative talk on Canadian Law. Mr. Law's chief cost and possible ways of avoiding them. Mr. Ross' talk was exceedingly well received.

So-Ed Chairman, Bert Hiles, thanked Mr. Ross and presented him with a momento of this visit to So-Ed.

Refreshments were served, consisting of coffee and some excellent pie and cake which Mrs. Short's bread cookies made by Marie and Mrs. Gordon Manning with the Highland motif of the evening.

The piece de resistance of the evening was Miss Betty Heather Scott, who did an exquisite rendition of the Highland Sword Dance and also the Highland Fling. So wild was the applause that she consented to do a second.

Many and varied were the tartans worn by the members during the evening with the theme "Highland Fling", and as far as can be ascertained, all the ladies were dressed for the evening.

The remainder of the evening was devoted to dancing, the program was mixed to satisfy everyone's taste, waltz and polka to square dances with the Gay Gordons thrown in for good measure. The dance program ended with the home waltz at midnight, with the unanimous decision that So-Ed gets better every week.

Joint Commission Chairmen Pleased With Seaway Progress After Inspection of Project

OGDENSBURG, N.Y. (CP) — Canadian and United States officials supervising the St. Lawrence Seaway power project Thursday inspected a section of the huge project through which the first waters will begin gushing next week.

Co-chairmen of the International Joint Commission and other authorities from the two countries travelled to Point Rockway, a promontory 10 miles from this upstate New York city, to look over the completed portion of a 3,500-foot control dam aimed at stabilizing the water levels of Lake Ontario.

The dam, under construction by U.S. Army engineers, now thrusts about halfway across the Long Sault Island Iroquois Point, Ont. By early next year, it will span the river, to regulate its flow.

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton and Leonard Jordan, joint chairmen of the commission, said later that a temporary dike holding the great flow of the river away from the new dam, will be opened Monday, letting the water flow through the dam's sluices.

It will be the first of the river to flow through a key section of the project, marking a milestone in the job of taming the St. Lawrence for more than 2,500,000 horse-power of electricity and year-round deep-draught navigation into the heart of the continent.

The control dam is located just opposite the spot where the Canadian government's St. Lawrence Seaway Authority is building a $14,000,000 navigation lock to allow shipping to move between the river proper and the huge "pool" that will be backed up by dams 25 miles downstream at the power-house location.

The inspection party visited installations at both ends of the project—and many intermediate points—during a swift one-day tour of about 100 miles upstream and downstream on the U.S. side and downstream on the Canadian after a start from Cornwall.

Gen. McNaughton said he intends to return Monday from Ottawa to see the Point Rockway dam opened.

He and co-chairman Jordan told reporters they are "completely satisfied" with the progress of the seaway to date.

Target date for the start of power production is July, 1958, with deep-draught navigation to start in the 1959 shipping season.

The power output and its cost—$600,000,000—are to be shared by Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission and the New York Power and Authority. The self-liquidating navigation system, costing some $336,000,000 is being financed by the two federal governments.

Gen. McNaughton said he was particularly gratified at complete assurance that the work has not materially disturbed water levels from what they would be normally.

"It has been a magnificent job of engineering and planning," he said.

Gen. McNaughton said the Iroquois control dam is expected to be used to stabilize the level of Lake Ontario between 244 and 246 feet above sea level, greatly narrowing the fluctuations that have at times caused damage to lake shore properties.

"We are quite sure the shore people are not going to be hurt at all by the seaway," he said. "On the contrary, we think it may prove to believe that all will benefit—land owners, power users and navigation."

Wild Rice Sown In Two Lakes Of Northern Ont.

KIRKAND LAKE, Ont. (CP)—Waterfowl and muskrats will soon find a new source to bolster their food supply in Northern Ontario.

Wild rice seeds have been sown in Washagami and Canoeland Lakes by Rolland and Halliday Townships from a department of lands and forests plane.

Obtaining the seed was the difficult task.

Using an ingenious machine mounted on a canoe, department workers Roy Johnson and Eddy Arbuckle gathered the seeds from rice crops along the grassy river east of Gogama.

The machine, which has flailing arms like a combine but knocks the kernels down without cutting or injuring the stalk, was taken overland to the grassy river landing. Then the two men attached it to the bow of a canoe and took it 30 miles along the river.

The trip required careful handling of the apparatus on some of the curves and at one point everything had to be dismantled for a portage around a series of rapids.

Finally, they transferred the trough by the machine, then put into bags kept under water because dry rice seeds will not germinate. During four days the two men gathered 1,000 pounds of the seed, which was picked up by lakes and forests aircraft and then sown.

War Secretary Head Appointed Defence Minister

LONDON (CP)—British shook up her troubled military establishment today, making War Secretary Antony Head to the post of defence minister.

Head succeeds Sir Walter Monckton, who was named paymaster general. Monckton remains in the cabinet although without a specific department.

John Hugh Hare, minister of state for colonial affairs, was named to succeed Head as war secretary.

The shuffle of offices was completed by the appointment of John Boyd-Carpenter, Conservative member of Parliament, as colonial minister of state.

The new defence minister, whose appointment gives him over-all command of the navy, air and war departments and the ministry of supply, was a brigadier in the British Army in the Second World War.

MONCKTON WEARY

Monckton, 63, long has been reported anxious to be relieved of departmental duties. He has been under continuous strain which is said to have told on him.

Political quarters regard the choice of Head as a move to bring Defence Minister in a minister who has been under fire recently but who has a prime minister regards as blameless.

Head has become a focal point for complaints that reservists called up during the Suez crisis have been kept in service unnecessarily, that skilled men have been assigned time-killing jobs that leaves and other benefits have been poorly organized.

In the face of criticism, Head has maintained the reservists will be free to stay in uniform until the casual issue is finally settled.

The new minister is 39 years old and had held his previous post for five years.

Slum Clearance Gathering Momentum Though Fewer Houses Being Built This Year

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Slum redevelopment is gathering momentum in Canada even though fewer houses are being built this year in most cities.

A survey of 19 cities by The Canadian Press shows that six are engaged in planning or actual redevelopment, compared to four last year.

But only three of the 10 cities are enjoying an increase in new house construction.

Toronto continues to lead the way in slum clearance, with 1,200 units of the $25,000,000 Regent Park project completed and construction under way on another 731. Construction has also started on the 1,100-unit, low-rental Lawrence Heights project, to be completed next July. Metropolitan housing authorities are looking at other projects under consideration.

Rents are high and accommodation is scarce in Toronto. The city had a vacancy rate of 1.4,600 new dwellings—4,950 of them in apartment buildings—had been built compared to 17,465 for the same period in 1955, the peak post-war year for housing construction. Despite all this, more people are moving than last year.

In Vancouver, a $16,000 grant from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation has spurred a study of redevelopment needs. An earlier, limited civic study will be finished in a year and planning officials are considering a low-rental housing scheme.

House construction in Vancouver is down but dwellings compared to 897 for the same period last year, but civic officials say 1956 will be a record year because of a large number of dwellings in units on land. There's no housing shortage.

Edmonton's slum clearance is taking place mostly in the north end of the city where considerable low-cost housing is being erected. Signs are that Edmonton's population as a city of somewhere—78.8 per cent—will be advanced this year. New homes are in great demand. In the first nine months this year 2,621 new dwellings were built or under construction, compared with 2,667 in the same period of 1955.

Housing is in short supply in Regina and Saskatoon. Only Saskatoon will have an increase in new homes by the end of the year. In Regina, where rents are higher than in any western city, 655 houses are being built compared to 977 in the same period last year. Apartment construction is down from 15 to 8.

Winnipeg has made one study of the slum problem and is engaged in another and is expected to start a third soon. There's a scarcity of low - rental housing and construction is expected to drop to 30 per cent lower than in 1955. To date this year 2,819 houses have been completed. 1952 construction totalled 4,016.

Montreal's Dorsoud slum - clearance plan, involving about 20 downtown acres at a cost of $14,000,000, is running into opposition from private groups and sectional city administrations. Contract has yet to be let.

Builders in Montreal blame a shortage of credit for a 16-per-cent drop in house construction. House dwellings were being built at the rate of 1,032 during the peak summer months, compared to 1,-460 last year.

In Quebec City, dwelling construction has dropped sharply—about 1,025 in the first nine months of 1955 to 475 so far this year. But supply there is considered adequate to meet the shortage. Few people are moving.

In Saint John, N.B., considerable low-rental housing is being built to replace the sub-standard tenements which comprise 30 per cent of the city's housing. Another slum problem is confronting Halifax where 38 to $7, some 75 high-rental apartments have been built and there's no accommodation shortage, few people are moving.

Suburban house building is increasing in St. John's, Nfld., there is still a substantial housing shortage—particularly in the low - rent field. Slum clearance is expected to equal that of the post-war peak in 1955.

Claims Egypt Has Already Made Suez Proposals

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi, heading home to report to President Nasser, says Egypt has already put in writing proposals to settle the Suez crisis and is ready to start negotiations with Britain and France.

The British and French governments have insisted that Egypt has come up with nothing concrete as a suitable counter to their demand for international control of the strategic waterway. Prime Minister Eden and French Premier Mollet in a joint statement last week called for such a counter proposal.

Fawzi said in an interview that if everything Egypt has proposed "is not sufficient to start negotiations with, we are entitled to wonder how anything, in the view of those make the allegations, could suffice to start negotiations at all."

MAY MEET IN GENEVA

Diplomats at the United Nations said they understand that Fawzi, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau may again get together in Geneva with UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjoeld for 10 days.

Meanwhile, in London, the 15 - member Committee of Canal Users Association went ahead with organization plans as a prelude to pressure measures to Egypt for international control of the canal. Spokesmen for the four or five of the 15 nations had agreed on the choice of E. Bartell, Danish consul-general in New York, as executive director of the association.

Fawzi said Egypt maintains her opposition to any plan or idea of international operation.

He said Egypt has given three basic choices to the four or five French: 1. To maintain the Convention of Constantinople of 1888, guaranteeing free access to the canal, as it is. 2. To accept new signatories to that convention and to continue it as it is. 3. To continue the operation and supervise it with a few treaty if that is found advisable.

Evening News Takes Crack at U.S. Secretary

LONDON (Reuters)—The Evening News says the Republican party hopes to use the Suez crisis to glorify State Secretary Dulles' "as the man who saved the world from the trigger - happy British and French."

Under the headline Dulles Debunked, the Conservative, independent newspaper says the American vision of Dulles as a strong man of peace "does not match his record."

"A study of Mr. Dulles' words and actions over the last few weeks seems to indicate the existence of two men: One a resolute ally of the West and the other a reluctant man of Munich," the Evening News says.

"But actually, Dulles has been consistent with his reputation for inconsistency."

East Germany's Secret Police Battling Slowdown Strike

BERLIN (AP)—Communist East Germany's secret police have been ordered to quell slowdown strikes that are gripping key factories, Western sources reported Thursday.

The League of Free Jurists—a West Berlin anti-Communist organization with numerous contacts in the East—said the secret police have been sent into factories in Magdeburg, a tense centre of labor unrest. Der Tag, an independent West Berlin newspaper, said 2,000 police have been sent into Magdeburg from East Berlin.

The newspaper said the strikes have spread to factories in Erfurt and Karl Marx City. (formerly Chemnitz). The newspaper and the Free Jurists said the strikes resulted from long-standing grievances over low pay and high work quotas. These were the same issues which sparked the East German workers' rebellion of June 17, 1953.

The Communists have acknowledged that Magdeburg is the scene of labor unrest, but have denied strikes are taking place.

The official labor newspaper Tribune said workers at four Magdeburg factories were angry about low pay and excessive work quotas.

A Communist party spokesman in Magdeburg—reached by telephone Thursday—denied the strike reports. He termed them a "dirty lie."

The East German radio also denied the strike reports.

The Free Jurists said five big Magdeburg factories have been hit by the strikes. Two were named formerly by the giant Krupp firm. One of the ex-Krupp plants—Thaelmann Iron Works (after an East German Communist leader) — has been solidly ringed by police, the Free Jurists reported.

The Thaelmann works has been completely cut off from the outside world, the Free Jurists said. The production is at a virtual standstill. In the other big factories the picture is not uniform. In Karl-Marx-Stadt's Karl Marx factory, for example, there are still internal divisions that are working.

Special Session Of Legislature On November 20

TORONTO (CP)—A special fall session of the Ontario legislature will probably be called for Nov. 20, Premier Frost said Thursday.

The premier told his weekly press conference the session is to deal mainly with farm marketing legislation, which must await until the Supreme Court of Canada has ruled whether present legislation is ultra vires.

Mr. Frost also said his government is preparing new proposals as a basis for further negotiation with the federal government on hospital insurance. He did not describe the new proposals.

He said his thinking on hospital insurance has undergone a basic change during the last year. He no longer thought diagnostic services were of primary importance, since a mandatory diagnostic plan would involve "some sort of registration of the medical profession."

He said, the mandatory features of an insurance plan would have to be worked out to fit in with existing voluntary plans which now cover 2,500,000 of Ontario citizens.

The government, the premier said, is also considering legislation providing for uniform store closing hours and a basic revision of the municipal grant system.

An increased volume of legislation might make a pre-Christmas session a regular event, the premier said.

RESCUE DRIFTING KIDS

LONDON (Reuters)—Five children who spent the night adrift in a motor boat in the River Thames were rescued unharmed. There ages ranged from six to 12.

North Africans Want to Come To Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada plans to obtain French immigrants from North Africa, it was learned in Ottawa.

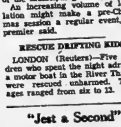
This is one of the reasons behind the dispatch of a three-man Canadian fact-finding mission to Tunisia and Tunisia, the newly independent North African countries which Canada formally recognized last week.

The mission was scheduled to leave today for a two-week tour. It comprised officials of the immigration, trade and external affairs departments.

The immigration department already has received a request from French-speaking residents of Tunisia, Algeria and Morocco for entry into Canada. The number of applications is growing as civil strife disrupts the peaceful countryside and the Algerian rebels.

It is hoped the mission will be able to make arrangements to deal speedily with requests from North Africans who want to settle in Canada.

One official said the French settlers in North Africa would not necessarily choose to live in Quebec if admitted to Canada. Many still considered themselves pioneers and might more likely to settle, say, in the Peace River district.



The drive for immigrants from North Africa may help to ease Canada's shortage of farm labor. Many of the would-be immigrants are farmers, though not the majority.

In 1955, only 2,225 French Canadians entered Canada compared with 20,150 British, 18,082 German, 20,247 Italian, 6,959 Dutch, 3,014 Greek and 2,275 Chinese.

Sunday School Lesson

To Prolong Your Days

By ROY L. SMITH

Whatever his theology may be, and whatever his attitude toward organized religion, every man yearns wistfully for at least some kind of immortality. His earnestly desires to be remembered after he has slipped off the scene. It may be that he is content if his name is carried on, and to accomplish that result he wants an heir, a business that bears his name, or a monument. Another man may want his name attached to a benevolence, a charity, or even a short dead-end street. There are few things in this world more dreadful than to be forgotten. And some of us stoop to the ridiculous to avoid it.

SO MANY TEACHERS

No generation, perhaps, has been more concerned over its youth than this one. At least, no generation has done more talking about the matter. Perhaps it should be said that our concern is too largely vocal. It is too much like Mark Twain's celebrated remark about the weather, "Everybody's talking about it, and nobody is doing anything about it."

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for October 21: "Hear, O Israel." Deuteronomy 6.

One of the disturbing facts concerning our contemporary life is that youth has so many teachers, and so many of them are in violent disagreement with some of the others of them. Parents, for example, in large numbers are seriously opposed to many of the teachings of the entertainment world, the television, and the current fiction. There has never been a time when the parents of the nation have been compelled to compete with so many forces designed to prey upon their young people.

Again and again it happens that newspapers, courts, and columnists heap blame upon the parents for the failures of the children. But as one young mother put it, "So few of the things my daughter believes were taught her by her home."

There is a widespread disposition in this electronic, atomic, psychopathic generation to assume that all the wisdom originated with us, and that the past was very drab and very dull. The truth is, however, that the past knew some things very well which the present has never learned.

When the old Hebrew who wrote the book of Deuteronomy was trying to lay down some principles upon the basis of which his nation might hope to survive, he enunciated one simple proposition that deserves the most careful consideration on the part of this modern generation. "Teach these things to your children," he said, "that your days may be prolonged."

It makes very little difference how much we pass on to our children in the way of electronic engineering and automation, if we do not also pass on to them the eternal moral principles by which the best of the past has been conserved for us. Our fathers were very wise when they ordered their lives and their civilization by the Ten Commandments. Had they not done so, there would have been no world for us to inherit. Unless we pass the moral wisdom of the fathers on to the children, it will mean nothing that we pass on to them our factories, laboratories and economic systems.

There is an old saying to the effect that every man is some boy's hero. It is equally true that every man is some boy's teacher. When we act or behave in the presence of a youth, it is the most practical kind of teaching.

The youngster who watches an oldster, always sees much more than the oldster intends him to see. And youth has an amazing way of seeing behind our fronts, and judging us by the facts rather than on the basis of the paid advertising.

There are none of us who are not responsible, in some way, for prolonging the days that are past which were also great.

All three Ontario senior hockey leagues will be in full swing tonight with a total of five games scheduled.

The two southern leagues will play their openers. The Northern Ontario Hockey Association's Senior A series got the jump on them with their league-opener Thursday night as North Bay Trappers defeated Soo, Mich., Indians, 4-2.

The OHA eastern senior A series makes its debut as a league tonight. It is composed of former senior B teams, a team from the NOHA and some entirely new clubs.

WHITBY FAVORED

Whitby Dunlops, senior B champions last year, are heavily favored to repeat in stronger competition this year and start their stand in Kingston against the CKLC's. In the other game, Cornwall Chevvies are in Belleville against the McFarlands.

In the western senior A circuit, Windsor Bulldogs meet the Indians in Stratford, while Chatham Maroons are host to Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

Soo Indians try to better their luck in the only NOHA game tonight, travelling to Sudbury to meet the rugged Wolves.

Indians were lucky to avoid a whitewashing Thursday night as Trapper goalie Brodeur turned back all their shots until 8:25 of the third period. Russ Kowalchuk spoiled Brodeur's shutout and got the second Soo marker in the dying minute of play.

Bob Barlow, Ches Koneczny, Don Hogan and Art Stratton got the Trapper goals as North Bay jumped to a 3-0 first period margin. They slowed down in the final stanza.

JUNIOR EXHIBITION

In a junior A exhibition tilt in Toronto, St. Michael's Majors defeated Barrie Flyers 10-3. The teams served 51 minutes in penalties.

Scorers for the Majors were Dave Rimstad with three, Ed Sonoski with two, and Frank Mahovlich, Tim Hook, Gerry Odrowski, Dick Mattiusi and Gene Ubriaco.

Barrie's goals were scored by Bill Beckman with a pair, Gord Loveday, Dick Cherry and Al Morena.

AND AWAY WE GO!

The Cornwall Chevvies are here tonight. And from the looks of the line-up the ex-Colts pack as much power as their trade-name. No charge for the pun, dealers.

Sports editor Wyman Collins of the Cornwall Standard Freeholder, who has been riding herd on the Chevvy coach (no pun intended) Gerry Plamondon, says the colorful mentor is resolved in one thing.

"That either his charges go for him — or they just plain go."

This, says Wyman, after two weeks' practice during which a varied assortment of players have headed in and out of the Chevvy camp.

He goes on: "That the former National Hockey League playing coach means what he says is easily evidenced by the growing mortality rate among those trying to catch a place with the club."

"The fellow," he says, "isn't dreaming. All he wants is the next thing to perfection."

That is taking a lot. The McFarlands' mentor, Bep Guidolin doesn't come that close. But he does want and demands everything a player has. If not—out. And some of them will find that out before too many final whistles have shrilled.

Plamondon, who is 31, doesn't drink nor smoke, says Collins. "But," he adds, "that is too much to ask of his Chevvies. But anything else, isn't."

Discipline, says Plamondon, is a byword with him. "Sensible hockey" is another. He asks nothing more from his players than to "use their heads." Here in Belleville, skates and sticks are regarded as hockey essentials.

Maybap Collins was writing for the consumption of fans of other centres of the circuit. He does not paint too glowing a verbal picture of his Chevvies. He says: "Admittedly Cornwall fandom, likewise, would go for that sort of thing, but whatever the feat can be done with the athletes coach Plamondon has to work with is providing much fodder for the faithful."

And get this, "Some say," writes Collins, "—and not just the cynics—finishing higher than fourth would be the trick of the century for Plamondon, should he pull it off." That statement is to be taken with the proverbial grain of salt. On paper, to this department at least, the Chevvies appear to be good enough.

He goes on: "For the 'A' league of this year is the 'B' loop of last season. A check of Chevvy personnel reveals a smack of sameness through and through. Move: last year the Cornwalls finished a wobbly third."

Come, come, Wyman, m'lad, don't sell those Chevvies short. The wooy, is never so thick it can't be seen through by eyes of the faithful in other centres.

Lining up his club, Collins writes: "From last season are the following hockeists: Ray Leacock, George Beagle, Mort Belmore, Donny Batten, Gerry Devaney, Rossario "Elzear" Lamoureux, Rheal St. Jean, Moe Savard, Pete Fayette and Bobby Bingley. That's ten players. Count 'em.

"There's Plamondon, of course. He'll hold down a defence spot along with Leacock, Bingley and newcomers Marcel Bonnette, Eddie St. Louis and Bernie Lindgren. The latter two are late of Baltimore and Shawinigan Falls respectively, while Bonnette is a veteran Valleyfield Braves expatriate. Plamondon also is to fill in as deputy left winger when his occasion demands it, a position he held down in NHL activity the while he was with the Montreal Canadiens.

"Leftwinger Roger Dubuc, a Trois Rivers's cut, has been used on a line with Belmore and Bougie. Rightwinger Rheal Savard, last year with Pembroke, has been going well with Joannette and Fayette. Dick Ledoux, a rangy centreman from Montreal and rightwinger Jerry Johnston round out the forwards. Leblanc last played hockey in Europe two seasons back.

"Sub-goalie Paul Leclerc of Valleyfield, rounds out the picture. And that's it."

Meanwhile Coach Bep Guidolin has marshalled his force for tonight's battle. He will start himself on defence with Floyd Crawford. The first line will be Minnie Minard, Lucien Gilbert and Paul Payette. Henri Therrien has been held up on release business from Amherst, N.S. Keith MacDonald, Vern Goyer and Davy Jones will also see action.

Guidolin is confident his charges will give a good account of themselves. "Tonight should bring out some of the best in the boys. They face a stiff test and we are not selling these Cornwall Chevvies short. But I think we can beat them and I hope I am not wrong. My team has plenty of spirit, fight and guts and wrap these three together and you won't need much else."

A little fan support will help matters. How about turning out and giving this guy Guidolin and his McFarlands some vocal and moral support. This is our club and as such it deserves all we can give them. As Mel Allen, the Yankee toneall says: "How about that!"

Gordie Howe Fires Equalizer As Leafs Change Front Lines; Chihawks, Habs Play 1-1 Draw

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs were caught changing last night and, as usual, it was embarrassing.

The Peeping-Tom Detroit Red Wings took that moment to score a goal that gave them a 3-3 tie with Leafs and preserved their unbeaten streak in the National Hockey League.

Only 40 seconds remained in the game when Leafs, seemingly assured a 3-2 win, changed forward lines while play was in progress. Detroit right winger Gordie Howe picked up a pass from defenceman Red Kelly and scored on a long blast from the blueline.

In the only other game, the last-place Chicago Black Hawks drove from behind in the third period to gain a 1-1 deadlock with Montreal Canadiens.

At Detroit, 11,329 customers were on the verge of seeing Wings post back-to-back wins in the 1956-57 campaign. But it was not to be. Howe's shot left them unbeaten in four games. They lead the league with seven points on three victories and a tie.

It was the second time Leafs had battled to a draw this year. They now are in a second-place tie with New York Rangers. One point back are Boston Bruins and Canadiens.

It was a bitter verdict for Leafs. They came from behind twice to tie the score and went ahead 3-2 midway through the final period on Ron Stewart's breakaway goal while Toronto was shorthanded.

Larry Hillman and Marcel Pronovost were the other Detroit scorers. Gerry James and Dick Duff were the other Leaf marksmen.

Duff and goaltender Ed Chadwick were the only Leafs on the ice when the Wings made their last-minute thrust. Detroit defenceman Red Kelly skated quickly out of his own end, flipped a pass to Howe at the blueline and the Red Wing forward made no mistake. Time of the goal: 19:20.

Detroit goaltender Glen Hall stopped 33 Toronto shots, 17 in the second period. Chadwick blocked 22 drives.

A turnout of 13,557 at Montreal saw the Hawks tie things up at 1:45 of the final period when Glen Skov's sharp deflection beat Jacques Plante.

A goal by Dickie Moore of Canadiens at 12:13 of the second period had injected some life into what up to then had been a dreary spectacle. The tie gave Chicago its first point of the season.

Although the season is still young, the experts must be wondering what's wrong with Canadiens, defending Stanley Cup champions. They were expected to be hot starters this season, but have one win, a loss and a tie in their three games.

No games are scheduled tonight. Rangers are at Montreal and the Bruins visit Toronto Saturday night. On Sunday, Hawks are at New York and Bruins meet the Wings in Detroit.

Normie Kwong Breaks Own Point Record

REGINA (CP) — There's no holding fullback Normie Kwong of the Edmonton Eskimos this year.

With two games still to play the China Clipper already has surpassed the Western Interprovincial Football Union ground-gaining record he set last season.

In 14 games he has netted 1,312 yards—62 yards better than last year's mark.

The figures released Thursday showed Winnipeg Blue Bombers have set a record in first downs. The Bombers in 14 games have moved the yardsticks 202 times, one more than the record set by Winnipeg Rough-riders last year.

The Eskimos and Riders also seem certain to break the 1953 record. Both have picked up 202 first downs, while Riders — with three games left — have 329.

Quarterback Frank Tripucka of Saskatchewan is gunning for the passing record set by former Winnipeg aerial artist Jack Jacobs.

He shattered one Jacobs' record last Saturday when he heaved 62 passes against Edmonton. The passes were tossed in one previous game was 40 by Jacobs three years ago.

Argonauts Shaken Internally Face Tough Test With Ottawa

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Argonauts, shaken by apparent internal dissension, play the first of a vitally important two game series against Ottawa Rough Riders in Ottawa Saturday.

The effect on player morale of backfield coach Bill Earley's sudden firing Thursday is not known, but Argos badly need wins against the third-place Rough Riders if they expect to gain the last playoff spot in the Big Four Football Union.

In Montreal the Alouettes and Hamilton Tiger-Cats, with nothing but Montreal's home-game winning streak at stake, play the first of their two-game series.

The Ontario Rugby Football Union senior series, having stopped the floundering Rochester Rockets, the league's first American entry, have juggled dates and teams and ended up with two games Saturday. Toronto Beaches are host to London Lords in a night game, while Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen go to Sarnia for a game with the Golden Bears in the afternoon.

In Intercollegiate play the once-lightly-rated University of Toronto Blues, now tied at the top of the heap, take on the University of Western Ontario Mustangs, who have won one and lost one, at Varsity Stadium.

In Kingston, Queen's University Golden Gaels, tied with Varsity, will be at home to McGill Redmen. Both are rated in preseason predictions but winless after two games.

Directors of the last-place Argonauts were taking advantage of the time-honored privilege when they fired Earley Thursday in what they said was "the best interests of the team."

Although Argonauts are expected to be at full strength, they still are a battered team. End Alton Baldwin, an Argonaut standout in recent games, suffered a slightly sprained ankle in practice Thursday night. Halfback O.K. Ferguson is still feeling the effects of a charleyhorse.

But the main Argonaut worries concern centre Norm Stoneburgh, tackle Bill Albright and guard Freddie Black. They have been on the limp for some time.

Coach Frank Clair, whose Rough Riders need the win almost as badly as Argos, plans only one change in the team that has beaten Toronto twice this season.

Clair says he will use rookie Gary Schreider, former Queen's halfback star, as a fullback to spell imports Don St. John and Tom Lewis. Schreider also will be used on defence and on kick runbacks.

Alouettes, all but assured of first place, will be trying to win their 21st game at home, to break a 23-game record held jointly with Edmonton Eskimos.

Jim Trimble's Tiger-Cats will seek to avenge a 56-14 defeat, committed during their only previous trip to Molson Stadium this year.

Blues will send their third quarterback in as many games against the Mustangs. Coach Dali Wise lost Ed Skrzypek in the first game, Larry Joynt in the second, so will use Harry Lunn this week.

If he is hurt, Skrzypek should be back for the following Saturday.

Gaels, who have another American, John Hughes-Games, Clinton, N.Y., replacing Gus Bracia, last year's star, handed Western a 35-0 licking last week.

Redmen's coach Larry Sullivan has shifted en. Paul Dingle to flying wing.

Brundage Will Stick to Olympics Oath

NEW YORK (AP)—Avery Brundage, International Olympic Committee president, reaffirmed Thursday the intention of the ruling Olympic body to press for an amateur oath that will keep the Games undefiled by professionalism.

The Olympic committee voted Oct. 3 to suspend the controversial pledge that required athletes to be amateurs. Brundage says it was not only that they were amateurs but also "intend to remain such."

"The theory behind this has not been changed," said Brundage who explained the executive committee action came because: The phraseology is a little unfortunate and I don't think it covers the point as well as it might. . . . The Olympic authorities did not prepare the public for the oath as well as might have been done, and . . . the United States — the only country that made an official stear oath that will keep the Game undefiled by professionalism.

The unfortunate position if the full oath were required."

Brundage told the Overseas Press Club the problem is most acute in figure skating, football, boxing and basketball.

Eastern Senior A League Gets First Action Test Tonight

By RALPH HANCOCK
Canadian Press Correspondent

KINGSTON, ONT. (CP) — A new experiment for hockey in Eastern Ontario gets its first test tonight when the six-team Ontario Hockey Association Senior A Eastern Group begins its 56-game schedule.

Within the next 20 weeks, answers to hockey questions that have been perplexing fans in the area for years may be answered.

Chief of these is: Can Eastern Ontario communities financially support Senior A hockey and bow will the standard of play compare of that in the Western Group.

From there the questions grade down.

Will Pembroke fans support a team after years in the strong Northern Ontario Hockey Association? Can a community like Belleville, which, finished a dismal fifth in Senior B competition last season, compete with outfits like the powerful Whitby Dunlops run away with the race as they did in the B league last season? And how will the Ottawa experiment turn out, that of the Junior A Ottawa Canadiens, operating in the league, and strengthened by a maximum of six over-age players?

The Canadiens will play only 10 games in the schedule, their five home games at Verdun, Que.

Pre-season opinion rates the OHA Senior B champions at last season, Whitby Dunlops, as the overwhelming favorites to capture group honors in the first season of A competition.

They play their first game here tonight, while Cornwall plays at Belleville Saturday night Whitby is at home to Cornwall while Kingston goes to Pembroke. Sunday Cornwall plays Belleville at home.

Whitby manager Wren Blair still has call on all the players he had last season and in addition has picked up such recognized standouts as Charlie Burns, Junior A performer for the season's Toronto Marlboros; Gerry Styles, a 24-year-old native who has had two years' minor pro experience and a year with North Bay Trappers in the NOHA Senior B; Tex O'Connor a regular with the OHA Senior A Windsor Bulldogs last season; and George Samolenko, a regional scorer for Kingston last year.

Returning are such stars as Bobby Attersley, the scoring phenomenon whose 198 points last season won him scoring honors by a 35-point margin.

Pembroke Lumber Kings are raised an unknown quantity with word from northern town failing to disclose who will line up with the former NOHA last-place club.

Biggest move was the signing of Pike Hildebrand as playing coach. The fiery 29-year-old former pro gained his release from Cleveland Barons to join the Kings.

Back from last year are the three Girabrecht brothers, Jack, Bert and Bruce. Expected to play goal is Andy Anderson, formerly with North Bay who will replace departed Clift Hicks.

Latest players to join the Kings were right winger Wally Anderson, who was cut by Sault Greybounds, and Bernie Limoges, a Hull, Que., veteran who is wavering between Pembroke and Cornwall.

Cornwall has joined their hopes on Gerry Plamondon, recently appointed playing coach. He has had National Hockey League experience.

Returning veterans include goaltender Gerry Devaney, defencemen Bob Bingley and Ray Lecock and forwards Moe Savard, the club's leading scorer last season, "Klimie" Jeannette and Pete Payette.

Kingston CKLC's, the only team in the country with a built-in publicity outlet, have as a nucleus a crew of players who played for them two Senior B championships in two years but have strengthened with such players as Frank Howarth and Gerry O'Reilly.

Howarth was a 24-goal scorer for Toronto St. Michel's in the OHA Junior A last season while the six-foot-two O'Reilly is a defence prospect of Montreal Canadiens.

Also lining up with the club are Al Larose, whose Junior A career has cut short last January when he broke a leg while playing for Kitchener - Waterloo Canucks; Frank Chirelli, a 40-goal scorer for Wembley Lions in the English League; and Don Thompson and Archie Richardson, two players who last year were with Brockville Magdomas.

Belleville McFarlands, bouncing high on the strength of a financial re organization, landed former NHL performer Bep Guidolin as coach and a wholesale change of players.

High on the list is Lucien Gilbert, a hard - shooting forward. Newcomers include Hilary and Willie Menard, Paul Payette, brother of Pete, Andre Morriuete, Real Laroche and Henry Ghernier, all front - line attackers.

The Canadiens, who won't play their first game until Oct. 24 when they meet Whitby, will be as tough as expected — a hard-skating bunch of juniors, all looking for professional careers.

Leading the team which is striving to retrieve Ottawa to big time hockey are centre Ralph Backstrom, rated a good chance to jump straight to the NHL; Gerry Wilson, a 205-pounder; and John Kowalchuk.

Forwards include Andre Boisvenue, Claude Carroll, Dick Desrouchel and Claude Richard, brother of Maurice and Henri.

BURNS LEAVES GUELPH

KAPUSKASING, (CP) — Kapuskasing Huskys at the Percupine Mines Senior Hockey League Thursday announced the signing of defenceman Al Burns, with Guelph Biltmores of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series last year.

Tom Sturdivant, Harshman Lead Hitting Hurlers

By BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Sturdivant of the New York Yankees and Jack Harshman of Chicago White Sox, both converted infielders, were the leading hitters among major league pitchers in 1956.

Sturdivant, who played at second base and third base in the Yankee farm system until 1955, was the only big league hurler to hit .300. He had 20 hits in 64 at bats while collecting five RBIs and scoring five times. Tom had one-for-three in pitching the Yanks to a 6-3 victory over the Dodgers in the recent world series.

Harshman had only 12 safeties and a .169 batting mark. But his home run total fell just three shy of the major league record for pitchers. Wes Ferrell of Cleveland hit nine in 1931. Harshman is a former first baseman with New York Giants.

JIM WILSON BATS .299

Jim Wilson, who played for the Orioles and White Sox, was runner-up to Sturdivant among the hurlers who batted a minimum of 50 times. Wilson collected 22 hits in 77 at bats for a .299 mark.

Tom Brewer of the Boston Red Sox was third at .288. Then came Ray Moore of Baltimore with a .271 average and Tommy Byrne of the Yankees with .269. Three of Byrne's 14 hits were homers.

Murray Dickson, who saw service with Philadelphia and St. Louis, was the top batter among National League moundsmen. He had 22-for-86 and batting mark of .256.

In all, 21 pitchers hit .200 or higher and 28 connected for home runs.

Bob Lemon of Cleveland, banged five home runs. Byrne, Dick Donovan of the White Sox, Warren Spahn of Milwaukee and Johnny Antonelli of the Giants had three.

Larsen was the only pitcher to hit a grand slam homer.

Jap Pitchers Edge Dodgers Before 15,000

TOKYO (AP)—Aided by the 16-strikeout pitching of two ace hurlers, Tokyo Yomiuri Giants defeated Brooklyn Dodgers 5-4 today before 15,000 fans in the opener of Brooklyn's 20-game Japan exhibition baseball tour.

A pair of eighth-inning solo home runs by Kazuhiko Sakazaki and Tetsuji Kawakami off Don Bessett put the Giants into the lead for keeps.

Takumi Otomo, a submarine pitcher who beat New York Giants here two years ago, struck out Roy Campanella, Don Demeter and Gino Cimoli in order in the top of the ninth.

Otomo whiffed 19 Dodgers after coming on in the fourth. His predecessor, Sho Horiuchi, who was tagged for home runs by Jackie Robinson and Gil Hodges, fanned six.

Metras Shies From Predicting Grid Result

TORONTO (CP)—Johnny Metras, coach of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs, will not be caught out on a limb—not even prediction-wise.

The mentor leads his Mustangs against University of Toronto Blues Saturday but he won't predict the outcome.

Mustangs so far have one win, one loss. They defeated McGill 6-3 in the opener two weeks ago, but underwent a 35-0 whitewash in Kingston.

"We'll be a lot tougher than we were against Queen's, that much I know," Metras said. "We lost because we couldn't hold on to the ball."

Mustangs couldn't catch a cold last Saturday, the veteran coach said. They flubbed their early scoring chances on fumbles, then got desperate and pass interceptions turned the game into a rout.

Western will be at full personnel Saturday. They will use scatback Neil Desborough, who set a league record last year by running back two kickoffs for touchdowns. He missed the first two games because of an injury.

Art Turner, at last year's team and Bruce Ford from Toronto will fill the quarterback slot.

'Chevvy' Players Go for Coach Or They Just Plain Go

By WYMAN COLLINS
Standard Freeholder Sports Editor

After two weeks' practice during which a varied assortment of players have headed in out out of camp, Cornwall Chevrolet coach Gerry Plamondon is resolved in one thing.

That either his senior A charges go for him, or else they just plain go.

That the former National Hockey League playing-coach means what he says is easily evidenced by growing mortality rate among those trying to catch a spot with the club.

Daily checking and nightly rechecking is a must if one is to keep on top of the player Plamondon intends to keep.

The fellow isn't demanding; all he wants is the next thing to perfection.

He seeks nothing more than the best from the best in camp all the time, anytime; then, he says "I would ask for nothing more than for the boys to learn to use their heads."

Admittedly Cornwall fandom likewise would go for that sort of thing. But whether the feat can be done with the athletes coach Plamondon has to work with is providing much fodder for the faithful.

Some say — and not just the cynics — that finishing higher than fourth would be the trick of the century for Plamondon should he pull it off.

For the A league was last year a land a check of player personnel Chevies are carrying smacks of amateurs through and through. More, last year the Cornwalls finished third. A wobbly third.

From last season are the following hockeyists: Ray Leacock, George Bougie, Mort Belmore, Donny Batten, Gerry Devaney, Rosario "Klimie" Jeannette, Rheal St. Jean, Moe Savard, Pete Payette, and Bobby Bingley. That is 10 players. Count 'em.

OHA legislation calls for teams to carry 18 men of which two must be goalkeepers. So what do the other eight remaining players look like? Well, here they are:

There's Plamondon of course. He'll hold down a defence spot. Likewise Leacock, Bingley, and along with Leacock, Eddie newcomer Marcel Bessette. Eddie St. Louis and Bernie Limoges. The latter two are late of Baltimore and Shawinigan Falls respectively while Bessette is a veteran Valleyfield Brave expatriate. Plamondon who is to fill in as deputy left winger when the occasion offers holds a position to hold down in NHL activity the while he was with the Montreal Canadiens.

Leftwinger Roger Dubuc, a Trois Rivers cut, has been used on a line with Belmore and Bougie. Rightwinger Rheal Savard, last year with Pembroke, has been going well with Jeannette and Payette.

Dick Ledoux, a rangy centre-Riverees cut, has been used on a man from Montreal and right winger Jerry Leblanc round out the forwards. Leblanc last played hockey in Europe two seasons back.

Spare goalie Paul Leclerc of Valleyfield, rounds out the picture. And that's it.

There'll be changes; there will have to be before much of the season which opens Friday, is long gone. Of that there's little doubt.

For of the 30 players out two weeks ago, 18 only are still with the living.

And as their coach said earlier, they'll either go on the ice or they'll just plain go.

'The Great War' on Project 20 Absorbing TV Entertainment

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — In 1923 Laurence Stallings published a photographic history which he entitled The First World War. Its title, as well as its grisly pictures of war, shocked many readers of the 1920s.

On Tuesday evenings NBC-TV presented the first of this season's filmed documentaries of various aspects of modern life. The Great War was the title of this Project 20 program.

It was absorbing television entertainment. Old film clips revived vividly historic figures, the sinking of the Lusitania, the hatcash army which dashed out of Paris to save the city. There were many marching men of many armies.

The Great War was, essentially, a romantic view of war. So it was, inevitably, popular with those who saw it. Its musical background and narrating by Alexander Scourby contributed to induce a mood of nostalgia and the popular 'American' theory that the U.S. saved civilization—for another 20 years.

I do not know this for a fact, but I strongly suspect that besides using many excellent and authentic old film clips The Great War incorporated clips from such movies as The Big Parade, All Quiet on the Western Front and Wings. At least one sequence, purporting to show men attacking from front line trenches, was shot at a high, advanced angle which only could have been from a movie lot tower.

LITTLE OF AGONY

Probably this, if it is true, is legitimate. But the result was curiously romantic. There was no view of the starving millions in Belgium, no hint of such military debacles as that perpetrated by stupid tactical leadership on the Somme.

As accurate picture of the slaughter, starvation and pestilence of war, such as Laurence Stallings presented back in 1933, is perhaps too strong for the television audience. In our time we've been surfeited with the agony of war. Yet any portrait of any war that totally ignores its agony is unbalanced history.

Four Cities Bidding for Senators Club

WASHINGTON. (AP)— Calvin Griffith's effort to move Washington Senators from the nation's capital comes up for a directors' vote today, with four cities bidding for the American League team.

The baseball club's five-man board of directors meets late today to consider offers the club president says he has received from Los Angeles, San Francisco, Minneapolis and Louisville.

The Senators, finishing deep In the second vision, drew smaller crowds than any other big league team in each of the last two years, and Griffith yearns for greener pastures. He leans toward Los Angeles, and he and other baseball men like Clark Griffith hold a controlling interest in the club's stock.

Reports are that a majority of the board will swing along with Griffith and ballo to go west. But director H. Gabriel Murphy, the largest single stockholder with 40 per cent, vigorously opposes any shift. Murphy has threatened court action to prevent a transfer.

COULD BE BLOCKED

A vote by the directors to move doesn't necessarily mean the Senators will leave Washington. Six of the eight American League club owners must approve. And that may well be a stumbling block.

Griffith must also obtain a satisfactory contract with Los Angeles, if that city is chosen, and come to an agreement with the Pacific Coast League and with Bill Veeck, Chicago owner of his Los Angeles Coast League franchise.

Wrigley has said his Los Angeles franchise is not for sale. But one source quoted him as saying he wouldn't stand in the way of major league baseball coming to Los Angeles.

Griffith has only 12 days to get everyone's agreement before the Oct. 31 deadline for transfers effective for the 1957 season.

Argo 'Innards' In a Swirl; Rumors Flying

TORONTO (CP)—A batch of unconfirmed reports swirled around Toronto Argonaut today following the surprise firing of backfield coach Bill Earley.

The dismissal hit the one person fans and observers close to the Big Four football club who was solidly entrenched in the Argonaut setup. It had been widely speculated that Head Coach Bill Skilecki would be the one to go in any housecleaning.

Toronto newspaper reports Thursday mentioned two well-known names — Lew Hayman and Carl Voyles—as likely to figure in a possible further and more drastic shakeup.

READY TO BUT?

These reports were capped by another that a group headed by Eric Cradock, wealthy Toronto stock broker, was ready to buy the club at a price said to be $500,000. Neither Argonaut officials nor Cradock could be reached for comment, but it is known that Cradock, former part owner of Montreal Alouettes, is interested in returning to the game in an active role.

Some credence was lent to the latest manager-coach talk as Hayman and Voyles, both of whom are employed by Cradock in his various financial interests.

The Telegram said it learned that Hayman, former general manager and coach of the Alouettes when they won 1937 and 1938 titles, has been offered the position of Argonaut general manager and that he will accept.

The said Argonauts' now are on the hunt for a new general manager and head coach, though it has been denied, don't be surprised if former Hamilton coach Carl Voyles gets one of the jobs," the paper added.

Cameron Mitchell and Audrey Long share the leading roles with Bess the Horse with the Human Mind, but great family fun on the same program is "The Enchanted Valley" in glorious color.

AT THE BELLE — Bing Crosby, Grace Kelly, Frank Sinatra and Celeste Holm are co-starred in M.G.M.'s Happy hit of High Romance, High Society and Melody, in Color and VistaVision, starting today at the Belle Theatre.

Turner, Giambra Fight Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — Gil Turner, who has made almost as many television appearances as Rin Tin Tin, fights in front of the cameras again tonight as a 3-to-1 underdog against streaking Joey Giambra.

This could be the last video shot in a long time for the 26-year-old Turner unless he finds his way back on the winning path. The lanky 153-pounder has shown a tendency to tire about the eighth round, and may be nearing the end of the trail. He has lost his last three fights.

Giambra, 25 - year - old boxer - puncher, has won four straight in a drive to earn a shot at the title.

Wellington on The Lake

OCTOBER

October leads her radiant train
O'er all the countryside,
In trappings gay, her cavalcades
In proud procession ride;
Her flaming banners float and fling
Their splendor 'gainst the sky,
As in the sun-filled languid days
Her brilliant train glides by.

And when we see her banners float
From every scarlet tree,
When weirdly calls the plover's note
Across the fallow lea,

Our spirit answers to the call,
Our glory pulse beats high,
As we too join the cavalcade
When autumn's train sweeps by!

For who can view the magic scene
Of these October days,
The trees in scarlet, green and gold
Veiled in the lilac haze,
The placid waters of the stream,
The tender blue of sky,
Unheeding of the mystic thrill
As autumn's train sweeps by!

—Helen B. Anderson.

WELLINGTON— We have been enjoying the beautiful October days and the colored Autumn foliage. A tree in my back yard is a blaze of color. With pleasant drives here and there the days have been a delight. But the leaves are drifting down and the beauty of Autumn will soon be over. But we are still anticipating the calm joy of Indian Summer.

The canning of tomatoes and corn is finished, but pumpkins are now receiving attention.

Bulganin's Note To Eisenhower Irks Republicans

Fear Political Hot Potato If H-Bomb Tests Subject

WASHINGTON (AP) — A surprise message from Soviet Premier Bulganin to President Eisenhower took on aspects today of a potential hot potato.

With Eisenhower out of the city, the state department kept secret the subject matter of Bulganin's 17-page letter.

But its delivery to State Secretary Dulles brought speculation among administration officials that whatever Bulganin was writing about, it could hardly be expected to pass unnoticed in the political campaign which have been in part on foreign policy issues.

Many in the foreign policy side of the Eisenhower administration said they thought Bulganin was seizing a new opportunity—in the light of argument over ending bomb tests and explosions—to press Russia's long-standing proposal for calling off all nuclear tests. That subject was included in Bulganin's last previous note, delivered on Sept. 19.

BRUSHED ASIDE

Russia's proposals for ending atomic tests have been repeatedly brushed aside by the Eisenhower administration, which contends that tests must be continued to keep the U.S. ahead in the race for weapons. At some broad disarmament program is agreed on.

Democratic presidential candidate Adlai E. Stevenson has challenged the administration position, suggesting that H-bomb tests could be safely halted in agreement and with adequate inspection and that the United States should take the lead in efforts to halt them.

Dulles said Friday the Bulganin note would be translated and presented to Eisenhower Sunday following the preliminary return to Washington from his present campaign trip.

Police Believe Wanted Man in Kingston Area

KINGSTON (CP)—Police said Friday that Daniel O'Connor, 38, of Detroit, was the most-wanted man list in both Canada and the United States, is reported to be in the Kingston area.

O'Connor is wanted in Canada for the attempted murder in 1953 of an RCMP member in British Columbia. He is also wanted in this country and in the U.S. on a number of charges of forgery of cheques and money orders, breaking and entering, and deserting from the U.S. Army.

Police here said members of the RCMP, the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Ontario Provincial Police and city police have joined in the hunt.

SPREADS N'T

The net was spread after a conference between officers of these forces Thursday when Special Agent Donald Brown of the FBI at Watertown, N.Y., told them he had been "tipped" that O'Connor was travelling in the area with a woman with whom he is living and their two children, boys aged five and six.

City police describe O'Connor as being five feet, nine inches tall, about 225 pounds, blue eyes, brown hair and fair complexion.

O'Connor, who achieved the status of having more aliases than any other criminal in this country, also is wanted in North Bay on a cheque charge.

Mayor Whitton Keeps People of Ottawa Guessing

May Run as PC In Federal Election

OTTAWA (CP)—Mayor Charlotte Whitton is keeping the people of Ottawa guessing about her future political intentions.

She won't say yet whether she plans to seek another term as mayor in the December civic elections or run as a Progressive Conservative in the next federal general election expected in June, 1957.

The 59-year-old mayor was reported likely to have said that she "fed up with non co-operation and obstruction" in the Ottawa City Council and will not seek re-election. She has been mayor for five years.

The report said, however, there is every reason to believe that Miss Whitton is planning to retire from the civic scene and run for Parliament. The mayor was said on several occasions has said she "might" run as a Progressive Conservative in Ottawa West or Renfrew South.

According to the report, Miss Whitton made her retirement statement to a meeting of the so-called "Charlotte Whitton Committee" at a tea. The report said several prominent Ottawa women heard her make the statement.

FLAT DENIAL

A second report a few hours later quoted similar statements about her quitting civic politics and running for Parliament without foundation." It quoted her as saying there is definitely nothing to the statement that she is fed up with obstruction and lack of co-operation at city hall.

"Any stories or rumors circulating now are complete surmise and guesses," the report said. It added that if Miss Whitton has a statement to say "it will be in the nature of a signed statement."

It has only been two years ago, just before election time, Miss Whitton announced she was going into municipal politics. However, she changed her mind a few days later and went on to win the election.

Case of 'Vanishing Vicar' Poses Tricky Legal Conundrum in U.K.

LONDON (CP)—The case of Woodford's vanishing vicar has posed a tricky legal conundrum for British lawyers and church authorities.

Can a man, who is believed to be dead, be presumed to be alive, he presumed to be dead?

"It is a bit of a mess," admits Rev. H. Dodgson, Bishop of Chelmsford, which, ironically, bore the motto: "To live happily, let us live hidden."

Rev. Mrs. Ryall has returned to Britain and tearfully announced that "I have left Mr. Ross," Mrs. Ross has appealed to her husband to come back to her.

The legal conundrum remains unsolved for Woodford, however.

Dodgson added: "It can only be resolved if someone, say a member of the family, can identify this man in Switzerland as Mr. Ryall."

Meanwhile, the vicar's 28-year-old son-in-law, says the disappearance does not affect the parish and we won't touch it until the insurance company makes a decision.

Church officials declined to say what action is considering disciplinary action. Cheshire Life Insurance says no criminal case is pending.

And at Woodford, near Manchester, where mourning parishioners had held a memorial service after their vicar's "death" and raised £500 to build a home for his widow, a parish spokesman said:

"We've decided to hold the fund open because until the business has been straightened out."

Naked Russian Interference In Poland Sign Reds Scared

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There can be little doubt about it now—Moscow is scared.

The naked Soviet interference in the internal affairs of the Polish Communist central committee had to be of the greatest importance to the Kremlin for it to risk exposing itself before the world in an act of colonialism.

Moscow would be extremely embarrassed now if it had to use force to reimpose discipline in Poland and Hungary, its satellite. Communist countries which are rushing feverishly toward some form of political independence. But the Russians may yet have to apply force. If they do, Nikita Khrushchev's days as the boss of Russian communism are numbered.

The Russians fostered public discussion and even debate in their satellite countries. This was a safety valve, a means of letting public steam and political complexions from the rising discontent in these countries. It got out of control.

Anti-Russianism, always strong in Poland and Hungary, combined with resentment of stalinism and brought about a revolt in the two satellite Communist parties between the national Communists and those who fled Uncle Joe Stalin's protection and discipline to retain power.

Moscow still has the means to apply force to block the tide. The Communist Kremlin can twist economic screws to bring governments of satellites into line. It can fall back to cow the public by force. It can bring the naked force of force, even the use of Soviet troops, may well be.

The U.S. military — or even economic — force against countries would tend to destroy the "peace and coexistence" campaign the Russians have been carrying on. It would expose them as colonialists and damage the position they are carefully built up in former colonial countries.

The ruling group in Moscow faces a dilemma, and if it cannot be resolved without serious damage to the Kremlin's cause, then somebody is going to have to pay. That somebody likely is Khrushchev, first secretary of the Soviet Communist party.

In order to prove the fitness of his own group to rule, Khrushchev and the Politburo had to denounce the Stalin legend.

The growing ferment in the Soviet nations and the growing confusion among the world Communist movement has created a quarrel in the Kremlin, where there likely has been resentment over Khrushchev and his cohorts throwing their weight around. Force is the only weapon that can be the excuse for a move against Khrushchev and Moscow.

Stevenson Says Ike Gives Only 'Leadership to Disaster'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrat Adlai Stevenson, turning to one of his favorite campaign themes Friday night, accused President Eisenhower of providing only "leadership to disaster" in foreign policies.

The presidential candidate for the Nov. 6 U.S. election held a cheering crowd of 2,800 at Shelbyville, Ind., and another also charged the Democratic presidential nominee with burlesquing "assassination" and a "preposterous accusation" by the Eisenhower administration has been marked by a "contagion of corruption."

"I mean this preposterous accusation—and I condemn it as false—because it is a baseless insult to the many men and women who have worked with me in public life and whom I know and trust."

Telling into Stevenson, Eisenhower said:

"I don't believe that any political campaign justifies the declaration of a moratorium on ordinary common sense.

"The man who today dismisses the draft as an 'incredible waste' is a man who, while he was in command, opposed by speaking incredible folly or from incredible ignorance of what he was talking about.

"The president, who last week said that he was not his 'last word' in reply to Stevenson on the draft, has now declared that he proposes to be welcoming debate of the two key campaign issues in Cincinnati audience:

"Does your support not because I offer promises of peace and progress, because I do not. I offer you an unending effort to use our power wisely in pursuing the goal of peace.

"I ask your support not in the name of complacency but in the name of security.

The Democratic nominee got a big and enthusiastic reception at his campaign in normally-Republican Cincinnati.

Stevenson charged Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles have been trying to "encourage the people not to know the truth" about this country's economic conditions.

Referring to the Suez Canal dispute, he told Eisenhower tried to "make political capital out of it by trying to get us to recall the world." He added that "wars have been started by matters of less moment than the Suez dispute—for the canal is a lifeline of the world."

Winnipeg Mother Shoots, Son, 14, Then Kills Self

WINNIPEG (CP) — An estranged 39-year-old woman was fatally shot in what police Friday night termed a murder-suicide.

Police said Mrs. Violet Alice Scott apparently shot her husband, Terrence Percy Scott, 40, twice in the head and then herself in the 22-calibre rifle in their home in the Elmwood district.

Police searched the home and found a note written and signed by Mrs. Scott apparently forgive me ...

It was believed the two had died early Thursday.

Police investigation revealed that a telephone call by the husband to Mrs. Ryall, the wife of a bandman, Percy A. Scott, 39, a clerk and electrician, he reported to have left for eastern Canada about two years ago in search of work. It was believed he had written his wife that he was not returning home.

OR BURNING PASSION?

BURBANK, Calif. (AP)—Police called this a case of flaming love. They said Vincent Louis Fassola, 24, murdered the home of his girl friend, Arlene Sutter, 21, stole her purse and set fire to her body, then confessed on suspicion of burglary and arson. Damage to the house was estimated at $4,500.

Blue Cross Rates Will Be Raised Jan. 1st

TORONTO (CP) — Blue Cross rates are to be raised, it was announced Friday.

D. W. Ogilvie, director of the Blue Cross plan sponsored by the Ontario Hospital Association, said rising costs have forced the association to raise its rates, effective Jan. 1, 1957.

Single persons, for example, on a semi-private service contract will pay $1.75 a month instead of $1.50. The family, semi-private rate will be increased to $4 a month.

No increase will be made for surgical-medical coverage for single persons, although the cost to families for these added benefits will be 25 cents a month.

Mr. Ogilvie said the cost in the form of each patient contributed to hospital increased 28 per cent over the last year because of increases in increased payroll costs in hospitals.

U.S. NAVY AIDS WIDOW

VALETTA, Malta (AP)—U.S. Navy authorities have presented Mrs. Francis Fava $5,000 as a humanitarian gesture on the accidental death of her husband, Fava, a diver working for the admiralty here. The British dockyard at Malta was killed in August when Fava's helmet was crushed by propellers fouled his breathing line.

Molnar Willing To Face Charge In Robbery Case

Admits He Is Person Sought by Police

TORONTO (CP) — Louis Allan Molnar, 33-year-old former resident of Brantford, and on the RCMP's most-wanted list, was reported Friday to be willing to return to Canada from Mexico City to answer an armed robbery charge.

Molnar is wanted in connection with a $16,794 armed robbery of a Cornwall, Ont., supermarket last year.

The Toronto Telegram said Friday that Molnar in a telephone conversation admitted that he is the person sought by police.

RCMP officials in Ottawa said he is charged as one of two men who forced the store manager at gunpoint to open the Cornwall store safe. The other man, Irwin William Sate, is serving a 16-year sentence in prison.

REPORTED VICTIMS

Molnar's presence in Mexico City was discovered after a Toronto lawyer and his wife, Rita Ann, daughter of Toronto millionaire Samuel Bronfman, were reported to be the victims of an extortion attempt.

They were reported to have been detained for four hours by Mexican police after they had been tricked into jail for the night.

The Telegram quoted Molnar as saying he left Canada because he knew he could not get a fair trial and because him about the Cornwall robbery "but I wasn't ready to talk to them about it."

When he was this matter cleared up I intend to go back to Canada and explain it to the police."

The Mexican "matter" to which he referred, The Telegram said, is the trial of five Mexicans who were arrested in connection with the extortion attempt.

In Toronto, earlier Friday, Mrs. Rita Ann Sate said her husband telephoned him from a Mexico City apartment and told her that he and her husband were being held at gunpoint by extortionists.

"He said he had $5,000 but wouldn't give them a cent," said Mr. Sate's brother.

FAMILIAR FRIEND

He said his daughter called a "business friend" when he refused to pay the amount. It was understood that Mr. Labine has never met Molnar.

The Telegram said Molnar told a reporter:

"I love my wife and we're going to make this (marriage) work."

It quoted his wife as saying: "I love him very much and we're staying together no matter what anyone says."

The newspaper said she knew about Molnar's record and flight from Canada before she married him.

Troops Reported Posted Around Polish Capital

Khrushchev, Soviet Leaders Hold Secret Talks in Warsaw

WARSAW (AP)—Nikita Khrushchev and other Soviet leaders slipped quietly out of Poland today after secret talks apparently aimed at stalling Poland's headlong trek toward independent communism.

The Polish people were told of the Russians' visit only after their sleek TU-104 jet airliner whooshed away from a military airport. The Russians arrived unexpectedly Friday in the midst of signs of a crisis in Polish-Russian relations.

A communique said a delegation from the Polish Communist party's Politburo will go to Moscow "in the nearest future" for consultations with the presidium of the Soviet Communist party's central committee.

The communique said the Russian talks were held in an atmosphere of friendship and frankness.

TROOPS REPORTED

During the visit, reports circulated in Warsaw of the arrival of Soviet troops in the city's outskirts. Their strength, nationality or purpose could not be learned or known. Soviet as well as Polish forces are stationed in Poland.

Reports from Warsaw to the New York Times quotes Reuben Hecht, correspondent, were placed around the city at Khrushchev's order to head off demonstrations on demand that pro-Russian Polish Communist leadership elements be kept in the leadership of the Polish United Workers party.

(The Times correspondent, Sydney Gruson, reported Polish Communist party chief Edward Ochab urged Khrushchev to halt the movement of one Soviet Army division to Warsaw by threatening to walk out of Soviet-Polish talks and "break off all contact.")

Vladislaw Gomulka, the rehabilitated former Polish leader purged and jailed at Stalin's order for attempting to land Poland away from Moscow's guidance, continued his comeback despite the visit.

ELECTION EXPECTED

Gomulka's election to the Politburo is expected at today's second session of the committee meeting.

According to the Hecht account of the situation, the visit by the Russians was completely unexpected. Hecht said reports indicate that the Russians arrived uninvited.

Meanwhile, Warsaw newspapers appeared a wave of factory meetings and student demonstrations supporting the current Polish moves toward a more independent and more democratic form of rule and even be accelerated.

All Warsaw newspapers carried big photographs of Gomulka and three other Pro-Communists who were restored to the central committee Friday.

Warsaw radio said Gomulka's restoration is favor in the Polish Communist ranks is "reflected" throughout the country.

Gomulka, said to be on his way to the top in the party hierarchy, has been pictured as bitter over the Russians' sudden arrival.

Poisoned Beer Possible Cause Of Man's Death

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Smirle Lawson, supervising coroner for Ontario, said Friday night he has ordered an autopsy into the death of a 39-year-old Toronto man who may have died after drinking poisoned beer.

Edward Savery died in hospital Thursday night. Just before he died he is reported to have told attendants someone had poisoned him while putting salt in his beer.

Dr. Lawson said a pathologist's report Friday indicated Savery died of acute nephrosis, indicating a toxic poisoning of the kidneys. He said it is unusual for a person to suffer this disease from drinking alcoholic beverages.

Pravda Says Part of Polish Press Kicking Over Communist Line Traces

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda charges portions of the Polish press have jumped the Communist line and are preaching "bourgeois nationalism."

It launched a campaign "which is shaking the very foundations of the Polish democratic people's state."

The article, which appeared on the seventh page of the Communist party paper for several months, did not mention Soviet chief Nikita Khrushchev's visit to Warsaw.

In unusually blunt language, it warned that "articles preaching bourgeois nationalism and Socialist path have become more frequent in the last few days."

The Pravda article was the first published administration that Polish neighbor was getting out of the normal Communist line.

It warns that Poland's press "has now called upon to use effective weapons in the sharp and effective weapons in the struggle for strengthening the peoples democratic regime, to steal publishers articles day in day out which are shaking the foundations of this very regime."

It points out Polish writer Z. Dobrowolski in one paper, Nova Cultura—official organ of the Union of Polish writers—as one of the leading attacks on the Marxist line.

"Until recently," Pravda adds, "the authors of such articles disguised their nationalist slogans that they exposed the aftermath of the personality cult and Stalin's wrong in party life.

"Now even these phrases are discarded — which phrases by the way, sounded blasphemous from the mouths of slanderers who obtained an opportunity to use the pages of the Polish Communist party and the peoples press to harm this party, these people have publicly disowned Lenin and Marx."

Albert College Convocation Told Task of Education to 'Dignify Life With Meaning'

"Education is a preparation for life encompassing thought about life, endowing it with purpose, dignifying it with meaning and kindling it with hope", Rev. Bennett Marshall Howse, S.T.M., Ph.D. of Bloor Street United Church told students of Albert College who were awarded scholastic certificates at the special fall convocation last night.

The speaker credited Adial Stevenson with one of the most accurate definitions of the purpose of education, "The duty of education is to make the free wiser".

Dr. Howse said that former Canadian Governor General John Buchan was perhaps even closer to the point in saying, "the first business of education is to be a guardian of the central wisdom of mankind. Its duty is to transmit a wiser philosophy of life to the next generation".

"The prime duty of education is to furnish a philosophy of life but even intellectual attainment is not enough unless it is coupled with a firm concept of religion," said Dr. Howse. The speaker quoted statistics published recently who have said that "the world will be saved when all are completely educated" but termed this a fallacy because intellect alone can be applied to either good or evil.

As an example of the negative use of intelligence he said, "The Germans had more education per square head than any nation and yet they made the mistake of starting two world wars."

Liter highest signatures were realized in the fullest development of both the mind and the spirit, Dr. Howse concluded.

PRINCIPAL PRESIDES

Rev. A. R. MacKenzie, B.A., D.D., principal and headmaster of Albert College, presided over the program, which opened with an organ prelude by Douglas Hoard, B.A., college organist, preceding the academic procession. The invocation was given by Rev. S. E. Larman, B.A., St. Andrew's United Church here, being followed by the singing of a hymn, "Lord of All Being, Throned Afar." Charles Kingsley sang a vocal solo, "Only a Rose," with Mr. Andrew Sewell as accompanist. Principal MacKenzie introduced the guest speaker.

After Dr. Howse's address Evangeline Reilly sang "My Best to You", this solo being followed by the Albert College hymn, after which intermediate certificates, Ontario secondary school graduation diplomas, honor graduation diplomas, the Lunnies - Johnson scholarship and the Governor-General's medal were presented. After the singing of the national anthem the academic procession left.

A reception was held after the program in Ashenman Hall.

LIST OF AWARDS

The Lunnies - Johnson scholarship, an award of $100, went to Gary Alan Franklin of Sudbury.

Two Bush Fires In Tweed Area

A Department of Lands and Forests spokesman in Tweed said yesterday that the department fire patrol aircraft had reported a fire burning in 20 acres of bush just east of Sheffield Lake. The municipality of Hungerford township is assisting Lands and Forests men in extinguishing the fire.

The same aircraft reported a small fire burning near the White Lake hatchery at about 3 p. m. yesterday. However, the blaze was put out in short order.

The spokesman said the forest fire hazard in the area is serious because most of the deciduous trees have shed their leaves. A dry ground piled deep with dead leaves makes the area a potential tinder box.

Mack. Robertson Sells Belleville Creameries to Stirling Firm

Forced by ill health to give up his business interests which date back to 1914, when he established the first creamery in the Central Ontario district, Mr. Mackenzie Robertson is selling the Belleville Creamery and Ice Cream Co.

Purchaser of the business is Stirling Creamery Ltd., of Stirling. Purchase terms are expected to be completed in December with the new owner scheduled to take over at the first of the year.

Belleville housewives were forced to switch to "home made" dairy butter and on meagre supplies of creamery butter shipped in from other parts of the province when Mr. Robertson established his creamery in this city.

Site of the creamery was what was known as the Burrell property where Clifford Baragar is now located. It was the first butter factory to open in the entire central Ontario district.

Mr. Robertson purchased the present creamery on Station street in 1915 and later opened creameries at Tweed, Madoc, Napanee, Perth, Sharbot Lake and Smiths Falls.

BORN IN GREY COUNTY

Son of a Grey county farmer, Mr. Robertson had a varied career in the dairy industry, government creamery inspector and chief dairy instructor of Western Ontario before coming to Belleville.

He started at the St. Mary's Creamery for ten years, first as buttermaker, then manager. He finally plant manager before going to Abilene, Kansas, scene of Dwight Eisenhower's boyhood days, for one year as butter making instructor at the Bell Springs Creamery.

But he preferred the cooler climate of his native district, returning to Ontario.

In 1914 he opened the first creamery in Belleville, stores got most of their butter, supplies from Manitoba farms. The famous brand "Farmers' wives put butter up in Belleville" was the best known market and packed big jars for home use."

Commencing his retirement from the butter making business, Mr. Robertson will continue as his staff at Belleville Creameries, headed by Roy Jose.

"It is sorry to part with the many patrons who have supported us through the years, down through the years," he commented.

CREAMERIES APPRECIATION

At the same time he expressed his appreciation to grocerymen and other retail stores who have handled Belleville Creameries butter and to the many housewives who used Belleville Creameries butter in their homes.

In the early days Mr. Robertson operated as many as seven different creameries throughout Central Ontario.

In 1935 he sold the Kingston, Napanee and Sharbot Lake plants to Harvey McNevin of Kingston, who had worked for him for 16 years.

The Perth plant was sold to John Finnegan, who had been to Mr. Robertson's employ for 23 years. Of late years Mr. Robertson has operated the Belleville and Trenton plants. He sold the Trenton plant in June of this year to Sproule's Creameries Ltd. with the Cream Producers' Association.

LIFETIME DAIRYMEN

First creamery owner in the Belleville district, Mr. Robertson was greatly instrumental in organizing the Ontario Creamerymen's Association and was that organization's first president.

He is charter member of the Belleville Rotary Club and was one of the original members of the Quinte Golf and Country Club.

"But I gave up golling years ago because of blood pressure," Mr. Robertson says.

The new owners of Belleville Creameries have a lifetime in the dairy and creamery men. The Stirling Creamery makes cheese for 13 years in the Stirling district before taking over the Stirling Creamery in 1935. Three sons, Harold, Clarence and Russell, "grew up" in the creamery, according to Mr. West.

Mr. West, a former Hastings county reeve and reeve of his village for 15 years, admits he has more or less turned operation of the business over to his sons. It is expected that Harold, eldest of the three West sons, will manage the Belleville plant.

However, on advice from the present operation at Belleville a buttermaker and the ice cream at Belleville Creameries is expected to be continued.

Clarence, the West sons served in World War II, Clarence in the army and Russell in the navy. And all three have followed in their father's footsteps in giving public service.

Russell, who is in charge of the locker plant, is also reeve for the past five years; Clarence, office manager for the firm, is a member of the school board, while Harold, creamery manager, is current president of the Ontario Creamerymen's Association.

MACKENZIE ROBERTSON

Theatre Guild

Attired in plaid shirts and slacks and armed with charcoal and paint brushes, members of the Belleville Theatre Guild had a most enjoyable evening last Wednesday when enthusiastic members came prepared to work on scenery and advertising posters for the first public dress rehearsal presentation of "The White Sheep of the Family" now in rehearsal.

After a short business meeting with chairman Ed Rickards introduced Jim Gilbert who explained the system for ticket sales and centering the stage. Jim also gave information on the part of each member for increasing these sales. Mr. Gilbert hopes that while the Guild is facing higher rental costs this year that each patron will support with a tremendously expanded grasp of any individual ideas.

As a practical demonstration of this method Dr. Guest suggested the case of Gibbon Finance Company. The discussion and exchange of ideas was very satisfactory and resulted in a better understanding of the people and factors involved. Points of view changed as the discussion progressed and the group generally felt that much had been accomplished toward the solving of the firm's problems.

This is the second time that Dr. Guest has spoken to the Bay of Quinte group.

Police Blotter

A small boy suffered scrapes and a head cut yesterday afternoon when he darted into the path of a car on Mikel Avenue.

Gordon Spafford, age 4, was taken to Dr. R. S. Gibson for treatment and later sent home after he ran into a car driven by Mrs. Lois Evelyn Miller, 53 Hunter road. The accident was the sum of Mr. and Mrs. M. Spafford, 45 Mikel Ave.

A tenant on Homewood Ave. complained to city police yesterday afternoon that several children were playing with fire on her house. Police believe the lad stepped out for a few minutes and locked the doors behind her. However, the children, not the burning from school, got into the house through a basement window and started to play with matches. They burned a rug near the front door and scorched walls around the back yard.

Five shooting air rifles near the CNR crossing at Moira Street created a nuisance one morning yesterday. She said the lads had taken pot shots at her as she walked along the street.

City police rallied to the call and found three youngsters in the vicinity who claimed they had been potting at pigeons on the railway bridge. An air rifle was taken from the boys by police.

Three young men spent the night locked up as guests of the police after they gave a policeman hard time at Front St. last night, by causing a disturbance.

A slight accident occurred at the intersection of Front and Victoria last night involving cars driven by Reuben Desmond Cannon, R.R. 6, Belleville, and Roy E. Hollister, of Tweed. No other vehicles were going along Front in a line of traffic when one of the cars stopped suddenly, causing a minor rear end collision. Total damage was estimated at $30.

Two Workworth Men Facing Murder Charges

Two farm hands charged with murdering Roy Rogers, 29-year-old Warkworth farmer, on August 27, are scheduled to appear for preliminary hearing at Brighton court before Magistrate H. B. Baxter, of Port Hope, on October 31.

Clifford Brough, 25, will face the charge of murder, while Kenneth Frederick Seibeth G. M. Ross, and Robert White, 18, will be charged with Stuart Ryna, of Port Hope, Crown Attorney Harold R. Dejon, of Cobourg, will prosecute.

Brough and White are alleged to have shot and killed Roy Rogers, father of three children, at the outcome of a dispute regarding a will which made the dead man's brother, Wesley, owner of a farm.

The men are lodged in Cobourg Jail.

Accountants Hear Talk on Training Method

The Quinte district chapter of the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants had visitors from Belleville and Peterborough as their guests at a meeting held in the Queenway Hotel at Trenton last night. The chapter president, Mr. R. J. A. Taylor of Belleville, introduced the members of the visiting chapters.

Speaker of the evening was Dr. C. H. Guest, staff development administrator of Canadian Industries. Dr. Guest spoke briefly on the topic "The Case Method in Supervisory Practices." He said that people are the most important assets that a company has. In fact they are the only assets which "appreciate," provided they are given the opportunity. In making the opportunity the attitudes of the immediate supervisor is the key factor. It is therefore evident that further and continuing education of the supervisor is required in order to get full response out of the companies most valuable assets, its people.

Dr. Guest asserted that in his opinion one of the most effective ways of improving the supervision program was through the use of the case method. This method of teaching originated in the Harvard Law School. It is different from the normal teaching methods. Participants are encouraged by the course director to give full play to their ideas. In the conference group. The director does not lecture, but encourages the group to do its own thinking and individuals to present their thoughts to the group. This exchange of thought generates new ideas and new approach applicant with a tremendously expanded grasp of any individual idea.

As a practical demonstration of this method Dr. Guest presented the case of Gibbon Finance Company. The discussion and exchange of ideas was very satisfactory and resulted in a better understanding of the people and factors involved. Points of view changed as the discussion progressed and the group generally felt that much had been accomplished toward the solving of the firm's problems.

This is the second time that Dr. Guest has spoken to the Bay of Quinte group.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

Of all tree climbing birds, Nuthatches are the only ones that actually prefer to cling upside-down. It seems a miracle that they can hold on to the bark and calmly proceed to gather insects, insect eggs and larvae as they work their way, head first, from top to bottom, to dead, as a hummingbird can fly upwards or downwards, frontwards or backwards, so can a nuthatch climb in any direction, in any posture, perpendicularly, horizontally, or even, like a fly on the ceiling, hang from the under side of a horizontal branch.

There are two kinds of nuthatches: the White-breasted, which is the larger of the two and more often found in the southern part of the majority of our provinces, and the red-breasted, only 4½ inches long, that breeds in Newfoundland, and on across Canada, somewhat farther north than the other variety. They are much more clever than woodpeckers and brown creepers, all of which have the advantage of owning something that can be used as a support, like the hind leg of an easel, for their tails end in sharp spines that are stuck into the trunk of the tree. Both nuthatches have bunty tails, with ordinary endings. They advance in parallel with the trunk or branch, whereas woodpeckers may be seen to be at a slant, their heads much farther out than their tails.

Also, while woodpeckers are aided by having two of their four toes pointing backwards to give support as they climb, nuthatches have quite ordinary feet, with three toes pointing forward and one behind.

It is from the nuthatches' habit of "hatching" or hacking nuts which had been previously wedged into crevices that the name is derived. Their bills are designed for this purpose, and are fairly long, quite stout, somewhat pointed, and the lower half slightly shorter than the upper one. These are quite capable of excavating, but nuthatches actually use them more for flaking off the loose bark and searching for insect pests.

Although they travel about in bands of chickadees, kinglets, and brown creepers, the white-breasted really maintain a winter territory, and you may notice that when you see one you usually see two! Nuthatches seem to stay paired for life.

Being extremely inconspicuous, pale grey birds, we would be decidedly unlikely to notice nuthatches at all were it not for their calls. Both have nasal voices, and say "yank, yank"; the only difference is, uninitiated observer can tell nothing but the note of the larger bird sounds rather louder, but in a lower key.

A Lift for Living

Spirit of Unity Needed

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Canada and the United States have such kinship in ideals and principles that I am sure my Canadian friends will understand if I address myself to my fellow Americans as we approach the close of a national political campaign. Feelings are at tense. The air has been full of voices. Our minds are full of issues. And now before we go to the polls to settle these public questions, let us sit down privately with ourselves in a spirit of prayer.

One thing which must be preserved in this land of ours is the spirit of unity. The strength of our nation has been that after the conflicts of political campaigns has come the cooperation of united effort. It must be so again.

Therefore, in preparation for the national election and the unity which must follow, may we join in the prayer of the Psalmist in the prayer of the Psalmist "Unite my heart to fear Thy name."

Queen Victoria is said to have complained that Gladstone, her prime minister, always addressed her as if she were a public meeting.

In a sense, each individual is a sort of public meeting. In each of us there are as many different aspects of self as there are people in a group to which we adjust ourselves. A man is not quite the same person in his office as in his family, in his club as in his factory. His personality is pulled in different directions and he shows different sides of himself.

MANY VOICES

Within our breasts are many voices, many discordant elements, and the first task of each citizen is to bring order out of chaos in his personal life. The strength of a nation rests on the sanity and stability of its individual citizens. The unity of a nation is secured by those who keep the peace within their own natures. Hence we need to pray with the Psalmist, "Unite my heart."

When we translate the Psalmist's poetry into modern prose, it means, for one thing, "Unify my heart by re-collecting my scattered self." The speed and whirl of events tend to scatter our thoughts and interests. Things are happening with such exciting frequency and such explosive force. In this day of hurried schedules, highpowered transportation, far-ranging radios, ceaselessly-running "movies", and overworked printing presses, we are doing a vastly increased amount of moving and hearing and talking and seeing, but how about our hard meditative thinking?

We are two restlessly busy to be still and think. And certainly most of us are too noisily occupied to hear the voice which says "Be still and know that I am God."

It has been said that more, and more varied, impressions come to a modern man in a single day than came to his grandfather in a month, but as George Tyrrell, the mystic, reminds us, "Our experience is given to us to be the food of our character and spiritual life; but in point of fact, we spend our whole life in storing up food, and never have leisure to lie down quietly with the cows in the field, and ruminate bit by bit what we have swallowed so hastily."

SEEK NEW SENSATIONS

Yes, in our eagerness to hear the latest thing and catch the newest thrill, we modern men go on greedily devouring new sensations and neglecting the Divine Shepherd who "maketh us to lie down in green pastures" and the rumination of what we have seen and heard.

And we have a special need for God to give us this inner unity at election time. Why? In order that each of us may bring his whole self into the voting booth. We need God to help us vote for the welfare of the whole country rather than for our own business interests, to help us vote our reasoned convictions rather than our emotional prejudices, to help us vote as members of God's whole family and not as members of one class or section.

The Soviet Union has been invited to send representatives to visit America during the last weeks before election. It would be good to have the Russians see a free election where each citizen goes into a voting booth alone and casts a secret ballot. But let us show the Russians that the Christian lands like America and Canada God goes into the booth with each voter.

Before you vote, "pull yourself together" in the unity which God gives. And after we vote, let's all pull together as a united nation.

A STUPID ARGUMENT

Recently the Supreme Court of Canada declared pinball machines illegal. Attorney General Kelso Roberts of Ontario has announced that these machines will be seized by police if their operation is continued after one warning.

Pinball machine operators, at a meeting in Toronto, set up a defence fund. The operators have every right to take any legal action available to them, or to seek a change in the existing law. We wish, though, that they wouldn't talk nonsense.

"One distributor," reports a Canadian Press story, "said between 400 and 500 individual operators who employed more than 1,000 men are liable to be put out of business by the ruling."

We suppose that this meant to suggest that no ruling which would render a thousand men jobless should be enforced.

Similar arguments are often heard. There is the suggestion that just because men are being given jobs their employers are public benefactors.

Here we have a thousand men employed in work which, according to the Supreme Court, is against the law. What's so wonderful about that?

If we cannot put pinball machines just because this would put a thousand men out of work, there are a lot of other things we should not attempt to do.

We should not put fluorides in water, because that may reduce the amount of work for dentists.

Chest X-ray clinics are obviously undesirable, since they may reduce the demand for sanitorium employees.

If we stop the toll of motorists by killing accidents, we shall put a lot of undertakers, nurses and body repair men out of work.

What's all this talk about peace? Think of all the soldiers, munitions firmen, factory workers and diplomats it would throw on the labor market!

THE MAGICAL DAY

Every year has two magical days.

There is that day in spring when the sun, neglecting to gather its warmth around it like a cloak as it nears farewell, leaves behind a chill that sends us early to daylight hours. The wind sighs in the tree tops, which toss their new spring tresses and nod their heads in unison with those of the lovers as they stroll arm in arm. And the frogs awell in a crescendo which shames the nightingales of the storybooks, the grass stretches upward to await the morning dew and the world is new again.

That day belongs, as a day for the young, for those whose blood is as warm, whose spirit as wild and unfettered as the breezes frolicking across the land and whirling upward toward the stars.

Then there is another magic day, a day for all of us, the old, the aging and the young alike.

August fades into September, the brown of drought burns in and sets in, by slow degrees, back to brown again. Among the leaves a few deserters, faint of heart, quit their summer abodes in the trees and seek shelter on the ground. The warmth of day and the frost nips at night. Slowly, imperceptibly, the year is dragging towards its end.

And then, suddenly, there dawns the magic day, the day of the first chill, the light breeze, which yesterday only found a few playmates among the treetops, is magically joined by a host of dancers. The leaves tumble down like snowflakes, form a thick carpet underfoot and then move restlessly about, hither and yon, seeking a new resting place. The gaunt lines of the trees themselves, freed from their summer camouflage, suddenly etch themselves against the blue sky and reveal their true, months-hidden strength. There is a nip to the air which, if it does not warm the blood, yet sends it racing.

Night, when it comes, is the dark time of mysterious, not made for lovers but for dreams of deeds, of deeds past or deeds to come. And suddenly, as on that warm, soft night in spring, the world is new again and all things are possible.

APT REVISION OF AN OLD EXHORTATION

A prize for the most apt revision of a time-worn phrase should go to the Stratford Beacon-Herald.

Stratford, like many other Canadian cities, has been conducting a Community Chest campaign.

The president, in a final appeal for support, does not urge its readers to "give until it hurts." Instead the Stratford paper says: "Give till you feel good."

Could any phrase better express the right spirit to assure success for such a campaign?

NEW WONDER PAINT

It seems that at last the answer to the home painter's prayer has been given. An English manufacturing firm has developed a household paint which has the consistency of jelly when in its tin, but which liquefies as soon as it is applied. The tin can can be knocked over, and the paint will not spill, nor will it run down the handle of the brush when a ceiling is being painted. To support this claim the firm's demonstrators paint a ceiling while wearing immaculate dress—without detriment to the clothes. (Sherbrooke Daily Record.)

In a Scientific Fog

By Mel Thistle, chief, Public Relations Branch, National Research Council in Canadian Mercury Magazine

How much scientific detail can we expect to understand? The answer is: precious little. Probably the average person who is capable of reading a newspaper can only hope to "get," at most, a hazy impression of what most of what our scientists are up to. And that, mind you, while scientists are doing his best to make things clear: the scientist, the reporter, the editor, and the science blurb-sell.

First of all, there is the language problem. The following table illustrates the sort of road blocks which can be thrown up by vocabulary alone.

A farmer once wrote to a scientific outfit, saying: "My iron water pipes are clogged. I hear that muriatic acid will clear them. Is this true?"

The answer, from a junior clerk read: "The use of hydrochloric (muriatic) acid to remove iron deposits is useful in the case of pipes constructed of ferrous materials."

The farmer wrote back saying: "Thanks, I am glad to know that the muriatic acid is OK for my pipes."

Then a more senior executive wrote: "Hydrochloric acid will most certainly corrode the pipes involved in the present instance."

To which the farmer replied: "Thanks for your interest in my problem. I have yet to get hands on some of that acid in about a week."

Whereupon the president of the company sent a telegram which read: "Stop using hydrochloric acid stop it eats hell out of the pipes."

Scientific fog comes in two packages; the small sample container and the large economy size. The story about the farmer is a small sample. Here's a larger fog, a mere matter of choosing language to suit the audience. Physical scientific language, that's the problem easily. All he had to do was to add a certain kind of shovel a spade.

But the big family-size fog packages are the ones which can cause no suitable language exists for the scientific ideas in the mind of man. For example, how would you translate a statement concerning the temperature and surface differences of neon, argon and krypton? You can't! And you can't.

English is so good for this job which is why our scientific friends were forced to invent dozens of special scientific languages that would be satisfactory. And we simply cannot expect them to translate their way into acceptable language into one that does not know or suspect the existence for their purposes. A lot of their stuff may look like everyday English, but it isn't. A "divided tree" is not a botanical accident but a term for electronic switching theory; "On Faithful Rings" is not the title of a true love story, but an article about modern algebra.

* * *

The larger fog involves the various stages of scientific sophistication. Advancing Science is understood by a few hundred people, like Dirac, the famous theoretical physicist of Cambridge University; Classical Science, based on men like Newton and Darwin, is understood by a few millions and Primitive Realism, at the bottom of the heap, takes in about two billion people.

The vast majority of us spend most of our time shuttling around in the three bottom stages, while what we are trying to follow goes on in the top ones. Unfortunately, the barriers between these stages are absolutely real. You have to get up to supersonic speed, mentally, to break through any one of these barriers, and this usually requires many years and a first-class brain. The amount of detail that can filter through even a single barrier is not very much.

It isn't scientific "gobbledegook" that keeps us in a fog, but barriers inside our own heads. Remember when only a dozen men in the world understood Einstein? I still don't, except to parrot the beautiful fact that E=mc2, the first fruit of which is atomic energy. And now we have Dirac!

* * *

It is true that we cannot comprehend the intricate, complex data of modern scientific developments. But, after all, does this really matter on a broad scale?

The first problem it seems to me, is to get more scientists to understand that we don't want the details. The best of them know that already. The problem is simply to give us anything but broad trends, general conclusions, and very carefully selected results — mostly translated into our own language, which, indeed, are forced to use a few technical terms now and then, with suitable apologies.

And secondly, we have to realize that this serious difficulty of communication — and it is serious because science is becoming more important and must be talked about — is not entirely the fault of the scientists. We have our own barriers, too, right here inside our heads. For example, how if we realized a little more clearly that we cannot hope for more than the barest outline of what our boys in the front lines of science are finding out for them one ten-thousandth. But I think we are entitled to that, which is rather more than we are getting now.

Advice to the scientist is easy: we can remind him to address us in terms of analogies and parables to some fairly familiar, but so easy: perhaps it is enough to remind ourselves that we expect miracles of even the best exposition, but to rest content with what we can actually get out of it.

At most, this will be but a hazy outline of the shape of things to come.

How Really Talks Turkey!

Ottawa Journal

Having told the inhabitants of the late Colonel McCormick's old town how to conduct diplomacy, a branch factorius should behave in Canada, Mr. C. D. Howe in his role of the candid friend moved on to the task of telling Americans how to run their business.

Speaking in the Canadian view, nothing to be gained by one country attempting to dump its surplus ingredients on to the other. This only have the effect of making the whole problem worse. I believe that we in Canada have practised what we preach. Our wheat has all been sold for Canadian currency, which, as you know, is as hard as the United States dollar, at steady prices and there has been no subsidization of production or export sales."

That wasn't all Mr. Howe had to say.

There are plenty of Americans who remember the time in World War II Canada took United States "lend-lease". Said Mr. Howe:

"Canadians have never sought, and I hope will never seek special favours from this great country. We have never, even in wartime, accepted aid of any kind. At the same time, Canadians have cultivated good relations with their powerful neighbour. We do not seek favours; we do value your friendship and good-will."

There had been talk of U.S. investment in Canada; Mr. Howe had dealt with that in Chicago. But now he would tell Milwaukee something which perhaps it didn't know. This:

"You may be surprised to learn that, on a per capita basis, Canadians have more invested in the United States than Americans have invested in Canada. We are in fact your most important source of outside capital."

Bravo "C.D."! When your party has turned down Socialism as it should have been long ago, we hope Donald Fleming or Dave Hutcheon or John Diefenbaker will make you our Ambassador to Russia. For it seems to us you would be just the man to talk turkey to Khrushchev and Bulganin.

Could Be

Fort William Times-Journal

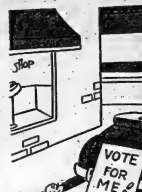
A British scientist says the chaffinch in Russia has a shorter song than the chaffinch which inhabits western Europe. Maybe the explanation is that the species has less to sing about in a Communist country.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TELL IT.

There are many ways in which we can distribute...ourselves. One way is to tell others of good news from time to time. A letter or some stimulating gift may change the course of a day — or so. If you have something to say about a person tell it to that one. You will then help to give a real lift to that person and that day.



I like the idea of sending a brief note to people who have done notable things, or who have written books or articles which have touched us. Writers appreciate this thoughtfulness more than is realized. Commend the good deed and more will follow.

People who share their joy or happy experiences with us always grow richer and happier. It has always been a joy on my part to tell about a great book, or at least one that has given me much pleasure.

Tell it!

Paris Gowns Are Stolen

Montreal Gazette

It was bound to happen. When ever a large fuss is made about anything, it is given it added attraction that legitimate interest is aroused. Jewels, racehorses, millionaires, even art masterpieces have caught the underworld's attention.

It was bound to happen to them. Paris originals for which the dress-houses of the world compete each summer. One-New York firm has been robbed of a whole collection.

Three other New York dressmakers in the same building report the loss of six pieces from four ensembles. Meanwhile the pieces disappeared after they had been publicly displayed at Idlewild Airport. The boxes containing them were opened somewhere between that airport and their Seventh Avenue destinations.

The victims find themselves in a peculiar position — a position which the thieves probably foresaw. The Paris creations were intended to act as models for hundreds (or more) copies. The only sure way to block their use into one of these bursts, and besides our cedar posts being stripped, is to publicize the models are like. This would enable dress designers everywhere to copy them at will.

The plight of the four victims has aided the police in this way. One firm's designer has given police a description of a model she thought was stolen. Police, acting on a tip, found the model in a Montreal apartment. Two men and one woman are under arrest.

The FBI is already at work in the United States on the thefts. Wide-eyed Mounties also be asked to look out for:

What looks dress with moire ribbon trim, short sleeved, surplice neck and draped midriff with a panel of the same through with a loop at the side?"

Get that dress, men, occupied or not!

Contestants: (after frantic looks between them) Ed-on-Vancouver?

Moderator: I'm sorry, no. Second question: In what country is the Matterhorn?

Cod Liver Oil for Rheumatiz

Whenever I think of physical degeneration of joint tissue, chronic joint disability, rheumatism, I do not "arthritis," by association I think also of cod liver oil.

It is not only that cod liver oil was a sovereign remedy for chronic joint disability before "arthritis" became fashionable. It is rather that cod liver oil is a rich source of some of the essential, good nutrition which our refined namby-pamby diet fails to supply in quantities adequate to maintain good nutrition, particularly iodin, vitamin A and vitamin D.

As I believe and teach, chronic joint disability (rheumatis) in most instances is not inflammation of the joint (arthritis). If a joint is inflamed it is hot, painful, red and swollen (color, dolor, rubor, et tumor). In rheumatism there is plenty of pain and soreness or tenderness, but seldof if ever redness or heat and generally little or no swelling. So I maintain that in most instances rheumatic (joint) disability of insidious development and a year or more in duration is due to malnutrition of joint tissues due to the national malnutrition. That is, nutritional deficiencies occurring daily through the years from childhood up to the present.

Cod liver oil corrects or overcomes some of the deficiencies, particularly iodin and sunshine vitamin D. Whether cod liver oil has any other medicinal or remedial virtues, I don't know. The iodin, vitamin D, and vitamin A contents alone would seem to me the explanation for its value as a remedy against rheumatism.

Dinky little doses of cod liver oil may do some good, but if you are going to take it at all for your chronic joint disability, you must take not less than a tablespoonful (½ fluidounce) every day through the fall, winter, and spring, or better 2 tablespoonfuls (a fluidounce) of pure cod liver oil daily.

Of course, if you are squeamish about it, there are easier ways to supplement your ordinary diet with iodin, vitamin D, calcium, and the B vitamins.

There are preparations available, primarily intended for children, composed of about equal parts of cod liver oil and malt syrup. Children, if not conditioned by a prejudice of parents or others around them, take cod liver oil in this form and ask for more. If no one teaches them that cod liver oil is not palatable, children generally take it straight and like it. No reason why adults should make a to-do about it.

HAVE FAITH TO ASK

Prayer is the heritage an privilege of all men. Therefore, the whole religious life is so little affected by theological differences as to be negligible.

To be sure, the different religious groups have certain aspects of prayer definitely tied up with their theology and maintain—and rightly so—that these peculiarities have incalculable value. But after all this has not affected the fact that remains that fundamentally prayer is the belief that there is a Power to whom we can talk, and the desires to have us communicate with Him.

At this level, all men begin their praying. And although prayer is the most vital form and condition of widely differing theologies, nevertheless all men begin their petitions to the Most High with the conviction that man can pray, that God would hear his request and that prayer makes a difference. This was well expressed in by saying that prayer is the rising up of human desires into the very purpose and power of God.

It is amazing how eager God is to give to His children and how timid they are about asking for His bounty or reaching out their hands to receive it. His outgoing love shames our fear. His continuing providence rebukes our lack of faith.

Could Add Better posts at cedar
Just put a year ago at the summer cabin have been entirely stripped of the handsome ornamental bark by rot and termites. They started it for nesting material. In the immediate neighborhood of the cabin there occurred one of those curious explosions of life in which a species increases beyond all normal proportion. A pair of squirrels built their family at home, holer chattering, conspicuous, nervous, active people all the summer which include the various rodent hunting hawks, the owls, foxes, lynx, house cats, weasels, mink and in the north, the pine martien which practically subsists on red squirrels, which it chases in the trees with more skill than even a squirrel can command.

In the far north, the fur of the red squirrel finds application in all such fine quality that millions of his hides have been taken to be manufactured into "mink" coats. Though worth only a few cents. Each squirrel has several numbers of them. The Crees, finding the word difficult to pronounce, call them "squillers."

Like most things he skins, the squirrel finds the squirrel is tasty lunch, roasted on a stick over a small fire. An all round Canadian thing.

Tributes Paid to Warden Wood At Banquet Held at Madoc

Tribute to Hastings County Warden Elmer J. Wood, reeve of Huntingdon township, was paid Friday night by county officials and district municipal representatives as the annual warden's banquet was held at the Madoc Armouries.

Guest speaker for the banquet program was Arnold McCrea, mayor of the city of Welland, who stressed the importance of government at the municipal level and warned against taking for granted the right of the franchise and the duty of voting.

But warden's banquets are going modern. Last night's program was a streamlined version of the many toasted programs of a decade and more ago.

Last night the toasts were confined to a minimum. One was to The Queen, a second to Warden Wood and a third by the guests.

The warden's address of welcome was highlighted by the announcement that at long last the Ontario highways department is about to call tenders for the construction of the first section of the Madoc-Foxboro county road.

Warden Wood said he had been informed by Premier Robarts, MLA for Hastings East, that tenders would be called by the department next week for the north section of the road, including a bridge at Moira Lake.

"It is welcome news for the people of Hastings county," the warden observed.

MAYOR FORRESTER REPLIES

Response to the warden's address of welcome was by Reeve W. J. Davis, of McClure, Wicklow and Rawdon, and by County Engineer Larry Langlois.

The toast to the guests was proposed by Lloyd H. Price, reeve of Elzevir and Grimsthorpe, with responses heard from Mayor Lane Forrester of Belleville; Warden Wilson of Prince Edward county; Judge J. C. Anderson, and M. S. Roscoe Robson.

A thought-provoking talk on "Citizenship," was heard from Miss Eva Martin, former Huntingdon township junior farmer and 4-H Clubber who twice won county public speaking contests and then went on to capture the provincial crown last year.

In her talk Miss Martin stressed the basic freedoms of a Democratic country such as Canada, noting that they were the "foundation of our way of life."

Mayor McCrea as the guest speaker, pointed to Canada's increasing importance as a world nation noting that the Canadian voice in world affairs was well recognized at United Nations.

Greater unity among Canadian peoples was called for by the speaker who stressed the importance of protecting the rights of minority groups.

Canadians could not afford to be smug on the question of racial discrimination. Negroes in the Dresden area of Western Ontario had their rights as did the French speaking population of Quebec province.

Good public relations could be used to advantage among nations as well as in the business world. A few bushels of wheat to the peoples of a starving nation could mean a great deal in international relations.

In their failure to understand this, democratic countries were in danger of losing the propaganda race to Russia.

"We need more salesmen for democracy," stated Mayor McCrea.

But the real danger was complacency about the sacred right of the ballot and the duty to get out and vote on election day.

In conclusion the speaker foresaw a great future for Canada where, he said, pioneering was just begun. In Canada there was a great potential but to realize it Canadians must put their shoulder to the wheel.

Kenneth H. Yorke, superintendent at the county home, introduced the speaker with appreciation being expressed by Chairman E. S. Denyes and also by Warden Wood.

Reeve Irwin McCoy of Marmora township, on behalf of county council, presented Warden Wood with a gift of silverware, while Reeve B. Herder of Sidney presented Mrs. Wood with a bouquet of flowers. Family members also presented Warden and Mrs. Wood with gifts.

William Navin, well known to Belleville audiences for his ability as an entertainer, was heard in a number of impersonations with varied humorous songs thrown in for good measure.

The turkey supper was served by the White Lake W.A. and the Ivanhoe Women's Institute. They were capably assisted in serving by their men folk. Thanks to the ladies for the supper were expressed by Madoc township Reeve Earl Sager.

Film Council Holds Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Belleville and District Film Council was held at the Central Public Library, Thursday evening. This initial meeting of the fall term was well attended by Film Council members.

Mrs. A. Kelly, president of the council for the coming year, conducted the business part of the evening. President Kells reported on what he and Mr. A. C. Cumming observed at a recent conference of the Ontario Federation of Film Councils held in Oshawa. Other matters which received attention included ground work for a film festival, a projectionist training program, and the acquisition of new equipment.

Mr. M. M. Hackett, in charge of the program for the evening, introduced a film entitled "The Dresden Story," an "On the Spot" presentation of The National Film Board. Once viewed, the film led to an enthusiastic discussion among the general body concerning the Dresden problem —that of racial segregation.

A social period, which followed, completed the meeting.

Anniversary Services Led by Rev. S. E. Larman

SHANNONVILLE — Anniversary services in Shannonville United church last Sunday were well attended. Beautiful gladioli, chrysanthemums and other fall flowers adorned the front of the church.

The Rev. Sidney E. Larman of Holloway Street United Church, Belleville, was guest speaker at both services. His interesting messages proved inspiring and helpful.

Mr. Tom Hinchey rendered a lovely solo at each service, with Mrs. Harry Sine presiding at the organ.

Owing to illness, the Rev. T. Hogerward was unable to be present.

The Most Famous Mapmaker

By NICHOLAS MIKA

Do you remember the story from Greek Mythology about the giant who carried the world on his shoulder? Sculptors showed him as a strong and mighty man whose shoulders were bent down by the weight of our globe.

Almost four hundred years ago a young Belgian cartographer who had completed for the first time a set of maps that showed the whole world, called his book after the giant, Atlas.

This young man was very skilful and he described the globe as precisely and truthfully as he could.

He discarded the old systems of making maps, because he realized that they were either false and incomplete or so confusing that a person hardly knew if he was going east or west when he relied on the map. He also included the new discoveries in Asia, Africa and America and made map reading for the first time as easy and understandable for a child as for a seafarer. And what is even more remarkable, he did not have our modern tools and techniques for drawing a map.

There was no aeroplane in which he could fly over countries, rain tops and vast oceans to shoot pictures with a camera. All he had, were the old confusing maps and the burning desire to change these maps and give a true picture of the earth.

KEEN BIBLE STUDENT

He read all the travel books he could put his hands on, studied the Bible from cover to cover and picked up every little bit of information concerning our globe. His workshop was a medieval place for sailors, captains and tradesmen, and while he was busy drawing charts which they ordered, he listened to their stories and put them together piece by piece in his mind. At night, when the noise had quietened down and the last customer had left the shop, he transferred his knowledge to his maps of the world.

It was a troublesome, painstaking work. But he was happy and knew that in the end it would be a useful and truthful description of the globe. He smiled a little when he looked at the maps of other cartographers. They seemed to be done by a painter rather than by a geographer and he knew that the fancy designs were only hiding a lack of knowledge. They showed ships and sea serpents in an ocean instead of the proper outlines of islands and instead of marking a desert they filled the space with an enormous monster.

His maps, by no means, were as fanciful, but they were scientifically precise and skilfully drawn. Of course, they could not be as detailed and exact as our modern ones, but they were the beginning of a new era in mapmaking. He showed a new and easier way to put the great discoveries of adventurous explorers on a piece of paper and make them clear and understandable to our eye, to help us find our way to North and South and East and West to far-off worlds, and to guide seafarers and pilots through oceans and atmosphere.

The famous cartographer who showed us the way and gave us the atlas of the world which we know today was Gerard Mercator.

Gerard Mercator appeared on Belgian stamps in 1941.

Through death we return to our Maker and rewards unfathomable . . . for a life well lived. It is to the loved ones left behind that death is a sorrow.

ROSE—STEWART

On Saturday, October 6, a lovely wedding was solemnized at 3.30 p.m., in Christ church, Ballevile, when Rev. H. Page, rector of Trinity church, Shannonville, assisted by Archdeacon J. B. Creegan of Picton, united in marriage June Irene Stewart of Belleville, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wesley Stewart, to Donald G. Rose of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tall -standards of chrysanthemums, gladioli, and ferns intermed with ferns formed a beautiful background for the ceremony. White satin bows decorated the guest pews.

Mr. J. R. Hamilton, church organist, provided the wedding music, and accompanied Mr. Tom Hinchey of Shannonville, who sang "Our Father", and "O Perfect Love", during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. J. W. Stewart, the bride was charming in a bridal gown of white lansdowne. Its skirt was fashioned with molded bodice with neckline outlined in seed pearls. The floor-length veil was held in graceful folds. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion fell from a cap of pearl trimmed and iridescent sequin coronet, and she carried a white bible with a shower of white orchid, and white satin streamers knotted with lily of the valley.

She was attended by Miss Helen Yorke, of Belleville, as maid of honor, and Miss Irene Stewart, sister of Belleville, and Miss Joan Hall of Ottawa, bridesmaids. They were gowned alike in green crystaletta with matching headdresses, and accessories, and carried nosegays of the bride 'mums tied with green satin ribbon.

Little Diana Carruthers of Toronto, cousin of the bride, as flower girl was in dainty white crystalette, with pink rose floral headdress and carrying a basket of multi-colored 'mums.

Billy Stewart of Belleville, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. John McCrory of Belleville, while Mr. Ross White of Belleville, Mr. Jack Stewart of Kingston and Mr. Jack Stewart of Shannonville were ushers.

The reception was held in the parish hall of the church, where 100 guests were received by the bride's mother, who was attired in pale blue brocaded Da Maid, in street length, with navy blue accessories, blue feather hat, and corsage of pink roses. The bridegroom's stepmother assisted, wearing navy blue crepe with white accessories, white feather hat, and corsage of red roses.

The bride's table was prettily appointed and centred by a three-tier wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom, and flanked by roses.

For the wedding trip to eastern and western points, the bride travelled in a tailored suit with navy blue accessories and corsage of white 'mums and white stegosaurette. Mr. and Mrs. Rose will reside in Belleville.

Guests present from Ottawa, Oshawa, Toronto, Cobourg, Shannonville, Deyerotn, Northport, Kingston, Picton and Belleville.

Mrs. W. C. Mikel, for many years a leader in Belleville General Hospital work, was honored yesterday prior to her departure for Toronto, where she will reside with her daughter, Mrs. Percy Marsh.

WCA Honors Mrs. W. C. Mikel At Luncheon and Meeting

During the afternoon, 11 members of the Women's Christian Association, with Mrs. Mikel as guest, held a luncheon at Golden Arms Inn, when Mrs. Mikel, a member of the organization for 49 years. The Nurses' Alumnae presented Mrs. Mikel with a corsage of red roses.

The group later met at the home of Mrs. A. E. Purdy for the regular W.C.A. meeting. At this time a letter from the Nurses' Alumnae to the departing member was read. It expressed regret at seeing her leave, and described the many things Mrs. Mikel accomplished while in Belleville.

In responding to the letter, Mrs. Mikel recalled how she first became a member of W.C.A. Her father and sister had been interested in medicine. When her late husband thought it would be advisable for her to join some worthwhile women's group, she chose W.C.A.

"As you all know the hospital has always been my first love," she stated.

RESIGNATION READ

Mrs. Mikel's letter of resignation was read to the members. Mrs. Mikel's letter read: "Mrs. T. R. Dolan, W.C.A. recording secretary, Belleville. Dear Mrs. W.C.A. members her resignation as a member of the Board of Governors of Belleville General Hospital and as custodian of the Women's Christian Association, to take effect from October 25th, 1926. I wish to thank you sincerely for all you have done for me. You know the W.C.A. has for 49 years been very dear to me, and I feel that the various activities in our city, but especially those in which our public health compels me to make a change in mode of living and my permanent residence to the city of Toronto," the letter continued.

"It has been a great pleasure and an honor to be associated with such a group of women who have done so much for and in the benefit of mankind and community and I can look back over the years with a great deal of pleasure and thankfulness.

"I am sure Father aid you in your work and be with each and every one of you always.

"Ever yours most sincerely, Lilian Ewen Mikel."

Mrs. Percy Marsh was nominated to replace Mrs. Mikel as custodian. Mrs. Purdy also holds that office.

The group voted to have the Rev. Mr. Manchester, Mrs. E. J. Marsh, fill the vacant position on the hospital staff.

PRESENTED WITH STOLE

Following election of these officers, Mrs. Purdy took the chair, as the W.C.A., presented Mrs. Mikel with a white hand-loomed stole. Mrs. Purdy said: "It is a great pleasure to all of us," she remarked while making the presentation.

The recipient expressed her gratitude for the gift and added: "I will do it in the future as I have in my life in Belleville as something grand." She stressed how much the hospital and W.C.A. have meant to her life.

The meeting closed with refreshments served by Mrs. Marsh.

Among its activities the W.C.A. Thursday afternoon at Mrs. Marsh's residence, the Women's Christian Association Residence at 58 Highland Avenue.

Officers of the organization were re-elected, as follows: Mrs. Marsh, recording secretary, Mrs. T. R. Dolan; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Ewen Mikel; treasurer, Mrs. E. Hickey, and chairman of the visitors' board, Mrs. H. Thompson. Other members, besides Mrs. Mikel are, Mrs. M. J. Marsh, Mrs. J. Y. Wills, Mrs. A. E. Purdy, Mrs. R. N. Carmichael and Miss Norma Clarke.

Wellington Unit T.F. Enjoys Travelogue

Mrs. Clifford McFaul, Town Line Farms, was hostess for the October meeting of the Wellington unit of the Women's Federation, at her home.

Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Edgar Mathews, welcomed the members and visitors.

Mrs. Matthews gave the highlights of the October's Women's Mrs. Hall invited the December meeting to her school, Bowerman hall, Wellington.

The meeting was turned over to Mrs. Hall who gave interesting pictures of her recent trip to England and Europe. She visited many some countries on the continent. Mrs. Roger Cronk assisted Mrs. Hall at the projector. Mrs. Hall's talk and the slides were much enjoyed.

She was thanked by Miss Mary Huff. Mrs. McFaul called upon Mrs. Hall to thank, and Miss Mary Huff for a very fine duet for the evening, accompanied by Mrs. Donald Spencer.

Mrs. Freeman gave an interesting paper on the studies conference in Toronto. Three fundamental principles were stressed in teaching of this subject namely, facts, attitudes and skills.

A social hour was enjoyed with the committee appointed serving the delicious refreshments.

The thanks of the gathering were tendered Mrs. McFaul for opening her home as this made an agreeable change from the meetings in the various school rooms.

This — and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

Suspicion always haunts the guilty mind.

The thief doth fear each bush an officer.

Eleven days from today, boys and girls throughout Canada and the United States will climb aboard the broomsticks to ride from house to house on their mysterious Hallowe'en calls. What is the great heart of the United States — and Uncle Sam has a great heart — an idea was formed to turn Hallowe'en pranks into a world-wide "hello the other fellow night!"

Mystery prowls on the night of October 31; the kids love the mysterious and the mystery of 600,000,000 kids out of 900,000,000 in the world being hungry has challenged boys and girls all across our countries. UNICEF of the United Nations, one of the largest agency in the world devoted to the welfare of needy children, has put the idea into Hallowe'en and it is spreading rapidly.

Recently we learned of two groups in our district who have adopted the idea. Some of the children board their broomsticks and seek shell-outs of pennies for UNICEF. The Belleville Professional Women's Club of Picton and Mrs. Hamilton Ketcham of Dufferin School of Trenton are organizing the children in their districts. Belleville, however, has put the idea into Hallowe'en and it is spreading rapidly.

The cure of the false teeth proves the thing but it does illuminate how narrow is the dividing line between peace and chaos in the Middle East.

Campbellford Regis Members Visit Local Members

On Sunday, the Regis club met in the Knights of Columbus hall and organized the club for the fall term, in the absence of the president, Mary McDougall, the vice-president, Mrs. Campbell presided.

A warm welcome was extended to the visiting members from the Campbellford Regis club. They were: Mrs. Hall, president of the cultural and spiritual progress, which were table discussions.

A report by the treasurer, Mrs. Derry, showed a balance of $29.85.

After discussion it was voted to have a communion breakfast next month, and the possibility of a card Sunday of each month being a Communion Sunday for the members of the Regis club.

Bill Valance asked for names of anyone wishing to join a volleyball team. Several other such games could get under way immediately.

Bob Burke is heading a committee to investigate the possibilities of a dance in November. He will report his findings at the next meeting of the club.

Dave Kelly asked for names of hockey players to form a team. A mass card will be sent for Mr. Ambrose Dunlop.

The Rev. Peter Murphy also welcomed the Campbellford Regis club.

Mary Dunlop, chairman of the spiritual committee, directed a table discussion on "Work". The basis for this subject was derived from the story of our Lord's visit to Martha's home.

Members were given the opportunity to join in the rudiments of public speaking when called upon by the chairman of the cultural committee to speak on any subject. Each member called upon was given a few minutes to speak about his work. In this way it is felt all members will become familiar with matters not identified only five of these brief talks. A vote of thanks concluded the meetings.

The social chairman, Douglas Foley, introduced the cast of the skit entitled "The Shooting of Dan McGrew" to be presented at the school.

Those who took part were, John Tyndesa, Bernard Mascaro, Bob Kelly, Jack Kelly, Bill Valance and Wayne Fox. Douglas Foley was the narrator. Appropriate background music was supplied by Bob Johnson.

Dainty refreshments were served after which dancing to records completed the social program.

Rocky Mountains Offer Soaring Peaks and Plunging Canyons

By SHIRLEY AND BOB ELOANE

Salt Lake City, Utah—There is a handful of places on this continent which no one who lives here should die without seeing, and one of them is the Rockies. The first glance of them, between here and Denver, is behind us, and we're still trying to find words for them. The magnificence of the canyons of the Colorado Rockies, except that Rudy Buckhorn, a native-born Wyoming cowboy who went to Chicago to be a trombone player and finally decided to go back to where he came from, and his wife Mabel, a Chicago gal turned honest, add a touch of friendliness and rainbow trout home cooking that have made Buckhorn something special to people hereabouts.

The weather here this time of year is worthy of comment. In December the day before, the temperature had been 81 degrees, quantity 5 per cent (they don't make statistics for that any more where we come from). But there was ice on our car and it was 26 degrees the next morning. Right now it was warm enough again to go swimming.

Now if we can pass up the signs inviting us to pass by our own gold, cold stuff for 10 cents a glass or accept a free uranium sample, we'll write from further west next week.

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

MAYBE WHAT YOU REALLY DOUBT IS YOUR LOVE FOR HIM

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

My boy friend and I have been going steady for two years. We plan to be married, but have concluded we should wait another two years until we're financially prepared, and as I am only in my last year in college it seems a wise plan.

The problem is this:

My College friends are very scornful of me for considering marriage to a fellow who hasn't had a college education. They say that since I'm going into the teaching profession I should marry someone who has as much, or more, education as I.

At first my attitude was to ignore all this. I considered these girls to be intellectual snobs. But I've heard so much along these lines from so many of my classmates that a serious doubt has finally been planted in my mind.

My boy friend is a high school graduate and works as a clerk-typist in the office of a local factory. In general intelligence he is above average, and his ability to think quickly has been a great asset to him in everyday affairs. Having a wide variety of interests, he has developed a number of hobbies by which he devotes much time, such as model-building in the form of radio-controlled yachts, boat-racing, copper etching and the reading of all books concerning current developments in the world of science. We have a great deal in common, since we both enjoy good music, dancing and sports.

Shall I follow my heart and go on planning to marry this fellow or shall I keep good will between my friends and myself? And if my boy friend and I marry, will my friends scorn us? — K.W.

Dear K.W.:

Who do you want to pick your future husband for you — your friends or yourself? And if your friends know better than you do what sort of a husband is the most likely to make you happy? Do they feel that a prescribed amount of book study is more important than the native intelligence which you say is "above average" in this young man? And do they believe that when a husband and wife both have college backgrounds it automatically makes them as congenial as the common interests you say you and this young man share?

Frankly, I'm very much surprised that you would take seriously what these immature classmates of yours are saying. I think that your attitude would be not only to ignore their superficial comments but to laugh at them.

What you are about this fellow would indicate that he has an excellent mind and is interested in learning. Because he learns from practical experience a great reading on facts, instead of from college courses, do you imagine that he is less well-educated than you are? All a college diploma guarantees is that a young man or a young woman has put in four years at a certain institution of learning and passed the examination acceptable. It does not guarantee that these four years of study have developed the recipient into the sort of person who will make a loving, loyal, devoted and congenial husband or wife.

In other words, if your young man is possessed of better-than-average intelligence and, in addition, is the kind of man you believe would be a good husband for you, I think it is the height of foolishness to let anyone prejudice you against him merely because he hasn't got a college degree. Naturally, I assume, you believe yourself to be in love with him, since you're apparently engaged to marry him. But if you're not convinced on this one-all-important point, that's something else again, and an entirely different reason for this "serious doubt" you say you feel. I think you had better analyze your feelings very carefully to determine the underlying cause of that doubt.

But so far as your friends are concerned, their opinions are not worth listening to and if they scorn you after you marry this chap, their friendship — if you could call it that — wouldn't be worth having.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

SCIENCE FINDS THE QUEEN BEE'S SECRET OF HEALTH

Taken internally, a combination of honey and royal jelly is said to prolong youthful health.

In the Queen Bee, mother and undisputed ruler of the hive, may according to some scientists, lie the secret of health, beauty and prolonged youth for all of us. The Queen Bee grows larger, banishes and lives twelve times as long as any of her subjects, yet at birth she is not different from any of them.

What makes the difference is a milk-like jelly secreted in certain glands in the head of the bees that attend the royal nursery. This "royal jelly" as it is known, fed to the larvae, produces queens.

Scientists say royal jelly is rich in proteins and vitamins, particularly in the B complex. Among its other qualities, it is said to destroy bacteria in 10 seconds and to give new freshness to the skin. But it cannot be taken from the larvae when they are only two days old. Older than two days it rapidly loses its potency.

Both from the standpoint of health and of beauty, European scientists have been doing considerable experimentation with royal jelly. Dr. H. Demlade, 80-year-old French scientist, recently told a gathering of scientists that royal jelly might have been known to ancient Indians, Greeks and Romans. It might, he said, have been the "food for the Gods" or nectar mentioned in the mythology of these countries.

Prof. Riccardo Gallezzi-Lid, physician to Pope Pius XII, reported at the Second International Biogenetic Congress at Baden, Baden last April "that the substance obtained from bees 'getter royale', was responsible to a great degree" for the Pontiff's recovery from his recent illness.

Prof. P. Prospari of the Florence, Italy, Children's Clinic told the 16th International Beekeepers Congress in Vienna in August, that royal jelly might play a major role in treating infants, especially premature births, undernourished babies and those suffering from various ailments.

Needless to say, since the jelly must be extracted only from two day old larvae it is expensive. You can buy a pound of it wholesale for $50. But you wouldn't know what to do with a pound of it. Fortunately you only need small amounts of it at a time.

Various preparations containing royal jelly, both for internal and external use are now on the market at prices within the reach of the average woman's pocketbook. For internal use you can buy a two weeks' supply of capsules containing the jelly, or jars of honey, also containing the jelly, in pound or half pound sizes.

For external use there are various creams on the market all containing the allegedly youthifying substance which the bees have known about down through the ages.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

SHOULD HAVE BEE ONLY SISTER AS MAID OF HONOR

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it absolutely necessary for a bride-to-be to choose her only sister as her maid of honor? My mother insists this is true. I am really very devoted to my sister, but I must admit I am even more devoted to my girl friend and we have been extremely close friends, beginning with elementary school. Our friendship continued through high school, were roomates in college, and have worked together ever since in the same office. I would like to have her as my maid of honor, and have my sister as one of my two bridesmaids. But my mother is storming about this, insisting that it would give a "most unfortunate impression." What do you think about this?

— Dorothy K.

I firmly agree with your mother that for you to have your girl friend as your honor attendant and assign your sister to the secondary role of bridesmaid would unattractively dramatize the fact you prefer her to that you are more devoted to your friend than to your sister. Customarily, of course, a bride-to-be chooses her sister, particularly if she is an only sister, to be her honor attendant. So I urge you to change your plan . . . you certainly owe this traditional allegiance to your mother and to your sister . . . and if your friend is the right-thinking girl I am sure she is, she will be understanding and cooperative.

HOUSEWARMING BUFFET SERVICE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

As a housewarming party for our new house, we are about to give a cocktail party, using the dining room table for the buffet service. Should the food be placed toward one end of the table, and the cocktail service at the opposite end? — H.G.

It is usually more practical, makes for easier service, to put only the foods on the dining room table, and to place the drinks on a separate table, or possibly from the dining room sideboard. Do this separate table or sideboard, you should have at least two trays — one for the cocktail service, and one for non-alcoholic drinks.

HER CLUB . . .
HER INVITATIONS . . . HER FINANCIAL RESPONSIBILITY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I belong to a club in our school, a girl's club, and to raise money for a certain important activity we have in mind, we are planning to give a buffet-supper-dance. We have decided to charge three dollars a couple, each member of the club to invite a boy. Now that "going Dutch" is so accepted, I am wondering if I could suggest to the boy I'm going to invite that we "go Dutch," each paying a dollar-and-a-half. Would this be a proper thing to do? — Fran

No, "Going Dutch" is all right and certainly very sensible for many occasions, but when you have inviting a boy to be your guest at your club's party, it is your (and financial) responsibility to pay for his ticket (or admission) as well as your own. If he knows what's what he'll invite you to something later, and pay your way!)

SPOON AT RIGHT OF PLATE; FORK AT LEFT OF PLATE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please answer this question which came up in a meeting of our Woman's Club the other day: When setting the table for a luncheon for which the menu does not require a knife, what is the proper placing for the fork and spoon? — B.W.

The spoon is placed at the right of the plate, which is the correct place for a spoon, and the fork is placed at the left of the plate, which is the correct place for a fork. However, many punctilious hostesses, even if the menu doesn't actually call for a knife, have a knife placed at the right of the plate (1) for the convenience of any guest who wishes to use it, and (2) for the sake of artistic balance of the individual place.

RECEIVING-LINE IN VESTIBULE O CHURCH

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I like very much the idea of a small receiving-line in the vestibule of our church after the ceremony, but is this procedure proper? — Elise D.

It is proper for the bride and groom to receive the waiting guests in the vestibule of the church if, when there is to be no other reception anywhere else, or "if" when there is to be a very small reception at the home at which only the members of the family are present, or very close relatives and intimate friends are to be invited.

Readers' Saturday Column

As told to Mary Moore

QUESTION:

Last year you had in your column a recipe for mayonnaise which I found lovely. . . . cannot find it anywhere. . . . you had two in, first was mayonnaise and then French dressing.—Mrs. Wm. W.

ANSWER:

There are many recipes for mayonnaise. I will give you the recipe I use to make mayonnaise.

EMEN'S MAYONNAISE

Have all ingredients cold. Into a cold bowl put 3 egg yolks, 1 tablespoon each sugar, dry mustard and salt and beat until mixed and thick, using electric or rotary beater. Measure 2 cups cold salad oil and 1-3 cup lemon juice (or 1-3 and 1-3 vinegar and lemon juice). Begin to add the cold oil in the finest possible stream while beating constantly. Oil must not collect on top; it must be constantly incorporated as you beat, so must be added very slowly. When 1-4 of it is added add 1 tablespoon of the lemon juice, beat well, then continue adding oil in fine stream. Repeat until all oil and, lemon juice are used. Mixture should be thick enough to retain ridges when beater is removed. Store in refrigerator in covered jar.

LETTER:

You have helped me so often with wonderful recipes and hints that I would like to send you a few that I think are pretty good.

WONDERFUL SCALLOPED POTATOES

(Courtesy Lollie.)

Peel potatoes, slice thin, alternate layers with a sprinkling of flour, chunks of butter or margarine, salt, pepper and a slice or two of onion. Fill casserole almost to the top, dotting the top generously with butter to help it brown (Don't add the milk now.) Put casserole in moderate oven about 350 deg. F. Dry and bake for 15 minutes. In the meantime heat enough milk to about half fill your casserole. When potatoes have cooked 15 min. add the hot milk. By doing it this way your milk will not curdle. Put the potatoes back in the oven, and continue cooking until you can easily pierce them with a fork. Probably about 30 minutes. Good.

EASY ECONOMICAL POUND CAKE

(Courtesy Lollie.)

Two-thirds cup shortening, 1 1-4 cups sugar, 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 3-3 cup milk, 2 1-4 cups sifted cake flour, 1 1-4 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 3 eggs. Stir shortening to soften, gradually add sugar, and cream together until light and fluffy. Beat about 3 minutes medium speed on electric mixer. Add lemon peel and juice. Add milk and mix enough to break up curds. Sift together flour, salt, baking powder, add to mixture and mix until smooth (about 2 min, low speed). Scrape down at least once. Add eggs, 1 at a time, beating for 1 minute after each (low speed). Then, beat 1 min. at end. Scrape down sides and bottom of bowl. Bake in greased 9 1-2 by 5 1-2 by 2 3-4 inch loaf pan. (I like mine in longer pan which makes smaller slices—Lollie.) In oven 300 deg. Fahr. 1 hr. 20 min. Note—If butter is de-salted, add milk to 1-3 cup.

ANSWER:

Thank you Lollie. These are both wonderful and I recommend them.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

HOLY GHOST, WITH LIGHT DIVINE

Holy Ghost, with light divine,
Shine upon this heart of mine;
Chase the shadows of night away,
Turn my darkness into day.

Holy Ghost, with power divine,
Cleanse this guilty heart of mine;
Long hath sin, without control,
Held dominion o'er my soul.

Holy Ghost, with joy divine,
Cheer this saddened heart of mine;
Bid my many woes depart,
Heal my wounded, bleeding heart.

Holy Spirit, all divine,
Dwell within this heart of mine;
Cast down every idol throne,
Reign supreme, and reign alone.

Some of Christendom's most glorious hymns have been addressed to the Holy Spirit.

The Rev. Paul Gerhardt, distinguished German hymnist and pastor, gave us one of them:

"Holy Ghost, dispel our sadness,
Pierce the clouds of nature's night;
Come Thou source of joy and gladness,
Breathe Thy life, and spread Thy light."

Another was written by Marcus M. Wells, a New York lawyer:

"Holy Spirit, faithful Guide,
Ever near the Christian's side;
Gently lead us by the hand,
Pilgrims in a desert land."

But in all the list, perhaps, there is no song as popular as "Holy Ghost, With Light Divine" which was composed more than a century ago by the Rev. Andrew Reed; English clergyman and philanthropist. When it first appeared in one of his collections of hymns, in 1817, it carried the title "Prayer To The Spirit".

There were 4 double stanzas in that prayer-poem and the hymn is made up of the first half of each of the original verses.

Mr. Reed was a popular and widely known minister of the Independent Church group in England. Born in London in 1787, and graduated from Hackney College, he was called to the pastorate of a church in East London where he served for more than 50 years. Along with his pastoral work and religious poetry, he gave much of his time to philanthropic causes. In England today he is remembered as the founder of the London Orphan Asylum and other institutions for homeless, friendless children.

Baby That Battery In Cold Weather

By EUGENCE BELMORE

The simple fundamentals of good battery care are the same for all seasons, but they become especially vital during cold weather. As air temperature drops, the battery's function grows slower. The cranking efficiency decreases regardless of how new or charged it is. Yet during this time, more starting power is required.

Accessory demands on the battery will also rise in winter. Lights are needed more often, and a further drain is added when the car heater is used.

The idea, then, is to make certain you're ready for winter driving with a strong battery. Keep it well charged and check it frequently. Inspect battery posts and cables for any corrosion or looseness which would penalize cranking power.

Maintain water levels in the cells, but be sure to drive for a while before adding water in subfreezing temperatures. Never overfill—it can bring on corrosion and slow discharge.

H.D. writes: "I've had many guarageemen this question: Why does my right rear spring become noisy when it rains? In dry weather, you hear nothing."

A: Apparently, the spring is a bit loose. In the wet, the spring is lubricant, emphasizes this looseness.

From S.D.: "I have a 1951 V-8 model and water goes out the radiator overflow pipe. I have had the radiator boiled and flushed and have replaced the cap, but it didn't help at all. I also have had the thermostat taken out on the radiator. Incidentally, one of your articles stated that a heat radiator cap would cure this trouble. Please advise where the battle is located."

(A) A high-pressure head gasket leak could be your trouble. This would permit exhaust gases to get into the cooling system, forcing water out the overflow pipe, mostly at high speeds. The baffle plate is located in the upper tank before the radiator filler opening. If bent, it can misdirect water so that it goes out the overflow. However, I would assume this has already been checked by the specialists who have worked on the radiator.

S.J. asks: "Is the regulator supposed to protect the battery from being overcharged?"

(A) The regulator is a kind of automatic switch which controls the charging rate according to battery needs. In other words, it influences the generator charging rate when the battery is low, but reduces it when the battery is sufficiently charged.

From F.K.: "The car I drive, a V-8 model, has a twin exhaust system. Would like to know why I can notice, especially on a cold morning, exhaust coming out of the left bank while hardly anything comes out of the right bank."

(A) This is to be expected because of the location of the all-important heat control valve which aids combustion during warm-up. This valve is on the right exhaust manifold and channels heat from that side to the intake manifold and eventually out the left exhaust side.

SAFETY IS NO ACCIDENT!

Be careful about your driving! Be sure about your car.

Garden Notes

Daffodils Are Good Investment

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

There is no floral investment better than daffodils. No reputable nursery is necessary. Daffodils are bought the permanent. The bulbs will go on increasing and a few dollars invested each year will soon make a wonderful display of brilliant spring bloom.

Using care in selecting the bulbs for time of bloom you may have daffodils in bloom for six weeks. Look for early, mid-season and late when reading over your bulb catalogue.

There are several distinct types in the daffodil family and they range in height from three inches to the new Pink giant which is a new hybrid. The cup being definitely rose pink. In the small cup class many have a touch of scarlet to contrast in the cup edges. Lady Kesteven has large shaped perianth segments with cherry red cup. This one is fast color in sunlight. Polar Ice is a true Leedsi with snow white perianth and cream white crown with slight green tings at centre. This is most unusual and has a beautiful appearance.

TRY NEW TYPES

Try a few of the newer daffodils. True they do cost more than the old sorts but they add new and interesting forms and do provide lovely bloom.

February Gold is one of the earliest. This is a robust yellow type. Ada Finch is a giant white trumpet and so is mount Hood.

In the mid-season sorts you will often find brilliant red or orange coloring. Such are Dick Wellland, Kansas, Selma Lagerolf, Scarlet Elegance, and Poeticus.

For the cheaper there is a good choice too. The three Copelands are very showy, forcing, for cutting and for bedding. Irene Copeland is strong stemmed, white with yellow eye-lets. Mary Copeland is a handsome white with orange cup-lets. Cassata is one of the best daffodils to bloom. Mrs. William Copeland is a new hybrid with full double white bloom and pale yellow segments, Texas is a sensation. Miss Willmott is double yellow and orange. The stems are not sturdy enough to stand strong winds. Indian chief is just as handsome in a bright scarlet stems.

For pot culture choose some Tricandrus Thalis. This has pendulous flowers borne several to a stem like tiny carnations. It is a glistening white. Also at home in the garden.

Daffodil is the English name, and the latin form is narcissus. Either name is considered correct. The Jonquil is related but not the same flower. It belongs to a family of round leaved, or rush leaved plants. They have clusters of bloom like the narcissus. But is also a lovely fragrance. In this class you will find Juncifolius a tiny butter cup yellow flower excellent for pot or rock garden. Minimus the smallest of this group is only three inches tall. Nanus is white and sulphur yellow, six inches high. Odorus (Lord lily) the most early and earliest is eight inches tall. Angel Tears (Triandrus Albus) is a daisy white cluster type which is not hardy in the open can be safely grown in pots to brighten late winter days.

FINE STAR.

"That's the best hockey I've seen here."

"If they play like that, they'll get the crowds."

"There's nothing wrong with the club. They have lots of spirit and fight."

The above were a few of the remarks of what appeared to be a delighted crowd of nearly 1700 who filed out of Memorial Arena after the McFarland's 4-3 thriller-win over Cornwall last night.

It was an action-packed battle from whistle to whistle, one that gave ample evidence of the marked difference between Senior "A" and senior "B" types of the winter game.

The dash and fire of the McFarlands, their ability to give and take the bumps appeared to delight the large opening night crowd. And the thrilling climax to an action-packed battle came fittingly in overtime when Andy Morrisette, who fired the first Belleville senior "A" marker, slammed home the winner after 3.33 of the extra-session.

On his play last night Don Larwin, the McFarland's goalie, came through with flying colors. His diminutive netminder gave an outstanding exhibition, as did his counterpart, Gerry Devanney in the Chevvy garage at the other end.

Bep Guidolin has a hard-fighting spirited crew of puck-chasers, who appear to delight in the rugged going. And the Belleville contingent of last night, Keith MacDonald, the Jansen brothers and Vern Goyer appear quite capable of fitting in with the scheme of things.

All in all it was a highly satisfactory performance for an opening night and Joe Tom, the severest critic of all, appeared to like what he saw. It is many a season since these sport-weary ears heard such favorable fan reaction as that of last night.

When the McFarlands hit their full stride and are at full strength and judging from tonight's game they should rate comparable to any team in the league.

Down in Kingston Les Douglas' CKLC's held the highly-rated Whitby Dunlops to a 5-4 overtime victory after spotting them a 3-1 lead. According to exhibitional performances and their strength on paper, the Dunlops were joined to win by a half dozen goals, but Douglas had other ideas.

From last night's results, it looks as though the schedule will be a series of hard-fought battles throughout with none safe. Blair's "bush-league" scores adorning the books.

ONE OR NO PLAY

Meanwhile, it appears that Whitby may have to do without the services of controversial Ted O'Connor, Windsor Bulldogs defenceman, who wants to play with his hometown Dunlops. Bulldogs manager Georgie Gee has steadfastly refused to release O'Connor, and according to Dunlop's manager Wren Blair, has put a $7,000 price tab on the parchment. This the Dunlops refuse to pay, although Blair admits he would part with some cash for the player but not the "ransom" price asked.

Chick Appel, Stratford Beacon Herald sports editor, wrote in his column yesterday that Gee has asked and received suspensions of both O'Connor and Jack Armstrong, another player who has refused to report to the Dogs. "They may sit this one out," remarks Chick.

NO NEW FACES ON CANADIENS

The defending Stanley Cup champions, Montreal Canadiens, start the 1954-55 N.H.L. season with the same team that won hockey's most prized team trophy last Spring. There is not a single new face on the power-laden aggregation. Also, with the exception of Bert Olmstead, left-winger on the high-scoring Bellive au-Geoffrion-Olmstead line, every player on the Montreal roster has played all of his N.H.L. hockey with the Canadiens.

* * *

N.H.L. STARTING TIMES

Toronto Maple Leafs will start all of their home games at 8.00 p.m. this season. Montreal Canadiens will start their Thursday games at 8.30 and their Saturday contests at 8.15 p.m.

New York Rangers, who have found the 7.00 p.m. starting time on Sundays very popular with their fans, will once again start their Sunday games at 7. Other night games will start at 8.30. Detroit Red Wings will play all thenr night games at Olympic Stadium starting at 8.30.

Boston Bruins, like Detroit, will start all of their night games at home at 8.30. Chicago Black Hawks will start their games at home on Sunday nights at 7.30 and their games on other nights at 8.30.

Boston, New York and Detroit will start their Saturday afternoon games at 2.00 p.m., while Chicago will start their Saturday afternoon tilts at 1.00 p.m.

Conacher Chip Of Old Block

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Lionel Conacher Friday proved himself quite a chip of the "old block" when he paced University of Western Ontario Colts to a 15-14 win over University of Toronto Baby Blues in an intermediate Intercollegiate Football Union game at Little Stadium.

It was the second straight win for Jack Fairs' Western squad.

Fairs, like his famous father and reportedly stocked with the same potential, young Lionel scored both touchdowns. He smashed over from five yards in the first quarter for the first and in the second quarter, he took a handoff at the Western 31 and dashed 9 yards for the second.

ON VOLUNTARY BASIS

SUDBURY (CP) — Principals and school boards of Ontario secondary schools are to seek a modern oradium pointing out that money, other than for book rental, collected from students is on a voluntary basis. Education Minister Dunlop ordered an investigation at Sudbury High School last month when it was revealed that collections were being taken without students or parents being aware they were on a voluntary basis.

Offence That Much Improved Over '55 Squad, Says Watson; Try to Break Hab Jinx Tonight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Phil Watson, the next best thing to a walking adding machine, has made known the annual production figures he hopes New York Rangers will achieve in the National Hockey League this season.

Last year coach Watson demanded, not asked, that Ranger players produce at least 200 goals. He got 204 over the 70 - game route and Rangers finished third in the league race. He wanted no more than 185 goals scored against him but the final count showed 201.

This campaign it's going to be different, Phil says.

"It was not the team's fault that so many goals were scored against us. It was goaltender Gump Worsley, who had a miserable second half last term."

AIMS HIGHER

Watson thinks his offence has improved so much for the 1954-55 campaign that he wants 235 goals, or 15 more than the Stanley Cup scored last season when ran away from the pack.

"From Andy Bathgate, Dean Prentice, Danny Lewicki and Andy Hebenton, I want 25 goals each. We play 14 games with each team—seven at home and seven on the road. I expect three from each player at home against each of the other five teams and two from each man on the road. Do you think that is too much?"

Watson has made enhancements to stay back and protect Worsley this season.

"That's different from last year. I'll still settle for 185 goals against us, or an average of 3.7 per game. And from the two shutouts in our first five games, I think everything is going to work out. Watch our defence this year. It's going to be a lot tighter defensively than in the past."

HAVE'S & HAVE NOTS

Phil isn't thinking in terms of first, second, third or fourth place for his team. "Everything, all I want: the club to get is a total of 85 points, of which he thinks 55 should be at home, 30 on the road.

If Rangers had won 85 points last season they would have had them in second place, nine ahead of Detroit Red Wings. Instead they compiled 74 points, two back of Wings.

Rangers will be out to break a jinx tonight which has haunted them for three seasons. They play Canadiens at Montreal, where they haven't won a regular-season contest since Nov. 19, 1954, in 12 games. They managed to squeeze out a 4-4 tie there last March during the playoffs, Rangers' only win in the best-of-seven series.

The Habs, who drew some lusty boos Boston Bruins, tied with Montreal for fourth position with them, meet the Maple Leafs at Toronto. Leafs are deadlocked with Rangers in second spot with four points, three behind the league-leading Wings.

BRUINS ON LIMP

Bruins visit Detroit and Chicago Black Hawks, entertain Rangers with only a tie in four starts, play at New York in Sunday's contests. Bruin coach Milt Schmidt says his club isn't in "very good shape."

"Two of our defencemen are out and Johnny Peirson has a charley horse."

The injured rearguards are Jack Blonde and Allan Stanley. Blonde broke an ankle bone at training camp and won't be back for a few weeks. Stanley suffered a severe leg cut and will be out of action for several weeks. Peirson is expected to play against Leafs tonight but will not be at his best.

Whitby Edges Kingston 5-4 In Overtime

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If opening-night scores are any indication of things to come, the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior A competition should be close.

Of the four league games played Friday night, two went into overtime, a third was a one-goal decision and the other a 6-3 win.

Both overtime games were played in the new Eastern Group of the league. Whitby Dunlops edged Kingston CKLC's 5-4 and Belleville McFarlands downed Cornwall Chevvies 4-3 in extra time.

In other games, Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen spoiled the home debut for the 1955 - 56 Eastern champion Chatham Maroons, winning 6-3, and Stratford Indians came back to earn a 4-2 verdict over Windsor Bulldogs.

The Ontario Junior and Ontario Senior A Southern Group series, Sudbury Wolves beat Sault Ste. Marie Indians a 5-3 loss. It was the second straight defeat for Indians.

South Porcupine Porkies defeated Timmins-Schumacher Flyers 7-5 in the Porcupine Mines Senior League to round out the Ontario senior hockey picture for the night.

At Kingston, the visiting Dunlops took two goals each from Bill Watson, Wren Blair and Ross Lonsberry, who scored three goals, including the winning goal. Playing-coach Bus Gagnon and Jimmy O'Connor fired the other Whitby goals.

Kingston outscored Whitby in third period were Don Senior with two, and Al Larose with a single.

Belleville Trounces 4-2

Belleville treated 1,700 home fans to a thrilling win after losing in a see-saw battle through the last period.

Morrissette, MacDonald and Minnie Minard scored for the winners in regulation time and Morrissette fired the deciding goal after three minutes of overtime.

Pete Palangio with two goals and Bill Bought scored for Cornwall.

Ron Knox and Don Rope scored for Kitchener before 3,000 Chatham fans. Bouncer Bob Bowman and Jone Marcon to find the mark.

At Stratford, 2,000 excited fans saw Lindy Dennison from a two-goal deficit to win 4-2.

After Walt Wyshynski and Gordie Haldy shot Windsor into a 2-0 lead, Joe Schertzl, Bobby Mader and Ron Stewart for Stratford locked up the victory for Stratford.

At Sudbury, 4,424 fans watched their defending champion Wolves pile up a 3-0 lead in the first period, then coast to victory.

Scoring for Sudbury were Bill Watson, Ron Rubic, Joe Zorica, Armand Lamieux and Gord Byers. Gordie Fashoway, John Sabonis and Julien Klymkiew counted for Sault Ste. Marie.

The game at Timmins, which also went into overtime, saw Blackie Kulik and Billy Adams score two goals each for Porkies, with singles by Ron Mitchell, Eddie Fedor and Jiec Bazinet.

Kenny Truscott had three goals for Flyers. Johnny Young and Reg Campbell scored single goals.

Boxing Cards Will Stay Put

NEW YORK (AP)—Boxing officials in New York state will not be permitted to make changes on their scorecards in fights after Nov. 1 unless they immediately ask the commissioner "for whoever is in charge" to correct an error, Julius Helfand, chairman of the state athletic commission, in announcing the change Friday, also said a simplified scorecard also will be used by officials after Nov. 1. The rounds system, plus the supplementary point system, which has been in effect for years, will be continued. The supplementary point system helps break draws.

TO OPEN COURSE

60 army units will be held at the National Civil Defence College, Arnprior, Ont., Dec. 10 to 14, Friday.

Senators Will Not Move From Capital

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington Senators will be back at the same old stand next year.

After two weeks of talk that Washington's American League baseball franchise would be transferred to another city, the club's five directors voted unanimously Friday to stay here.

Afterward, Calvin Griffith, president of the Senators, said, "We will stay here the rest of our lives."

The decision came after many baseball followers here had become convinced the Senators probably would be playing out of Los Angeles next season.

FOUR BIDDERS

Published reports had pictured Griffith as anxious to move to a city where his club could make more money. And, it was indicated, he preferred Los Angeles over Louisville, San Francisco and Minneapolis, the other cities bidding for the franchise.

Griffith said the directors decided that what they have here is better than anything offered them by the other cities. But he said there was no specific proposal of measure to help the club, beset by low attendance after successive finishes near the bottom of the league.

A committee from the Washington Board of Trade promised Griffith Thursday to help with ticket sales. Griffith also was told that the committee thought a new stadium should be built here within a few years.

BAKER-CARTER BOUT

NEW YORK (AP)—The International Boxing Club Friday signed heavyweight contenders Bob Baker of Pittsburgh and Harold Carter, Linden, N.J., for a 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden Nov. 16.

HURRICANE INJURED

ROCKAWAY BEACH, N.Y. (AP)—Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson, 27-year-old heavyweight boxer suffered slight injuries Friday in an automobile accident.

He was treated at hospital for leg bruises and minor facial lacerations after his automobile and another collided at an intersection.

Argo Outlook Not too Bright For Win Over Rough Riders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Argonauts took their first workout in Ottawa today for probably their most important Big Four Football Union game of the season. They'll be fighting for their playoff life.

The Argos, in last place after five straight losses, meet the Rough Riders in the first of their two-game series. A loss would leave them with only a prayer and a hope of making the third and last playoff berth.

The immediate outlook isn't bright for Toronto, crippled with injuries and their morale doubtful following the fuss the club executive churned up after firing backfield coach Bill Kirkley Wednesday night. To top it off, they learned Friday that halfback O. K. Ferguson, their leading ground gainer, is suffering from a severe bout of flu and will not be available for today's game.

Argonauts trail Rough Riders by two points. They must beat the Riders today and next week in Toronto to keep their playoff hopes alive. A loss today would leave them four points behind the third-place Riders and the best they could do after that would tie for third place providing they won their last two games and the Riders lost both theirs.

The premium is off for the two other Big Four teams, Montreal Alouettes and Hamilton Tiger-Cats. The league-leading Als, six points up on the second-place Tiger-Cats, can clinch the No. 1 position and a bye in the three-team playoffs with a victory.

Both clubs will be at full strength.

Meanwhile, the Senior Intercollegiate Union hits the halfway mark with games at Toronto and Kingston. Varsity Blues, tied with Queen's Golden Gaels, are at home to the University of Western Ontario Mustangs and the Gaels meet McGill Redmen at Kingston. The Redmen, pre-season favorites to take the college title won last season by Queen's, are winless after two games. They lost 6-3 to Mustangs at London two weeks ago and last Saturday dropped a 15-13 decision to Varsity.

The troubled Ontario Rugby Football Union has two games on tap—an afternoon meeting at Sarnia between the Golden Bears and Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen and a night game at London with the Lordsmen entertaining Toronto Beaches.

McFarlands Edge Cornwall 4-3 In Thrilling Senior Overtime Battle

Morrisette Scores Winner In Fourth Minute Extra Session; Action Thrills 1637 Fans

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Nearly 1700 fans put the stamp of approval on Eastern Ontario senior "A" hockey here last night when the Belleville McFarlands inaugurated the season with a thrill-packed 4-3 overtime victory over the Cornwall Chevrolets.

André Morrisette, flashy McFarland winger, was the hero of the piece. Not only did he score the first marker in senior "A" competition here, but his thrilling goal that climaxed a brilliant three-way passing play with Peter Jones and Floyd Crawford after three minutes of overtime, was a sparkling victory finish to the action-packed battle.

Don Larwin, McFarland goalie, and counterpart Gerry Devanney, shared starring honors. Both goalies were sensational at times and their sparkling work drew the plaudits of the crowd on not a few occasions.

Keith MacDonald and Hilary (Minnie) Menard were the other McFarland standouts, with Peter Jones and Floyd Payette, Lucien Gilbert and Lloyd Crawford

[illegible] scored twice for the Chevvies with George Farm's, [illegible] Bougie getting the other goal. "Kikoute" Joanette was credited with two helpers.

It was hard-hitting rugged hockey from whistle to whistle with the one-referee, two-linesmen officiating in effect — and not proving popular with the fans.

The McFarlands raced away to a first period lead, but the Chevies roared back with a pair to knot the count at the end of the second heat. The Guidolin crew ripped into the lead again after six minutes of the third period but a screened shot from a few feet out with eight minutes to go in the third frame again tied the score.

Then came Morrisette's brilliant goal in the overtime session and the McFarlands skated off with their first victory.

Referee Ned Vitarelli of Peterborough handled Don Barrett and Bill Hurst of Belleville working as linesmen handed out ten penalties — five to the McFarlands, one a misconduct to Benoit.

Coach Ken Guidolin did not dress Willie Menard and Henri Therrien since they have not as yet been cleared by their former clubs. The club meets Cornwall again tomorrow on the latter's ice.

To Andy Morrisette went the honor of scoring the first goal for Belleville under its new senior "A" colors.

The speedy winger brought the crowd to its feet with a blazing drive high shot after three minutes of play with the Jones brothers getting in on the kill.

It was terrifically fast hockey for an opening game with both teams hitting hard and often.

MacDonald drew the first penalty of the game but sturdy defence work and a fine exhibition by Don Larwin in the McFarland net kept the Chevies scoreless.

Bingley drew the thumb for boarding at 9.44 and seconds later St. Louis joined him. Coach Guidolin finished his power play and Keith MacDonald drove in Hilary Menard's pass to put the McFarlands two up.

Play grew faster toward period end and both Larwin and Devanney had narrow squeaks. The MacFarlands had a definite edge in the play, backed up from nobody and were driving hard all period.

A rash of penalties broke out in the second period with the crowd booing Vitarelli's hoisting of Benoit for a misconduct and Peter Jones and Cornwell's Payette for interference.

Joanette engineered a neat passing play after a minute of play with Payette scoring from a three-man drive.

The McFarlands played fine defensive hockey with men down to hold the driving Chevvies off the score sheet.

Both goalies were brilliant at times kicking out close-in drives. Paul Payette's slashing drive whipped past Devanney at six minutes but it was ruled offside. Guidolin and Payette had the crowd on its feet with brilliant passing forays.

St. Louis got the heave-ho and the McFarlands gave Devaney a busy minute or so. Both teams were fairly flying and with less than three minutes to go Bougie and Belmore climaxed a two-man drive with the former scoring the tying goal.

LUCIEN GILBERT
. . . Screams Shot

MAURICE BENOIT
. . . Hits 'Em Hard

The McFarlands put on terrific pressure opening the third period outshooting the Chevvies 10-1 in the first eight minutes. After six minutes of play Hilary Menard again shot the Macks into the lead deflecting Gilbert's shot past Devaney when parked-close to his doorstep.

A minute later Paul Payette waltzed in on top of the Chevvy goalie and Devaney reached out and picked the puck off his stick.

Pete Payette of the Chevvies scored his second goal of the night finishing off a three-man drive with St. Louis and Joanette. Payette picked up the puck in front of the Belleville defence and drove a screened shot past Larwin to again knot the count.

Both teams battled desperately

The Gardenia, the first of three rich races at Garden State Park in the next seven days, has drawn 13 probable starters, including two supplementary entries.

An overnight 5-to-2 choice, Romanita's biggest competition was expected from Ada L. Rice's Great Pride.

Maine Chance Farm's Jet Charm, to be ridden by Willie Hartack, also is well rated. Others in the probable field are William G. Helis' Flight n' Lovely, Elmendorf's Gossamer, C. V. Whitney's entry of Snow White and Magic Forest, White Oak Stable's Magic Spell, Hasty House Farm's Hobability, Rex C. Ellsworth's Molly Maid, Howard A. Jones' Therpay, and Eugene Constantin Jr.'s Royal Boat.

The Gardenia will be followed by the $25,000 - added Grenton Handicap Wednesday for three-year-olds and up. The Garden State Stakes, the most valuable race in the United States at some $300,000, will be run for two-year-olds a eek from today.

for the tie breaker and again the goalie came through with fine work. At one time the puck stopped dead on the Belleville goal line.

Came the overtime and one of the better passing plays of the night when Morrisette drove home the winner.

The McFarlands outshot the Chevvies 40-34.

Riders Bring Back Old Jinx In Effort to Oust Argonauts

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders today brought back memories from their football past by inviting Bohn Hilliard to the kickoff ceremonies for today's Big Four game with Toronto Argonauts.

If Riders win the game, which would practically wash out Argonauts' hopes of making the playoffs it's an odds-on bet Argos will claim Hilliard jinxed them.

For it was the same Bohn Hilliard, then playing under the assumed name of Roy Berry, who in 1935 led Riders to a victory that spoiled Argos' elimination from Big Four title contention.

Ottawa wasn't a contender that year, but the win over Argos on the last scheduled game of the season, combined with a Hamilton victory over Montreal, gave the Tigers the league championship. Hamilton went on to the Grey Cup final, dropping the decision to Winnipeg in the two - game final cup victory.

Hilliard arrived from Texas Friday night with his wife at the invitation of long - time friend Bob Thomson, a Rough Riders club director. It is his first visit here since the now - famous "Roy Berry" episode.

"It was entirely my own idea to take the name of Roy Berry," Hilliard said in an interview.

The former all-American halfback blamed under the assumed name because a half-season on a semi-pro baseball team in Texas would have disqualified him under Big Four amateur standards of the day. The name actually belongs to a friend who played with Tulsa University while Hilliard played for the University of Texas.

The truth came out after the last fateful game against Argos.

He some misarrangement, Hilliard left for Texas on the same train the beaten and bitter Argos took to Toronto. Argo players and Toronto newspaper men spotted his real name, Bohn Hilliard, on baggage tags. It was almost, but not quite, enough to cause a riot.

The story broke the following morning and the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, then in annual session at Halifax, threatened an investigation unless somebody but the Ottawa water boy.

But the matter was quietly dropped in the committee rooms and nobody was suspended.

Hilliard hung up his cleats and went back to Texas where he worked for a state government for 16 years before going into a savings and loans business in Arlington, Tex., four years ago.

Wallace Will Meet Durelle 'At Anytime'

BRANTFORD (CP) — Gordon Wallace, British Empire light heavyweight champ, says he will meet Yvon Durelle of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B. "anytime, anywhere, if the money is right."

Durelle, Canadian light heavyweight king, said in Saint John, N.B., Friday night he is "very much interested" in a fight with Wallace, whom he has beaten three times in three fights.

A fight with Durelle for Wallace's crown was sanctioned Friday night by the British boxing board of boxing control, through C. E. Garrett, foreign co-ordinator of the Canadian Boxing Federation.

"I'll meet him in the morning before breakfast, after supper and twice on Sunday," the rugged Durelle said. He added that he has even offered to fight Wallace for nothing.

OFFERS TOO SMALL

In his Brantford home, Wallace said he and his manager Frank Bricker have received two fight offers from Moncton, N.B., promoter Chris Shaban, but they have been "much too small for a title fight."

He brushed aside the fact Durelle has lost to him three times, saying "that was when I was just starting out as a pro."

"He did pretty much damage to me then and now I'm sure I could make it pretty rough for him."

"They'll have to offer me more money," Wallace says, and his manager threatens to go to South Africa for a bout with contender Mike Holt if a bout with Durelle does not materialize soon.

Drop Norman From Golf Team Amateur Status Is Questioned

TORONTO (CP)—Moe Norman, Canada's clownish golf champion Friday night had his amateur status questioned and was bounced from the international team competing in American Cup play.

The Kitchener star was dropped from the team by J. P. Anglin of Montreal, president of the Royal Canadian Golf Association and non-playing American team captain, because there was "serious doubt" about his amateur status.

Following an informal meeting of RCGA governors Friday night, Anglin issued a statement which said Norman had been barred on the basis of evidence submitted to C. E. Robinson, secretary-manager of the RCGA. He did not elaborate.

In Toronto to attend a testimonial dinner in honor of Marlene Stewart of Foothill, Anglin said he had tried all day to reach Norman at his Kitchener home.

ISSUES STATEMENT

He said in a statement:

"As captain of the Canadian team for Americas Cup matches in Mexico, I have had no alternative but to decide that in view of the facts furnished to me and Moe's evident refusal to see me or even to answer my telephone calls, the RCGA cannot clear him on its international amateur team.

"Before reaching this decision, which is a matter of the greatest regret to me, I consulted with the governors of the RCGA who were available and they unanimously concurred in this decision."

Norman's place in the Mexico City matches next week will be taken by Doug Bajus of Vancouver, selected earlier in the year by the RCGA as first alternate.

Norman this year won his second consecutive Canadian Amateur championship. He was named Ontario Golfer of the Year in 1954.

Campy Hits Two Homers In Dodgers Win

TOKYO (AP) — Catcher Roy Campanella drove in six runs with two homers — one with the bases filled — and Clem Labine pitched four-hit ball today to give Brooklyn Dodgers a 7-1 triumph over Japan's Central League all-stars.

The victory made it one win against one loss for the Dodgers on their Japanese tour. They dropped their opening game to Tokyo Giants 5-4.

Labine had a shutout until the ninth inning, when the all-stars rallied with two away.

Giambra Wins Split Verdict Over Turner

NEW YORK (AP)—To the victor belongs the spoils but sometimes there's a right to be disgruntled.

Such was the case Friday night when sharpshooting Joey Giambra, Buffalo, N.Y., middleweight contender, gained a split decision in 10 rounds with hustling Gil Turner of Philadelphia.

A 3-1 underdog and spotting his 7½ pounds — 158 to 150½ — Giambra outscored Turner carried the fight all the way to his hardest-hitting rival. At the finish Turner was tired and wobbling but still firing away with both hands.

Giambrano's jury connected with at least 29 solid shots to Turner's 16 in the fiery final round of the television fight and still couldn't floor him.

Gil was battling to stay on the big time after three successive defeats. The defeat won't eliminate him.

Giambra's manager, George Katz, said Gil will fight only in the welterweight class from now on.

FINANCE LAW STUDY

OXFORD, England (Reuters)— The Rockefeller Foundation has granted Oxford University up to $10,000 to promote study of Commonwealth law. It was announced here. The grant will cover the cost of a sub-committee of the university administration which will visit law libraries in the United States and Britain.

Providence Ties With Americans

Johnny Bower, 30-year-old Providence defence goalie, must be wondering today whether that was a defence or an alibi he had in front of him in Rochester Friday night.

Jerseys saw more rubber than a whirlwind inspector in a tire factory as he stopped 48 shots to preserve a 1-1 tie for Providence with the Americans.

The defending AHL champion Reds moved into a first-place tie with Hershey.

Glen Cressman scored the only goal against Bower, early in the end of the game. Bruce Cline had put the Reds ahead earlier in the third period.

Foes of Britain Score Big Gains In Jordan Vote

Party Urging Endorsement With Syria, Egypt Leads

African Turns Out to Be 160 Years Old

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (Reuters) — William Bisset, an African who thought his age was "merely" 159 has turned out to be about 160 years old.

Bisset's age was discovered when he walked briskly into the district surgeon's office here for a medical examination for tax redemption purposes.

Doctors found his health good, intellect and memory unaffected, and on questioning him, discovered that he clearly remembered details of Fort Elizabeth in 1820, and gave a full description of the arrival of British settlers here in 1820.

Bisset gave this reason for his long life: a daily diet of porridge, moderate drinking—and heavy smoking.

Frost Says Plan Will Need Great Care, Prudence

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Frost said today that a government hospital-insurance plan for Ontario is possible, but it will need "great care and prudence" if it is to be established on economic burden on the province.

He told the Ontario Hospital Association that even small errors in planning could cost millions of dollars. It would be "better not to leave it alone" than to rush into it.

His remarks were made in a text released to the press before delivery.

Mr. Frost outlined three problems:

The number of persons seeking hospital treatment would increase sharply after a government plan was started. Admission to hospitals would have to be limited to persons who could not be treated elsewhere.

Specialized services requiring the work of highly-trained personnel would have to be kept in larger municipalities. Providing specialist services in communities where they could not be properly maintained would only add to hospital costs.

Hospital construction would have to be controlled and watched closely. Expansion of hospitals across Ontario had not been uniform, leaving some areas well supplied, some over supplied and some with inadequate facilities. An over-all provincial plan would have to be laid down for the whole province.

Mr. Frost said that hospital insurance in Ontario would cost $300,000,000 in four years. A federal offer of assistance to the province would meet about 48 per cent of that cost.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: A high pressure area extending from south of Nova Scotia to Lake Michigan is giving Ontario fine autumn weather. However, a disturbance centred over Northern Minnesota will move across Central Ontario Tuesday giving scattered showers in the north country. The cold air in the wake of this storm will push into Southern Ontario by Tuesday evening but no precipitation is expected in the southern region.

AMMAN, Jordan (Reuters) — Candidates opposed to Jordan's traditional alliance with Britain today gained a majority in the new 40-seat parliament.

With 35 of the 40 seats counted from elections Sunday, the groups demanding a closer Arab alliance and severance of the 1948 Anglo-Jordan treaty had won 21 seats.

Results of the final five seats, located in the Amman district, are expected tonight.

Three pro-Communists and a pro-Communist sympathizer of the National Bloc party—one of them Dr. Yaroub Zayadin, who topped the poll in Jerusalem — gained seats. Two Communists were elected as Independents.

The National Socialist party, headed by Amman lawyer Suliman Nabulsi, which advocates abrogation of the Anglo-Jordan alliance and friendship with Egypt and eventual union with Egypt, made the biggest gains and appears likely to be the largest group in the next parliament.

The Constitutional party, which held the largest number of seats apart from the Nationalists in the last parliament, lost heavily and had only two seats at the three-quarter mark in the counting.

According to informed sources here, the four-month-old caretaker government of Prime Minister Syed Ibrahim Hashem will probably resign Tuesday. The new house is expected to meet Thursday.

Find Princess Is Suffering From Overstrain

MACHAKOS, Kenya (AP)—Doctors attending Princess Margaret in East Africa said today that she is suffering from overstrain.

A bulletin on her health issued by physicians said that the princess was well enough to continue her full program. She suffered a sudden illness at Nairobi on Saturday.

Today the princess motored 43 miles to attend a banana here—a tribal festival highlighting the famous Kamba dance. One dance represented the battle between the Wakamba tribe and their traditional enemies, the Masai.

Watching the mock battle were representatives of a mixed Kamba-Masai political committee which only recently concluded an agreement to cease cattle raiding between the two tribes.

When the dance showed Kamba warriors defeating the Masai, the Masai spectators muttered ominously. But the strained peace held.

Woman, 82, Locked in Bathroom For Eight Days Without Bite to Eat

NEW YORK (AP) — In eight days without a bite to eat, you begin to think about the end, especially when you're 82.

For eight harrowing days and nights, Mrs. Henrietta A. Engelhard, who is 82, had been an accidental prisoner in her own apartment, in the heart of the city.

"I thought I was going to have to die that way," she said. "that I'd starve gradually to death."

There wasn't even space to lie down, "and the only thing she had to drink was water.

"It was horrible," Mrs. Emhardt said today, her ordeal over.

A week ago Friday, on the afternoon of Oct. 12, Mrs. Emhardt became locked in the bathroom of her apartment on the fifth floor on 52nd Street, where she lives alone.

She had backed against the door, jammed it tightly, and was in trying to open it, had pulled the handle off the doorknob. The rod slipped out on the other side. She was trapped.

She shouted, until her voice gave out, and pounded until her fists went raw, and beat with a brush on the water pipes until she was so weak she couldn't lift her arms.

"For the first four or five days, oh, how I bounced on the door all day and night with all my might, hoping and praying that someone would help me.

"Over the water pipes, I could hear the sounds of people all over the house, and I couldn't understand how they could be so heartless as not to come."

On Sunday, the third day, she began to feel faint and dizzy and became. And then after another day or so, she knew her time was no hope left. But she hung on.

"There was no place to stretch out to fall gracefully on the floor," she said. "When I'd try to lie down, my whole body would go into cramps."

In a kind of a listless, gnawing eternity, the time ran on. Saturday, at times, she'd hear her television set, but it never occurred her prison door.

Unknown to her, in Darien, Conn., a cousin had been phoning repeatedly. Worried, he finally asked police to check on her.

That was last Saturday night, Oct. 20. Police knocked down the bathroom door. A plucky Mrs. Emhardt, her spirits unbroken and her physical condition not weak but well, said of their coming:

"You can never tell how thankful I was."

EXPECT BULGANIN TO REPLY QUICKLY TO IKE'S BLAST

Eisenhower Says Red Meddles in U.S. Vote

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russia's Premier Bulganin almost certainly will fire a quick reply to a letter from President Eisenhower accusing the Red leader's party of meddling in the American political campaign.

But whether he does or not, Bulganin's letter seems sure to become a major political issue in the United States in the closing two weeks, with both Republicans and Democrats seeking to use it to their advantage in the debate over continuance of hydrogen bomb testing.

Officials who forecast that Bulganin will reply promptly said they expect him to deny any intention of interfering in the U.S. political campaign by his surprise message Friday renewing his appeal for an end to atomic and H-bomb tests.

Foregoing diplomatic language for the moment, Eisenhower replied into Bulganin's newest plea as he wrote he had attached "my own sincerity" and was "personally offensive to me" in its attack on the Secretary Dulles.

KEEP IT IMPERATIVE

In predicting a speedy reply from Bulganin, diplomatic officials in Washington said it was aware of such a serious nature that almost any government would feel compelled to reply promptly.

They acknowledged that if Bulganin should use the same language Eisenhower used, it will virtually end prospects that major disarmament talks can be held to concrete steps toward world disarmament.

An end to the Eisenhower-Bulganin exchanges, however, would not disappoint high American officials. Many have felt for months that the President is relying on them as convenient propaganda avenues more than as any serious attempt at negotiation.

Eisenhower said that if an ambassador-level talk on disarmament did, he would be expelled from the country.

In denouncing Bulganin's letter, Eisenhower in effect accused the Soviet Premier of seeking to use a helping hand to Adlai E. Stevenson, Democratic presidential nominee, who has been urging that the U.S. take the lead in working toward an end to bigscale nuclear tests.

Question Boy, 11, After Third Fire

ACTON, Ont. (CP) — Police have questioned a 11-year-old boy for questioning today following a third fire in the Acton Public Hall since Thanksgiving.

The boy was picked up Sunday night shortly after the fire when the wife of a fireman described a boy she said bore a striking resemblance to the fire broke out.

INDIANS REBURY 700-YEAR-OLD BONES

Iroquois Chief Hastawehirsirihteta, left, of Brantford's Six Nations reserve, presents a basket of sacred tobacco to Reeve Gus Harris of Scarboro, Ont. Presentation occurred at the site of the recently discovered 700-year-old Iroquois village of Scarboro. The sacred tobacco was scattered on fires to appease the gods. Later, some 260 Indians marked the Feast of the Dead, a reburying ceremony of the ancient bones found in the ruins of the village.

U.S. May Aid New Polish Government if It Survives

WASHINGTON (AP)—A reappraisal of United States policy toward Communist Poland is in the making, and the chances appear good that Poland's new, independent Red leadership can obtain American economic aid if it wishes—and if it survives.

State Secretary Dulles told a television audience Sunday night —after conferring with President Eisenhower—that anything which weakens the "great structure" of Soviet Communist power "can lead to its breaking up" is in the interest of the U.S.

His words on this and other aspects of the sensational revolt in Warsaw against Soviet domination left little doubt that he sees the prospect of an independent Poland as comparable to the situation of Yugoslavia after its break with the Kremlin in 1948. Yugoslavia obtained help from the U.S. Britain and France in order to withstand heavy Soviet pressures.

Even before Dulles spoke out, the White House signified it was disposed to questions that the help given Poland and Communist Yugoslavia had encouraged the Polish revolt against Soviet dictation. President Eisenhower ruled out a week ago that aid to Tito should be considered.

"I certainly think," Press Secretary James C. Hagerty added, "that the president's insistence on continued aid to Yugoslavia reflects itself in Polish attitudes and in other unrest in other satellite nations."

Dulles, under questioning by a TV panel of reporters, raised no objection to establishing friendly and co-operative relations with a Communist government independent of Moscow. The U.S. would like to see a Western-type democracy in Poland and many other countries, he said, "but that is a system which can only by spread throughout the world gradually."

He considered it unlikely that Russia would use "mass military means" to crush the Warsaw political rebellion: a "bloodbath" was improbable, although other "repressive measures" might be used. But even if the Russians did not know their military power into action, it would not succeed in putting down the drive to freedom because that has too great a popular base.

Should the Russians fight in Poland, he did not think the U.S. "would send our own armed forces" to help them. That would "precipitate World War III" — the last thing the Polish people wanted, because it would wipe them out.

He thought it unlikely that the Polish issue will go to the United Nations, at least as a threat to international peace. But it might be taken before the U.N. on the ground Russia has interfered in Poland's internal affairs.

The Soviet Communist high command, he said, is in an "obviously serious dilemma" all over eastern Europe.

Rapid Industrialization Could Be Disastrous Says Vickers

TORONTO (CP)—A British industrial planner today warned Canadians not to blind faith in rapidly-expanding industrialization would be disastrous.

Sir Geoffrey Vickers said that industrialization can also destroy air, pollute water, disrupt families and communities and undermine public confidence in government.

"A rapidly developing industrialization does not produce the social policy sees that it does."

Sir Geoffrey was speaking to 120 prominent Canadians gathered here for a five-day, first-hand study of six Ontario industrial areas. The University of Toronto organized the study to determine the impact on human well-being of a rapidly evolving industrialization.

Sir Geoffrey's remarks were to set the theme for the study, which will continue at intervals of a year until the fall of 1958. Part of his address was given to the press before delivery.

Sir Geoffrey, economist, sociologist and economist, suggested that Canadians ask themselves certain questions about their industrialization:

"With all this effort, what in terms of human value are we getting and what is the human cost? What are we to pay for it?"

The answer, he said, "is haunted with uncertainty."

While industrialization "offers abundance and leisure with one hand, with the other it often frustrates their enjoyment. I have seen above smoke-grimed chimneys a forest of television aerials in an atmosphere lethal with industrial wastes."

Sir Geoffrey praised the conference for its work.

"Other nations have been driven to forecast their future by threats of imminent disaster; but few have been moved to do so, as you are doing today, by the promise of unexampled prosperity."

TRAFFIC MISHAPS TAKE 43 LIVES, 14 IN ONTARIO

Four Drown as Cars Run Into River, Lake

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada's toll of accidental deaths during the weekend mounted to 43 as the only two provinces—Prince Edward Island and Saskatchewan — reported no fatalities.

A Canadian Press survey showed that between 6 p.m. local time Friday and midnight Sunday, 21 persons died in Ontario, 14 in Quebec, eight in British Columbia, six in Alberta, two in New Brunswick and one each in Manitoba, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland.

Traffic fatalities accounted for most of the toll with 43 victims of automobile accidents. Drownings claimed nine lives, two died in hunting accidents, two died of asphyxiation and four died in fires.

Ontario's count included 14 traffic fatalities. Four persons were drowned when cars ran off the road, two men were shot in hunting accidents and one man died of burns.

13 MOTHERLESS

In Ontario an accident in which two women were drowned left 13 children motherless. Mrs. Verona Henderson, 38, of Orillia, mother of nine children, and Mrs. Ruby Hall, 29, of Toronto, the mother of four children, were drowned when the car in which they were riding plunged into the Black River 30 miles northeast of Sarnia.

Other Ontario deaths:

Cornelia Kuiper, 4, of Hamilton and his sister Euthemia, 60, of Rochester, Minn., drowned when their car ran off a road and tumbled into a lake near Huntsville.

Louis Johnston, 29, at North Bay when his convertible went off the highway.

James S. Bowers, 18, of Toronto, when thrown from his truck near Port Perry and pinned under three feet of swamp water.

Warren Munroe, 41, of Alvinston, Lambton, suspended of Newport Beach, Calif., and George Murphy of Sarnia, died in a two-car crash near Watford, 20 miles east of Sarnia.

Leonard Lombard, 33, of Toronto, when his car burned over an embankment near Cobalt.

Joseph Tremblay, 14, of suburban Sudbury drowned in the Vermilion River in a car while cycling on the wrong side of the road.

TRUCK OVERTURNS

Mrs. Lucy Corner, 21, of Lakefield near Peterborough, when a truck in which she was riding overturned on a sharp curve.

Hermindo de Melo, 30, of Simcoe when a car and truck collided head-on with a pickup truck.

William Waterton, of Owen Sound, when his gun discharged accidentally.

Calixte LaPointe, 21, at Smiths Falls when accidentally shot by a 16-year-old companion.

Daniel Kelly, 62, of Ottawa, widower, burned to death when the bed in which he slept caught fire.

Indian Chief Dislikes Being Called Canadian

TORONTO (CP) — An Indian chief said Saturday it is "offensive to Indians to be classed as Canadians" and they would gain nothing by being integrated with them.

"The government is trying to integrate people who stand to lose their identity if integration succeeds," William Smith, assistant secretary of the Six Nations Confederacy, told Immigration Minister Pickersgill. "We have always upheld our confederacy and treasure it."

Iroquois chiefs surrounded Mr. Pickersgill at the close of his speech to more than 300 of the people who had attended a ceremonial rehearsal at a 300-year-old grave in suburban Scarborough.

In his speech Mr. Pickersgill said he hoped that bone dispute would be prime minister.

Nationalist Reds Take Over Reins Of Polish Govt.

Khrushchev Fails to Keep Kremlin Clique in Power

LONDON (AP)—Belief grew in Western Europe today that the Soviet Communist party has suffered a sharp decline in power and prestige in the dramatic political changes in Poland.

The Poles' insistence on a "national" development of their own brand of communism may foreshadow a breakup of Russia's iron political control over its Eastern bloc, and as a result Nikita S. Khrushchev might be ousted as a the boss of Soviet communism, diplomatic informants say.

But comment on the events in Poland has emphasized that the Polish leadership remains Communist.

Few will deny that the events in Poland marked a division in the ranks of world communism, and commenting on this, the British Liberal newspaper Manchester Guardian says "liberty is not so common that we should hold any of its victories cheap."

Diplomats today sought a minute-to-minute check on events in Poland through a stream of coded messages from Warsaw but most were watchfully waiting and withholding comment. So was Moscow.

Moscow Radio broadcast a non-committal report that had happened in the Friday and Saturday sessions of the Polish United Workers (Communist) party central committee, making no mention of the political changes. It carefully prefixed the title "comrade" to the name of Wladyslaw Gomulka, branded and jailed as a Titoist in the Stalin era and now the party's secretary—boss—of the Polish party. Apparently Moscow wants the world to believe that it regards Gomulka as a Communist in good standing.

Poland's experience has led to speculation that Hungary, another restless Soviet satellite, but there are vivid differences underlying the parallel.

"Great changes within Poland are taking shape," comments Daily Telegraph. "The West can take immediate comfort from this. But to look for dramatic realignment in the international field would be both naive and dangerous."

Vancouver Stranded on B.C. Peak, Scot Finally Rescued by Helicopter

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 26-year-old Scot, virtually given up for dead after being lost on the slopes of 4,000-foot Mount Seymour for almost a week, was rescued by helicopter Saturday night.

Alick Patterson, 24, was suffering from frostbite and had lost considerable weight from six days without food but otherwise was in good condition when he was rescued.

He had gone on a stroll the previous Sunday with a friend and two others on the mountain, a favorite haunt of weekend motorists, hikers and skiers in the winter, and lost contact with his companions.

The three became lost.

Robert Duncan, 23, who came to Canada 11 months ago from Oban, Argyllshire, managed to find his way down, babbling incoherently of his escape.

Gordon McFarlane, 27, who came from Glasgow in 1954, was found dead.

After Week Stranded on Mountain, Vancouver School Board Is Rescued by Helicopter

Vancouver school board who came here three years ago from Hawick, Scotland, was rescued Saturday in a helicopter by RCAF helicopter.

He described how they lost their way in fog, spent the night in a lean-to and next day stumbled on in a driving rain trying ineffectually to discover the trail down the mountain.

They finally sought "refuge up in the mountains" and spent the night in a snowbank.

On Sunday Duncan, a husky carpenter, attempted the descent and found his way to a house at the foot of the mountain. His description of the spot where he had left Patterson eventually led to the latter's rescue.

YEAR-OLD BARN BURNS NEAR MARMORA

MARMORA (Special) — A new, modern style barn owned by Williams and P. J. Flynn, who operate a farm about six miles north of Marmora, was burned to the ground Friday night.

The loss which included the summer crop of hay and feed grain, was partially covered by insurance. The barn was built a year ago.

The cause of the fire is unknown.

CHILD'S CONDITION IS SATISFACTORY

Four-year-old Gordon Spafford, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Spafford, 45 Mikel Ave., is resting in Belleville General Hospital recovering from a concussion and head lacerations sustained when he was knocked down by a car on Friday afternoon.

This morning, the lad's doctor, Dr. R. B. Gibson, said his condition was "satisfactory." Mrs. Spafford said that although her son was still in hospital he was able to sit up and play for awhile on his bed.

The accident happened shortly after 4 p.m. on Friday when Gordon darted from the sidewalk into a car driven along Mikel Ave. by Mrs. Lois E. Miller, 53 Hunewood Ave.

NEW DOG POUND NOW BEING USED

Although not yet officially opened and with some equipment still to come, the city's new dog pound at the agricultural grounds has been put to use.

But at the moment the dog population at the pound is at a low ebb.

In fact only one female hound pup, brown with white and black, and a male yellow and white cat of about one year, are being maintained in the new pound headquarters. Permanent quarters for both of the two "boarders" would be welcomed, according to pound officials.

FIREMEN RESCUE CHILD WHO LOCKED SELF IN BATHROOM

A day in the life of a city fireman can mean more than just fighting fires.

In fact it can just happen that the emergency calls will outnumber the fire calls.

This was the case over the week end when two emergency calls were answered as against one call for a grass fire.

Saturday a little girl locked herself in the bathroom with result that the firemen were called to the rescue. Up went a ladder to the bathroom window and the little girl was taken out the window.

Sunday firemen were called out again to give resuscitator treatment to a man who suffered a heart attack. The man was later taken to hospital.

Cryptic Rite Chapter Visited By Grand Officers

Saturday afternoon Belleville Masonic and Eastern Council of Royal and Select Masters, Cryptic Rite, were honored by an official inspection visit by officers of the Grand Council of Ontario. Seldom do many Grand Officers attend a local lodge as were seen on this occasion.

The entourage consisted of Grand Master Dr. French, Past G. M. W. J. Southcombe, Deputy G.M. R. W. E. McFadden, Right Illus. Comp. S. J. Sword, H. Purter, J. H. Dunbar and W. E. Doig.

Four in Party Bag 3 Moose Near Cochrane

TRENTON (Special) — Trenton hunting party, comprising Councillor Vahn Lange, John Fetter, Garnet Wickett and Jim Coad found the leaves had left the trees in Cochrane district when the Cochrane district last week. They shot three bullmoose the last two days of their visit to the Nat River country, 75 miles west of Cochrane.

The party, including two experienced guides, made only nine miles the first day out from the base. They had to portage canoes nine miles on this leg of the 36-mile journey down the fast moving river.

Wickett and Lange bagged the first bull the guides figured weighed 900 pounds. Then Lange sent home a fatal shot into a bull that would top the scales at 1,200 pounds. The third and biggest prize fell before the guns of Jim Coad and John Fetter. The huge animal was estimated to get over 1500 pounds. It had 35 points on its rack-like antlers. The three moose provided nearly a ton of good, edible meat, most of which was brought back to Trenton by the four-man party.

JAMES ANDERSON PHILLIPS

Ill for the past four weeks, James Anderson Phillips, 228 Charles Street, died Saturday at the Belleville General Hospital. He was in his 85th year.

Noted Dancer Will Speak to Local Ballet Guild

As rare as it promises to be interesting, is the talk and address at the next meeting of the Belleville Ballet Guild. The National Ballet Guild will be given by David Adams, principal male soloist of the National Ballet Company of Canada. The meeting is to be held on Tuesday evening in the Y.M.C.A. in addition, during a two-day visit to this city Mr. Adams and his wife will make several other public appearing appearances.

Considered one of the finest male dancers on the stage today, Mr. Adams has danced in many European countries as well as throughout most of the United States. Born in Winnipeg, he was trained there, but now makes his home in Vancouver and Toronto.

Six feet tall, and built like a football player, the ballet star has danced with the Sadler's Wells, the Sadler's Wells Theatre, and the Metropolitan Ballets in England and various European countries. He danced also with the Los Angeles and San Francisco Light Opera companies. This last summer he and Lois Smith, Prima Ballerina with the Metropolitan Ballet, were featured soloists at the famed international dance festival at Jacob's Pillow, Lee, Mass. They were the first Canadian artists to be invited to this festival.

Mr. Adams, who has brought New York audiences to their feet with his superlative leaps in the classic "Swan Lake," also starred in the Canadian National Exhibition grandstand show for two seasons. He and Lois Smith were soloists in special production numbers.

He had the leading male roles in such ballets as "Swan Lake," "Giselle," "The Garden," "Offenbach in the Underworld," "The Nutcracker," and the new Frederick Ashton ballet, "Les Rendezvous." One of the brilliant talents with the company, he has choreographed several ballets now in his repertoire.

He has starred frequently on Canadian television and last season was one of the stars of "Wide, Wide World," over a coast to coast United States network.

Mr. Adams has been a leading light with the National Ballet since it was founded in 1951. Still in his 20s, he has toured the whole of Canada with the company twice.

Asks Wrong Man To Give Him Push, Arrest Follows

A request for a push for his stalled auto which had stopped on the upper bridge early Sunday morning backfired for Floyd Wood, R.R. Trenton.

Wanted by police on an LCA charge, Wood stopped to the car behind to ask for a push, only to discover that the driver was plain clothes officer John Kent of the city police department.

Recognition was mutual and Wood turned and ran with the officer in close pursuit. Wood was apprehended at a chain grocery store parking lot and in addition to the original charge is charged with ownership of a car and with having a drivers license while he was on the suspended list.

A rear end collision on Cannifton Road caused damage of close to $300 Saturday afternoon. E. C. Turner had stopped to allow a passenger to alight, when a following car driven by Richard Lacey, R.R. 1 Belleville, was unable to stop in time and ran into the rear of his vehicle.

Nature Goes Second Mile

Nature this year appears to be going the "second mile", in her bounteous and vigorous growth of vegetables.

Lately, huge carrots and potatoes have been brought to the Ontario Intelligencer, and Saturday morning, Mrs. Cecil Kleinsteuber, of Sandy Hill, came to the editorial office with three of the largest, smooth and eyewatering sweet Spanish onions seen so far in this district. One measured 18 inches in circumference, and tipped the scales at one pound 11 ounces; while the two runners-up measured 15 and three-quarters inches in girth. These three were grown in Sandy Hill loam and were readily snapped up by members of the staff, at bargain prices, with visions of sandwiches and soup in the offing.

BLOW TO RUSSIA

The Times of London says Poland's rulers still are Communist, "with no wish to fall into the arms of the West or to end up in the sort of limbo where Poland has so often and so disastrously found herself in the past."

London's Communist paper, The Daily Worker, is a tone of alarm, says:

"Every Communist or socialist, inside or outside Poland, must be conscious that class enemies are watching the development of events. These enemies are hoping that divisions in the popular ranks may give him an opportunity for a reactionary comeback."

Yugoslavia has welcomed Poland's move to secure greater independence from Moscow in the official newspaper Borba.

Moscow's Pravda says Tito concluded talks with a visiting Hungarian delegation and began negotiations with a Rumanian delegation.

In Communist East Germany, the newspaper Neuertz says the Polish party will adhere to Marxism-Leninism and friendship toward the U.S.S.R., and would "not allow itself to be pushed off a path, the correctness of which is confirmed in daily life a thousand times."

But in Western Europe the feeling seems to be that Moscow's pressure has been shaken. This is the view of the West Berlin tabloid B.Z., which says the Polish developments are an indication that the party leaders there are "fed up with Moscow tutelage." Sweden's largest paper, the Stockholm-Tidningen, Liberal, predicts that Titoism now may spread within the East bloc "like never before."

Rudolf Barak, member of the party Politburo in Communist-ruled Czechoslovakia, has warned meanwhile that the changing political climate in Poland does not give a free field to the propagation of Western ideas. He takes this line in an article for the Soviet party newspaper Pravda. The article, broadcast by Moscow, makes no direct mention of Poland, but says measures aimed at "socialist democratism" cannot be a green light for "the propagation of bourgeois ideologies."

EXPECT BULGANIN

In advocating such a step, Stevenson has said scientific devices could quickly detect any H-bomb Russia exploded in violation of any agreement to end the test, and has stressed that the danger to mankind from radiation set loose by such blasts is growing steadily.

Eisenhower has rejected Stevenson's suggestion, saying that a foolproof inspection system must be agreed upon before the U.S. can safely end its tests.

Stevenson did not comment on Eisenhower's formal reply to Bulganin, which the White House made public Sunday. But in a statement commenting on earlier remarks by the White House press secretary, James C. Hagerty, Stevenson declared what he termed an effort to dismiss the Bulganin letter as a "propaganda exercise."

The White House seems to have dismissed the Russian offer as a "bid for headlines" and implying that Bulganin's letter appeared to contain nothing new.

ASKS EXPLANATION

Within two hours after Eisenhower's reply was made public, William F. Knowland of California, Senate Republican leader, said Stevenson should "repudiate the unwarranted interference of Premier Bulganin . . . in our free American election." He wired Stevenson that "you have helped create this situation by your unfortunate position on H - bomb tests."

Dulles, whom Bulganin assailed for allegedly making "direct attacks against the Soviet Union and its peace - loving foreign policy," sought Sunday to play down the radiation risk connected with hydrogen bomb explosions.

In words obviously aimed at Stevenson, he said during a television interview that it was "relatively a very minor angle of the problem" which persons he did not name had "built up into an effort to create a great scare."

Second American Plane Crashes on McMurdo Sound

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuters) A second American plane was reported today to have crashed at the frozen Antarctic airstrip on McMurdo Sound even as surgeons worked through the night here to save the lives of two American airmen injured in an earlier crash.

A Globemaster supply plane was reported to have crashed when a nose wheel collapsed as the plane touched the runway at the airfield used by American scientists in their South Polar expedition.

As far as is known, the expedition's headquarters said, there were no casualties.

Four men were killed and four others were injured when a United States Navy Neptune plane crashed at McMurdo Sound last week.

Firing at Leopard Skin in Bushes, Policeman Wounds Mau Mau Leader

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — An African policeman fired at the flash of a leopard skin in some bushes, and the dreaded leader of Kenya's Mau Mau terror cult fell wounded.

The shots brought to an end a three-year hunt for self - styled "Field Marshal Sir" Dedan Kimathi, 33, the almost mythical figure who masterminded a campaign of slaughter aimed at driving the white man out of Kenya.

Kimathi was lying slightly wounded in the thigh when the policeman dashed up. He had been hiding in bushes along a trail near Nyeri, about 100 miles from Nairobi. Deserted by the remnants of his once-numerous followers, Kimathi was clad in leopard skins and armed with a .38 revolver.

His shooting and capture took place as touring Princess Margaret slept in a Nairobi hotel.

Kimathi's capture leaves only one leader in the dying organization which once struck terror into white settlers on isolated farms in the Kenya bush country. He is Stanley Mathenge, who heads the 400-strong remnants of Mau Mau.

Many Africans regarded Kimathi as a sort of Robin Hood. To others he was an inhuman monster. Officials said he was responsible for at least 29 killings.

First Scientific Rocket Launched At Arctic Base

FORT CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — A three-stage sweosh, like three or four jet planes flying at once, the first scientific rocket launched in Canada lifted itself more than 70 miles into the sub-Arctic sky Saturday.

The American-built 14-foot Cajun, first of eight rockets to be fired from a site 12 miles east of here, roared from an almost-vertical launching rail into the upper atmosphere to measure density, temperature and pressure. United States scientists working here said the firing was a success.

Data of the high altitudes was transmitted to ground observers by radio from tiny instruments packed into the nose cone of the rocket.

The Cajun, only six inches in diameter, streaked from the launcher in two stages and reached a speed of more than 5,000 feet a second. It was shot off the rail by an exploding booster that burned for three seconds and then detached itself from the rocket.

The rocket-firing project near this Canadian joint services military base, 610 miles north of Winnipeg, is being directed by U.S. scientists and military experts.

St. Michael's Defeats Cathedral

St. Michael's of Belleville kept their undefeated streak alive to six games over the weekend with a 7-0 exhibition game victory over Cathedral School of Kingston.

Cathedral held a 1-0 lead when they opened the scoring in the second quarter.

St. Mike's came back with a touchdown in the third quarter by Mike McCary. They added a pair of single points later to wrap it up.

Lorne Haley and Mike Ryan starred on offence for the winners, while Larry Mavety went well on defense.

BANGALORE, India (Reuters) The Mysore Legislative Assembly House has passed a bill nationalizing the British-owned Kolar Gold Mines. Compensation for the mines, which have operated for 80 years, was fixed at $3,440,000.

AFTER WEEK

Patterson spent the remainder of the week at the 2,500-foot level under the rocky overhang where the party had broken up.

"I drank water and walked around," he said.

"I took my shoes and socks off and tried to keep my feet warm with my body," he said. However, whenever he went for a drink of water, which he did to ease hunger pangs, he got his feet wet again.

He had no matches with which to light a fire. Except for his feet, however, he was able to keep dry.

Saturday he saw the searchers, men from Vancouver alpine and mountaineering clubs.

They had him chocolates, light soup and sweet tea and coffee and wrapped him in warm blankets. A helicopter dropped a stretcher and the alpine party cut a path to a ledge from which the helicopter lifted him at nightfall Saturday.

He said his decision to stay in one place until rescued, the result of Boy Scout training in Scotland, saved his life.

Canadians Spending Greater Sums on Consumer Goods With More Sought on Credit

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadians are spending greater sums on consumer goods and more of those goods are being sought on credit.

The Bank of Canada said Friday that consumer spending in the first six months of 1956 rose to an annual rate of $13,120,000,000. This was an increase of $1,240,000,000 compared with $16,880,000,000 for the same period a year ago.

The bank also said that the total debt owing for the things consumers buy on time climbed to a record $2,302,000,000 at the end of the first half of this year.

This was an increase of $120,000,000 compared with the amount of credit outstanding at the end of last December. During the last four years the total debt has more than doubled.

The bank's figures indicate that Canadians are buying more automobiles, television sets, radios, refrigerators and other goods on the instalment plan.

Increases were recorded by all major segments of the consumer credit business. Personal cash loans and more of those loaned money lenders and others rose to a record $882,000,000 on June 30 from $849,000,000 on Dec. 31.

Finance and loan companies, which do a big business in financing sales of automobiles, loaned a record $704,000,000, up from $601,000,000 in December.

The central bank has been attempting to restrain this expanding consumer debt and other forms of credit in an effort to fight inflation. Last Wednesday the bank increased its interest rate on loans to chartered banks and other institutions to a record 3½ per cent, the sixth boost in 14 months.

COMEDIANS AND HUMAN UNDERSTANDING

Danny Kaye is not only a great comedian—perhaps one of the world's best—but he is a man with a great heart.

He recently completed a seven-week tour of Europe, the Middle East and Africa as the travelling ambassador of the United Nations Children's Fund. On December 2 TV viewers and movie-goers in 28 countries will see a movie of this tour, the second film made by Kaye for UNICEF.

"The story that Danny Kaye will tell the world on December 2," says Unesco Features, "is his discovery of the other-world of under-privileged children, where the margin between laughter and sorrow, sickness and health, is often as narrow as a single shot of penicillin, a tube of ointment or a daily mug of milk."

There may be those who will consider it strange that a comedian should be chosen to tell this tale. Kaye, though, appears to have proven well-fitted for the task. "A seemingly instinctive understanding of children enabled Danny Kaye to meet the youngsters as equals in his own inimitable kingdom of humor and cheer," reports Unesco Features.

One may wonder whether this "instinctive understanding" of children is an individual trait of Kaye, or whether it has a much wider scope, whether there is a kinship between all comedians—all good comedians anyway—and all children. A search through our memories will reveal that Kaye is not the first comedian to display, along with a talent for inspiring laughter, a lively sympathy for tears and a deep-rooted urge to eliminate their cause. Charlie Chaplin was noted for his support of the underdog. Eddie Cantor, Bing Crosby and Bob Hope, to mention only a few, have frequently displayed their active concern for the welfare of certain groups of the under-privileged.

Perhaps the tragedians can produce examples of a similar active interest in the welfare of their fellow-beings, but off-hand it would appear to us that the men who make us laugh have the edge in the display of helpful sympathy. Why this should be we do not know, except that laughter may be very close to tears and he who understands and loves the one may best understand and most detest the other.

NEW THREAT TO FARMERS

Increased use of commercial fertilizers may prove fatal to farmers if they do not keep out of the silo for seven or ten days after it is filled.

This is the conclusion of Dr. Thomas Lowry and Dr. Leonard M. Schuman of the University of Minnesota, writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The Health League of Canada, reporting on their findings, says that "farmers have long known that it is dangerous to enter a newly filled silo." It adds, however, that few realize the full extent of the danger. A serious and frequently fatal respiratory disorder, "silo filler's disease," can result from breathing the gas of fermenting silage, says the League. This disease is caused by the inhalation of oxides of nitrogen. Dr. Lowry and Dr. Schuman believe that the possibility of exposure to nitrogen dioxide fumes may be increased by the greater use today of commercial chemicals containing nitrogen.

This is a case of where one plant's food may be a man's poison.

Those exposed to the fumes suffer coughing, difficulty in breathing, choking sensation and severe weakness immediately after exposure. These symptoms continue for three weeks, then the patient takes a turn for the worse, with chills, fever and bluening of the skin. Antibiotic and other standard treatments for respiratory diseases have no effect on the symptoms. However a hormone related to hydrocortisone brings relief. The doctor, however, must know that the patient has been exposed to silage fumes before he can make the proper diagnosis, because the disease resembles other lung conditions.

PLASTIC BONES

Like to feel like a new man?

Some day plastics may make this possible for some people.

In the past few years these wonderful materials, which are being used for everything from clothes to car bodies, have been utilized in the manufacture of artificial parts for the human body.

The Nuffield Foundation in Britain has reported on the work of Dr. J. T. Scales, who has been investigating the problem of providing plastic substitutes for bones. Nor is that the only use to which plastics may be put in healing the sick in future years. The Institute and King's College, London, have set up a biochemical unit where it is possible that plastics may eventually find a place in connection with the flow of fluids and gases in the body, as well as in repairs to the skeletal system.

HUNTING SEASON

Men long have called it "Home, sweet home,"
But as the seasons come and go
We've learned that many like to roam,
Discomforts of rough life to know.

The well dressed man would change to slacks. . .
An open shirt he wants to wear.
There's much that comfort plainly lacks
The rugged life allows elsewhere.

His table gleams with linen white,
But that is not his chief desire.
He likes to eat his meal at night
Outdoors beside an open fire.

He's glad to feel a breeze that stings.
He seeks the friendship of a guide.
He revels in the countless things
That city life cannot provide.

H-Bomb Multiplied by 700

The New Statesman and Nation London

The discovery of the "anti-neutron" particle by Edward Lofgren's atom-smashing team at Berkeley, California, raises interesting questions for the science specialists and natural philosophers.

For one thing, it shows how little was, in fact, known about the nucleus of the atom when Hiroshima used the chain-reaction effect to split it. Since then the researchers on the seasons have revealed still incomplete information.

• • •

This same laboratory, Berkeley, using the "proton" until recently the world's biggest atom-smashing machine, discovered the "anti-proton." Twelve years ago, C. D. Anderson (also of Berkeley) and Seth Neddermeyer, J. S. Blacket confirmed, the existence of the "positron" or "anti-electron."

Those show that nature reflects opposites. The "positron" has a positive charge, while the electron has a negative. The anti-proton has a negative charge, while the proton has a positive; the positron and anti-electron have no electric charges and are a collision of mass.

Matter and matter are made to collide in a Bevatron bombardment. They are said to release in their mutual annihilation 700 times more energy than the H-bomb dragon bomb reaction, which, in turn, is 1,000 times greater than the energy from the fission-reaction.

• • •

But the physicists hasten to assure us that the neutron-anti-neutron effect has no foreseeable practical application; much greater energy is needed to produce the new particles than they produce by annihilation.

That was what Lord Rutherford said when Cockcroft and Walton first artificially split the atom. They used a million electron volts to release 10,000 electron volts from each collision; but only one in 10,000,000 protons (the "projectiles" they used) ever hit its bullseye.

That was why Rutherford to his dying day maintained that the atom "would always be a sink of energy and never a reservoir."

• • •

It would be a rash scientist who would repeat Rutherford's prophecy, and physicists may well be asking themselves some soul-searching questions.

The H-Bomb releases a powerful flux of neutrons. What about anti-neutrons multiplying that effect 700 times? Is there still no conceivable possibility of an atmospheric chain reaction?

As Sir Robert Robertson asked a year ago, "has every possibility of setting fire to the entire elements quite certainly been excluded, if nuclear relay is taken to further stages?"

Briton Faces TV Ordeal

Ottawa Citizen

Every householder who has struggled to adjust his television set, amid a family atmosphere that grew progressively icy, can sympathize with Mr. Leonard Conroy, of St. Columb, England. Mr. Conroy's case is perhaps extreme. But most heads of families have experienced his agony if to a lesser degree.

Mr. Conroy's set broke down on a Friday. As he tried to get it working, his family watched him stolidly, their hostility growing by the hour. On Saturday, as he continued his ministrations, he heard a scream from his wife, then a dial there, his family would not speak to him. In the evening they left the house to Mr. Conroy, his set, and his thoughts.

It was late that night when the breaking point came, but in any event Mr. Conroy had driven to his place of work, took a tin box and hammer, ripped out the firm's money, and in the kind of gesture that men make when they're through with everything, scattered the money about the office floor.

What makes the sight of a man trying to adjust a recalcitrant TV set so infuriating to his family? Perhaps because this is the one occasion they reject advice. In normal circumstances a family is a team, its members finding comfort in the help of other on matters of moment. Nothing could be taken from what Christmas gift to send the rich aunt, what the menu should be for an Indian picnic, or how to spend a forthcoming holiday. But when a man is essentially a matter of individual opinion, as every householder knows.

As the unsolicited advice comes from the left, then right, to turn the horizontal to the right the vertical to the left, then "I'll say now you've blurred it again" the householder is finally driven to demand silence. After a few more attempts by his family to help him, the household settles at last does command quiet. In some cases it lasts an hour or two, but in the Conroy case it lasted somewhat longer. But it is the one case on record where men, reading of Mr. Conroy's ordeal, will understand what he has been going through.

Need Winter Exercise, Too

Brockville Recorder and Times

The time of year has arrived when summer sports are on the wane, except during occasional weekends, and most persons who keep active physically during the summer months are rather relieved to sit back and relax with a book or television. This is all right for a time—just so long as we don't allow it to become a habit and give up active life entirely.

Having a winter sport is valuable not only for promoting an outside interest, but also as a means for keeping in shape physically. Over the past few years local interest has grown considerably in such activities as bowling, curling and badminton — not only as social recreation, but as a way of enjoying exercise while engaged in moderate competitive sport.

While a great many office workers between the ages of 35 and 60 tramp around the golf courses during the summer months, a good portion of this same crowd are inclined to stagnate during the winter. On the other hand, quite a few belong to bowling leagues, curl or play badminton —some indulging in two or all three of these activities, their only complaint being that there are not enough nights of the week to accommodate everything they would like.

In order to stay healthy, healthy interests are required—not only mentally and physically. Walking from the home to and from the parking lot to the office may be considered exercise by some — but stay at home, eating and drinking in front of the TV screen is not all the outside interests they require. Of course, they may go on living to a ripe old age — or drop dead next year — but few persons, other than their immediate families, would ever know or care!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Through the down town financial district of my city you will daily see one of our most successful and influential old men walking casually amidst the bustling throng on their way to business. At no one time, see him proceeding with equal calm under the shadow of the skyscrapers on his way to lunch at his club.

Yesterday, I happened to see him getting out of his chauffeur-driven car three blocks north of the noble bank tower in which his office is located. He got out, himself lazily out of the car, waved goodbye to his chauffeur and, stick swinging in his right hand, surely down the street, at half the gait of the rest of the traffic, pausing now and then to look in shop windows. Having met him at dog shows, on many trips and in antique book shops, with him, told as to fall in step with him.

"Do you know," I remarked, "that I have never seen you in a hurry in all the thirty or forty years I have known you by sight."

"No, my boy," he replied. "The secret of a serene life is always to leave wherever you are in time to dawdle on your way to where you are going."

I knew the old boy had been born on a farm and had come to the city as a boy of sixteen.

"Is this something," I asked, "that you have saved from your early life in the country?"

"In a way, yes," he agreed. "But actually, it is a lesson I learned in my first office, when I was assigned to catch onto the tricks in the trade in customer-getting. As a junior, I noticed that the men who always got the short end of deals were the men in a hurry. If a man has lots of time, he can bargain. I observed at board meetings, when I got far enough along to be invited to board meetings, that the men who dominated the meetings were those who got there early and had time to sit around; whereas the men who made the poorest fist of things at board meetings were those who came bursting in late, all flustered and hurried. By the time they had themselves calmed down, the business was usually over."

"The way the world is speeding up," I suggested, "men who can dawdle must be few and far between."

"Yes," said the old man," and what few of them there are you'll find up top."

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Oct. 22nd., 1936

Two citizens got into a car mix-up last evening. The cars were of the same make, color and model and were parked close together; one owner returned to where he had parked his car, got in and then discovered that it was not his car. He reported the matter to the police and constables Arnott and Evans went in search of what was expected to be a case of car theft. However, the citizen who had taken the wrong car returned to Front Street looking for his car at the spot where he had parked and there met the owner of the car he was driving. They had a friendly chat, exchanged vehicles, smiled and went their respective ways.

From our file copy at this time in 1936: There is a bylaw against sweeping waste papers into the streets, but it is not well observed. Something should be done about this.

Hindu Views On Hygiene

Dr. Carl E. Taylor
in the Atlantic

The cultural differences between the people of India and the westerners can perhaps be illustrated by two contrasting ideas on specific hygienic practices with theirs.

Indians consider many of our ways of doing things disgusting and unclean, and we Canadians insist that members of their families who have associated with westerners, especially on a trip abroad, go through elaborate purification rites before returning to their own family. As in the Old Testament, many health rules have been clothed in religious garb to strengthen their acceptance by uneducated people.

Hand washing and bathing play an important part in Indian life. The western custom of bathing in a basin which has been used by all sorts of people is considered unsafe. A better way is to have water poured over the hands in the dirty water falling into a basin or on the ground. Thus the contamination left in the hands has no chance of reaching the hands of another.

Similarly the use of bathtubs is repulsive. It is much better to bathe in flowing water and in a sacred tank. If bathing must be done inside a house, the water should be poured over the body from a jug at a time.

The use of dishes also involves similar taboos against contamination. At public functions where food is served, it is considered proper to have leaf plates and cheap earthenware cups which can be broken afterwards. The use of fingers eliminates the need for silverware.

One of the most interesting medical meetings I have ever seen in India was one in which the question of brushing teeth came up. Many of the Indian doctors gently argued that the use and re-use of a toothbrush was highly insanitary. It was much better, they maintained, to follow the traditional Indian practice of chewing the end of a neem tree twig until the fibres of the end were soft and brushy. The twig could be thrown away after the teeth had been cleaned because even in city bazaars 20 can be bought for one cent.

Prevention of Joint Disability

If I could in conscience tell anyone that I have not examined the cure, remedy, diet, or treatment to take for "arthritis" — but I can't and that's that.

Prevention of rheumatism—physical degeneration of joint tissues —should begin before the degeneration process has become irreversible.

No mystery or magic about it. Generation means the birth, production, growth and development of cells. Degeneration means the wearing out, breaking down, and decay of cells. Regeneration means reproduction of new cells to carry on the functions of the old, worn-out ones. These vital processes go on at various rates in various parts of the body from infancy until one turns up one's toes.

When generation or regeneration fails to keep pace with degeneration there is first functional deficiency or impairment. If at this stage the individual's nutrition program is not thoroughly revised and improved, structural weaknesses or defects ensue — and that's rheumatism.

Youngsters who are from necessity or choice drinking pop, tea, coffee, chocolate, cocoa, or some carbonated-pappy beverage instead of the health beverage, milk, not only suffer from malnutrition in youth but make likely candidates for premature physical degeneration if or when they attain maturity.

In order to build and maintain vite a child or an adult must consume not less than 1 ½ pints of milk or the equivalent in dairy products every day of his life.

Just before I forget, I will expect no one to be even mildly interested in the prevention of joint disability until he or she realizes he has it, and that it is a little late.

Please remember, too, I recommend only "protective" dietal essentials; so if the program does you any good, you'll have to keep on with it for the rest of your life if you hope to avoid a relapse.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SWEAT, PAIN, AND DESPAIR

Thomas Wolfe once wrote a most interesting little book. "The Story of a Novel." In it he told how he went about it to write his first book. It is very frankly and honestly written. One statement interested me. He said: "There is nothing very literary about it. It is a story of Sweat and Pain and Despair and partial Achievement."

Ambitious ones wishing to become writers should read this enlightening book. Though it has been out of print. Few writers went through the agony of giving birth to their books as did Thomas Wolfe. He had hardly started on a novel career when he was stricken—and gone. A great loss to literature.

People reveal themselves in their letters as in no other medium. Wolfe was a prolific writer of letters. A big book of his letters has recently been published, making it a very autobiographical publication. Wolfe was a big man, his whole physical frame of some dimensions. He lived with fire and the ambition to keep excelling himself. Just before Wolfe's last book came out I was honored with a visit by him. We had a most interesting talk, and I shall never forget his tremendous enthusiasm and hair and partial Achievement. He told me he was determined to make this novel better by far than his greatest. He was always thinking far ahead. He was a writer with endless vitality.

Wolfe's brief career should be an inspiration to all ambitious writers. He just wanted to write, having no knowledge as to how to write or formulate. He just felt like the beloved Don Marquis, he was forever "full of new beginnings." But, in Wolfe's own words, the story of his success was one of "Sweat and Pain and Despair and partial Achievement."

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

ALWAYS BE READY

Twenty-six years ago the doctors told Smith Robinson that he would be dead within a year. Forthwith the doomed man began his last day as if it were his last, trying to make the most of every hour in every twenty-four hour period. He is living today in the soundest health one could wish for. Best of all, he has established a pattern of life from which he has never departed. He still tries, as he tried during the time when the death sentence hung over him, to make the most out of every 24-hour period. In the twenty-six years which neither he nor anyone else expected he would live, he has become a record holder in the lives of multitudes, and a citizen whose worth counts for much in his community.

We begin to understand at this point why Jesus urged his followers to watch and wait for His coming. They were to keep their lamps trimmed and burning as diligently as they awaited the approach of the Bridegroom. He could not tell them the exact date on which He would return, for He confessed of His own knowledge, as did all heaven knew what that day was, but only the Father (Mark 13.32). but only the Father. His disciples were to live every day as if it were their last and to be ready when He might be, for no one knows when death comes and the Master comes to call return with power.

So we are to watch and pray, for we know not the day nor the hour.

Find Peace In Woodland

Ottawa Journal

When you walk in a woodland, you can feel tensions and pressures fade into proper perspective. Watch birds search out unseen insects; study the patterns of barks and buds. Feel the wonderful beauty as arrows of sunshine strike down through gold and amber leaves. Feel the sponginess of pure humus beneath your feet — the basic material of all life in our ever-flowering world. Listen to October's voice — the bugling of the jays, the chanting of the chickadees, and the chattering of squirrels as they make their caches.

But above all when you walk in the sanctuary of living plants, feel the peace in the woodland. No man can tell another just what it is but his heart when he ponders the deeper meanings of this experience we label life. Each man travels his path of years according to his own judgment and conscience. But in the speeded-up world which we have created, and which has brought with us so many physical comforts, we have also created an environment of tensions and pressure.

Now we must learn to live with what we have designed and created. One part of the secret of happier living is to return from time to time to the simplicities and basic verities of Nature.

Average 'Grey Gold' Miner In Quebec More Than $1,000 In Debt But Is Not Worried

ASBESTOS, Que. (CP) — The average "grey gold" miner in this Eastern Townships community of 11,000 is more than $1,000 in debt, but he's not worried about it.

His confidence in the potential of a hole in the ground 3,000 feet in diameter and 400 feet deep has led him to buy a refrigerator, stove, TV set and a car—on installments.

The gaping crater, resembling a huge soup bowl, marks the Jeffrey Asbestos Mine, operated by Canadian Johns – Manville Company. Below this productive pit, underground mining is carried on.

BIG BUTTERFINGER

Together, the two operations account for one-third of the world's supply of asbestos fibre and directly or indirectly provide employment for 2,000 townsfolk.

An exploration program has shown that, at present rate of ore consumption, there is sufficient reserves in the deposit to merit exploitation for "the next 100 years."

Last year, the mine, named after its first operator, W. H. Jeffrey, had an output of 387,000 tons of asbestos fibre, making Johns-Manville the world's largest producer. Production from the pit in 1918 was 17,000 tons and in 1945 200,000 tons.

The town has come a long way economically since 1954, when only three persons with property holdings valued at $200 or more could be found to qualify as town councillors.

Now, 48 per cent of the company's employees own their own homes, with all the modern luxuries. One of every three owns a car, giving the town one of the highest personality per capita, of vehicle registrations in Canada.

RAISES ON INCOME

True, these things are not completely paid for, but the employee reasons that as long as he has a steady income, it is only a matter of time before they will be paid.

The current basic wage rate is $1.73 an hour, but the average employee earns $1.85 hourly, plus 30 cents in fringe benefits. All are members of the National Syndicate of Asbestos Workers and work a 40-hour week.

A new pension plan was recently inaugurated, guaranteeing an income of $118 a month to employees with 25 years or more service. The company pays 50 per cent.

Johns-Manville does not encourage its "ranked-file" employees to purchase company stock.

"We have found that the average mine worker finds it difficult to fathom stock market fluctuations," said O. Eby, vice-president manager of the Jeffrey Mine. "If the stock should drop a few points in the course of these fluctuations, it would probably wedge a breach between labor and management."

There has been only one strike since the company took over the mine in 1916. Employees quit their jobs on a wage issue in 1949 and returned to work for a 10 - cent hourly increase only after five months of strife-ridden idleness.

Father and son sometimes work side by side in the mine. A youth, however, must be at least 18 and weigh 145 pounds before he can qualify for a job.

LABOR SURPLUS

The company, naturally, uses town labor before hiring outside help. "Right now," says Mr. Eby, "we have more labor here in town than we can use."

More than 90 per cent of the populace is of French origin and, until recently, there had been some qualms because few French-Canadians held supervisory positions in the company, but this is gradually changing.

Huge air filter machines in the mine, an elaborate ventilation system and, controlled exhaust of waste dust have practically wiped out the asbestos miner's occupational disease, asbestosis.

There are also monthly health inspections of the various departments and two town hygiene committees. In addition, the company maintains a hospital and clinic.

A safety director, Ivan H. Sloan is employed and there is a safety engineer at the mine during each of the three eight-hour shifts. One shift recently completed 253,000 man hours without a lost-time accident.

For its staff and their families, the company provides a golf club, scholarships to leading universities, subsidizes a community centre and operates an athletic association.

Karl V. Lindell, 51, vice - president of Johns-Manville and a resident of Asbestos, says: "We realize the human factor is our most important asset and we must carefully plan for the future job security of our employees, the growth of our company and the well-being of our community."

A-BOMB FRIGHTENS

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)—Britain's fourth and final explosion of an atomic device in Operation Buffalo was discharged shortly after midnight. Some observers described it as "more terrifying than anything seen before." The whole Australian desert landscape around the tower at Maralinga was lit as by a giant flare.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Mrs. Simone McFadden, president Belleville club; Mrs. Irene Haig and Mrs. Dorothy Brown attended the 11th annual conference of Business and Professional Women's Clubs of Ontario held at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, over the weekend. Guest speakers included: Mrs. Ann Shipley, M.P., and the Hon. John W. Pickersgill, Minister of Citizenship and Immigration.

Civic welcomes were extended by Frederick G. Gardiner, Q.C., chairman of the Municipality of Metropolitan Toronto and Alderman Jean Newman, Toronto.

'Knowing' Defined At University Women's Club

The October meeting of University Women's Club of Belleville and district was held at the home of Mrs. Reeve, 75 Bridge, president Mrs. P. T. Seibert, welcomed the new members and introduced the new executive.

The recording secretary, Mrs. J. H. Bateman stated that the club's annual scholarship was awarded to Miss Jacqueline Murphy of St. John's, Ennismony, and that a suitable book was to be presented to Miss Patricia Calnan of Picton, who had the top aggregate marks in the district but was barred for the scholarship.

The representative for the Canadian Federation of University Women's clubs, Mrs. J. E. Mc-Arthur, announced that Crosby Hall, the residence for the International Federation of University Women in London, England, is to be refurnished and the club voted a donation of $50 for this cause.

STUDY GROUPS

There was a lengthy discussion on the formation of study groups in the club. Some of the possible topics for these groups are "International Affairs," "Education," "Status of Women," and "Penal Reform." One of the other University Women's Clubs have study groups and the Canadian Federation of University Women will supply the background material for each topic. By means of these study groups the members will be able to understand and have a better knowledge of the various recommendations and briefs drawn up by the Canadian Federation of University Women.

Miss Ruby Walsh of Wellington suggested that she would like to start a book club among the members. Each interested member would buy a book from a suggested list and during the year these would be passed from member to member at two week intervals.

Miss Giorlana Martineau of Wellington, showed a series of her paintings to the club to be used for raising funds. This offer was accepted with thanks by the club.

"WHAT IS KNOWING"

Mrs. R. G. Walsh introduced the guest speaker, Professor Isabel Laird, M.A., B. Ed., assistant professor of Psychology, Queen's University, Kingston, Ontario. Her was "What is Knowing." Miss Laird said the dictionary gives the definition of 'to know,' illustrated the word as a noun and as a verb in four stages. "A noun as a solid fact, as a means of taking on identification, as an experience and as acknowledging claims of a thing which carries personal responsibility with it.

Miss Laird emphasized each phase with humorous illustrations of her own personal experience all over the world. Each phase of knowing was shown as a means of growing. Miss Laird pointed out that there are many ways to obtain knowledge. The scientific knowledge requires identical results but the aesthetic knowledge helps people to show individual variations. Lastly spiritual knowledge requires people to know relationships with greater powers, and to take on the responsibility of them.

Miss Laird concluded by suggesting that everyone should keep both their intellectual and emotional traveling sharp. Also that one should go on knowing the questions as well as the answers.

Mrs. J. Moser thanked Miss Laird warmly for such a humorous and provocative talk.

The evening concluded with a friendly social hour.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. W. Benger and her committee.

East Belleville WMS Rallies At Bethel-Zion

The Belleville East section of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Belleville Presbyterial of the United Church of Canada was held recently at Bethel-Zion Church.

Mrs. J. Williams, vice-president of this section, presided for both sessions.

Carmel W.M.S. conducted the morning worship under the leadership of Mrs. J. Patterson, using as her theme, "Brotherhood." "In the sight of God we are all brothers; Christ gave us the secret of a happy living—love one another."

Mrs. J. Homans read the Scripture and Mrs. S. Homans' led in prayer.

Mrs. Pierce Jones, Picton, Literature Secretary of Belleville Presbyterial, gave a fine short review of the new study books on Southeast Asia, as well as other interesting missionary books, including those of the Book Shelf.

LEADERS' SCHOOL

Mrs. Leslie Finkle, delegate to the School for Leaders, which was held at Whitby in August, gave some highlights from the school. She told of Miss Connie and Miss Mary Wagar who spoke to them on their work in Trinidad. "What a difference Christ makes in a home—in any home."

Mrs. Charles Holmes, Belleville, first vice-president of the Belleville Presbyterial, introduced the "team." A panel discussion dealing with three phases of work: Miss Ruby Horton, Belleville, in absence of Mrs. W. Brown, on the supply work; Mrs. W. D. Grant, Explorer secretary, and Mrs. Fred Wilson, candidate secretary.

"The supply work for overseas relief was over this year but the need is very great. To a Christian, our brother is one who is in need, whether it is our next door, one down street, or one in another country.

"Explorer leaders and Mission Band leaders should co-operate and the W.M.S. should help create interest in church work, whether it is full time or part time. Is our church recruiting young people for full time service in our church? There is an urgent need."

Eggleton W.M.S. opened the afternoon session with the president, Mrs. Maurice Clancy, leading the devotions.

Mrs. G. Coulter, Christian stewardship secretary, mentioned that other patterns may change but God's word and God's commands do not change. "We first must give ourselves to God, then other W.M.S. commitments will come. Is our giving in accordance with our abundance?"

Mrs. J. Williams introduced Miss Edith Clarke, B.A., on furlough from Akasa Mission, Nigeria, Africa.

Miss Clarke said in part: "Changing patterns are a challenge to the church. Some changes have brought the world closer but tensions in the world are high.

"People in Africa are very poor and an economic change would be welcomed. A change is needed in the habit of eating; drunkenness is increasing.

"Work and education have changed and public health is increasing. Dr. Earl has agriculture methods are being introduced."

Miss Clarke's chief interest is the Means school for girls. She told of the splendid work done there, of Maria Chela and others like her, who have gone out from her school to tell their people of the Christian way of life.

NOT AWARE OF CHURCH WORK

"The Africans are not capable of carrying on the work of the church but some private schools are taught by them and thus assume some responsibility. They need our help but not our domination."

"The white people are hated in some parts of the world, and we must prove that our faith is related to our living. We have a terrific responsibility, and do we practise our Christian faith? A wide door is opened to us, especially in Nigeria."

An invitation to Foxboro for the next year's rally was accepted.

Mrs. C. Wilson, Foxboro, spoke for the courtesy committee, thanking all who had helped to make the day worth while, and to the ladies of Bethel-Zion for their delicious dinner and hospitality.

Rev. R. W. T. Middleton closed with the benediction.

ADMIRAL PROMOTED

LONDON (AP)—Admiral Earl Mountbatten, first sea lord, was promoted today to Admiral of the Fleet, the admiralty announced. The uncle of the Duke of Edinburgh thus has reached a rank and position which his father held at the outbreak of the First World War. His father, then Prince Louis of Battenburg, resigned in 1914 because of anti-German feeling in Britain at the time.

W.C.T.U. Defines Evils of Alcoholism

The October meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held at the "Y" with the president presiding.

"Thanksgiving" was the theme of the inspiring devotional period led by Miss M. Johns.

"We believe the appointing of a National Thanksgiving Day by our nation, is important, when we recognize God's goodness and give thanks for all our blessings. We have peace within our borders, general prosperity and a plentiful harvest."

"Dr. Mallbe Babcock said, "If we could have one day for grumbling, grudges and complaining, and 364 days for thanksgiving, it would revolutionize our characters." David said: "What shall I render unto the Lord." There is something for us to do. "I will bless the Lord at all times. His praise shall continually be in my mouth."

"Giving thanks makes the blessings doubly blessed, for the greatest blessing of all is to have a thankful heart. Our nation has a peculiar inheritance. It 'I founded on the Bible. Let us be a godly nation."

GRAND CONCLAVE

The grand district conclave of Hastings County, Loyal True Independence Federation is to be held in Belleville, November 7th and 8th and has planned assistance in inviting many of the youth to attend and unite in prayer for God's blessing on this great temperance movement.

The November meeting is to be a special one in having a delegate of the World W.C.T.U. convention held in Germany last June, bring highlights of this remarkable world gathering. Mrs. George Findlay, Napanee, will be guest speaker.

A short quiz on 'Alcoholism' was conducted by Mrs. Farnsworth.

"What is an Alcoholic?" One in four people of the habit of drinking strong drink, that he cannot act along without it. He is not happy and miserable unless he can have it.

"The terms 'alcoholic' and 'alcoholism', commonly used today, were not used as a generation ago. We spoke of the drunkard and drunkenness. An alcoholic could be defined as a confirmed drunkard. It was looked upon as a sin, a moral failure. We learned this from the Bible, where Paul classes it as a sin that would keep one out of the Kingdom of Heaven. While we know it is a sin. It is also a disease common today. A drunkard is a sick man.

OLD METHODS FAIL

"The old method of scolding, punishing and threatening, was not successful. We thought of him having a weak will, lack of character and stubborn. Recent research work tends to show us these are not the basic causes of addiction to alcohol. Often there are personal problems. They are worried, want to avoid difficulties, and a few drinks have given him a feeling of confidence, and an adequacy to handle his problems.

"Why do they continue drinking? One reason is physiological (body). A thirst in the lining of the mouth. The dehydrating effect of alcohol takes the water from the cells. Another reason is psychological (mind). The initial narcotic effect of the drink in regard to worry, responsibility and fatigue makes the drinker feel better and he thanks 'all is well'.

BRAIN CELLS AFFECTED FIRST

"Alcohol affects the brain cells first, where are located the function of self control judgment, conscience, and they are numbed, put to sleep. There is a Japanese proverb, 'First the man takes a drink, then the drink take a drink, then the drink takes the man.'

"Alcohol education, which is being stressed in schools and colleges and collegese and educational programs, should invade, every home and every organization in the interest of humanity, to protect health and life and the good of the nation

"The word 'temperance' has different meanings and may even cover the idea of moderation, but alcohol education is the key word and the key work of this needed reform.

"Alcohol education is a large study of alcohol and its deadly effects on the human body and mind and the only hope for the cure of this evil."

Club 40 Enjoys Hilarious Evening Masquerade

A hilarious masquerade party was held recently under the sponsorship of the intermediate and senior groups of Club 40 in the Y.M.C.A. which taxed the accommodation of the auditorium to its capacity.

Promptly at 8:30 p.m. the masqueraders filed under way with Mr. O. Pinkston and Mrs. L. Collins, as judges, being introduced by the director in charge, Miss Helen Ackerman.

After the masqueraders had circled the room several times, the judges retired for the decision which was most difficult, considering that there were about 30 participating. After some time, the judges returned and the masqueraders paraded around the building in the first prize going to Mrs. John Exley, who represented a lady of the Colonial days, attired in dress and bonnet worn 100 years ago.

The second prize was awarded to Mrs. J. Rapino, who was dressed as an English Page Boy. The funniest costume was worn by Mrs. W. Haley, and the best couple was Mr. Howard Ackerman, and Mrs. Mable Moon.

Dancing featured the remainder of the evening's entertainment with Mr. Cecil Reid, and Mr. Clifford Smith doing the calling off for square dancing. Mr. Jack Ireland supplied the music for the first part by recording and Mr. B. Fuller, the oldest member present, a nonagenarian, played the violin, with both old and young participating in the enjoyment.

The W.A. meeting followed with president, Mrs. Sam Nicolson, presiding. The business part was taken up and the group decided to ask for donations in place of a fowl supper.

The W.A. is to serve three days next year at Scott's Barn. Mrs. Frank Harris presented her report of cards sent to the sick and shut-ins during the past month and a thank-you card was read from Mrs. C. Ketcheson and family in their bereavement.

The meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. Sam Nicolson, followed by a verse.

MADOC W.A.

MADOC — Twenty-eight ladies attended the W.A. meeting of Trinity United Church held at the parsonage, the home of the Rev. J. F. Lane and Mrs. Lane.

Mrs. Perry Bronson, the president, was in charge and opened the meeting with reading a poem, "October."

During the business period a donation of $50 was given to the Overseas Relief Fund of the United Church and $100 to the M. and M. fund of the church.

It was decided to place a loud speaker system in Trinity Church and a committee was appointed to be responsible for the project.

The nominating committee for the officers for the coming year, Mrs. B. Embury, Mrs. J. Ashe and Mrs. J. Adams, were asked to report at the November meeting.

In the absence of Mrs. V. Embury, Mrs. Bronson took the worship service, the theme being "The Goodness of God," a Thanksgiving thought based on the 65th Psalm, with appropriate hymns being used for the service.

Mrs. Lane was in charge of the program, assisted by Mrs. E. Moore, who read two poems by Edna Jacques, "The Village Ladies Aid," and "Theology."

Mrs. C. Holmes gave a reading, "Ban Women in Pool Rooms."

SOUNDS EXCITING.

"You mean some NEW show coming?"

"Nearly—I mean the NEW Star Weekly."

"Oh yes, I've heard the fellows at the Plant talking about it."

"Well I've heard the whole paper is soon to be in a compact tabloid form—the magazine section too—and printed in Rotogravure."

"Ye—and I'm told the NEW Star Weekly is to be new in many other ways as well as new size. The Picture section is going to be fascinating in the flowing sequences of its pictures and colorings."

"Well it does sound exciting—when do we get it?"

"October 28th is the date."

BURRE M.B.

BURRE — The October Mission Band met at the school on Tuesday afternoon, taking the form of a tea, to which the community was invited.

Members were happy to welcome as their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nind, of Wellington. "Ann and the Indians," had been used as the Band study book this year. Mrs. Nind had spent the month of July at Norway House, which was a part of the setting for this story of a Canadian girl from Chaleur Bay, who married a missionary and spent 11 years of her life at Fort Nelson, 1895-1906.

Mrs. Nind had taken many pictures enroute and while there. She also brought back several pieces of Indian handiwork which were of interest to the children. Mr. Nind assisted by operating the projector.

Cookies and tea were served with Mrs. Sam Clark and Mrs. Don Parks pouring and the Misses Eleanor and Barbara Clark, Patty Alair, Lynda Diggins, Pat Nichols and Brenda Osterhout serving.

It was regretted that Mr. and Mrs. Nind had to leave before tea as they were to show their pictures at West Lake at 4 p.m.

A brief worship and business session ensued. Psalm 65 was read by Wayne Soble. Offering was taken by Michael Nichols and Jack Alair. Prayer was given by Mrs. Burr. Motions carried that the Thanksgiving offering be made up to $5 and be forwarded to the Mission Band presbytery treasurer and that discarded beads be collected and brought to the next meeting to be sent to the Indian mission at Norway House, also that used stamps be saved by ess. Mrs. Cowell.

Birthday books were given to Peter and Janet Diggins, who, with their parents, have moved to California.

Mrs. K. Van Cott tendered a vote of thanks to the Mission Band for a pleasant afternoon.

Mrs. McFaul expressed thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Nind. November 30 is the next meeting date.

Here! New Task-Force 57 Chevrolet Trucks!

Performance-proved in a history-making test on the ALCAN Highway to Alaska

Here are the trucks that conquered the ALCAN Highway—one of the world's most challenging roads! Six new '57 Chevrolet trucks, loaded with cargo, roared north from Dawson Creek, B.C., through 1,520 miles of mountains and mire, rain and hail—every conceivable natural roadblock—to Fairbanks, Alaska. Running around the clock, they made this tortuous trip—normally a 72-hour run—in less than 45 hours.

Like a carelessly unwound ribbon, the Alcan Highway twists and reels for 1,520 miles. It tumbles over towering mountains of awesome beauty and wanders through desolate Yukon forests. A miracle of engineering—but a brutal challenge to trucks.

It's the road where trucks grow old before their time. The road where gravel endlessly sledgehammers the life out of trucks. Where a fog of superfine dust chokes engines, and vicious ruts subject chassis to months of wear in a few hundred miles.

This is the road that was chosen to give the new '57 Chevrolet trucks a supreme test of stamina, performance and handling ease. The results of that test made hauling history!

Six new Chevrolet trucks — representing light-, medium- and heavy-duty models — travelled the length of the Alcan highway in less than 45 hours. They ran day and night — but this was no test of speed. It was a measure of the ability of these new Chevrolet trucks to perform under typical conditions on the truck-killing Alcan run. The Chevrolet fleet made normal stops along the way, and maintained safe and legal speeds. As a special additional test during the run, two of the trucks went the entire distance without once having their engines stopped!

It's all down in the AAA record book. And more besides! Never before has a new truck been so thoroughly proved. Come in and look over these new Alcan champs!

FIRST WITH THE MOST MODERN FEATURES!

New 283-cubic-inch Taskmaster V8 delivers 160 high-torque horsepower. Standard in Series 1800 and 1700, optional in Series 1300 through 1600 at extra cost. Horsepower ranges up to 220 in Chevrolet's complete line-up of modern V8 and 6 truck engines.

Revolutionary Powermatic Transmission. This six-speed automatic, designed specifically for heavy-duty hauling, is an extra-cost option in Series 1600 through W1900 models. Hydra-Matic is offered in 1300, 1400 and 1500 Series models at extra cost.

New 1957 work-styling gives Chevrolet trucks an even fresher, fleeter appearance. There are three different and distinctive styling treatments.

Low Cab Forward models outdate the C.O.E. because they're lower, handsomer, easier to get into and out of, and save time in routine engine maintenance. Yet they offer all the traditional Cab Over Engine advantages.

Heavyweight Champs with Triple-Torque tandem are rated at 32,000 lbs. GVW, 50,000 lbs. GCW. And Chevrolet's advanced tandem rear axle unit offers a built-in three-speed power divider — plus a unique "self-steering" action that reduces tire wear and increases handling ease.

The Chevrolet Alcan run was sanctioned and official results certified—by the American Automobile Association.

AAA

Proved on the Alcan Highway... CHEVROLET Champs of every weight class!

Alcan fleet reports up to 20 miles per gallon! That's based on official AAA fuel consumption figures for the Cameo Carrier, powered by the famous Thriftmaster 6 engine and equipped with Overdrive (optional at extra cost).

All the way in DRIVE range with Powermatic! As a special test, this Powermatic-equipped 1900 Series tractor travelled the length of the Alcan Highway — up mountains and through washouts — in a single forward-speed range!

New Super Taskmaster V8 fattens Yukon mountains! This 1957 1800 Series truck with its new 283-cubic-inch V8 engine was more than a match for Alcan mountains. It climbed towering grades with jackrabbit agility.

NATIONALISTS

Old Stalinists—supporters of the harsh policies of the late Soviet dictator—are said to feel Khrushchev's policy of reconciliation with Yugoslavia's President Tito threatens dissolution of Russia's satellite empire.

Khrushchev headed a platoon of Soviet political and military leaders who rushed here Friday in an apparent effort to head off the rising tide of Polish nationalism. Sunday night's shakeup leaves Rokossovsky at least temporarily at the head of the Polish defence ministry — a government rather than a party post. Gomulka's supporters are at the head of nearly all other organs of government.

The Gomulka forces have demanded Rokossovsky's ouster from the military post, and also the withdrawal of a large number of Soviet officers in Poland's armed forces and the withdrawal of Russian troops stationed on Polish border.

Some sources say Rokossovsky may be replaced in the defence post by Gen. Waclaw Komar, who like Gomulka was imprisoned for years as a Titoist.

QUIZ ROKOSSOVSKY

A central committee investigating commission has drawn up a report on rumors of Soviet troop movements around the capital and across the East German-Polish border.

An informed source said the committee questioned Rokossovsky closely Saturday about the rumors. He replied, according to the informant, that troops were bringing the capital at one time had been on routine manoeuvres, and that he had immediately ordered them back to their barracks when rumors of a coup began.

The real crisis apparently broke Friday night, while Khrushchev and the Soviet delegation were in the city. Khrushchev was pictured as in an aggressive mood.

GAVE SUPPORT

The liberal elements in the Polish party, however, were supported by practically the entire population in what amounted to a national movement for "bread and freedom." The Gomulka faction apparently convinced Khrushchev that any attempt to suppress the current trend would be met by a national uprising. Khrushchev left the next morning.

Late Friday night a Soviet regiment apparently tried to cross the Oder River from East Germany into Poland at a point 15 miles south of Szczecin (Stettin). Polish troops asked them to keep out, but the Russians were reported to have ignored the request, and attempted to cross by force.

TEMPERATURE OUTLOOK

While Eastern Canada can expect above-normal temperatures for the next 30 days, most of the Prairie Provinces will have near-normal readings according to this map based on the long-range forecast of the United States weather service. Northern Alberta and most of British Columbia are expected to have below-normal temperatures. Readings much above seasonal normals are expected in a section stretching from the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence River to James Bay. (CP Photo).

Stevenson Camp Claiming Lead In 21 States

CHICAGO (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson's campaign strategists claim the lead over President Eisenhower in 21 states with 233 electoral votes, and say Stevenson needs only a driving finish to win a narrow victory in the Nov. 6 United States election.

Stevenson, who speaks Tuesday night in New York City's Madison Square Garden, is pointing his campaign in the last 16 days before the election toward strenuous efforts to win big-city support in some of the larger states among 12 in the Democrats list in the doubtful class.

These strategists have crossed off 15 states, with 196 electoral votes, as definitely lost to Eisenhower.

With the exception of a farm speech at Springfield, Ill., Thursday and a later tour of New York State's smaller cities, Stevenson will concentrate on the big-town vote in vital areas.

He speaks in San Francisco and Los Angeles Saturday, and will go to Boston for a major speech next Monday. On the list for appearances yet to be arranged at Detroit, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Chicago. Others may be added.

Stevenson is expected to hit the Eisenhower administration hard on foreign policy in Tuesday night's speech.

Stevenson is expected to step up his attacks on Eisenhower in the larger states on his "doubtful" list. This group includes Arizona, California, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nevada, New York, North Dakota, Ohio and Oregon.

The 12 have a total of 191 electoral votes. The thinking of the Stevenson camp on Democratic prospects in those states ranges all the way from "very doubtful" in Michigan to "improving sensationally" in Illinois.

The Stevenson people believe they are picking up in California, where a month ago they had few hopes. Despite their talk of a farm revolt, they regard their chances of beating Eisenhower in Iowa as slim. They say they have "a fighting chance" in Minnesota.

Indians Rebury Bones of Ancestors

TORONTO (CP) — Iroquois Indians from New York State, Ontario and Quebec province Saturday observed the Feast of the Dead in ceremonies on Tabor's Hill in suburban Scarborough.

In a two-hour ceremony, the Indians reburied the bones of ancestors, recently disturbed by excavations at the site. The bones were covered with animal skins before being buried again.

The Indians, in full tribal regalia, offered prayers of appeasement to the Great Spirit.

Immigration Minister Pickersgill told the Indians and onlookers the ceremonial was a reminder that centuries of history existed here before the landing of the Europeans.

"I was grateful to hear the chiefs describe us as their brothers," he said. "You are our older brothers and the first people on this land."

Nearly 200 Iroquois took part in the ceremonies, which ended at a Scarborough Township luncheon Sunday.

Bell, Leader Of U.S. Aviation Industry, Dies

BUFFALO (AP) — Lawrence D. Bell, widely recognized as one of the leaders of the American aviation industry, died Saturday at the age of 62. Death was attributed to a heart ailment.

Funeral services will be held here Tuesay.

The board chairman of the Bell Aircraft Corporation, which produced the world's fastest and highest-flying aircraft, founded the company in 1935. He served as president until last September when Leston F. Faneuf succeeded him.

Bell Aircraft developed and built the rocket plane, X-2, which was reported to have flown 2,300 miles an hour, or three times the speed of sound, minutes before it crashed last month. Earlier the X-2 had climbed to an altitude record of 126,000 feet.

The company also produced the first plane to crack the sound barrier, the first jet plane, the first jet plane to take off and land vertically.

Bell was born in Mentone, Ind., April 5, 1894. His first job in aviation was as a mechanic when he was 18.

Three Former Secret Agents Held After Extortion Attempt

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Three former secret service agents were ordered imprisoned Saturday pending trial on a charge of trying to extort $10,000 from a young Canadian mining heiress and her husband, whose name is on the most-wanted list of the RCMP.

A fourth man arrested in the alleged plot against Louis A. Molnar and his wife, the former Rita Ann LaRue, was freed by the attorney-general's office for lack of evidence. A fifth is still being sought.

Five men, representing themselves as federal officers, entered the couple's luxury apartment here Oct. 6 and demanded $10,000 under threats of deportation. They said, among other things, that the Molnars' papers were not in order.

The couple paid some cash and left it and jewelry worth $2,000 be held as security until further cash could be raised. Officials were notified later and the five were arrested in a police trap Oct. 18.

Hearings were held during the last week. Then the attorney-general's office in effect indicted the three, consigning them to the federal penitentiary until their case can be heard by a federal district judge. Mexico has no jury system.

Mexico City records show Molnar, 33, and his wife, 21-year-old daughter of Toronto mining executive Charles LaRue, were married in Mexico last July 27. She is expecting a baby.

In Brockville, Ont., crown attorney R. P. Milligan announced he plans to seek extradition of Molnar to face a charge of armed robbery in the holdup of a Brockville supermarket by two men Nov. 23, 1955. The two escaped with $18,794. One man was arrested in Brantford, Ont., a few hours after the robbery and pleaded guilty. Molnar formerly lived in Brantford.

A long - standing extradition treaty signed by Britain and Mexico applies to Canadians. However, Molnar is not in custody and he has done nothing here to warrant his extradition on Mexico's initiative. Moreover, he has strong legal backing. He and his bride were unavailable to reporters for comment.

Molnar was quoted by the Toronto Telegram in a telephone interview Friday as saying he was always police escorted by talk with him about the supermarket robbery, but denying by implication that he was involved.

St. Laurent Invites Quebec's Universities to Go Over Head Of Duplessis and Accept Grants

QUEBEC (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent has invited Quebec's universities to go over Premier Duplessis' head and accept federal grants.

In a carefully-worded statement in French, Mr. St. Laurent urged the universities to "fulfill their function . . . without the necessity of having to take electoral considerations into account" and said it would be regrettable if "our law constituting . . . would become subjected to any political control."

At his weekly press conference Friday, Mr. Duplessis, in announced his government's opposition to the grants, talked of "people in Ottawa who wish for the disappearance of the guarantees which preserve French culture in America."

IN THE MIDDLE

The prime minister's statement, made at his home here Saturday to a Canadian Press reporter, placed the financially - burdened universities of the province in the middle of what appears to be shaping up as a major clash between Mr. St. Laurent and Mr. Duplessis.

University authorities in Quebec have not yet announced what they propose to do in the face of the new federal offers and the Quebec premier's "irrevocable" opposition to federal aid.

Quebec universities and institutions of university rank such as classical colleges accepted federal aid when the federal grants system was set up for the 1951-52 school year.

Thereafter, they quietly refused the grants, totalling some $2,500,000 annually for Quebec alone, on objections of Mr. Duplessis who said they constituted a direct violation by the federal government of the province's exclusive powers in matters of education.

But Saturday, Mr. St. Laurent said everyone knows the universities of Quebec need the money and there is a "clear impression" the only reason why the universities do not take it is because Mr. Duplessis does not want them to accept it.

The whole issue now is heading for a showdown as a result of Mr. St. Laurent's hint, during a speech he made at the University of Sherbrooke Oct. 7 that he was out to attempt to overcome Quebec's opposition to the grants.

He said he planned to ask Parliament to double the grants, from $8,000,000 to $16,000,000 annually and outlined a new scheme under which a third party, instead of the federal government, would distribute the money to all universities across the country.

Under this plan the federal sums would be turned over to the National Conference of Canadian Universities. The conference would distribute the money on a per capita basis to qualifying institutions across the country.

Reaction to the new proposal appeared generally favorable among Quebec university authorities.

However, Mr. Duplessis Friday said the plan only means federal "trespass" of education rights in the province will be carried out through a "side door" instead of through the "front door."

He disclosed an exchange of correspondence with Finance Minister Harris in September in which he said he and his provincial cabinet had already rejected federal aid.

Quebec Liberals Asked to Study Home Ridings

MONTREAL (CP)—Provincial Liberal party officials moved back into their house ridings today with orders to study the election methods of the Union Nationale and do a little investigating in their own ranks.

After hearing several speakers denounce the election tactics of Premier Duplessis' government as "corrupt and immoral," two delegates to the convention of the provincial Liberal Federation rejected criticism of the behavior of certain Liberal members of Parliament in provincial election campaigns.

They said some were known to have worked for the Union Nationale candidates in their counties, even putting their election organizations against provincial Liberal candidates. They asked that the "collaborators" be denounced publicly and that provincial Liberals oppose them at nominating conventions. If they are nominated, the two delegates said that provincial Liberals work against them in the next federal election.

ASK FOR REPORTS

No action was taken on the motions but the federation executive asked local organizations to prepare reports on the alleged collaboration and submit them for study.

Jean-Paul Gregoire, Montreal city councillor who was elected president of the federation, told the Liberal party must work toward electoral reform and setting limits on the money to be spent in election campaigns.

He said the province was "flooded with money and propaganda" in the last election, which saw 72 Union Nationale supporters elected to the 93-seat legislature. The Liberals elected 20 and one Independent was returned.

Mr. Gregoire, speaking Saturday night at a banquet winding up the two-day convention, said he had received reports of members of religious communities "voting in block against the Liberal party, holding in their hands one . . . of the pamphlets distributed against us."

British Refuse To Arrest Cubans Who 'Invaded' Isle

CAY SAL, Bahamas (AP)—How does the British lion go about ridding his domains of freelance invaders?

Thirteen conquistadores from Cuba found out first-hand Friday on mile-square Cay Sal, a Bahamas isle where they planted Cuba's flag and claimed possession.

A four-engined British Heron air transport ferried Nassau, Bahamas capital, settled onto the sands. It disgorged Lt.-Col. C. J. Sloner of the Bahamas police, and eight heavily-armed, constables.

Colchester-Wemyss marched up to Cesar Vega, 29, of Havana and inquired civilly if Vega and his "troops," who landed Thursday, had proper customs and entry documents. They confessed they hadn't.

"Depart forthwith!" the colonel barked, pointing seaward.

WANTED ARREST

Vega argued, urging that he and his group of "nationalists" be arrested and taken to Nassau as prisoners. Wemyss refused, suggesting that if the Vega needed help in climbing into its boat, help aplenty was at hand.

The constables searched the Cubans, relieving them of their flag, a revolver, ammunition and some cans of movie film. The "invaders" sailed disconsolately away.

Shortly before the colonel and his constables took off, Jose Pedro Llada, Cuban National Revolutionary party candidate for mayor of Havana, arrived by air at Cay Sl and talked with reporters.

Llada said the Cuban invasion was linked to "an official feeling that the Cuban government should make a bid to obtain Cay Sal," which is 55 miles north of Verdero, Cuba, and 200 miles from Nassau.

Llada said direct negotiations would be attempted with Britain.

Prince Charles Enjoys Ballet

LONDON (AP)—Prince Charles saw the Bolshoi Ballet's nearest equivalent to a Wild West show Saturday and clapped so hard he afterwards held his hands in mock pain.

The seven-year-old prince, accompanied by the Queen Mother, stood on the stage between acts while a group of savage-looking dancers from The Fountain of Bakhchisarai cracked their whips around him and invited him to have a try.

But Prince Charles declined to attempt to equal their pistol-like cracking which was pursuing a waiting audience the other side of the drooped curtain.

Blue Cross PARTICIPANTS

Effective January 1957, Blue Cross rates will be adjusted and you, as a Blue Cross subscriber, will want to know the reason why.

Blue Cross is unique in that it provides payment for hospital services, rather than fixed dollar allowances which are often insufficient to meet the cost of hospital care. However, the combined effect of:

(a) steadily rising hospital costs, and

(b) the greater number of persons requiring hospital care, has so increased the cost to Blue Cross that immediate steps must be taken to adjust subscription income. Despite the fact that the Plan's administration costs represent less than five cents of the subscription dollar, the audited financial statement for the first six months of 1956 (copies available on request) shows that subscription income fell short of the amount paid out by approximately one million dollars.

The Association's Board of Directors, the Executive Committee, and Finance Committee gave careful study to the entire problem before introducing a change in the current rate structure. They realized that the continued growth of the Plan was based on providing the maximum in hospital care protection. Blue Cross subscribers have indicated their preference for this type of protection and our policy in this respect will not change. So that Blue Cross may continue to provide sound protection against unexpected hospital expense for all subscribers, an adjustment in rates is necessary.

Approved by the Department of Insurance, the new rates have been kept to an absolute minimum, but are sufficient to assure continued maximum protection for all Blue Cross subscribers.

Group Leaders will be receiving notification of the adjustments affecting the rates in their groups. Subscribers paying directly to Blue Cross will receive notification with their next Subscription Notice.

He also commended Frankford on the financial gain during the past year and thanked the colored Korean film, "My Right and My Cause." This picture portrayed God's hand in keeping the word of God from Communistic hands.

CAMPBELLFORD

C of C Definitely Against Parking Meters

CAMPBELLFORD — Forty-two members of the Campbellford Chamber of Commerce attended a dinner meeting in the parish hall on Friday evening.

After a delicious dinner of fried chicken, prepared by the Anglican Ladies Guild, president Ross Douglas opened the business portion of the meeting.

The secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting and the various committee chairmen made their reports.

It was decided to hold the annual Santa Claus Parade on December 8th, with F. G. DeCarrol as general chairman and Howard Davidson as chairman of finance. It was reported that the amount of $150 be donated to the town for the purpose of purchasing up property for an industrial site.

PARKING METERS

The main issue of the meeting was the matter of the proposed installation of parking meters in Campbellford. Considerable time was taken up for discussion at the request of the town council.

The chairman referred the matter to the floor for debate, the final analysis being that the number of hours per week that parking meters would be required were the issue. A recommendation was made that strict parking laws be enforced during this period to overcome congestion and the need for meters. A decisive vote on the matter was unanimously against parking meters in Campbellford.

Entertainment for the evening was provided by Mr. Francis Deered who rendered an appreciable solo, and Mr. A. Simbrow who concluded by mystifying his audience with his magic tricks.

TWO IN A ROW

Bep Guidolin's Belleville McFarlands came through with undeniable evidence yesterday that their 4-3 victory over the Cornwall Chevvies Friday night was no flash in the pan. They registered their second victory in as many starts downt Cornwall way on Sunday by handing the Chevvies of that city their second defeat by a 4-3 score.

Actually it was three in a row for the Gerry Plamondon crew for Saturday night they bowed to Whitby by a 7-1 score. The Chevvies, by all fairness to them, must have been a travel-weary crew for they faced the stiffest opening schedule of any team in the loop.

Friday they trekked here to meet the McFarlands, going on to Whitby Saturday night. Then the long haul back home on Sunday with the McFarlands waiting for them at 2.30 p.m.

The McFarlands have got away to an auspicious start, winning their two opening games and at the present showing top honors in the league standing with the Whitby Dunlops. Both Dunlops and Bellevue were invincible by Kingston Friday night before taking a 5-4 win in overtime, flushed some of their vaunted power on Saturday by defeating the Chevvies by an imposing 7-1 count in the Whitby arena.

Meanwhile Kingston Elcees chalked up their first victory on Saturday night by whipping the hitherto unknown quantity, the Pembroke Lumber Kings in the Kingston arena.

But it is far too early for any limb-crawling. None of the teams, unless it could be Whitby, has shown full its strength thus far, but at the same time it's a mighty pleasant taste in the mouth to have the first two games of the season in the win column.

"The boys went well Friday night against the Cornwall Chevvies, but Ha all chalks that up as the first game of the season we were sure of," said McFarland coach Bep Guidolin after the Mac's thrilling 4-3 victory over the Chevvies.

"I was nervous myself not knowing the Belleville fans. I did not know what they expected but the general reaction was good," he said.

"I do not think the boys have given their best yet, in fact some of the clubs sa'st fall strength nor in tip-top condition," Guidolin said.

The addition of Henri Therrien and Willie Menard, plus another defenceman the management is negotiating with, will bring more strength power to the McFarlands. The releases of the first two players have not been received as yet, but are expected shortly.

One of the things that appears to delight the fans here-about is the McFarland's penchant for mix-up matters with the opposition. They can dish out some pretty solid body-checks, especially M'ssrs Benoit and Crawford, while Keith MacDonald is not exactly a feather when it comes to the business. They also have an ability to shoot their way over the opposition has to present in the way of terse tossing.

Luring the recent junket to Kitchener with the McFarlands, we were informed that the Eastern Senior League would "first" of its kind in the area, standardized one referee—two linesmen system. "We had it for a while and quickly got rid of it for the two-referee type of officiating," said Kitchener sports editor Len Taylor. "You won't like it either after you've seen it operate for a while."

Thundering Als Swamp Cats Rough Riders Down Argonauts

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If Montreal Alouettes don't make their third straight trip to the Grey Cup final this year somebody is likely to demand that they take the railway. From their week-end performance, it's doubtful if any club in the country could beat them.

The thundering Als turned the McGill Stadium into a battleground track and field strip Saturday as they ran over Hamilton Tiger-Cats to a record-breaking 53-14 victory. No one is quite sure yet of the damage they did to the Big Four record book.

An unofficial count showed at least 23 records of one kind or another broken. On top of all this the Als clinched first place and a bye into the playoffs and stretched their unbeaten streak at home to 21 games.

Tiger-Cats had already made sure of a playoff spot but they can't be certain of a second-place finish. Ottawa Rough Riders looked after this by defeating Toronto Argonauts 37-26 at Ottawa, leaving Argos only a slim mathematical playoff threat.

Here's how things stand with only two more games remaining in the 14-game schedule. The Als lead with 20 points, Tiger-Cats have 12, Ottawa 10 and Toronto six. In brief, Toronto must beat Ottawa and Montreal in its final games to tie Riders in points.

A crowd of 22,365 thronged McGill Stadium hopeful that their heroes would make certain of the No. 1 spot. No one in the park, or any other place for that matter figured coach Peahead Walker's crew would humiliate TiCats to such an extent.

In a wild rout of Tiger-Cats, Dick Alonetes led 10 touchdowns and seven came off Hamilton as the first half and fourth quarter the Als rolled up 12 touchdowns alsecues. Five interceptions by the javed the way for two others.

The air-minded Als scored seven of their 12 touchdowns on passes—six from Sam Etcheverry tosses and one from Bruno Coulter. Second-string signal - caller who took over in the third quarter when Hamilton started to unload his bench.

Fob James led the scorers with four touchdowns. Bruising Pat Abruzzi went over for three, the brilliant Hal Patterson added one each was scored by Etcheverry, Bob Pascal and Bill Vincenzo. Toogussoo. Bill Bewley kicked kicked nine converts and Johnny Blatcher opened the game with a single.

Blatcher's opening kickoff was a cue to the hopelessness of the Ti-Cats cause. The ball got past Cookie Gilchrist and Dave West conceded the point as the ball neared the deadline. From it appeared to be simply a matter of time as the Als ran up a 30-0 first quarter lead and stormed through for 34 points in the second quarter. In addition they scored in the quarter.

The most sensational individual record performance was a 104-yard touchdown runback of a kickoff by Patterson. The old record of 95 yards was also held by Patterson—set in 1954, also against Hamilton.

Hal Waggoner scored one of Etcheverry's touchdowns on a 76-yard pass-and-run play off Tony Curcillo's punt. West scored the other on a pass from Bob Dawson.

Rough Riders won their "must" game on heads-up playing and a ferocious defence. Quarterback Jerry Tapscott wrapped up the game with a 10-point third quarter, giving them a 34-19 lead.

Ottawa quarterback Hal Lehnert Alouettes led to touchdowns and seven came off Hamilton as the first half and fourth quarter the Als rolled up 12 touchdowns alsecues. Five interceptions by the javed the way for two others.

Blues Bounce With 4-1 Win As Boston Ties Red Wings; Leafs Tie Bruins Saturday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens are showing some of the class that rocketed them to the National Hockey League title and Stanley Cup championship last season. For, if anybody figured Jean Beliveau would be suppressed for any length of time.

The Montreaders came up with some of their old-time power Saturday with a 5-0 victory over New York Rangers. It was the second win in four games for Canadiens—both by shutouts.

The Saturday win undoubtedly gave the other five clubs in the league the impression Canadiens are fast rounding into shape. It was the only engagement of the weekend for Canadiens. The Habs, who amassed 100 points in their drive to first place last season, are tied for third spot with Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins.

In the other Saturday game, Bruins scored early in the third period to gain a 3-3 tie with Leafs before 13,203 fans at Toronto.

HAWKS DOWNED AGAIN

Rangers bounced back Sunday night to chalk up a victory from the last-place Hawks at New York's Madison Square Garden. Guy Gendron led the Blueshirts with two goals, only Chicago shot at his 19-year-old net. Meanwhile, Bruins were registering their third deadlock of the season by battling Detroit Red Wings to a 3-3 decision.

The Wings were lead the pack with eight points on three wins and two deadlocks. Bruins were second with six points. Montreal, Toronto and Boston has five each and the Hawks, who registered only 19 victories in 70 games last season, are at the bottom on goals.

At Montreal, Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion scored two goals for Canadiens. Bert Olmstead, Jean Beliveau and Floyd Curry each got one.

It was the 17th consecutive regular-schedule game in which Rangers have failed to win on Montreal ice.

HADAM SCORES FOURTH

At Toronto, Jerry Toppazzini was the third-period scorer who tied the game for Bruins. Centre Jack Caffery, dealt to Boston by Leafs in an off-season trade this year, scored the other Bruin goal, in the second period. Left winger Don Simmons and defence Allan Sloan scored for Leafs in the first period. It was Sloan's first goal in five games. He scored 37 last season.

Except for the sensational work of goalie Ed Chadwick, Bruins would have won. Chadwick, starting his first full season with Leafs, made tremendous third-period stops on Boston's Leo Labine, Johnny Peirson and Larry Regan. Chadwick handled 23 shots. Terry Sawchuk in the Boston cage stopped 28 drives.

Rangers grabbed a 2-0 lead against Hawks. Gendron supplied both of them on pokeys in front of the Hawk nets. Denny Lewicki and Andy Bathgate got the other Rangers goals. Harry Watson tallied for Hawks, who are winless in four starts.

At Detroit, Vic Stasiuk, a former Bruin, scored the only goal for Bruins. His second goal tied the game. Labine supplied the other Boston goal. Terry Sawchuk, Earl Reibel and Lorne Ferguson, all former Maple Leafs, drew the Red Wings' penalties, six to Wings. Two of the sentences were fighting majors to Detroit's Marcel Pronovost and Boston's Bob Armstrong.

No games are scheduled until Wednesday, when Canadiens take on Rangers at New York.

a blocked kick, booted the ball downfield, picked it up on the bounce on the Argonaut 30 and ran all the way from there.

Bud Korchak kicked four converts on a field goal.

Arnie Galiffa pitched for all Toronto touchdowns. Al Pelfrey took two payoff tosses and Bobby Kuntz and Bucky Curtis one apiece. Pfeiffer also kicked two converts.

Knox, Stamps Defeat Bombers As Riders Twist Lions' Tail

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Calgary's playoff hopes in the Union were snuffed out long ago, but the Stampeders Saturday night put a crimp to any plans Winnipeg Blue Bombers had of a better-than-third place finish.

The last-place Cowboys rose up behind Ronnie Knox, former UCLA All-American quarterback, in midseason after he quit Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four to swat Bombers 25-15 Tuesday night on a Knox pass, Knox lateral and two pass interceptions before 15,822 at Winnipeg.

That, coupled with Riders' 25-22 victory over British Columbia Lions before 18,229 fans in the last game of the season at Vancouver, left Bombers in third place, two points behind Riders and with but one game left—against Edmonton Eskimos next Saturday at Winnipeg.

WITHIN TWO POINTS

Riders' victory, behind the passing of quarterback Frank Tripucka pulled them within two points of the league-leading Eskimos and within two points of Bombers remaining.

Saskatchewan meets the Stampeders there, and Calgary tonight and at Regina next Saturday, while Eskimos meet B.C. at Edmonton tonight before tackling Bombers in their final scheduled contest.

Dean Renfro, a late-season acquisition from Baltimore Colts, paced the scoring of Stampeders, who have looked stronger every time out since Knox arrived. Renfro took a 31-yard pass from Knox for one touchdown and grabbed a lateral from the quarterback and streaked 53 yards on a play that went 41 in all for another.

Earl Lunsford intercepted a Buddy Leake forward and ran 33 yards for a touchdown and Alan Valdez ran around end for 20 yards to another after Lamar Leachman had intercepted a pass from Leake.

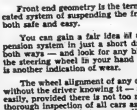
KNOX SCORES

A single on a long Knox punt was the only scoring point for the all-star from UCLA.

Bob McNamara, among the leaders in the WIFU individual ground gaining race, picked up two Bomber touchdowns.

At Vancouver, Tripucka threw three touchdown passes to beat the hard-trying Lions, who end their season tonight at Edmonton.

Tripucka's three touchdown passes went for yards to Ron Dundas, 40 yards to Alex Bravo and 30 yards to Leroy Blount. Isbell got four more points on two converts and two singles while Reg Whitehouse booted a field goal.



Al Pollard and quarterback Gerry Gustafson played B. C. touchdowns on line plunges while Paul Cameron passed to Ed Vereb after Lions missed a fifteen jitsboot to score the third. Ron Baker converted all three and Vic Chapman kicked a single.

FRANCE BEATS REDS

PARIS (AP)—France defeated the Russian national soccer team 3-1 Sunday in a spectacular game at the Colombes Stadium. Half-time score was 0-0.

HOW TO BUY A GOOD USED CAR

A LESSON IN GEOMETRY

Front end geometry is the term used to describe the complicated system of suspending the front wheels so that steering is both safe and easy.

You can gain a fair idea of any wear present in this suspension system in just a short drive. Turn corners sharply — then straighten out and look for any binding or sticking. Rickle of the steering wheel in your hand on rough roads at low speeds is another indication of wear.

The wheel alignment of any car can be thrown out easily—without the driver knowing it — and it can be corrected just as easily, provided there is not too much wear in the system. Our thorough inspection of all cars assures you that excessive wear is not present so that proper alignment can always be maintained.

McFarlands Win Second Straight Victory; Defeat Cornwall Again 4-2

Score Two in Third Period To Break Two-all Stalemate; Share Top Rung With Whitby

CORNWALL (Special) — Belleville McFarlands, maintaining the fast pace that swept them to a 4-3 overtime win at home Friday night, won their second straight victory here yesterday with a 4-2 triumph over the Cornwall Chevrolets.

The victory enabled the McFarlands to share top spot in the league standing with the Whitby Dunlops who defeated Kingston 8-4 Friday and whipped the Chevries 7-1 Saturday night.

The McFarlands and Dunlops are tops with two wins each. Kingston is in second place with one win and one defeat after their 7-3 triumph over Pembroke Lumbee Kings Saturday night. Pembroke holds down fourth place with one loss and the Chevries bring up the rear with three setbacks.

The game here yesterday was almost a repetition of the fast close-checking fray that featured the first meeting between the clubs. They battled through a rip-snorting first period with the McFarlands holding a 2-1 lead at the frame end. The Chevries dipped back and tied it up at two all in the second frame then faded before the determined McFarland pressure of the Belleville club which outscored them two goals to nothing.

Paul Payette triggered the big-point gun for the McFarlands, netting up all four scoring plays and scoring the third Belleville goal unassisted. Minnie Menard, St. Hilaire and Floyd Crawford were the other Belleville marksmen-extraordinaires. "Kikouts" Joannette and Bob Bingley hit the rigging for the Chevries.

Ten minor penalties were handed out by officials, six of them to the McFarlands but the Chevries were unable to take advantage when they had the extra man-power.

Cornwall outshot the Belleville crew 24-20 but the Chevries' defence was sloppy at times while clearing rebounds and most of the visitors' shots were fired from close in. The rugged Belleville defence forced the homesters to shoot from just inside the blueline most of the time.

Paul Payette laid a neat pass on the stick of St. Hilaire after two minutes of play in the opening period and the winger beat Devaney cleanly for the first goal of the game. The marker was given an assist on a power play while Pete Payette was sitting one out.

Limoges spearheaded a Cornwall attack midway through the period by taking the puck deftly on the stick of Kikouts Joannette and the crafty centre made no mistake to tie the score.

NEAT EFFORT

With less than two minutes to go Paul Payette dug deeply into a corner for the puck, stickhandled cleverly through the Chevries' defence and blasted it past Devaney unassisted to put the McFarlands one up. The period ended that way.

The best hockey of the game from a fan's point of view was played in the second period when they held the McFarlands off the score sheet and knotted the count midway through the frame.

Billy Dewey was the marksman on this occasion taking a pass from Floyd Crawford and blasting a slapshot from the blueline beat Don Larwin in the McFarland net.

The McFarlands took over from the fading Chevries in the third heat and the customers had barely settled in their seats than Floyd Crawford neatly aided by Paul Payette slipped the rubber past Devaney during a goalmouth scramble for the winning tally.

Minnie Menard fired the insurance marker with less than six minutes to go with the nimble M'sieu Payette again engineering the play assisted by Lucien Limoges.

With both teams at full strength throughout the third period the McFarlands carried the brunt of the play and the good work of Devaney in the Chevvie nets prevented a higher score.

In the other Friday game, Toronto Lawrence Park defeated Oshawa Collegiate 16-10 in a thriller before 10,000 cheering high school students.

Saturday, Port Credit High School, undefeated and unscored upon in four league games this year, romped over North Bay Collegiate 34-0. Ottawa Technical School disposed of Toronto Riverdale Collegiate 29-10.

Winning teams were awarded United Funds football trophies.

Officials announced that gate receipts from the two-day tourney totalled about $20,000. In the last eight years $100,000 has been turned over to United Funds coffers.

Port Credit took advantage of a fumbled North Bay team to roar to its win.

Cards, Lions Unbeaten in National League

NEW YORK (AP) — Chicago Cardinals and Detroit Lions remained unbeaten through the fourth week of the National Football League competition Sunday although the Lions needed a field goal by Bobby Layne in the last 17 seconds to defeat San Francisco 49ers 20-17 for their fourth victory.

The Cardinals struck for 17 points in the last quarter for a 20-6 victory over Philadelphia Eagles in gaining their fourth straight triumph.

But the most devastating attacks were turned in by Chicago Bears, Green Bay Packers and New York Giants. The Bears crushed Baltimore Colts 38-27 to move into second place back of the Lions in the Western Conference with a 3-1 record. The Giants took over the same spot back of the Cards in the Eastern Conference with a 38-10 decision over Pittsburgh Steelers. The Packers turned back Los Angeles Rams 42-17.

In the other game, Washington beat the once-powerful Cleveland Browns 20-0. The setback was the Browns' third in four games while the victory was the Redskins' first in four starts.

Redmen Collar Golden Gaels As Varsity Edges Mustangs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Defence is shaping up as the big factor in senior intercollegiate football competition.

Queen's Golden Gaels who showed signs of having the only offensive team in the league just a week ago, were collared Saturday by a hard-charging McGill line that held them to one point while the Redmen scored six at Kingston.

At Toronto the Blues edged the University of Western Ontario Mustangs 21-19 and it was superior line play that made the difference.

At the half-way mark of the six-game schedule it looks as if micrometers will be needed to pick a winner.

The Blues are resting precariously in first place on the strength of Saturday's win. They have two tilts and a tie in three starts for five points.

Queen's loss gave them a 1-1-1 record and three points.

Mustangs and Redmen—the pre-season favorites—are tied with two points each.

From here on anything can happen.

Varsity coach Dalt White dipped into his grab bag Saturday for his third quarterback in three games.

Harry Wilson, with considerable assistance from halfback Tim Reid, led his squad and he behind a 6-0 count.

After Neil Desbrough, flashy Mustang back, opened scoring early in the second quarter, Reid, a 20-year-old 175-pounder from Ottawa, took the ball on the second play after the kickoff and ranthe 69 yards for the tying touchdown.

Wilson did some of his own ball carrying late in the first half after Toronto blocked a Western kick and gave his team a 13-6 lead. Mustangs' Frank Loftus counted a touchdown in the third quarter which was also converted. In the final minute of the quarter Reid scored his second touchdown with a six-yard run around right end.

Peter Mak converted both of Reid's touchdowns and Ross Woody kicked another single for the Varsity squad.

Western finished the big scoring with a fourth-quarter touchdown on a pass from Art Turner to Loftus.

It was McGill's best-digging line which tipped the scales in the Redmen's favor.

Queen's took a 1-0 lead in the opening quarter on a single by Jocko Thompson. From then on they were held powerless while McGill used Paul Dingle kicked two field goals.

John Moschelle, Gaels' quarterback who last week handed the Redmen their worst post-war drubbing—a 35-0 setback—was injured in the second quarter and was unable to get in action for three eminutes in the fourth.

Statistics are gone some idea of the closeness of the Varsity-Western game. Each team gained by rushing. Varsity made 116 yards passing, Western 124. Each team made 20 yards kicking.

Next Saturday Toronto is at Western and Queen's is playing at McGill in Montreal in what will probably be the decisive games of the season.

Beaches, Bears Win Senior ORFU

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Even in football big ones get away sometimes.

London Lords watched one go Saturday in their senior Ontario Rugby Football Union game with Toronto Balmy Beach in London.

Ahead 14-0 at the half, Lords were crushed by three converted touchdowns and a field goal in the final 30 minutes as Toronto rolled to a 24-14 win.

In the league's other Saturday game Sarnia Golden Bears rocked up 20 points in the first quarter and held on to take a 28-20 decision over Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen.

The day's action left Dutchmen in first spot with 14 points. Toronto is second with 12, Sarnia third with 10 and London is last with four points.

Japs Defeat Dodgers 6-1

TOKYO (AP) — Brooklyn Dodgers were beaten 6-1 Sunday by perhaps the strongest Japanese baseball team they've met.

The Japan all-stars, nearly all 300-pound sluggers, handed Don Newcombe from the mount with four hits on his first 17 pitches.

It was the National League champions' second loss in three games in Japan.

Newcombe stormed from the mound and gloomily left the stadium by taxi before the first inning ended. Ed Roebuck took over.

It was believed to be the first time a visiting team's pitcher was hit four times in his first 17 pitches. It was the National League champions' second loss in three games in Japan.

Big Four Union Clears Powers Of Commissioner

OTTAWA (CP)—The executive of the Big Four Football Union Sunday clarified the broad powers of its commissioner, Judge Allan J. Fraser of Ottawa, who had asked that his duties be made clear.

Basically, the commissioner's duties will be to do the work of the Big Four board of referees, inactive for many years and which was disbanded at Sunday's meeting.

Judge Fraser will have power to adjudicate disputes between referee-in-chief Seymour Wilson and his officials; disciplines players, coaches and club employees for bad deportment and suspend them or impose fines up to a maximum of $200; fine clubs up to a maximum of $1,000 for breaches of league rules.

The board of referees was set up many years ago to rule on charges of misconduct of players. It has not functioned for the last few years.

HAD FOUR MEMBERS

The board included Cec McFadden of Toronto, Charles Lawson of Hamilton, Billy Wray of Montreal and James P. McCaffrey, Big Four president and manager of Ottawa Rough Riders.

The executive also reiterated its confidence in Wilson and decided to let him continue to have full powers to train, select and appoint referees for league games.

The executive decided that home teams in the playoffs shall allot 1,000 tickets to supporters of visiting teams and 100 tickets to each of the non-participating teams.

Barons Jump Into Top Slot With Twin Wins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cleveland Barons used Prop-Jidence Reds and Springfield Indians as springboards during the weekend to jump into first place in the American Hockey League.

After turning back the defending champion Reds 4-1 Saturday night, the Barons defeated the Indians 7-3 Sunday night to boost their total to seven points, two more than Hershey, Providence and Buffalo, tied for second.

Buffalo Bisons also moved into contention with two triumphs. They beat Hershey 4-3 Saturday and Sunday night downed Providence, 2-1. In the only other game over the weekend, Springfield walloped winless Rochester 9-3 Saturday.

Fred Glover picked up three goals for Cleveland during the weekend, two against Springfield. Other Barons scoring Sunday: Gordon Vejtevas, John McLellan, Bob Elick, Ken Stanas and Jackie Gordon. Springfield goals were by Jimmy Anderson, Bob Bailey and Maurice Collins.

POGUE PROVES WORTH

Eric Pogue, who rejoined Buffalo in midweek after holding out, and Frank Sullivan scored the Bisons' goals Sunday. The defending champion Reds couldn't beat goalie Harry Lumley until 17:18 of the third period. Bob Robertson scored with Buffalo a man short.

At Cleveland Saturday night, former Barons goalie Johnny Bowers was beaten by Bob Chamberlain, Elk, Bill Sivetz and Glover while Ray Ross scored for Providence.

Buffalo had to rally to win as Hershey was rolling 3-0. Lou Jankowski scored twice and the others were by Ray Cunningham and Sam Bettio. Willie Marshall, Al Nicholson and Bob Solinger scored the Bisons.

Eight different players scored for Springfield, Jimmy Anderson, Gord Tottle, Gerry Ehman, Gary Blaine, Ken Schinkel, Bailey, Moore, Maurice Collins and Doug McMurdy. Rochester goals were by Hector Lalonde and Earl Balfour four.

Leading Teams Victors in U.S. Football

NEW YORK (AP) — The food bowcast but Texas Christian and Ohio State had been nurturing for undefeated seasons were snapped abruptly Saturday by Texas A and M and Penn State respectively.

But there was no stopping the leading three teams in the United States, Oklahoma, Michigan State and Georgia Tech all triumphed without incident.

Apparently the Southwest Conference is going to turn into one of its usual knock-down drag-out battles. Texas Christian, No. 4 in this week's Associated Press poll was the first victim Saturday's 7-6 loss to the Aggies.

Now the Aggies, with one tie and four victories, move into the favorite's spot.

Ohio State is bet to Penn State 7-6.

For the top three, the only question was how much their margin would be. Oklahoma whipped Kansas 34-12. By Sooner standards this was close. It was their 34th straight victory.

Michigan State crushed Notre Dame 47-14 and Georgia Tech humbled Auburn 26-7. The Spartans' point — scoring spree against Notre Dame was the fattest since the school's beast playing each other back in 1897.

Wendy Hiller Gives Closeup View of Shaw on Anniversary

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A closeup view of George Bernard Shaw in this centennial year of his birth is offered by Wendy Hiller.

The English actress is here making her first Hollywood film, Somerset Maugham's "Storm in a Teacup", and I asked her for some memories of Shaw. She was the star of the first two of his plays to be filmed, Pygmalion and Major Barbara.

"He was the most charming man in the world," she recalled. "Of course I was terrified of him at first. But he immediately put me at ease. So much so that I could go to him and explain about certain scenes I had to do which I thought were unplayable. I would end up advising him to rewrite whole scenes from his plays. Imagine!"

Miss Hiller said she first met the Irish playwright just 20 years ago at his 80th birthday celebration at Malvern, England, where Shaw festival is held. She was then doing St. Joan and Pygmalion.

She said Shaw seldom appeared on the set during the filming of his plays, but sent frequent letters to her and to the producer, the late Gabriel Pascal.

Miss Hiller remarked: "He would often come to rehearsals of course, though. And I visited him at his place in the huge building at Whitehall. He was the most beautiful voice—rather high pitched—with a soft Dublin accent he always kept."

Was he rude?

"Never," she replied. "At least not to his friends. Of course, he could be short with strangers who bothered him, and he was besieged with them all his life. Imagine a man with his brilliant mind having to put up with idiotic gossip with strangers!"

The actress didn't have time to see My Fair Lady on Broadway musical version of Pygmalion, but says she will catch it in New York on her return home.

She was invited to a screening here of the film, in which she portrayed with the late Leslie Howard, but declined. She had tried to look at it once during the war, found it too painful.

Ontario Senior A Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If winger Don Rope maintains his early-season scoring pace, Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A Western Division may redeem some lost prestige.

The Dutchies, beaten by Russia for the world and Olympic hockey titles last winter at Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy, took over sole possession of first place in the league Sunday with a 5-3 victory over Stratford Indians.

Rope scored three goals for Dutchies, including an insurance marker late in the third period when Stratford threatened to tie the score.

In other weekend action in the Western section, Owen Sound Mercurys shocked two more defeats and are now under three games. Mercurys bowed 3-3 twice, to Chatham Maroons Saturday and Windsor Bulldogs Sunday.

NORTH BAY SPLITS

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association series, the league-leading North Bay Trappers set down Sault Ste. Marie Indians 6-2 Saturday but were edged 2-1 Sunday by the Indians at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

The new Eastern Division of the OHA Senior A circuit saw Whitby Dunlops continue their winning ways, whipping Cornwall Chevies 7-1 at Whitby Saturday.

The winless Chevies dropped their third straight at home Sunday, 4-2 to Belleville McFarlands.

Kingston CKLY's rewarded the home opener of Pembroke Lumber Kings, winning 7-3 with four goals in the second period.

REJECT ROUYN

The South Porcupine Senior League, which rejected an application from Rouyn Flashes because of travel difficulties, saw South Porcupine Porkies take their second straight win over Timmins Flyers, a 3-2 decision at South Porcupine Sunday.

At Kitchener, veterans George Scholes and Joe Hogan shot the other K-W markers. Joe Schertzl, Bob Mader and Bob Dawson scored for Indians.

Former NHLer, star Joe Klukay, Reg Abbott and John Shaver counted for Bulldogs against Owen Sound Sunday. Buck Forslund and Frank Bergeron scored for the Mercurys.

Saturday at Owen Sound, Graham Joyce, Al Cleary and Ted Power provided the win for Chatham. Jack Stoddard and Jerry Reid tallied for the losers.

OPEN UP IN THIRD

The season opener at Sault Ste. Marie saw Indians outscored in the last period when Bob Barlow, who shot two goals, Jerry Cahana and Flint Gorgon found the mark for North Bay. Stan Maxwell and Art Stratton also counted for the Hounds.

Gord Myles was the big noise for Whitby with two goals. Other Dunlop marksmen were Ed Redmond, Gene Samolenko, Harry Sinden, Bob Attersley and Fred Eicher. Elliott Joanette counted for Cornwall.

Paul Payette counted once for Belleville Sunday and assisted on goals by Crawford, Menard and St. Hilaire. Lasette and Pete Paystie scored for Cornwall.

Jack Seiler had two tallies for Kingston, singles coming off the sticks of Frank Collett, Gerry Moore, Hub Macey, O'Reilly and Don Murray. Bert Giesebrecht had two for Pembroke, and brother Jack had one.

At South Porcupine, Norm Edmonds, Barrie Caldbick and Eddie Kulik were the winners' goal-getters. Johnny Young potted both Flyers' goals.

10,000 New Prospects Move Into Teenage Market Every Day

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—In the cashiers' offices of radio and television it is not considered enough for an entertainer simply to entertain. He also must sell the sponsor's product.

There is a reflective article along these lines in the current issue of Sponsor magazine, a trade publication concerned with television and radio advertising, in which the question is asked: Can Dick Presley sell soap? Soap being the commonly accepted term for any advertised product.

In this instance Sponsor is not concerned as much with Elvis as with taking him as the symbol of the many rock 'n' roll entertainers on radio and TV who attract huge teenage audiences. The article explores all sides of the question, based on the fact that advertisers have awakened to the realization there are some 24,100,000 youths between the ages of 10 and 19 in the United States.

Teenagers already have displayed their ability to buy records. They have made that industry what it is today. But what else can the younger generation buy? Sponsor asks.

"Every day 10,000 new prospects move into the teenage market. This year about 750,000 teenagers are expected. The enormous age of marriage for women is 18. About one-third of all first children in the United States are born to women 20 and under. Obviously, if the late teenagers are going into house-keeping and raising families, then they comprise a growing market for appliances, furnishing and cars."

Mr. J. Connor voiced thanks to the ladies for their hospitable meal and Mrs. B. Woodbeck replied.

Mr. Doug Carswell and a group from Campbellford provided the entertainment.

Mr. Don Baldwin recited, "The Battle of Hastings," and delighted with two vocal selections, "The World is Mine," and "The Secret Where You Live." Later he sang some Irish melodies. He was accompanied by Miss Donna Sharp, on the piano.

Later in the evening, Mr. Baldwin entertained with his bagpipes and rendered, "Believe Me if all those Endearing Young Charms," a variety of Scottish reels, "Bonnie Lassie," and "Auld Lang Syne." He was loudly applauded.

The Campbellford group staged a skit entitled, "Le Detector," with six men impersonating Scout officers. This was most amusing.

ADDRESS

Mr. Carswell introduced the guest speaker, the Rev. Gordon Whitehorn of Seymour Church. The speaker stated he was proud to be associated with people in this worthwhile work. He quoted from the gospel of St. John the story of the loaves and fishes, and stressed the words, "There is a lad here." This is the key to the whole situation. The child in the home improves with the guidance and direction given by the parents. Then comes a time when greater influence is needed, and here the Boy Scout organization plays its part, as they are linked up with family, church, and Sunday School.

The Boy Scout organization is called upon to assist and encourage boys to become good citizens. The children of the land are its greatest resources. They need to develop into men and women with good characters and a keen desire to live a responsible life.

The boys are influenced to become good and useful citizens. Children are quick to copy ideals from their leaders. True, the work is sometimes discouraging, as children do not always appreciate what is being done for them, however, through faith, the seed is sown, and someday results will be reaped.

In closing, the speaker urged Scout leaders to remember that they are laborers together with God; they have identified themselves with Him and His work. "Your labor is not in vain, however, you need patience to carry on this great movement. You must always remember that the children, who are growing up today, are potential assets. No one can predict what they may become in future days." Mr. Whitehorn assured all the leaders present that their labors are most worthwhile and that their works will follow them.

K. F. Mayhew voiced thanks to Mr. Whitehorn and presented him with a small gift on behalf of the district.

SLIDES

Mr. Joe Irish showed a set of interesting slides and the pictures depicted scenes at O'Hara's Mill, where the Boy Scouts planted trees; pictures of the camp at Campbellford; local pictures, when Sir Ian Boulten paid Stirling a visit. There were also pictures of the local leaders and all was beautiful and entertaining and greatly enjoyed.

Mr. Robert Patterson presented his report and retired from office after a two-year term.

Mr. Jack Connor gave the report of the nominating committee.

The officers elected were: president, Lloyd Parnell, Havelock; secretary-treasurer, John Hunter, Havelock; district Scout Masters, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Irish, Stirling.

A vote of thanks was tendered the retiring president, David Duffin, and secretary Robert Patterson, for their faithful service for the past two years.

The new president spoke briefly and conducted the business. An invitation to hold the January meeting in Warkworth was accepted.

The main theme was the need of a camp site in the district and some discussion took place.

French 'Shanghai' Algerian Rebels Bound For Tunis

Plane's Landing in Algiers Stirs More African Unrest

ALGIERS (AP)—Angry demonstrations flared in the streets of Tunis today and unrest spread elsewhere in North Africa in the wake of the French seizure of five leading Algerian rebels.

The surprise arrest dimmed hopes of the "peace in Algeria" meeting in Tunis between Sultan Mohammed V of Morocco and Premier Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia.

Labor leaders called general protest strikes in Tunisia and Casablanca, and the movement is expected to spread elsewhere in turbulent North Africa.

Police in Tunis fanned back several thousand screaming demonstrators who attempted to march on government buildings as news spread of the arrest of the five leaders.

Sultan Mohammed was considering flying back to Rabat, where violence also was feared. He and Bourguiba had been expected to meet in Tunis today.

CHANGES ATMOSPHERE

The French action transformed the atmosphere of the proposed conference, which was to be one rather than any meeting aimed at bringing peace in Algeria.

The Algerian rebels were captured during a flight to a nationalist communication in the slight. North African union.

Several hundred students ran through the streets of Casablanca waving the green flag of the Algerian rebellion and shouting the "Free Algeria." Another crowd gathered in front of the French embassy shouting rebel slogans.

The captured rebel leaders were in communication in the Algiers French sources said they were questioned throughout the night.

Security measures were stepped up throughout Algeria in expectation of rebel reprisals.

Capture of the Algerians was made possible by the hijacking here of an airliner, who duped them into thinking they were flying on a friendly soil. It evoked bitter protests from both Tunis and Rabat.

Also prize by the French was Ahmed Ben Bella, veteran nationalist who has been mastermind the insurgent movement from sanctuary provided by Egypt

In Rabat, the Moroccan government called the capture of the Algerian "pure piracy." Moroccan acting Premier Edriss M'Hammedi called on the United States, France and Great Britain to intervene on behalf of the rebels.

In Tunis, Habib Bourguiba said: "This is an extremely grave event—not only for its effect in North Africa, but for the effect it may have on relations of Tunisia with France."

The swiftly executed coup—a high spot of the Algerian revolt—was carried out Monday night as the rebels were flying over the Mediterranean.

The plane, a DC-3 owned by the French — operated Atlas Airlines, was manned by a French crew.

INVITED TO LAND

The liner took off from Rabat and was heading for Tunis when Algerian passengers made contact with the pilot and "invited" him to land in Algiers.

While the rebels' fighter planes shadowed the DC-3 over the rim of the Algerian capital, the plane and into the arms of a waiting police squad.

Minister of the former deputy in France's National Assembly, directed the party's political committee. All-Ahmed was its emissary to the United States.

Criticize Host Of Princess for All-White Party

NAKURA, Kenya (Reuters) — Wildly clamoring African schoolchildren greeted Princess Margaret as she arrived in this picturesque town today.

Nakura, only a small town, is the capital of the highlands, a fertile region which has been largely developed by British farmers since the war.

On the 100-mile flight from Nairobi the cheerless passed over the colorful Rift valley and blue-water lakes.

After an official welcome, the princess walked into the town's attractive rose park garden through new gates, erected as a memorial to her grandfather, King George V.

In Nairobi, Abdul Ghafur Shiekh, secretary for the Capricorn Africa Society, criticized Princess Margaret's host at a dinner party Monday night for failing to include members of Kenya's nonwhite races on the guest list.

A Nairobi doctor, Michael Wood, who is chairman of the CASA, an organization which aims at wiping out the color bar in East and Central Africa, gave the party at his home 15 miles outside of Nairobi.

Earlier Monday, Wood said that party was purely personal and the society had no connections with it. But Shiekh said it was impossible for the chairman to dissociate the racial equality principle from personal actions.

Wood recently came under fire from white settlers at Lnuru after reports that he was selling his house to establish a multi-racial social centre.

The Woods, close friends of the princess, invited 30 European guests to Monday night's party—Margaret's first private house party in her month-long East African tour.

Naval Reservists Walk off Carrier, Held by Marines

DEVONPORT, England (AP)—Twelve British naval reservists who walked off the deck of the light fleet aircraft carrier Ocean were placed under arrest by Royal Marines Monday night.

The men's seven - year enlistments had been scheduled to expire Sept. 1 but along with thousands of other members of Britain's armed forces they were retained in service because of the Suez crisis.

The incident is latest of a series involving minor insubordination by reservists, mainly in the army. An admiralty spokesman described the Ocean incident as which is "being investigated."

The 12 men were detained aboard ship.

Naval enlisted men who witnessed the mass said the reservists, engaged in painting the ship, "sort of downed tools" and said they would not be given shore leave as they had expected.

Horticultural Congress Delegates Lunch on Roses, Mums, Carnations

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Rosebuds, chrysanthemums, carnations and sunflower seeds were on the luncheon menu Monday at the 11th annual American Horticultural Congress.

Some 150 delegates found a rosebud fruit cup at their luncheon plates. It consisted of a concentrated fruit cup with a tiny rosebud in the center.

Did they eat it?

"Sure," said Mrs. Evelyn Dodge. "A lot of people who work around flowers make a habit of eating them."

Then on the menu:

Petal muffins made with the usual ingredients, but including chrysanthemum petals. Green blossom honey topped the muffins.

Whipped-cream carnations for dessert, made with chopped carnation petals.

Celery hearts and an autumn fruit salad spread on autumn leaves and garnished with yew berries.

The chrysanthemum muffins were especially good," commented Mrs. Drake, "very spicy."

EISENHOWER PLANNING FULL MEDICAL CHECK

Promised in August He Would Have Test

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Eisenhower undergoes a complete physical examination this week-end, the results of which may have an influence on the fast-approaching Nov. 6 United States election.

Eisenhower said in August that he planned a pre-election test of his health and would report promptly to the people if it showed him unfit for a second term.

James C. Hagerty, presidential press secretary, told reporters Monday that Eisenhower's health is "fine" right now.

Meanwhile, Russia raged on today in the wake of the Russian proposal for an agreement to end nuclear tests—a proposal already wedged firmly into the American political campaign.

ATTEMPT TO MEDDLE

Eisenhower denounced Premier Bulganin's note Sunday in an attempt to meddle in U.S. internal affairs and as a violation of usual diplomatic procedures.

Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee, said he shared Eisenhower's "resentment at the manner and timing" of the Soviet message, but called the American reply "unfortunate."

"The real issue is not Mr. Bulganin's communication but the views about American politics," Stevenson said. "It was what could be done "to save the world from hydrogen disaster."

The Soviet initiation has taken the position that a test-ban agreement would be worthless without a foolproof mutual inspection system. Democrats have maintained that tests could be ended without damaging U.S. security or retarding development.

Stevenson's vice-presidential running mate, Senator Estes Kefauver, said Monday that the Democrats will take whatever political risk is involved in going along with the Russians or any other atomic power on an end to nuclear testing.

Stevenson obviously was stung by the wording of Bulganin's message. The Stevenson camp feels that Eisenhower went out of his way to attempt to put his Democratic opponent on the same level as Premier Bulganin with Bulganin.

"This a bot the first time the Russian leaders have said things related to our presidential election," Stevenson himself expressed the hope some time ago that Eisenhower would run for re-election, and then more recently other Russian leaders have said they favored Eisenhower for president."

High U.S. Officials Are Fearful Russia May Yet Take Drastic Action in Poland

WASHINGON (AP) — High American officials fear Russia may yet take drastic action—possibly including force—to smash Communist Poland's drive for independence.

In their view, the most dangerous phase of the struggle for control of Poland is just beginning with the Kremlin apparently undecided about its countermove.

American diplomatic officials say Soviet leaders scarcely will sit back and let Poland slip out of their control because:

1. It successful, Poland's example in defying Moscow may be followed throughout Russia's satellite empire.

2. Kremlin leaders, led by Nikita Khrushchev, the Communist party chief, undoubtedly realize that their future may be in jeopardy if they can be accused of fumbling away a chunk of the satellite domain left by Stalin.

3. An independent Poland would seize to be a buffer against the kind of surprise attack Nazi Germany launched in 1941. Further, it would break communications with Soviet army and air force units in East Germany.

Responsible United States officials say Poland's drive for independence broke so fast that the Kremlin was caught by surprise.

Now that the initial shock has eased, they say, Khrushchev and the Kremlin leaders undoubtedly are considering counter-steps. These U.S. officials say the possibility of outright military force cannot be ruled out even though Soviet leaders apparently have avoided resort to any such drastic step so far.

Reliable intelligence reports reaching Washington show that from two to four Soviet divisions in East Germany were moved to the Polish frontier last Thursday. The Soviet troops apparently did not cross into Poland, however, and may have returned to their East German bases by now.

Officials here say Soviet leaders undoubtedly realize that resort to force might wreck the image of a new "reasonable" Russia which they have sought painstakingly to spread before the world since Stalin's death.

U.S. Ambassador Defends Surplus Disposal Policies

TORONTO (CP) — The United States ambassador to Canada says that if the U.S. can work out a lasting solution in disposal of her great agricultural surpluses, the effect will be beneficial to Canada as well as herself in the markets of the world.

Livingston T. Merchant told a Canadian Club audience Monday night he didn't question that there has been "some damage to Canada's own exports" as a result of so-called U.S. "giveaway" programs and selling for local currencies. Canada has protested these to Washington as cutting into her world market potential, particularly for wheat.

But Mr. Merchant said he believes "any harm is temporary" and "that the damage has been less than some have believed." The U.S. was not going to dump her surpluses on the world market but to achieve a lasting cure and avoid doing harm to her friends.

Dealing with Canadian-U.S. relations, the ambassador said the U.S. would be wise not merely to accept Canada's strong national pride but to keep that factor before it. Here, he believed, lay "a good part of the explanation of the occasional critical discussion of United States investment in Canada."

Mr. Merchant said he believed strongly that the flow of capital investment into Canada might be it could become a serious problem if American corporations were to overlook the need to accept the obligations of belonging to the Canadian community.

He said he agreed completely with a suggestion by Trade Minister Howe in a recent Chicago speech that U.S. corporations establishing branches in Canada, or developing her natural resources, should provide opportunities both for a Canadian share in the ownership and for Canadians technically competent to hold technical and professional positions."

Dealing with the problem of agricultural surpluses in the U.S., the ambassador said that the U.S. was spending more than $1,000,000 a day in storage costs for surplus commodities.

U.S. wheat acreage had been cut back 29 per cent between 1953 and 1955. New legislation known as the Soil Bank Act would retire 12,000,000 acres from production in the next 12 years, the next year and next year the reduction would be 40,000,000 or 50,000,000 acres.

(Last Oct. 9 Canada sent a strong note to the U.S. that the government protest against a "tie-in" sales provision in selling for local currencies which forced importers to agree to buy additional fixed quantities of American wheat at some later date.)

Mr. Merchant said there was nothing new about the "tie-in" provision. It had figured in U.S. agreements with a dozen countries over two years and its purpose was "to protect a traditional U.S. supplying position not to displace other suppliers."

He served notice he intends to disprove any outdated notions that Canadians and Americans are exactly alike and never disagree.

He said:

"Sometimes I think a disservice is done both our countries by too much sugar coating and soothing syrup; by overemphasizing our common denominators and the resultant misunderstanding which we live side by side. I say this because we are in many respects essentially different."

He spoke to a joint gathering of the Canadian Club of Toronto and participants in a University of Toronto-Queen's University study called "Man and industry—the impact on human well-being of a rapidly evolving industrialization."

Mr. Merchant said the U.S. consulted other friendly exporting countries before concluding any individual agreement under the surplus-disposal program.

"Obviously the results of such consultations cannot be expected to satisfy fully every country which has its own surplus to dispose of, but the desire and the effort to take due account the views of our friends have always been there."

Students Riot In Budapest Against Stalinism

VIENNA (Reuters) — Budapest radio said today that students and stormy demonstrations Monday in the Hungarian capital demanded the public trial of Mihaly Farkas, former defence minister arrested last week.

Observers in Austria took this as an indication that the students were expressing dissatisfaction with Imre Nagy against the backers of the present Hungarian Communist leader, Ernoe Gerne, and his deposed predecessor, Matyas Rakosi.

Farkas and a number of his secret police associates were charged with "serious crimes against Socialist legality."

The radio quoted today's edition of the Hungarian Communist party newspaper Szabad Nep as saying that students, in excited and stormy tones, protested against anti-Stalinism and anti-Communism."

It said their demands showed a true understanding of the situation and the need for friendship with the Soviet Union, but only a basis of absolute equality.

Three Major Polish Cities Demonstrate Against Russians

Angry Crowds at Wroclaw Trample on Soviet Flags

WARSAW (AP) — Wild anti-Russian demonstrations were reported from three major Polish cities today.

Angry crowds in Wroclaw, the former German city of Breslau, stormed the headquarters of the Polish Russian Friendship Society and tore down and trampled on Soviet flags.

A Western eyewitness said the crowds yelled "Rokossovsky to Siberia!" and "Tell the truth about the Katyn murders!"

Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky, a Polish-born Soviet army hero of the Second World War, is the Polish defence minister who was ousted Sunday in moves by United Workers (Communist) party politburo in a purge of Stalinists.

SHAKEUP IMMINENT

The Katyn forest was the scene of the machine-gunning of 10,000 Polish officers in 1940, before Russia entered the war. The Russians, who had moved in to occupy eastern Poland, denied Western charges that they did the killing.

Similar demonstrations were reported from Gdynia and the university city of Krakow. All three cities are near the Russian border.

Parliament was called into session here amid public celebration of the country's newly proclaimed independent course. A government shakeup appeared imminent.

(Warsaw radio, in a broadcast heard in Canada, said there had been a shakeup in Rokossovsky's defence ministry. It said Gen. Marian Spychalski, once purged with Wladyslaw Gomulka, the new chief of the politburo, had been appointed deputy defence minister and chief of political officers in the Polish army. He took the place of Gen. Kazimierz Witaszewski, who had played a key role in exerting Stalinist control over Poland's armed forces. The radio said the action was taken by the new politburo in accordance with the decision of the minister of national defence" Presumably Rokossovsky.)

The shakeup came as it was also announced that a top-level Polish delegation will visit Moscow to discuss "the further development and broadening of economic co-operation" between the two countries and their Communist parties.

The Western witness said the crowds in Wroclaw first started with a meeting in the city's university and an orderly parade through the town.

Then, with banners and torches the march through town started.

CROWDS CHEER

Thousands of cheering Poles lined the streets to watch. People poured out of restaurants and homes to join the march.

The Krakow students' demonstration, which started Sunday, was not over at 9 p.m. But at 10:30 another demonstration started through the streets. It did not end until about midnight, and threatened to get out of hand.

This crowd advanced on the Polish - Russian Friendship headquarters building, and after a detachment of the Communist party newspaper Sztandar Mlodych entered the building, climbed the clock tower and threw Soviet flags to the ground.

The demonstrators also tore down a sign reading "Long live Polish-Russian friendship" and burned it, then stormed inside the building through broken windows.

The Soviet flag in the crowd shouted, "don't destroy, don't de-

Order Revision Of Indictments In Poznan Riots

LONDON (AP) — The public prosecutor of Poland has ordered a revision of all the indictments of persons charged in last June's Poznan hunger riots, the monitoring agency Teleradio reported today.

At the same time, the prosecutor moved to have the court release all persons now held in custody but who are not charged with murder or robbery.

Approximately a dozen persons have been tried in Polish courts as a result of the bloody Poznan riots. Despite convictions on such serious charges as murder and robbery, all received comparatively light sentences.

The riots themselves were widely considered as a manifestation against harsh economic policies. They were among the early and more violent signs of independence shown by the Polish people in recent months.

They came at a time when Poland's Communist party itself was in a state of turmoil against domination from Moscow, and as the latter move progressed, more and more openly as the real opposition for the Poznan rioters.

Poles Now Hail as True Patriot Man They Hated as Russian Stooge

Editor's note: This profile of Wladyslaw Gomulka was written by an Associated Press reporter who was born in Poland and was there during Gomulka's first rise to power. The writer now is with the Paris bureau of The Associated Press

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

PARIS (AP) — Twelve years ago Wladyslaw Gomulka was one of Poland's most hated Communist leaders.

Today the short, bald man with penetrating eyes has returned in triumph to lead his country into a new domestic-bred communism.

This time, however, the Polish masses see him as the man who said no to the Kremlin—not as the puppet Communist who took the fateful summer of 1944 symbolized to them Soviet domination.

Now, in the year the Soviet-sponsored national liberation committee took over war-ravaged Poland.

Gomulka, son of a Warsaw worker and a veteran of pre-war strikes, demonstrations and jails, was, vice-premier.

To the masses of Poles, historically hating Russia, members of the new government were only Soviet agents.

Suggest Site Could Be Used For Police Station

The Pinnacle street lock company property recently purchased by the city for a parking lot is being suggested for two other uses as well as for a municipal parking lot.

The Belleville Recreation Commission has asked for a 10-year-old administrative office building on the property for its recreational activities, while the property has also been suggested as a possible site for a new police station.

Mayor Jane Forrester last night at city council said the police commission had agreed that the lock company site would be ideal for a new police station.

Council would have to decide on its course of action before the commission could begin plans of the stone building and also whether the smaller building at the back was to be retained.

The mayor asked that the matter be investigated by the committee with a report to council.

Former Boxing Promoter Makes Full Restitution

TORONTO (CP) — A detective testified Monday that Sam Keller, 51, charged with possession of $14,000 in stolen bonds, has made full restitution but has refused to say where he obtained them for cashing a so-called a "stool pigeon."

Detective sergeant Herbert Thurston said Keller, a former boxing promoter, has been questioned before and after his arrest but would only imply that he received the stock from a "certain man."

Keller is charged with retaining six stock certificates, five the property of Newling and Company and one of the Chartered Trust Company.

Chris Nicholson, 32, of Kitchener, a witness in the trial, was ordered kept in custody by Judge Kenneth Parker when he told crown counsel he could not remember whether Keller had asked him where he got the stocks.

The judge said Nicholson, who got the stocks for Keller, seemed to be shielding someone.

Report Seeing Plane Explode

VANCOUVER (CP)—The RCAF said Monday night two civilians reported they saw a plane land and explode about 20 miles south of Port Alberni on Vancouver Island's west coast.

However, after four hours' checking a search and rescue officer said neither Canadian nor U.S. authorities have been able to confirm the report.

The RCAF said the RCAF they saw a light plane land on the rough water a mile off Point Roberts, Wash., a U.S. feature, the aircraft exploded, they said.

A Canadian customs officer at Boundary Bay said he believed the plane was a Grumman Goose amphibian which takes a crew of two and can carry five or six passengers.

Re-assessment of all Properties In City Turned Down by Council

City council by 9-5 recorded votes last night turned down a recommendation to have a complete re-assessment of properties in the city.

The recommendation for the re-assessment was presented by Alderman Robert Smith, chairman of a special council committee to investigate whether a re-assessment was required.

Cost of the re-assessment if done by an outside firm would be about $30,000, council was told.

In presenting his report Ald. Smith told council that re-assessment should be proceeded with before the application for the proposed annexation was placed before the Ontario Municipal Board. He urged that the city "must have its own house in order" before it could hope to convince the municipal board as to the feasibility and practicality of annexation.

He observed that the last re-assessment in the city had been in 1939 or 1940, and that there had been a limited re-assessment taking in industrial and certain other properties.

Ald. C. L. Hyde and Ald. Gerald Hyde said the property needed the recommendation.

Ald. Gerald Hyde said he was opposed for three reasons, the first being the cost of $30,000 if done by outside firm, and the use of outside firm.

Also he said there could not be too many assessment inequalities in the city as last year out of a total of 6,000 properties assessed there had been only 80 appeals.

WOULD TAKE YEAR

He claimed the job would take a year to do and if so would not be completed in time for the proposed annexation.

He agreed that a larger staff in the assessment department was needed to take care of the $20 million assessment now in the city.

Finally he said he opposed the re-assessment on the ground of high assessment complaints after re-assessment. Already the city was paying 65% per cent of the taxes costs in the City of Quinte area with but half the students. The end result of re-assessment would be an assessment of maybe $30 millions which in turn would necessitate the city's tax payments for high school purposes.

Alderman Ivan Safe declared the city was in enough trouble without looking for more.

"The millrate is now 73 and if we go through with everything suggested it will go to 90," he said.

He said the present assessment staff was capable for the work necessary and claimed re-assessment was not so important at this time as it had been other "not so many years ago."

Alderman Dr. John Stock said the majority of council was convinced certain inequalities in assessment existed in the city and that re-assessment was desirable.

"But the question is not what it is", he asked.

Also opposed was Alderman Enos David, who agreed some adjustments could be made. He thought many of the inequalities could be corrected by the present assessing staff.

NOT ESSENTIAL, CLAIM

"Re-assessment is possibly desirable, but it is not essential," claimed Alderman Wm. Argue.

Most inequalities were in connection with new homes built in recent years.

In reply Alderman Temple disagreed with them were only a few complaints about inequality of assessments. He personally had heard of many," he said.

Land assessments were greatly out of line, he noted.

Regardless of whether there was re-assessment a larger staff was required in the assessing department. Re-assessment was something designed to save the city money, not cost money, he urged.

Approving the recommendation on calling for re-assessment were Mayor Jane Forrester and Aldermen Grandstone, Keegan, Temple and Tice. Opposing were Aldermen Argue, Clarke, David, Field, C. L. Hyde, Gerald Hyde, McCabe, Stock and Safe.

Rotarians Told What Action to Take in Accidents

"Accidents are inevitable and we might as well recognize that and remember it might be your turn," said Mr. Edson Haines, Q.C., Toronto, speaking to Rotarians at the weekly meeting of Belleville Rotary.

In conjunction with October being observed as Safety Month, Mr. Haines told his audience what they should do in the event they are involved in a highway accident.

"The first and most important thing to do after being in a car accident is to give assistance to those who are injured. But, he insisted, "it might be better not to move an injured person except when he is in such a position that he may be involved in a second mishap or a car accident is anticipated. A person untrained in first aid can easily complicate the injuries already suffered by a person if he moves him."

There are many kinds of policemen just as there are many kinds of people in other walks of life, he said. Some are highly trained traffic officers, most of them have had some training in accident investigation, and then there are a few almost as incapacitated as the drivers. Most policemen are officious, a few are courteous, and some are rude. The very ordinary people going about the performance of what is known as "police work." One of the more important things a person should remember in dealing with a police officer at an accident is not to argue with him. Don't start arguing an accident can do so with the credence that it will be used later to be used against him by the policeman or anyone else. The Highway Traffic Act makes this a "privileged communication." However, it does not necessarily extend to passengers in the accident car or to witnesses of anyone who is injured in the mishap.

Mr. Haines said it would be probable the investigating officer would ask the drivers of the cars involved if they would submit to a medical or physical test to prove or disprove that driver's ability. A test nor can their drivers' licenses be used against them in court or any other place.

DEFINES TERMINOLOGY

Mr. Haines defined the rather complicated terminology. 1.5 parts per 1,000 which frequently is brought up in court. For example, a person weighing 150 pounds and after subjected to a blood sample being taken the analysis shows 1.5 parts per 1,000, that means the person had consumed 10 ounces of alcohol up to one hour before the blood sample was made. But most people are able to eliminate one to two ounces per hour from their bodies each hour. Therefore, the amount he has eliminated from the 10 ounces. "Moreover, the 10 ounces. "Moreover, certain tests for alcoholic intoxication are conducted by a properly trained technician are still high fool proof," said the speaker.

If the investigating officer believes circumstances surrounding the accident warrant charges being laid then the person on whom the charge is laid is liable for bail and may permit to be suspended anywhere from a day to life in addition to a heavy fine, imprisonment or both.

"One of the most important things of all is never to admit fault," said Mr. Haines. That is for the courts and magistrate to decide. But the speaker urged full, co-operation be given the latter in the settling policemen.

Just as soon as an accident occurs the criminal courts and civil courts begin working hand in hand. The criminal courts punish guilty parties on the driver at fault if a charge is laid and he is convicted. The civil courts award property damage suits and suits laid by a person injured in the accident. The speaker said that in Ontario a driver is not liable for payment of medical bills by passengers in his car. But, if the accident happened outside this province the driver is immediately open for law suits which give him heavy fines for liability if he is found guilty.

Some people use the criminal law to collect a personal debt. "Those who do are liable to an action for malicious prosecution," concluded Mr. Haines.

Introduced by Fred Allen, the speaker was thanked by Mack Hale.

Bus Fares Increased, Services Curtailed on Rawson Bus Line

Bus fares in Belleville are to be increased by 50 per cent in the near future.

And at the same time there is to be certain of the routes is to be curtailed slightly with the Crosstown route to cease operation completely.

Members of city council last night approved of the changes in the bus fare increase, but only after they had been assured the route curtailment and fare increase was essential if the Rawson Bus Company was to show a profitable operation.

The new bus fares which are expected to be put into effect within the next ten days will be two tickets for 25c, instead of the present three for 25c, with cash fare of 15c instead of 10c.

Bus fare for children will be 7c cash single fare.

Alderman Gerald Hyde in presenting the recommendation for the increase said he had agreed with the Rawson bus agreement was reached several months ago if it had been hopeful it would continue for the full five years' term.

However, it appears that unless the fare increase and service curtailment is made, the Rawson Bus Company will discontinue its service completely, he said. The mayor said that the contract will be continued the requests must be granted.

Alderman Hyde noted that the Rawson Bus Company in taking over the bus company realized it would lose passengers as result of the fare increase, but the change was still felt necessary.

SERVICE CURTAILED

In addition to the fare changes, one change in bus service will mean that the "Dunbar-Cannifton-Belleville Fast Mill" buses will be allowed to commence operation at 6.15 a.m. instead of at 6.15 a.m. with the same buses being utilized for these operations on the Thursday and Saturday evenings at 6.15 p.m.

The Crosstown bus is to cease operation effective at once, and the Parkwood Drive and Front Street terminal by Victoria Ave. instead of Bridge Street.

Mr. Fred Rawson, president of the Rawson Bus Line, told the council it was to show profitable operation each bus required 1,000 passengers per day, with each bus carrying an average of 500 passengers daily.

Alderman Ben Safe referred to the 50 per cent fare increase as rather substantial and suggested the burden might be too great for people who could not afford to pay it.

FAVORED SUBSIDIZATION

He said the city had agreed to subsidize the local lot for motorists and it owned the same obligation to the bus company. This could be done by way of subsidizing the bus company's fare.

Mayor Forrester said that car pools carrying people to work at local factories had cut deeply into bus receipts, while every new car sold also reduced the number of bus passengers.

He compared bus fare rates in Belleville with those in Kingston, Brantford and other centres, showing that other bus operating companies were losing money or else were subsidized by the municipality.

Mr. Rawson noted that his company had operated at a loss with some of the vehicles during the winter months and would be replaced but with present revenue, that other bus operational costs the necessary credit was not available to purchase new equipment.

Job Evaluation At City Hall Referred Back

Belleville city council at their next committee meeting will discuss whether or not a job evaluation survey for municipal employees at city hall is wanted.

The matter had been discussed briefly at the council committee meeting last week and again at council Monday evening when it was decided to again refer it to committee for study.

Last night a representative of the Stevenson - Kelloy job evaluation service addressed council outlining what such a survey could be expected to do in assessing the relative values of each job at city hall and in comparison to industry what salary the job should pay.

The representative said the survey would cost about $75 for each employee, or a total of about $2400 for the 30 odd employees who would be taken in the survey.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

The recommendation passed by council called for the matter of the survey to be referred to the committee of the whole and if at that meeting council approval was given the executive committee to be authorized to go ahead for services of the Stevenson - Kellog firm to do the survey.

Alderman Ben Safe said in his opinion the survey was unnecessary and questioned whether the expense could be obtained by writing ten municipalities to find out what the average salary for the various positions. He moved an amendment asking that the matter be decided now and not referred to the committee.

Alderman Enos David agreed that the survey might be a good thing but said such things cost a lot of money. He said he felt efficiency could be had for less and "If we use a little common sense."

"Who knows better than we do what employees are worth?" he asked.

Alderman Frank Grandame said he was a firm believer in job evaluation.

"How can city employees be expected to work under present conditions?" he asked. "There's a change from year to year and anyway are we qualified to decide? Only employees are experts in the field," he observed.

Stirling Masonic Lodge Observes 100th Anniversary

Today members of Stirling Lodge, No. 406, A.F. and A.M., proudly wear gold brain in recognition of one hundred years of active service.

On Monday in fitting ceremony and celebration, the lodge observed its 100th anniversary at a banquet held in the village community hall.

High ranking dignitaries of the lodge and visiting lodges were present at the banquet where the history of Stirling lodge from its inception was reviewed, presentations made and an address heard.

The guest speaker was the Rt. Wor.-Bro. R. S. Edmondson, member of the Board of General Purpose, Grand Lodge, A.F. and A.M., Oshawa. He was introduced by Rt. Wor. Bro. J. L. Good, D.D.G.M.

The history of the lodge was related by Bro. R. A. Patterson and Bro. Lieut. H. R. Tompkins.

A dispensation to organize a Masonic lodge in Stirling was issued by the Grand Lodge on April 22, A.L. 5858, Anno Domini 1858.

The first worshipful master to rule, the late Rt. Wor. Bro. George E. Bull, the senior and junior wardens were William S. Brown and Joseph Wright.

Members of the lodge met in their first lodge room in the old stone mill between 1856 and 1870. On August 4th the first candidate was initiated.

From 1870 to 1884 the lodge held forth in the Ketcham block, where the Stirling Dairy li now located. The deed of the lodge's present location is dated March 11, 1884.

LIFE MEMBERSHIPS PRESENTED

Rt. Wor. Bro. Edmondson in his address pointed out the various duties of the lodge and included in the Board of General Purposes were the Benevolent and Library committees. He mentioned various interesting instances of the work of these committees.

He lauded the Masonic lodge to the Boy Scout movement, stating one was for the boy and the other for the man. He had been told, he said, by mature Masons that he would soon find out the difference.

"I have been a Mason for 20 years," he said, "and I have yet to find this difference."

During the banquet presentation ceremonies, life memberships were presented to five members with 30 years service by Rt. Wor. Bro. E. A. Carleton. Wor. Bro. H. R. Tompkins presented the oldest living member of the lodge, John Clements of Rossmore, with a new Masonic apron. Bro. Clements has been a member of the lodge since 1902. Bro. W. J. Fletcher presented the "baby member" of the lodge, Craig Watson, Wellman's, with a new Masonic Bible. He was initiated last Thursday.

The toast to the visitors was proposed by the Rev. H. C. Sayer with response made by Rt. Wor. Bro. Hilton Beatty. The invocation was uttered by Bro. Rev. W. H. V. Walker, district chaplain. Wor. Master Murray Johnston was chairman.

A barbershop quartet rendered several numbers while dinner music was played by Bro. Don Williams. Bro. Chester Smith proposed "To the Queen and the Craft" and that by the Junior Warden.

Someone Got Signals Crossed On Telephone

Mrs. Cecile Martin, 146 Macdonald Avenue, picked up her telephone receiver yesterday. A strange voice trickled over the line.

"Is this so-and-so?" it asked. Puzzled, Mrs. Martin said "No."

"Is this Woodward 8-6121?" asked the voice.

"No," replied Mrs. Martin, "it is Woodland 8-6121."

"Where are you speaking from?" the voice inquired.

"Belleville," said Mrs. Martin.

The "voice" gasped. "There must be some mistake," it said. "I am speaking from Battle Creek, Michigan."

It appears there is a Woodward exchange in Battle Creek and Woodland in Belleville. Somewhere somebody got their signals crossed.

Give Ratepayers Opportunity to Express Opinion

City ratepayers at the next municipal election will be given the opportunity of expressing their opinions as to which three of a number of proposed municipal projects should be carried out first.

The projects on which electors will be asked to voice their opinion as to the relative necessity range from re-location of the market scales building at an estimated cost of $45,000, to a new sewage disposal plant at a probable cost of one-and-a-half million dollars.

The idea was broached last night to city council by Alderman Gerald Hyde, who said a referendum which was printed the various projects and their cost would be placed at each polling booth. Voters would be asked to express their opinion as to which was the most essential to the municipality.

The answers would not be counted by the returning officers, but turned over to council who would use them as a guide for future planning.

Listed among the projects to be considered by the electors are arena renovations costing $100,000; a new bridge across the Moira north of the C.P.R. bridge $250,000; a new city hall—$300,000; College street dam—$250,000; community centre—$750,000; incinerator — $100,000; parking lot on the east river bank—$100,000; new police station—$100,000; Fahey street access road —$310,000 and new sewage disposal plant —$1,500,000.

Homebrew Show, 'French Cabaret', Wins Acclaim

TRENTON (Special) — A homebrew production labelled "French Cabaret," featuring a guitar-playing singer, has been hailed as the liveliest one hour of entertainment staged by a local group in many seasons.

Local talent, principally from the versatile membership of the Trenton Country Club, drew the nod of approval of the most conservative critics here Saturday night.

Headliner Bing Campney, of Trenton, the Quinte district's answer to Elvis Presley, received a tremendous hand from the crowd of 200 jammed into the upper lounge of the social club's headquarters at the top of King St. His rock-'n-roll ballads caused a near sensation among the adult audience who turned out in numbers to surpass even the producers' fondest hopes.
